CRATER 'BIG AS HOUSE'

Traffic in Clacton Completely Disorganized and Bus Service Rerouted Around the Town — Baby Carriage Standing Beside House Blown Into a Treetop

London, May 1 (CP).—The crash of a German bomber shot down by anti-aircraft guns and the explosion of its deadly load of mines and bombs at the east coast resort town of Clacton-on-Sea today killed the Nazi crew of five and caused England's first civilian air raid casualties—three dead and more than 100 injured.

Air raid workers dug charred bodies from the debris resulting from the crash, which resembled a giant skyrocket exploding a box of fireworks. The explosion destroyed three houses, damaged fifty others and left a huge crater in the street.

Although the casualties here are England's first air raid losses in the war, one civilian has been killed at the Orkney Islands north of Scotland during raids on the Scapa Flow naval base and other civilians have been wounded in Scotland.

Damage was estimated at $450,000.

Large Circus Gorilla Treated for Pneumonia

New York, May 1 (AP).—With the aid of sixteen tanks of oxygen, pills and castor oil, Gargantua, the 525-pound circus gorilla, was sent to Boston today apparently recovered from a threat of pneumonia and an attack of acute indigestion. Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey officials were so concerned with the huge beast's condition yesterday that they called in medical consultants, who prescribed the oxygen. Gargantua inhaled 1,600 gallons of pure oxygen, administered to him in his air-conditioned cage and was pronounced out of danger.

U. S. EXPORTS, TIN AND RUBBER TO RUSSIA CEASE

Copper Shipments Greatly Diminish Despite Russia's Need for Commodity

STATEMENT GIVEN

Washington, May 1 (AP)—Pointing to statistics for proof, United States officials declared today that United States exports of tin and rubber to Russia have ceased and that copper shipments have greatly diminished despite Russia's recognized normal need of those commodities.

They cited export figures for 1939 and the first quarter of 1940 in replying to assertions of Ronald Cross, British Minister of Economic Warfare, that Germany was obtaining vitally needed war materials from the United States via Siberia.

Mr. Cross told the American Chamber of Commerce in London that stoppage of such American shipments was the major objective of the British blockade now in force against Vladivostok, the Soviet's only Pacific port.

Tin, rubber and copper were mentioned by the British economic minister as the principal items which the British navy sought to intercept.

Two Soviet freighters carrying metals—the 2,492 ton Selenga and the 3,972 ton Vladimir Mayakovsky—have been seized recently by the British, and another Soviet steamship turned back to a United States port when warned.

Decline of 19 Per Cent.

Officials here pointed out, however, that United States exports to the Soviet in 1939 actually showed a decline of 19 per cent from 1938 figures. The total was $56,638,000 and of that, 70 per cent went for metal-working machinery, ferroalloys, copper, aircraft and petroleum products.

Shipments of airplanes and parts, molybdenum, aluminum, and plants and plans for manufacture of aviation fuel, they added, ceased last

Spokesman Also States That Situation at Dombas is "Dangerous and Very Obscure"

London, May 1 (CP)—Great Britain, aroused by growing signs of Italian hostility and intimations that Italy might join Germany in war, has diverted her shipping from the Mediterranean.

"Pronouncements by Italians in responsible positions and the attitude of the Italian press have been recently of such a character as to make it necessary for His Majesty's government to take precautions as regards British shipping which would normally pass through the Mediterranean," said an authoritative statement.

The order that Britain's shipping use the long Cape of Good Hope route around Africa to sidestep Italian power in the Mediterranean was announced as a temporary precaution—to be enforced only so long as necessary.

NORSE REOCCUPY STOREN STATE LATE REPORTS

Swedish Reports Say That German Claim That Communications Between Oslo and Trondheim Had Been Established, is Doubted

SHIPS BOMBED

(By Elmer Peterson Associated Press Staff Writer).

Stockholm, May 1 (AP)—Unconfirmed reports said tonight that Norwegian forces had reoccupied Storen, vital railroad junction 35 miles south of Trondheim, possibly after German vanguards had withdrawn.

Similar advices said Roros, 50 miles farther southeast on the railroad from Oslo, also had been reentered by the Norwegians.

The German withdrawals, however, were said to have been in line with Nazi tactics of striking with lightning speed to cripple Allied communications and then waiting for reinforcements before attempting to take a firm hold on advanced positions.

The Stockholm newspaper Tidningen printed a dispatch from a special correspondent declaring that a German column moving south from Trondheim to meet another Nazi force advancing northward had been halted before reaching Storen.

It was not clear whether this dispatch was written before or after

Why The Weather?

BY MAJOR A. H. THIESSEN
Science Service Meteorologist

Air drainage for houses! There are meteorological questions to be considered even when designing a house. The unassisted ventilation of a house depends upon the natural flow of air. Warm air ascends and cold air settles. To be well ventilated a room should have windows reaching to the ceiling to let out the warm air, and if cold air can not get in from a hall or adjoining room, it should have a window reaching to the floor or any outside door. A cellar dug in level ground will tend to hold a pocket of cold, damp air. If your lot is sloping, it would be well to have a cellar door opening at the lowest part of the lot so that the air can drain out. High attic windows help to cool that room and hence the whole house.

Pittsburgh Group Offers $1,000,000 Reward For the Capture of Hitler

New York, May 1 (AP)—A Pittsburgh group offered today to pay $1,000,000 reward for the capture of Adolf Hitler, unhurt, but specified that the German Fuehrer must be delivered into the custody of the League of Nations before the end of May.

Samuel Harden Church, president of the $28,000,000 Carnegie Institute, announced the offer on behalf of an unnamed group, which he said was acting in "good faith," in a letter to the New York Times.

The unusual proposal brought recollections of a daring scheme of a group of United States soldiers after the first Great War to kidnap the former German Kaiser from his retreat at Doorn, The Netherlands.

In his letter Church said that Hitler should be delivered "for trial before a high court of justice for his crimes against the peace and dignity of the world."

Church said in a telephone interview with The Times that the proposal had been discussed for some time among some members of the Duquesne Club of Pittsburgh after private advices reached them saying Hitler planned an attempt to break through on the western front soon.

Shortly after the armistice of 1918 a band of American soldiers, among them Colonel Luke Lea of Tennessee, and Larry MacPhail, now president of the Brooklyn Dodgers baseball team, secretly entered Holland and travelled to Wilhelm's haven.

According to legend surrounding the adventure, which the participants were reluctant to discuss in later years, the party actually entered Wilhelm's home but fled when surprised by Dutch guards.

Complaints were made to the United States department and Lea and his companions were placed under military arrest. Disposition of the case never was revealed, but all were released.

3 German Airdromes Badly Damaged by R.A.F. In Norway, Denmark

Air Ministry Reports British Attacks on Large Concentrations of Enemy Aircraft in Norway and Denmark — 7 British Planes Lost and 3 German Planes Are Known to Have Been Shot Down — Further Attacks Delivered Today by Royal Air Force

London, May 1 (CP)—The Air Ministry announced today that the Royal Air Force bombed German airdromes at Stavanger and Fornebu in Norway and at Aalborg, in Denmark last night, doing heavy damage.

The announcement said seven British planes were lost and three German planes were known to have been shot down.

Further attacks were carried out this morning, it was stated.

The statement follows:

"Large concentrations of enemy aircraft were reported yesterday (Tuesday) at air bases in Norway and Denmark.

"Extensive attacks were therefore launched by strong forces of Royal Air Force bombers and aircraft last night on the airdromes of Stavanger, Fornebu and Aalborg.

"The attacks were pressed home in the face of strong opposition from anti-aircraft guns and fighters. Preliminary reports indicate that heavy damage was done on the airdromes and on aircraft dispersed there.

"Casualties were inflicted on enemy fighters. At least three are known to have been shot down. Seven of our aircraft were lost during these operations.

"Further attacks have been carried out this morning."

Tornadic winds ripping across sections of southern Illinois, southeast Missouri and Arkansas and a cloudburst in east Texas killed at least 12 persons, injured many and caused thousands of dollars damage last night.

Six were killed and eight injured, one critically, near Benton, Ark., as a tornado cut a 75-foot swath through a sparsely settled rural section.

At least two were killed and an unestimated number injured as tornadoes bounced over southeastern Missouri and southern Illinois. Thirteen persons from both states were taken to a Cairo, Ill., hospital. Six were hurt at Marion, Ill.

J. E. McNeese, 70, of Richmond, Tex., and his son, Cecil, 30, were killed when wind demolished their home. The 18-months-old daughter of Mrs. Ted Cook of Frankston, Tex., was torn from her mother's arms by a flood and drowned. A cloudburst washed the Cook family and others from beneath a culvert, where they had taken refuge.

Heavy rains and hail accompanied swirling winds in the midsouth, causing damage to crops. Water swept into stores at Thomasville, Ala.

200 GERMANS TO BE EXPELLED FROM RUMANIA

Report From Bucharest Tells of Canvass of Homes in Oil District

FIREARMS FOUND

Bucharest, May 1—(AP) — The Rumanian Government was reported today to have signed orders for the expulsion of 200 Germans after a canvass of 600 homes in the oil field districts and other strategic areas of Rumania.

The raiders reported resistance in one case near Cratova which resulted in an exchange of revolver shots.

Police said quantities of firearms were found in many homes inhabited by Germans suspected of being members of a "fifth column" which was said to have planned to rise in case German troops marched across Rumania.

Most raids were made just after dawn.

Official Military Circles State Allies Are Nearer to Narvik Than Yesterday — Military Sources Also Believe Germans Have Made Great Effort to Join Forces From Trondheim and Oslo

By J. F. SANDERSON

London, May 1 (CP)—The War Office announced today that British troops "withdrew to prepared positions" in the Dombas area, 100 miles south of Trondheim, after stubbornly resisting strong German attacks.

The communique said Allied operations in the Narvik district are "continuing satisfactorily."

"In the Namsos area the situation at the front remains unchanged.

"In the Dombas area our troops after stubborn resistance in the face of strong enemy attacks withdrew to prepared positions."

Allied forces are closing in on the German garrison at Narvik, official military circles announced.

"We are closer to Narvik today than we were yesterday," it was stated.

Regarding Namsos farther south, it was stated: "We have a report dated yesterday saying the situation there is good and there is no reason to suppose it has deteriorated since. Desultory bombing is going on between Steinkjer and Namsos."

There is still no confirmation at the War Office of the German claim that Storen and Dombas have been captured but there is a disposition to regard it as true, particularly in view of the announcement of the German high command that the Oslo and Trondheim forces have met.

'Bewildering and Terrifying' Canadian's Description of Crash

By FRED BACKHOUSE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Clacton, England, May 1—(CP Cable)—Standing amid smoking ruins of what was once a score of brick residences, Thomas Parker, commercial traveller formerly of Vancouver, B. C., today described the bewildering tragedy that struck this noted East coast summer resort when a mine-laden German plane crashed during the night.

Parker, an air raid precautions worker, said scores of residents poured from their homes when they heard the stricken German plane droning overhead.

Suddenly the plane crashed with a terrifying roar that seemed to rock the entire town. Because of the intense heat from the burning plane, which had been damaged by British anti-aircraft fire, Parker said he was unable to get within 60 yards of it and had no chance to rescue the fliers.

The sight that met his eyes as the smoke and dust lifted slightly was "bewildering and terrifying", he said. Hundreds of persons, many of them injured and still in their night attire, staggered and crawled into the pitch dark streets. Rescue work was made difficult because of the blackout and Parker said that not until dawn broke could the full force of the tragedy be realized. Meanwhile residents were permitted, so many at a time, to enter the roped off area to recover essential belongings.

It was a pathetic picture as forlorn little groups, dressed only in coats over night clothes, salvaged pots and pans, loaded them on handcarts, and stumbled off through the debris to the homes of kindly neighbors.

BASS FISHING OPENS JUNE 29

Opening Day Will be Two Days Earlier Than Last Year

Toronto, May 1 —(CP)— Bass fishermen will be allowed to enjoy their sport for the entire Dominion Day weekend, it was learned today at the Ontario Legislature Buildings.

Hon. Harry Nixon, Minister of Game and Fisheries, has decided that fishermen may make their first casts for bass June 29, the Saturday prior to Dominion Day, when the season normally opens.

Trout fishermen were allowed to start their season last Saturday, though it normally does not open until tomorrow.

FRENCH-BRED DJEBEL WINS

Aga Khan's Stardust Runs Second in Two Thousand Guineas Stakes

Newmarket, England, May 1 (CP).—Marcel Boussac's French-bred Djebel today won the two thousand guineas stakes, first of the season's classics. The Aga Khan's Stardust was second and the Maharajah of Kolhapur's Tant Mieux third in the field of 21.

The favored Djebel won easily by two lengths and rewarded her backers at the rate of 9 to 4. Stardust started at 100 to 9 and Tant Mieux a 13 to 2.

Djebel, a bay colt by Tourbillion from Loika, was ridden by Charlie Elliott and covered the mile distance in one minute, 42 3-5 seconds. A head separated Stardust and Tant Mieux.

POLICE SEARCH FOR TWO SOLDIERS

15-Year-Old Girl Reports She Was Criminally Assaulted and Beaten

Toronto, May 1—(CP)— Police are conducting a wide search for two soldiers who are reported to have criminally assaulted and beaten a 15-year-old girl early today.

The girl told police she was waiting near the Exhibition Grounds camps for a friend when two soldiers approached her. They seized her and carried her into a lane.

When found by the police the girl's clothing was torn and she had deep scratches on her face inflicted, she said when she struggled.

AUXILIARY SENDS 6000 CIGARETTES

Mrs. D. J. Jeffs, treasurer, Ladies' Auxiliary Canadian Legion, Branch 99, B.E.S.L., recently sent an order for 6,000 cigarettes to a tobacco company for despatch to twenty members of the C.A.S.F. now overseas. This order has received the best attention of the company which writes that "from the many letters which we have received from the 'Boys' overseas, we can assure you that your generous gesture will be greatly appreciated by these men."

TWENTY LOCAL MEN GIVEN WORK CLEARING HYDRO RIGHT-OF-WAY

Approximately twenty men from Belleville and district have been placed in the Hydro camp at Napanee and, with some twenty others, are now engaged in cutting the right-of-way for the high tension line to run between Kingston and Trenton, according to Mr. W. Ross of the local employment bureau. The men are lodged in camps near Napanee and are divided into gangs working east and west from that town. The power line will be of steel tower construction for which the right-of-way in the Napanee district has been cleared.

DRUNKEN DRIVING CHARGE IS LAID

Considerable property damage resulted when two motor cars were in collision at the upper end of Front Street late last night. As a sequel to the crash, Omer Gauthier, of the Trenton R.C.A.F. base, faced charges of drunken driving when arraigned before H. B. Wilson, local Justice of the Peace today. Gauthier was remanded and later given into the custody of the R.C.A.F. authorities by Chief Kidd.

P.C. Wright arrested Gauthier on Front Street last night after the automobile which he was driving had collided with a southbound motor car driven by Donald Phasey, of Picton. Considerable property damage resulted to the vehicles in the matter of damaged fenders and body dints. Gauthier was driving a rented car procured in Trenton.

BURGLARS ENTER VACANT HOUSE

Burglars entered a vacant house at 190 East Dundas Street of a recent date, city police were informed last night. The discovery of the break-in was made by Benjamin Simpson of this city, who reported the matter to Sergeant Arthur Booth. Later P.C. Thomson investigated, but could not ascertain whether or not a robbery had been committed. The house and contents are the property of Mr. John Brintnell, who now resides in Florida. Only by taking inventory and submitting it to Mr. Brintnell can it be established what goods were taken, if any. Police feel the entrance was made by curious boys, rather than actual burglars, however.

FLYING SPLINTER OF GLASS NARROWLY MISSES CAR OCCUPANT

A narrow escape from injury was experienced by an unidentified motorist shortly after ten o'clock last night, when splintering glass hurtling through the air following a motor car accident passed through the open windows of the car in which he was sitting.

The car was parked on the north side of Front Street near the J. B. Boyce Service Station when a car emerging from the gas-pumps crashed into another vehicle proceeding southward. The resulting crash sent splinters of glass in all directions, one large fragment whizzing through the open window of the parked car missing its occupant's face by scant inches.

GAS BUOYS GET COAT OF PAINT

Employees of the Department of Transport (Marine Department) are in Belleville today preparing the gas buoys on the Government Dock for their annual coat of paint before placing them in the Bay of Quinte. The buoy tender "Grenville" of Prescott is expected up the bay any time within the next three or four days, according to Harbour Master, Joseph Waddell, who says that the boat is now on the St. Lawrence.

The only boat to dock at the Belleville Harbour during the past few days has been the oil tanker "Britamette" which was in yesterday with a load of gasoline. She left early this morning for Montreal and will trade in the Ottawa district for the next few weeks.

DENSE FOG BLANKETS CITY TUESDAY NIGHT

A heavy fog that enveloped the city and district in a murky haze shortly after ten o'clock last night, constituted a dangerous driving hazard to urban and rural drivers alike.

Transport drivers were forced to reduce their speed to a minimum on the main highways. Travellers arriving from the northern part of the county stated the fog was exceptionally heavy with the vapor being the thickest between Belleville and Madoc.

In the city, the City Hall clock was invisible at times, as swirling masses of fog swept at intervals across its face.

CITY HALL CLOCK "RIGHT ON DOT"

"This daylight saving business may be alright, but that is taking the matter a bit too far," one of a group of bus passengers waiting for transportation at the Front and Bridge Street intersection remarked last evening.

The time was five-fifteen, and the city hall clock striking the hour of five caused the little group to raise questioning eyes at the civic time-piece. Gradually the hands moved around the dial of the clock. It passed six, seven, eight and nine, and by the time the passengers embarked on the bus the hands were still rotating.

However, whatever was wrong was apparently adjusted, for the clock was "on time" this morning.

BLACK SUCKERS RUNNING AT MILFORD

SALE OF SEED GRAIN HIGHER THAN IN 1939

Sale of seed grain and other seeds during the past ten days is substantially higher than that of a year ago not only points to a good year for seed men but also indicates a decided trend on the part of farmers to use good seed, a member of the Bishop Seed Company stated today.

Grains are moving rapidly as are other seeds with the exception of the smaller varieties this being due to the fact that gardens are not yet ready for planting.

Certified seed potatoes are also moving in a volume much higher than that of a year ago, it was reported.

NO "UPS" ON WATCH PRICES

In the Angus McFee 80th anniversary advertisement on page 3 of yesterday's paper the price given on the Bulova Ladies' "Priscilla" watch was $24.75 up. The word "up" should have been omitted as there is only one price on this watch. The same applies to the Bulova "Dean" for men for which there is only one price, $24.75.

POLICE FIND YOUTH "OUT ON PAROLE"

After loitering around the police station, where he procured the price of a meal, Lindsay White, a 16-year-old lad who was on parole from the Bowmanville Boys' Training School, was placed in the cell block upon his return to the police station after Belleville police had learned White had broken his parole yesterday. The information was given to the police by Inspector T. D. Ruston of the Children's Aid Society, while White was procuring eats at a nearby restaurant with the money given to him by kindly police. He was locked up when he returned to visit his benefactors.

White had been paroled from the Bowmanville school to work on a farm near Halloway, where he received eight dollars per month and his keep. "I was offered ten dollars a month by a farmer out near Maynooth and I accepted it," revealed White, after his detention. The school officials have been seeking his whereabouts for some weeks.

TOTAL PRECIPITATION IN APRIL 2.99 INCHES

Total rainfall during the month of April, 1940, amounted to 2.46 inches while five and three-tenths inches of snow fell during the same period making a total precipitation of 2.99 inches for the month. During the same month in 1939 there was 2.12 inches of rain while six and seven-tenths inches of snow fell with a total precipitation of 2.79 being registered. Thus, while more rain fell during the month just ended than for the same period last year, there was less snow this year. Total precipitation for the month just ended shows an increase of .20 inches over the same period last year.

Customs Returns Show Increase of $113,495 Over April of 1939

Customs returns at the Belleville Customs branch for the month of April, 1940, were $206,688.36 as compared with a total of $93,193.04 for the same period of 1939. Thus showing an increase of $113,495.32 for April, 1939, over the same period of last year.

Father and Son Convicted Of Cruelty to Animals

Six Cows Found Dead of Starvation and Remaining Livestock Covered With Sores and Filth on Farm of Albert Reeves of Hermon, Evidence is Given at Trial

FINED $50 AND COSTS

Terming it "one of the most appalling and vicious cases of cruelty to dumb animals", Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K. C., sternly criticized the farming practices of Mr. Albert Reeves and his son Raymond of Hermon, when they appeared before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in county police court held in Bancroft Tuesday, charged with cruelty to dumb animals. The charges arose following investigations by Provincial Police in conjunction with complaints registered by the Belleville Humane Society.

Provincial Constable Palmateer of Bancroft, with an official of the Belleville Humane Society, visited the premises and there discovered six dead cattle in the barnyard, with death evidently due to starvation, lice and filth. Further investigation of the animals still remaining in the barn revealed the cattle to be in a very poor condition, covered with lice and large sores, with the stable in an exceedingly filthy state. The horses owned by the Reeves family were also in a very poor condition with one so lame that it could barely touch its foot to the ground.

Upon learning of the conditions at the farm, charges of cruelty to animals were immediately preferred against the two Reeves men and in court at Bancroft Tuesday, Albert Reeves was fined $50 and costs, or in default, two months' imprisonment, and his son Raymond, who was supposed to have charge of the stock, was given a year's suspended sentence.

The Reeves men were severely reprimanded by the Magistrate for their neglect of the animals at their farm, as the condition and filth of the animals was inexcusable. There was lots of disinfectant on the premises with which to get rid of the lice and with two healthy strong men around the stables it was nothing less than laziness to allow such terrible conditions to exist, said the Magistrate.

(Codrington)

The death occurred in the Belleville General Hospital on Tuesday afternoon, April 30th., of Joseph Moring of Codrington in Northumberland County. He was fifty-one years old and was admitted to the hospital on April 6th.

MRS. JENNIE HAWKINS
(Carrying Place)

Mrs. Jennie Hawkins, age 68 years, of Carrying Place in Prince Edward County, died in the Belleville General Hospital this Wednesday morning. She was admitted to the hospital on April 23rd.

CHARLES MARSHALL BELL

(Contributed)

Charles Marshall Bell of Frankford, Ont., passed away April 21st, 1940, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Blake Way. Mr. Bell was in his 83rd year and had been in failing health for some time, but was not seriously ill until a week before his death. He was a carpenter by trade and spent his early life at this work; in later years he followed the occupation of farming on the seventh concession of Sidney, where he was born and resided until three weeks before his death. He was possessed of a quiet, kindly disposition which won him many friends who regret his sudden passing.

He leaves to mourn his loss his wife, formerly Miss Lottie Hicks of Tyendinaga; one daughter, Mrs. Blake Way, fourth concession of Murray; one brother, T. G. Bell, of Belleville; two sisters, Mrs. Wallace Ferguson, Hilton, Ont., and Mrs. William Maines, Syracuse, and two grandchildren, Thelma and Bernice Way seventh concession of Murray.

Mr. Bell was a faithful member of the United Church and a Bible class teacher of Riverside Sunday school for some years.

The funeral took place at 2 p.m. April 23rd from the United Church, Frankford. Rev. J. P. Lane was the officiating clergyman.

The pall bearers were George Nicolson, Arnold Armstrong, Byron Maybee, Norman Wannamaker, Wesley Wallis and G. A. Hearnes.

LATE EBENEZER COOKE

Tuesday afternoon, April 30th the funeral of Ebenezer Cooke took place from his residence, 70 Gordon Street, to the Church of St. Thomas where the Burial Office was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. Rural Dean A. Beauchamp Payne, who said also the committal service at the graveside in Belleville Cemetery.

The bearers were the following three sons, Mr. P. G. Cooke, Mr. W. J. Cooke, Mr. James E. Cooke, and the following three sons-in-law, Mr. J. McGuire, Mr. Allen Boyle and Mr. John Hanna.

MRS. JOHN (BAKER) KEELER
(Toronto)

Mrs. John Keeler, residence 26 Alberta Avenue, Toronto, died in the Private Patients' Pavilion at the Toronto General Hospital on Tuesday, April 30th. Mrs. Keeler was formerly Miss Charlotte F. (Lottie) Baker.

Friends in this city will regret to learn of her death. The funeral will take place on Thursday with interment in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

SAYS ATTITUDE OF ITALY ALARMS

French Foreign Ministry Spokesman States Office "Frankly Uneasy Over Italy

Paris, May 1 (AP).—The Italian attitude towards the Allies "has become definitely alarming" in the last two days, a foreign ministry spokesman declared today.

The spokesman said the foreign office's concern over future relations with France's Mediterranean neighbor was "frankly uneasy".

He added that the ministry's apprehension was based on the general atmosphere in government and diplomatic circles in Rome rather than on specific facts.

The statement was made at a press conference.

Paris papers gave front page display to the precautions taken by the British Admiralty in forbidding use of the Mediterranean Sea to British merchantship through traffic.

FREEDOM OF SIDEWALKS

Philadelphia, May 1 (AP).—Walter Hildreth, bearded 61-year-old former school teacher, came into court accused of pushing Mrs. Christian Febiger's dogs around. He protested he shoved her Pekingese off the sidewalk because she was on the right, when she should have been on the left, and he couldn't get by. Magistrate Jacob Dogole, upholding the freedom of sidewalks for dogs, ruled they could walk where they pleased and fined Hilreth $10 for disorderly conduct.

Police Blotter

A father and teen-aged son were apprehended on charges of intoxication yesterday, when Allan Asselstine and his son Donald were found along the banks of the Moira River in an alleged intoxicated condition. The pair were taken to the police station and today charged before H. B. Wilson, local Justice of the Peace. Their respective cases will be heard in Friday's police court. It is said by police that an empty bottle, believed to have contained native wine, was found near where the pair were found.

William Fuller of Kapuskasing, Ontario, was apprehended driving his automobile at an alleged excessive rate of speed along East Dundas Street yesterday. Fuller readily admitted the infraction of traffic regulations when stopped by Constables Evans and Wright. He paid his fine at the police station and continued his easterly journey later in the afternoon.

Boys Caught Shoplifting

Three boys were found to be shoplifting at Kresge's chain store yesterday. Two of the lads were apprehended by Jack McVeigh, the store manager. Later Detective Sergt. Fred Isard questioned the lads and ascertained the name of a third boy. The boys were told to report to Chief Kidd after school hours today. They were seeking toys, Mr. McVeigh told the police.

A lad named Percy Hay, 17, was questioned by police yesterday relative to the discharging of an air gun within the city limits. Residents on Chatham St. complained the gun was being discharged and flying pellets were striking homes. The gun was confiscated by police.

NAZI TACTICS ARE FAMILIAR

By this time the world has grown to know Hitler and his satelites as intimately as can be known from their public actions. Ribbentrop did nothing but what was expected of him last Saturday in his outlandish claim that the Allies planned the breaking of Norway's neutrality, that the Norwegians were a party to this alleged plan and that by some wondrous divination Germany made the discovery just in time for her to invade Norway and Denmark. Ribbentrop is still the salesman of Naziism and carries a bag of tricks, but his trickery gains nothing for the Germans. His statement did not carry conviction.

Then there is Goebbels, who is in the department of propaganda. If ever a man was born to a post to suit the nature of the Nazi Government and the slaves of that Government it is Goebbels. He may be hard pressed at times to explain events and so he suppresses them. Suppression is a German art. Then there is Hitler who regrets that Norway had so far scorned expediency to fight back at the Nazis. So this Hitler declares war on the people who don't want him oppressing them. A truly Hitlerian characteristic.

They are all the same. Their method is one that strikes the world as typically crude, barbarous and savage.

THE WAR IN NORWAY

One of the London newspapers stated on Monday that the British Government record on the war in Norway for the past three weeks has been good.

The Ottawa Journal has pointed out that the war in Norway is not the war in France of 1914-18. There are no heavy troop movements. "What is happening is that swift flying columns on both sides have been trying to seize strategic positions, moving to control railways, railway junctions and roads. The struggle in Norway is only in its opening stages: has practically not yet begun. The right attitude towards it is a sense of proportion: a frame of mind that will protect us from foolish optimism on the one hand and from unjustifiable pessimism on the other.

"We must guard against unconfirmed, imaginative reports and wild predictions (the effect of which is merely to let us down when realities come later), but equally we must guard against foolish pessimism over events which, in a war of this character, are inevitable. Mr. Churchill, in a recent address, spoke cautiously about purging Norway of Nazis by "next summer." The trouble with too many of us is that we expected the purge to be all over in April."

It will of course be proved in the long run that British and French soldiers fighting on the peculiar terrain of Norway are certainly effective to a degree which the Germans can never reach in open fighting where initiative will count.

Yesterday the Nazis for the first time made a real admission that the Allied resistance was stiffer. There are disadvantages under which law-abiding Powers are matched on the start in dealing with an unscrupulous foe, which will do things the Allies will not do and which will seek to profit through their own degraded sense of justice among nations. But there is the growing strength of the Allies to be counted on. Patience of the public is a cardinal virtue in war time.

GREAT SINGER'S VOICE IS STILL

The sweet voice of a great singer is still, that of Madame Luisa Tetrazzini, who once spoke of her career as "a path of roses." The artist was a great singer and possessed a gay heart. She was beloved by the public and earned a good fortune with her marvellous voice, but she, like many others, had little gift for the business end of the artist's career. The result was that she lived latterly very modestly.

Her personality and her marvellous voice kept her before the public and in the world's eye for a longer time than most artists enjoy. Generous, gracious, childlike in her love of gaiety and life, she had the art of conveying that carefree spirit to her hearers. She was gifted with dramatic power which she put into her songs and operatic work.

What a fame to leave to the world, with all that knew or heard of her treasuring her memory.

MAY DAY MOVING

This is May Day and in many centres there is the usual exodus of citizens from one house to another. Montreal expects that today will find no less than one quarter of the population on the move. Some in Montreal did not wait for the month of May but shifted quarters at last weekend.

In some centres there has been a shift of population reflected in families moving into larger and more commodious quarters because of the expansion of interest and labor in industry on war orders.

In other places there is a considerable shifting of families, the size of which have been reduced with the enlistment of sons and fathers. Smaller quarters are sought by these families.

Then there is the usual movement from house to house, though in small cities it is not nearly so marked as in large cities.

English People Impress Airman

The English are great people, but their food and their climate fail to agree with Sergeant Benson Cowan, Paymaster Sergeant of the 110th Air Squadron and son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Cowan of 516 Driveway, according to an interesting letter received from him by friends here.

Sergeant Cowan frankly sets out his likes and dislikes of England in his letter. He says in part:

....My previous letter pretty well described the early part of the journey. The last day at sea was lovely, calm as the water in a bath tub and as warm as a day in July. It was then that we first sighted other ships and knew we must be approaching the British Isles.

About eight o'clock a British coastal patrol plane took us under its "wing" and guided us on the way in. It is marvellous to see one of them working. A tremendous flying boat circling over head. Immediately a bit of smoke appears on the horizon it is off like a shot to investigate and then is back to circle around until more smoke is seen.

We were very unlucky regarding our time of landing. We did not near land until after dark and did not get a look at the shorelines appearing. It is supposed to be a wonderful sight. We disembarked on Sunday morning and certainly got a royal welcome. I am enclosing a picture taken from one of the papers.

There was one good picture of me all alone in one of the Southampton newspapers with the caption "A Popular Man in the Squadron—He Has the Money": I have not been able to get a copy of it yet, but I hope to and will send it. We were so darned busy amongst the general confusion the first couple of days in barracks that I didn't get a look at the paper for about three days and the one copy here belonged to one of the other lads who also had his picture in it.

As soon as we got off the boat we were loaded into a train right beside the docks and pushed off for the south of England where we are now stationed. It is a fairly nice station, too ,although there are lots better.

Now to describe the country. Here is the country as I see it:

DISLIKES:

1. It's wet. We arrived on a bright sunny day and as I said we were loaded right on to a train. The country looked so nice through a train window. Not a bit of snow and the grass just beginning to grow. But just step out of that train — I dare you. I got to feeling moist on the way to barracks and haven't dried since. Your clothes feel damp when you put them on in the morning and the blankets feel damp when you go to bed at night. Definitely a dislike.

2. The winds. They're lazy. They don't go around you. They go through you.

3. The food. I just can't get used to the way these people eat and the things they eat. For breakfast you get a nice cereal, cornflakes, shredded wheat or such. They then spoil it by pouring hot milk on it. This turns a nice crisp cereal into a gooey mess. Then comes bacon. It is not anything like the bacon at home and they pour some sort of a tomato sauce all over it and sort of make a kind of sloppy mess of it. Dry bread and tea complete the meal.

Dinner comes at 12. Dry bread and tea again and a lot of mutton stews and rabbit. I still can't go the rabbit but I'll have to learn to or starve. And the idea of what constitutes a dessert over here is positively weird. Anything can be expected. At 4 o'clock (what a time) comes "tea." This is the last meal of the day. But, oh joy, butter! Yes, butter with the bread at tea time. Tea usually consist of an omelette of some kind (cheese, pea, etc.) bread and butter and a bit of jam.

At eight o'clock you're so darned hungry you begin setting mouse traps around the barracks and many a dangerous glance has been aimed at the mess cat around nine o'clock of an evening. At 10 o'clock you can get a piece of dry bread and a piece of cheese. So ends the food question. Definitely a dislike.

4. Transportation: Buses and trains in this country were built for Singer midgets. I'm getting all doubled up like a pack knife.

LIKES:

1. The People: The English are the finest people with whom I have ever come in contact. Talk about swell treatment. I could hardly believe it. We stopped on our train journey to barracks in a freight yard around noon. A number of men (about 20) were sitting in a workmen's lunch room about 50 feet away. When our train stopped beside them they rose to a man and came over and gave every bit of their lunches to the boys.

They had just got seated to eat and had not even started on them. They would take nothing and refused to keep anything for themselves.

At another station where we called a halt for about 10 minutes a number of the gang were trying to get matches. We were all out of them and there was none for sale on the train. There was a machine on the wall of the station which gave two packages for a penny. We were not allowed off the train and besides nobody had any English money. They had a man on board exchanging money for us, but not with pennies.

The smallest he had was a shilling. There were only two old women on the platform of the station and one of the most ragged little kids I have ever seen standing off in a corner looking on. He was about 10 or 11, thin and in the worst looking clothes imaginable. We were all yelling for matches and he heard us. I saw him look at his hand a minute and then at us again. He looked at his again and then dashed over to the machine, put in a penny, brought the matches over and handed them to the boys.

I grabbed him by the collar as he went to duck back to his corner and pushed a florin (two shillings) into his hand. That penny probably meant as much to him as $10 to a starving bum. Just as the train started out again the two shilling piece came in through the window and landed on my knee.

I looked out the window and there was the kid smiling at me, holding both hands with thumbs up. I just felt so queer all over.

The fellows in the car who had just been fighting for the matches just stood with their mouths open. You could have heard a pin drop in that car for the next 10 minutes as the fellows thought over what they had seen. I saw two of these tough Canadians, as the English papers called them, with rather red eyes and a bit of moisture on their cheeks. And in Canada they worry about taxes going up. Every time I think of that incident I get a frog in my throat.

I might describe that thumbs up business. At first as our train rolled out we saw everybody sticking out a hand with thumb up. They looked like an awful crowd trying to hitch hike on one train. So we enquired as to what it meant. It means "Happy Landing," "Good Luck," "Come Back Safely," etc.

These people certainly have put the war to the front. They will put up with anything if it will better our chances of victory. It was hard to realize we were at war in Canada, but you sure know it over here.—Ottawa Journal.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

RHEUMATISM — PUBLIC DANGER NO. 1

Heart disease is so common, standing first on the list as a cause of death, that most of us may think that the heart gets worn out as we get older and is not strong enough to continue its work of pumping the blood to all parts of the body.

While some hearts may fail because of an overactive thyroid gland, in most cases it is because the heart has been damaged by infection that we find young, and middle-aged men and women having to live a "careful" life. And in a great many cases it is rheumatism that was the first cause of damaging the valves and the muscles of the heart.

We are apt to think that cancer is Public Danger No. 1, but Lord Thomas Horder, Chairman of the Empire Rheumatism Council, London, England, in a broadcast under the auspices of American Heart Association said:

"In our country, Rheumatic Disease is the greatest of killers though it conceals its murders under the mask of Heart Disease. On the evidence of trustworthy authorities we find that in Great Britain as you do in America also, organic disease of the heart, chiefly due to rheumatism and organic heart disease is the cause of over one-third of our normal death rate. And one does not need to be a doctor to know of the number of heart cripples that are strewn throughout the community as the result of rheumatic inflammation during childhood."

The first thought then in preventing heart disease is to find the cause. A the cause is so often rheumatism the first step is to try to find the cause of rheumatism.

What causes rheumatism? From statistics gathered by the American Heart Association and the Empire Rheumatism Council, the two outstanding causes are infection—teeth, tonsils, ear, gall bladder, large intestine,—and climate and surroundings.

Dr. Horder states that circumstances of early surroundings — coldness, dampness, lack of good food, make the child's body a more favorable soil in which the infection can flourish.

It is the damage done in early life by infection and cold, damp surroundings that causes the heart to fail in early middle life.

By living carefully, these middle-aged heart patients may be spared for many years, but if heart disease is to be overcome, the removal of infection, the use of good, nourishing food, and wearing warm clothing is necessary.

Notions Held About Cards

Superstition in no place is so common and so obstinate as at the card-table. I have just finished a three-hour session in which the following superstitions were displayed, the culprits being two highly educated women and one highly educated man:

1. If you cut an ace you must choose the seat from which you cut it and the pack from which it came.

2. You are certain of defeat if you cut the nine of spades; it guarantees a disastrous evening, and if possible you should cease playing for the day.

3. If you have to change seats at the end of a rubber you must be very careful to walk round the table in a clockwise direction. If you circle it anti-clockwise you will assuredly lose the next rubber and probably lose for the remainder of the day.

4. When the cards are running badly for you your luck may change if you sit on your pocket handkerchief (an exclusively feminine superstition to the best of my knowledge).

5. Certain personal articles bring luck and others bring misfortune. Such articles can, as a rule, be identified only by experiment, and their range covers practically everything which may be worn or carried. In general, all green articles bring bad luck; a "bun" penny or a rabbit's foot are useful mascots. (A few men share this superstition in respect of such articles as a cigarette-case.)

6. Cards should never be played on a Friday.

7. Cards should never be played on the 13th day of a month.

An eager person with an undisciplined mind sits down, ardently expecting a prosperous evening. His or her attempts to explain subsequent disappointment fail to discover any rational cause in the seekings of a fatuous brain, and so flit to some perfectly irrational cause. Some such expert in savage folklore, say Dr. Frazer, could probably furnish a plausible theory for the superstitions about the correct method of circling a table or the power of sitting on a handkerchief. The ace presumably carries its own obvious significance.

But it is probably useless to smile at such foolish people, and the shame of encountering them in such numbers amongst one's fellow-citizens, and especially amongst the better-educated classes of the nation, can be diminished only by more constructive methods.

Undoubtedly runs of bad luck occur at the card-table, and they may last an evening or even a year or even ten years. Is it possible to break such a run? The answer is in the affirmative. A particular pack of cards, or pair of packs, can assume a certain pattern and maintain it for a tolerable (or intolerable) period, subject to one condition. That condition is inadequate shuffling.

Violent and thorough shuffling will smash up the structure of the pack beyond all question, and it is the only rational method of attacking a patch of poor cards. It is also a method which is always within the command of a player or a partnership, since the dealer is always entitled to a shuffle, and one member of the non dealing pair shuffles at every deal.

The desire to change tables in club bridge after losing a rubber is simply a desire to change one pair of packs for another pair which may display a more favorable pattern. The rules afford a simpler way of escape, for before the cut prior to any deal any player may call for fresh cards; in strict law he must offer his opponents the choice of two new packs, and by "new" the rules probably mean sealed and unused and not merely a different pack.

In inexpensive clubs or private houses two unused packs may not be available, but the opponents would seldom object to substituting a different pack. Such exchanges of cards are not, in fact, necessary to a change of luck.

A single misdeal produces a tolerably thorough shuffle, and if it is followed by a brief dealer's shuffle it will usually transform the hand patterns. If the previous hands have been balanced, 4, 3, 3, 3 and similar arrangements, a short series of freaks will usually follow, and vice-versa. A double misdeal almost invariably convulses the hand patterns.

Every player will occasionally encounter evenings on which he changes seats or tables at every rubber yet never holds hands containing more than one winning card; such an experience is part of the entrancing variety of the game. But as a general rule violent and thorough shuffling will bring him and his partner a reasonable share of the game-going hands.

It is therefore part of the player's equipment to learn how to shuffle and so to avoid the casual and desultory shuffle or the pseudo-"riffle" which leaves the pack much as it was, so that when he is discontented with his hands he may take rational and scientific steps to effect a change.— Manchester Guardian.

LIVES TO FIGHT ANOTHER DAY

Victim of a mine off England's east coast early in the war, the destroyer Gipsy, which went down with loss of 30 lives, is shown here after being raised and towed into shallow water. Salvage men and divers are working to reclaim and recondition the stricken vessel so she can again fight the Nazis.

Czechs Help Reich Pay for the War

Prague (CP)—Czechs are helping Germany pay for the war. Every time they drink a glass of beer or smoke a cigarette the Nazi war-chest lid automatically yawns and in drops 20 per cent of the price paid. The Czech contribution, levied by the Protectorate Government, is 20 per cent on alcohol and tobacco.

Based on normal smoking habits, the Czechs will contribute 300,000,000 crowns, or slightly over $1,000,000 every twelve months from tobacco alone. This, with the war tax on beer and alcohol in general, will mean Czech aid of more than $2,000,000 annually.

When the tax was imposed shortly after the war started last September, citizens of Bohemia and Moravia retaliated with a beer strike. Consumption fell 95 per cent overnight and remained so for several days. But the Germans did not have to hire strike-breakers. Thirst broke the strike, for Czech throats could not stand the strain of aridity.

Advantages Germans Lack

Although it is wartime and although they no longer are free to regulate their own lives, Czechs still possess some advantages not enjoyed by their overlords.

They have food cards and clothing is limited, but the tight pinch has not yet hit them. They have a greater variety and better quality foods now than do Germans and none of their boys are at the front. From 60,000 to 80,000 of them, however, are helping fortify Germany's home front by taking the place of Germans in fields and industry. This is one way the Germans have attempted to solve the Czech unemployment problem. A new decree enables Germans to take any Czech with his tools to any part of the Reich for work.

The Protectorate also has it better in the matter of lighting. Street lights still burn on nights but house windows are darkened.

Prague's food stores are heaped full of oranges, red-faced apples, first-class figs and dates and other foreign fruits and canned goods, none of which can be found in Germany. Meat shops are well supplied with dainties that make any German's mouth water. Passengers on Prague-Berlin trains may be seen carrying all sorts of bundles, including whole hams and sausages a foot and a half long.

There is milk and cheese, but for some weeks butter has been scarce. Coffee, tea and chocolate supplies are dwindling and are rationed. Meat also is rationed, but all types of sausage are free.

Two things relieve the strain here. One is the fact that Czechs have close connections with the countryside and are able to obtain more food than ration cards permit, and the other is that cards for eating in restaurants have not yet been issued.

Restaurant menus are long and ample. What cannot be purchased in stores can be had in restaurants — with the minor exception of whipped cream. All mother has to do—if it can be afforded—when she doesn't have sufficient food is to bundle the family off to a restaurant. This is not possible in Germany, where restaurant cards obtain.

Bootlegging Helps Out

Bootlegging also helps out. Food can be had at higher prices from illegal sellers. Butter is a common bootlegging commodity.

Clothing stores have nice things in their windows, but their shelves are fast emptying. This is especially true of shoe stores, for the leather supply has been exhausted.

Textiles have been limited to 60 per cent of 1937 sales. It has been worked out so that stores sell a daily quota. It is in many cases so small that the quota is exhausted within an hour after the store opens. If it is a specialty shop, it closes for the day. If it carries several lines, it simply closes one department after another. One sees many stores along Prague's main streets closed before midday. Long lines from an hour before for the next day or the day after. Holders get preference on those days. Stores hang such signs as this on doors: "Tomorrow we will sell against orange tickets."

Reasons advanced for the comparative advantages Czechs are enjoying are that stocks were high when the Germans took over the country in March, 1939, and that the old Czecho-Slovak State had acquired trade balances abroad that has kept the Protectorate running. In other words, the Czechs are living off accumulated capital which is now all but exhausted. — N. Y. Times.

Political Adviser To Lloyd George Dies

London, May 1—(CP) — Lieut. Colonel Thomas Frederic Tweed, 50, political adviser to David Lloyd George since 1926, died yesterday of a heart attack.

He served through the first Great War with distinction, winning the Military Cross. After the war Colonel Tweed became Secretary of the Manchester Liberal Federation and was Chief Organizer of the Liberal Party for four years before he became Mr. Lloyd George's personal adviser.

Colonel Tweed travelled all over the world and wrote several books on his travels. He was educated at Liverpool Institute and Liverpool University. Before the war he worked as a dock laborer and a house-to-house salesman.

Special Programs Mark Closing of Stirling Y. P. Organizations

St. John's A.Y.P.A.

Stirling—With an elaborate dinner prepared by the ladies of the parish St. John's Anglican Young People's organization climaxed the present season's activity with a banquet held on Monday evening in the Parish Hall. Rev. G. G. Wright of Christ Church, Belleville, was the guest speaker and the interesting program included toasts, community singing and annual reports.

Miss Betty Conley, President of the group presided as Toast-Mistress. Following the toast to the King, Mr. Garland McKeown gave the secretary's report and the financial statement was presented by Miss Jean Salisbury, treasurer. During the business period, an invitation from the Frankford Parish to present the two plays in Frankford was accepted and a committee appointed to make final arrangements. It was also decided to reduce activities during the summer months to one meeting a month. Mr. J. B. Belshaw was called on to propose a toast to the A.Y.P.A., in which he referred to the Young People's group as a necessary part of the wheel of progress in the present day church. Response was made in a capable manner by Garland McKeown, who outlined the aims of A.Y.P.A. as parish organizations which meet annually in provincial and national councils for the furtherance of Christianity. At this point in the program, Art Duncan led in lively community singing. Peter Simmons proposed the toast to the church to which response was made by the speaker of the evening, Rev. G. G. Wright of Belleville, who was introduced by Dr. E. A. Carleton.

In his opening remarks Rev. Wright paid fitting tribute to the ministerial efforts of Rev. A. S. McConnell who recently accepted a call to Brockville. Only by giving the same loyal support to his successor can the A.Y.P.A. fulfill their obligation to the church. Speaking on the subject "The Church", he stated the vastness of the subject which combines all the genius of the British race. In the prayer book of today are found selections of prayer and praise that for centuries have proved worthy expressions on the part of worshippers for a closer walk with God. They are founded firmly on years of conscientious use dating back to the days of the church of Jerusalem.

"Democracy of the world, particularly in the parliamentary sense", said Mr. Wright "had its beginning in the British Isles and was based on the rulings and procedure of the early church assemblies. Britons everywhere owe their freedom to the church. Now in the days of war it looks as if we shall be called upon to pay the price of sacrifice for freedom. But in the payment will come true recognition of its value. The cause of the last Great War and this, is the modern materialistic conception of progress. Man feels that through the channel of Totalitarianism he can best deal with his problems with his own strength. But man is not sufficient in strength for such a task. We know it and should correct the lack of constructive propaganda for the advancement of the church.'"

At the conclusion of this fine address expressions of gratitude to the speaker and others on the program were made by Glen Morrow, Ray Tanner, Geo. Dainard and Fred Houchin. Mrs. H. Rodgers, President of the W. A. also spoke briefly.

St. Andrew's Young People's Guild

The final meeting previous to the regular summer recess in activities of St. Andrew's Young People's Guild was held on Monday evening, when Rev. W. J. Scott of St. Paul's United Church was the guest speaker. Interesting musical numbers and readings completed the fine program which was directed by President Roy Juby. Following the opening hymn and prayer by Rev. W. J. Scott, Miss Helen Fitchett read the Scripture lesson. The secretary's report of the last meeting and financial report were the next items of business. A musical contribution to the program was an instrumental solo by Miss Grace Pitman and was thoroughly enjoyed. Mr. Roy Juby offered the next number in the form of a recitation. A vocal duet "Beautiful Garden of Prayer", featuring Mrs Walker and Miss Inez Elgie with Miss Pitman at the piano was another enjoyable number exceptionally well given. Misses Shirley and Audrey Robinson contributed the final musical number of the evening in a guitar duet. Rev. W. J. Scott gave the address of the evening, speaking on the Missionary activity of worker from the Presbyterian Church of U.S.A. in the mission fields of foreign lands, particularly on the island of Trinidad in this area made famous through the efforts of the late Dr. Morton there is now established a Theological College, Normal School, Boys' School a Girls' school and 72 day schools.

A vocal solo by Don Hulin followed this splendid address with Rev. W. H. V. Walker expressing the gratitude of those present to the speaker of the evening.

Items of Interest

A group of friendly neighbours and friends were responsible for a combined surprise and farewell party given in honour of Mrs. Annie Woods aged Church Street resident. The event took place on Friday last when it was learned that the ninety-year-old resident was about to leave her present home where she has resided for several years. Following a brief period of visitation and community singing the purpose of the gathering was briefly outlined in an address to the honoured lady by Mrs. Robt. Christie. Luncheon was served by the ladies climaxing a pleasant hour.

A group of playmates were the guests at a birthday party given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lancaster on Saturday afternoon for their daughter, Evelyn. After a period of games etc., the guests sat down to a gaily decorated table for dinner. A large birthday cake bearing the necessary number of candles was cut by the guests of honour who also received several lovely gifts during the day.

Rawdon

Rawdon—Bethel Ladies' Aid convened at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Martin and the service opened with the theme song with Mrs. Ray Shortt presiding at the organ and Mrs. Harold Elliott in the chair. Miss Gertie McMullen read the Bible lesson and a short business meeting was held.

The program was arranged by Mrs. Harry Preston and took the form of "an old hat social." Each member brought a hat and these were sold at five cents each and the persons who bought had the honour of wearing their new headgear for the rest of the evening. Rev. J. E. Beckel was chairman and Mr. C. M. Sine sang "Where Did You Get That Hat?" A round of community singing was enjoyed. Mr. B. C. Tucker gave a Scotch reading "Sampson's First Will." Misses Irene and Shirley Preston sang a duet.

An initiation game brought forth much merriment with Mrs. J. E. Beckel and Mr. C. M. Sine winning the prizes which the president donated.

Mrs. Preston conducted a spelling match with Messrs. B. C. Tucker and Charles Morton as Captains. Mr. Tucker's group was victorious and won a box of candy.

Mrs. Don Heath staged a photo guessing contest.

The lunch proceeds were four dollars and forty-five cents and after a social half-hour the host and hostess were tendered a hearty vote of thanks.

Several Rawdonians attended the Preston-Bowater sale of farm stock and implements on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Harold Elliott, president of Bethel Ladies' Aid and Mrs Florence Bateman, president of Springbrook Ladies' Aid, attended an executive meeting of Prince Edward and Hastings Ladies' Aids and Women's Associations in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville. Plans were made to hold the annual convention at Victoria-Rednersville.

A large number of Rawdon folk attended the funeral of the late Mrs. B. O. Lott. Deceased was born in Rawdon and resided in this township for over fifty years. Before her marriage she was Miss Emma Proctor Brown.

Mrs. Emma MacMullen and Mr. A. D. Runnalls received word of the death of their sister, Mrs. Geo. Park, Flint, Michigan, formerly Miss Annie Runnalls.

Heavy Naval Firing Off Swedish Coast Reported by Stockholm

Stockholm, April 30 —(AP)— Accounts of heavy naval firing last night off the Swedish west coast were published by Stockholm newspapers this afternoon.

Reports of naval engagements in those waters, the sea approach to Norway from Germany, have come from points along the coasts on several recent nights.

They are believed to mean a constant Allied watch for German ships coming north out of the Skagen, the strait at the northern tip of Denmark.

A convoy of five merchant ships and seven destroyers was seen to scatter yesterday after an explosion. When it reassembled in the same locality great towers of flame could be seen, indicating that British mine belts either had not been swept away completely or that new mines had been sown.

PICTON

Man Injures Back In Fall From Roller

Picton, May 1—(Special)—When he fell from a roller when it struck a stump, Arthur Crossman of Bongards suffered injuries to his neck and back Tuesday. Employed by Sheriff A. E. Bowerman, he was riding on the roller, when it struck a boulder, causing him to fall over backward. The X-rays taken have not revealed any fractures but he is being kept in the hospital here for observation.

Rain Welcomed

A heavy rain which fell during part of the afternoon yesterday was welcomed by farmers as it will do much to bring along the meadows. This is greatly desired by the farmers since hay is none too plentiful and they are anxious to get stock on pasture. Little seeding has been done but warm weather is drying up the land rapidly and this will soon be under way.

The Daughters of Dorcas held a bridge and euchre at the Yacht Club house on Monday evening, with 22 tables in play. The conveners were Mrs. A. A. Brittain and Mrs. Harry Bowers. Prizes for bridge went to Mrs. Fred Hubbs, Mrs. W. G. Grothier, Mr. A. A. Brittain, Richard Hadden, and for euchre to Mrs. Milton Gilmore, Mrs. G. Seeley, Fred McCalpine and Mayor Nesbitt McKibbon. Mrs. C. D. Wilson entertained seven tables of guests and her special prizes were won by Mrs. J. E. Andoff and Mrs. W. G. Grothier. In Mrs. T. S. Philp's party, the awards went to Miss Ida Martin and A. A. Brittain.

Others who entertained friends were Miss Clara Croft, Mrs. Ronald Church and Mrs. Albert Hare.

$50 Realized

The sum of fifty dollars was realized from the rummage sale held by the Home and School Club on Saturday it was announced yesterday.

Mrs. E. A. Adams is visiting her sister, Mrs. E. Empson in Detroit.

Dr. and Mrs. D. W. Gullett are in Toronto for a few days this week. They will be soon moving to that city, where Dr. Gullett will be associated with the Ontario Dental College.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Leavitt, Belleville, announce the engagement of their only daughter Madeline E. Seeney of Toronto, to Mr. Harold W. Russell, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Russell of Toronto. The marriage to take place quietly the middle of May.

The Hospitality Club of the City entertained at another of their successful parties for members of the R.C.A.F., held in St. Thomas' Parish House last evening. The hostesses were assisted by fifty young ladies of the community. Dancing and games were enjoyed and a delicious lunch was served by the committee in charge.

Mr. and Mrs. James Tinson, Brighton, Ontario, are celebrating the sixtieth anniversary of their wedding today. As Mrs. Tinson is slightly ill, the observance was very quiet.

Mrs. Morley Day, Montreal, is visiting in the city, the guest of her son, Mr. Percy Day and Mrs. Day.

Mr. H. E. Smith, resident engineer, Belleville Division, Canadian National Railways, and residence 110 Bridge Street East, in this city is a patient in St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, as the result of injuries received when he was struck by a motor car on Monday evening while he was walking from the Union Station to the Walker House. Mr. Smith sustained a broken ankle and numerous severe bruises. Mrs. Smith and Miss Smith have left to be with him.

Dr. Carl Brownson, Bloomfield physician, who underwent a serious operation in Belleville General Hospital this week is said to be progressing favorably.

Mr. Daniel Cooney returned to Trenton where he is in training with the R.C.A.F., after spending the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Cooney, Montreal.

Mrs. C. J. Riddell last evening was hostess at a delightful kitchen shower in honor of Miss Nora O'Callaghan, bride-to-be. Miss O'Callaghan was presented with gifts in cream and red kitchen ware.

Spring blossoms and Mayflowers in gay profusion made a colorful setting, in contrast to the dull weather outside, for the afternoon tea held yesterday at the home of Mrs. R. C. Andrews, Coleman St., under the auspices of Minerva Chapter, O.E.S. The door was opened to the guests by little Miss Fay Reid of Huntsville, niece of the hostess. Mrs. Andrews was assisted in receiving by Mrs. A. G. Cooper, Worthy Matron and Mrs. P. A. Correll. The tea was under the convenership of Mrs. Correll and Mrs. S. Hibbard. The tea table was beautifully decorated with mauve sweetpeas, yellow daffodils and yellow tapers, on a handsome lace cloth. Mrs. Reg. Hinchey and Mrs. A. E. Wonnacott poured tea and the assistants were Mrs. C. L. Hyde, Mrs. G. Dobbs, Mrs. F. Wilson, Mrs. W. Cook and Mrs. W. Adams. Mrs. W. Simmons was treasurer of the tea and the home cooking table was in charge of Mrs. F. Parsons and Miss Edna Jobson.

WEDDINGS

CARTER—GERMAN

On Tuesday evening, April 30th, at Trinity rectory, Shannonville, a pretty wedding was quietly solemnized when Helen Muriel German was married to Murney Morris Carter by the Rev. C. P. Heaven. The bride was attended by her mother and sister. Following the happy event a buffet luncheon was served at the rectory with Mrs. C. P. Heaven as hostess. Mr. and Mrs. Carter will reside near Belleville. They are both members of St. John's Mission, Herchimer Ave.

McCURRIE—STARR

St. Peter's Cathedral, Peterborough was the setting for a charming spring wedding Saturday morning at nine o'clock, when Jean Frances, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Starr, Peterborough, and Lloyd Bernard McCurrie of the R.C.A.F., Trenton; son of Mr. and Mrs. J. McCurrie, of Ottawa, were united in marriage. Rev. P. J. Kelly, L.L.D. officiated, and the choir was in attendance

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a gown of white Duchess satin fashioned on princess lines and flowing into a slight train. The Peter Pan collar and leg-of-mutton sleeves were inset with Chantilly lace and her veil of embroidered tulle illusion fell from a headdress of seed pearls and orange blossoms. The small ivory prayer book carried by the bride, a gift from her mother, had blue and white steamers with knots of fern and baby's breath. Mrs. W. Austin, Jr., attended her sister as matron of honor, frocked in a graceful gown of Heaven blue and silver net over taffeta, made with sweetheart neckline and bouffant skirt trimmed with pink velvet bows. Her blue flower hat with brief matching veil had a pink feather bird, and she carried a nosegay of pink sweetpeas and Rapture roses. Mr. Harold Ingles of Winnipeg, now with the R.C.A.F., Trenton, attended the bridegroom, and ushers were Mr. Joseph Guerin of Campbellford and Mr. Joseph Gibson of British Columbia, also a member of the R.C.A.F., Trenton.

A profusion of flowers decked the reception room at the Hotel Champlain where the bride's mother received immediate relatives and friends in a gown of Queen Elizabeth blue with matching hat of grosgrain ribbon, and corsage of roses. The groom's mother wore a navy sheer ensemble with blue chenille hat and a corsage of roses.

For a motor trip to Ottawa and Quebec, the bride wore a Chanel model ensemble of Dove grey, Russian style hat and a silver fox scarf the gift of the groom. Her accessories were black. Mr. and Mrs. McCurrie will reside in Trenton.

MELROSE W. I.

The annual meeting of Melrose W. I. was held at the home of Mrs. F. D. Pringle on April 25th.

With the president in charge, the meeting opened in the usual way after which the customary reports were received. The receipts showed a cash balance of $75.00 Over $60.00 had been raised besides, for war service work. Most of this was spent for yarn and quilt materials.

The Girls' Sewing Club donated their remaining funds amounting to $5.80 to the Institute to be used for war service work. Quilt pieces were distributed to be made up in block for quilting at the May meeting.

Suggestions regarding Institute work were discussed. At the next meeting the cakes brought by the lunch committee are to be sold and the proceeds put in the "Red Cross" box.

Mrs. Harry Murphy presided for the election of officers. They are:

Pres.—Mrs. Jno. Blatherwick.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Roy Badgley.
2nd Vice-Pres—Mrs. G. Walker.
3rd Vice-Pres.—Mrs A. English.
Sec'y-Treas.—Mrs. G. McLaren.
District Director—Mrs. T. Leslie.
Delegates to the District Annual —Mrs. J. Blatherwick, Mrs. T. Leslie, Mrs. R. Badgley, Mrs. H. Murphy.

Rerd Cross Committee with six members namely:—Mrs. R. Macfarlane, Mrs. R. Badgley, Mrs. T. Leslie, Mrs. E Lazier, Mrs. H. Murphy and Mrs. O. Stratton was appointed to look after war service work for the community.

Four members of the Quinte Institute were guests at this meeting one of whom was the Quinte president, Mrs. Geo. Connors, also Health Convener for the district who came prepared to address the Melrose ladies.

After being extended a welcome by the president, Mrs. Connors was called to give her paper entitled, "Worry." This was thoughtfully prepared and was interesting and educational. The three other guests made brief remarks after which the program chairman took charge of the meeting.

Mrs. L. Weese very pleasingly gave a piano solo.

Mrs. B. Sherman read a paper on "Hospitality." After the collection amounting to $4.95 was received the meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

The hostess and lunch conveners served refreshments.

RATHER conflicting planetary conditions are shown in this day's astral map. While there may be excellent opportunity for advancement, progress and surprising developments, subtle complications are likely to arise to confuse and perplex. While the tendency may be to rush into action and force the issue, rashly and impulsively, the better procedure would be to confer with superiors, employers or those in authority who will be found friendly and helpful.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to encounter some conflicting and perplexing situations during the year. These are likely to become involved in subtle or intriguing entanglements, gaining advantage by shunning impulsive, angry and restless and unreasoning handling. In difficulties it would be well to seek the wise counsel of superiors, employers or those in influential positions.

WEATHER PREDICTION FOR MAY: BRIDAL SHOWERS

During the merry month of May, groups of girls from coast to coast are plotting showers for their starry-eyed girl friends who are looking forward to that Great Day in June.

The legend concerning the origin of bridal showers is a rather romantic one. Once upon a time, so the story goes, a beautiful maiden fell in love with a miller. The miller was poor. The girl's father, alas, was determined that she marry the son of a rich neighbor and insisted that he would not give her a dowry if she married the poor miller. In those days a girl could not marry without a dowry. What to do, what to do? Her understanding and ingenious friends rushed to the rescue of romance. They all came to her home bearing gifts, "showered" her with presents. The beautiful maiden had her dowry. Love triumphed—and that's how "showers" were born!

No matter what its origin, the idea of showering the bride-to-be with gifts is such a charming one that it deserves to prosper. These informal shower gatherings are delightful parties, given by a group of close friends to honor a close friend and to make her happy with thoughtful gifts for her new home.

In general, showers are of two kinds: a gathering of intimate friends, with the addition of presents; or a party tricked up with stunts, as to decorations, games and presentation of gifts. Whichever kind is chosen, there should be an attractive table-setting, an appropriate color scheme and interesting food.

The invitations are sent out about two weeks before the date. These may be written on the hostess' visiting-cards, like a tea-invitation, or the special novelty shower-invitations may be used. Friendly little notes may be written, or, if only a few guests are to be invited, the invitations may be telephoned.

The shower may be a luncheon, seated or buffet; a tea, with the conventional tea-menu; or an evening party, a buffet supper. Less usual are the late breakfast ("brunch") showers, and the dinner shower.

Showers are such informal parties that not many questions of etiquette are concerned with them. The most persistent question, however, about the etiquette of giving showers arises from the over-eagerness of relatives of the girl or relatives of her fiance who plan showers with the obvious intent of collecting furnishings for the new home.

Properly, a close friend of the bride-elect or a group of her friends should give the shower. When this is the plan, the party has an appropriately spontaneous air. On the other hand, when a member of either the bride's family or the groom's family or a close relative of either family, send the shower invitations, we definitely get the impression that the shower is a planned promotion for gifts. In these cases, the emphasis seems to be more on the gifts than on the party.

Another question that is often asked: Should mere acquaintances be invited to the shower? Under usual circumstances, No. The fact that there is a gift responsibility suggests that only close friends should be invited.

Also: Should men be invited to a shower? Usually showers are given in the daytime, and men aren't invited. However, if men are to be invited, the shower is given in the evening, and the shower itself is held before the hour set for the arrival of the men guest. Then the party develops into a dance or a bridge party.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Amazed at the Cost of Step-children

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Doubtless, it was because I remained a bachelor until my 39th year that I had no conception of what children cost in the way of medical attention. My wife has two youngsters—a girl and a boy—7 and 8 years old. It seems to me that they're constantly at the doctors being snipped and repaired. We hurried home from our honeymoon so that the girl could go to the hospital and have her tonsils removed. Then the boy had to have a little operation. Barely had these bills been paid when it was adenoids and the glasses for both.

The children seem healthy enough, but why all this hospitalization? Please don't think I'm the cruel stepfather of fiction. I love them both, but the medical bills are so high. I have had to change a few cherished plans.

Stepfather.

It seems to me that this phase must be about over. In fact, I can't think of anthing else these children would have to have done for them, unless they break a leg or an arm. I'm glad you love them because the love given a child is always repaid. Doubtless, too, your wife is appreciative for all you've done.

She's in Love with Both

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am going with two young men. One is 32 and the other 21. I am 22. The first one is the one I depend on and he says he loves me and also treats me like a good father would treat his daughter. He not only spends money on me, but treats my family as well.

The 21-year-old one never offers to spend an evening with me in my home. He takes me to grills and diners and tells me that he has another girl whom he sees on Wednesdays and Saturday evenings.

The 32-year-old found out I was going with the younger man, and told me if I didn't quit, he'd leave me, and then I wouldn't have anyone. I'm very fond of the youngster but thing I'm in love with the other man, too.

D.

No, my dear, I don't think you're in love with both. I think that, like so many young girls, you're in love with love. As neither one has proposed marriage to you, there is no reason why you should give up going with either one of them. It's more than likely that you will meet someone else about whom you will not hesitate. He will be the one with whom you are genuinely in love.

Objects to Going "Steady"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been taking a girl out for almost a year and care a great deal for her. I asked her if she would go "steady", but she refused, saying that I took her out and imagined I loved her, through force of habit. She advised me to go out with other girls, and said she preferred to have dates with other boys also. She thinks she's too young, at 19, to have a one-and-only. I'm almost 20.

Do you think this girl is just leading me on? I feel badly over this fact, although I agreed to take out other girls.

Constant.

The girl may be flirtatious, but there is some truth in what she says. The closed corporation is not the best arrangement for young people of 19 and 20 who have no immediate prospects of marriage. It is better that they regard each other as friends until the boy has a steady job and there is some assurance that he will be able to provide or, at least help to provide, a home.

WHERE TO FIND A BARGAIN IN A REALLY GOOD SAUCE

HOW MUCH SAUCE must you use to properly flavour your favourite food? That's the way to judge the value of a sauce. And testing sauces by this method you will find that good old H. P. Sauce is about the best bargain of all. See how little you need of it. Notice how far the flavour goes! That's economy sure enough and everyone who uses H. P. says it can't be beaten.

H. P. Sauce is made from many ingredients. It is thick and fruity—never settles: Is always the same.

Give H. P. a trial in soups, stews, gravies, meat pies, bacon and eggs, cheese and macaroni dishes. Use it when leftovers must be eaten up: Serve it on all fried meats, fish and fowl, add it to sandwiches and salads. The flavour of H. P. will make any meal more enjoyable.

PINE GROVE BRANCH W. I.

The April meeting of the Pine Grove Branch W. I. was held Thursday April 25th., at the home of Mrs. P. Vanderwater with 13 members and 3 visitors present.

Mrs. F. Heasman, president was the presiding officer. Business consisted of final plans for a euchre. Distribution of Red Cross work. Mrs. C. Hamilton is to be delegate to the district annual. Mrs. Vanderwater, Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. Hollinger are to drive ladies to the District Annual. Mrs. C. Ketcheson, district president was present and gave many splendid suggestions for planning meetings for the coming year. It was decided to devote the year to two subjects "Feeding the family for health" and "Emergencies in the home."

The President voiced appreciation to Mrs. Ketcheson for her kindness in helping the branch to organize.

Mrs. Campbell conducted the following program: Community singing; Readings: Mrs. Finkle, "A Good Year's Work", Mrs. W. Rodgers, "Institute Work"; Piano selection, Mrs. R. Vanderwater. Collection was $1.10. Lunch was served by the committee and a social time spent.

PARADE IN PASTEL

By ALICE ALDEN

SOME GIRLS would rather look pretty . . . the idea of appearing in a hat or a frock admittedly smart but not particularly becoming is shocking. That's why, and good reason that every season milliners and dress designers turn out pastels along with exotic and dark shades Today's pastel blue dress, for instance, is one of dozens of soft wool jerseys being shown for spring, and the bird and flower hat is typical of many which will catch the eye from now on.

Nature's Way of Training Child

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS
Ph.D.

MANY children under five never have seen the stars. When our eldest child was about four it suddenly occurred to us he had never noticed the lights in the heavens, although we had spent the summer in the country. One night we kept him up for the new experience. Having seen pictures of the moon, he shouted when he saw it "Moon! Daddy moon! Baby moons!" The baby moons were the stars. For older children, even in the crowded city, looking up at the stars on a clear night is a rich experience.

Some city children beyond 10 or 12, of course, get a touch with nature through camping, scouting and the like. And the city school has done much to acquaint the child with Nature, especially with plants, flowers, small animals and lowly creatures like frogs, snakes and turtles, which are to be seen in the modern elementary classroom. Yet, most city children have never heard the piping of the peepers in the pond, the croaking of the bullfrog or the morning bird chorus of the woods.

Few Have Appreciation

The pity of it is that so many children right in the country have so little conscious appreciation and enjoyment, of all the beautiful things of nature about them. When I was a child on a farm in a lovely valley, I did not, as I recall, know many of the trees, flowers and birds by name. But just to recall a sunrise or sunset, or the songs of the birds as I awoke on a spring morning, or of the whippoor-will as I went to bed, gives me more emotion now than any I must have had when I used to live amidst these beauties. I wish I might have been exposed to someone at home or school who habitually experienced emotions over these gems of nature.

Know Them By Name

If only I had known more of the birds, flowers and trees there by name and had helped my school children know them so, I could have done more good. How much more comfortable and happy we feel when we can address a person by his name. So with the things of Nature; to know them by name is to feel happy with them and enjoy them.

Fortunate is the child whose parents go with him into the woods and fields and by the streams, alert to the growing things and living creatures to be heard or seen; provided of course, the child learns not to trespass on private property. We parents owe it to the moral character of our children to be exacting of ourselves in these matters and to see that our children learn from their early years to be very considerate of the rights and possessions of other people.

BOTTLE NEED NOT BOTHER BABY

IF IT DOES Mrs. Robert E. Brandon, of Markham, Ontario, has this message for you: "As so often happens to bottle-fed babies, stomach trouble and constipation were so troublesome we despaired of ever raising our first baby. A neighbour recommended Baby's Own Tablets and they proved so satisfactory we have never been without them for over thirteen years, with the result we have five extra sturdy children. So far they have missed all the so-called children's diseases and four of the five were bottle fed."

And Mrs. M. Butchart, of Toronto, says this: "Baby's Own Tablets are excellent for bottle-fed babies as they assist in digesting foods which cause indigestion."

Baby's Own Tablets are equally effective in diarrhoea, simple croup, colic, colds, simple fever and teething troubles. Sweet-tasting, easy to take, safe. Analyst's certificate in every box.

Never be without Baby's Own Tablets—sickness so often strikes in the night. 25 cents. Your money back if you are not satisfied.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

PUNISHMENT

One of the hardest things we have had to do at the Quintuplet Nursery, I think, has been to convince the staff that when one of the children is naughty, she shouldn't be just threatened with punishment — she should get it. Children, if they are to be brought up to be good citizens, must know that punishment is an inevitable consequence of wrong-doing.

Now, I want to make it clear at this point that I am not an advocate of whipping or of being the hard, stern parent at all times. Not one of the Quins has ever had a whipping. As I have said before, the worst punishment they know is being sent into an isolation room to be alone until they have realized their error and are ready to remedy it.

If you make it plain to a child that if he misbehaves, punishment will be swift and sure, you will have proceeded a long way toward making him an A1 citizen.

Too many people have the tendency to threaten a child with punishment, and not fulfill it. When a child learns such threats are meaningless, they have no effect, of course. Anyway, it isn't a good idea to be always saying "Don't do this, don't do that" to the child.

And it is very important to be certain you haven't one code for one day and another for the next. Nothing confuses a child so much as to be allowed to do a thing one day and to be corrected or punished for doing it the next. This more than the punishment itself builds up resentment in the child. He comes to look on all your rulings as unjust.

I'll admit I'm not sure that isolation such as the Quins have when they're bad would be suitable punishment for all children. Probably not. The Quins are a closer group than most children of a family; they're an entity almost. They're been together constantly since birth. They have so much fun together, the five of them, that for one to be sent off by herself while the other four continue to romp and play is almost like Indian torture. I suppose five minutes is an average punishment for any ordinary misdemeanor.

Some other children mightn't consider such solitary confinement punishment at all. Some children like to be alone and in their cases some other punishment must be discovered. A lot depends on the child's likes and dislikes. Find something he or she prizes, and show the child that bad behavious means the risk of losing it for a while. And when you have hit upon an effective punishment, don't just threaten it. If what the child has done warrants punishment, give it; if it doesn't, don't say anything about it.

Have you ever gone to a hockey game and seen a referee who was inclined to be lenient, let the players get away with some rough play for a while? Well, naturally as they find they can get away with something, they keep trying a little more and a little more until the first thing the referee knows, he has a first class riot on his hands—a riot that could have been averted, if he had just checked the fouls right from the start. It is the same thing with children. If you let any objectional thing they do go unchecked, it won't be long before you are in trouble

Remember, the time to begin bringing up a child in the way he should go is the day he is born.

KISS AFTER MIDNIGHT~

by Margaret Gorman Nichols

Instalment 39

As Walter Edmonds picked up his hat from the office chair, he said, "I'm going home...."

That sounded so good, he thought. He was going home to Astrid with a new warmth in her, a new humility. Astrid who had clung to him yesterday as she had not clung to him since she was a very young girl, who wanted to talk of things she wanted them to do together, who could cry as she had cried yesterday softly against his shoulder. And he was going home to Sue whose young laughter would ring happily through the apartment, who had a new obedience, a new glow. A united family, he thought. And he was going home to it.

He glanced at Faith once more before he left, thinking her lovely and young as she sat at her desk, her black eyes wiser, her vivid mouth pulled into a smile.

He said, "Faith, much as I like you for a secretary, I'd like you even more for a sister."

When he left, she went back to her work, scarcely noticing that the day ended and that early twilight had dissolved into darkness. Little by little the accumulated work was finished. Would Walter protest when she resigned? There was no other way. And she must do it graciously keeping him for a friend, keeping Sue for a friend and thinking of Astrid, not as an enemy but as a woman who had made a mistake.

And Carl? She looked up, her eyes full of thoughts of him. To think of him—was to bring him close, to see the flash of his smile to feel his nearness, making her weak, yet making her safe....

She put down her pencil and sat back in the straight little office chair. Thinking of Carl made work impossible. She could lose herself in thoughts of him. The office was so quiet. No sounds outside of hurrying footsteps heard during the day. No sound? Yes, there was a sound of footsteps, footsteps of some one who walked with a sure steady tread. They were coming closer....They were pausing outside the door....

The door opened and Carl stood there, wearing the familiar gray tweeds under a dark overcoat. There was bandage on his head. He wasn't smiling. He was just standing there, tall and strong and straight, looking at a dark-haired, dark-eyed girl with disheveled hair and a shiny face, at Faith who did not try to hide either her thoughts or her love from him now....

This is Carl, she thought. He has almost touched death, but he is alive and close to me and looking at me as he has never looked at me before. There's humility in the way he is looking at me and desire and pent-up thoughts. Shall I say, "How are you, Carl? I'm glad your accident wasn't bad?" The usual things....I don't want to say the usual thing to him now....

He said, "Faith," and came closer and stood over her desk. His mouth, the same mouth she had thought ardent the first time she saw him, pulled at one corner. His eyes, those vital blue eyes with the thick fair lashes, did not waver from her face. His jaw was firm. "Faith.." the clear precise tone filling the silent office....Then he said, "Would you think I was very absurd if I got on my knees to you? I'd like to....after what Astrid told me...."

"What did she tell you, Carl?"

"That she was blind and stupid and foolish and jealous—that she misjudged you, hurt you, used you. She came to the hospital and told me. And I've been fighting with them for hours to let me out. I was just talking to Walter and I told him....I told him that I'd been in love with you for weeks. He told me I'd find you here."

He shook his head and smiled. "My darling, there are only three words that will keep Carl Edmonds from hating himself all the days of his life and the same three words will keep him happy all the days of his life. Faith, it was because I loved you, and love was new and strange to me and overpowering, that I was enraged and stupid and an intolerant fool in Florida that night. And jealous, too."

His eyes narrowed but he went on, frowning the familiar frown, "I told you that night in Florida that I'd been calling it by the wrong name when all the time the right name was—love. I wandered around Miami for days, hating you, loving you, wanting you. And the night Sue ran off....."

He straightened and smiled. "Must I go on, Faith? I suppose I must. I had it coming to me. Confession may be good for the soul but at this moment I can think of other things much better for mine...."

She never remembered leaving the chair and circling the desk. But she was always to remember the brief moment standing a little apart from him, postponing the moment of going to him. All your life you wonder if you will ever reach the topmost heights of happiness. And this is it, she thought, looking at Carl now, knowing that only a few steps separated her from his kiss and the strong brown hands upon her.

His arms enveloped her and held her tightly against him before he kissed her.

"I love you, Carl. From the first moment—and now until the last.."

He kissed her hair, her forehead and then her lips again. "Not three words, darling, but six, another three to make the score even...."

"Forgive you? Love always forgives...."

"I shall never hurt you again so you will never have to forgive me again." He looked down at her and flashed the quick, clean smile. "If you don't want orange blossoms and all the fancy trappings, and if you don't mind a husband with a bandage on his head, we could be married tomorrow. There must be a ship tomorrow going somewhere—somewhere where it is warm and sunny and where there's a beach and palm trees and a small house with a veranda and not too many people about. We'll go to South Africa when I can be free for that long....But there's tomorrow. It's too long until tomorrow!"

"We could stay together until midnight and you could pack and I could pack and...."

"Or you could come with me while I pack and I could go with you while you pack...."

Their laughter mingled, young, abandoned and with no fears in it.

"We'll call Walter," Carl said. "But we won't see him until tomorrow. Do you want people talking about us tonight? This is our night, Faith."

Our night. Our life, she thought. I shall be with Carl forever, not alone any more, not looking for a new job, a new and tiny room in which to live, envying Gretchen. I won't even be here to greet Gretchen and Philip when they come back! I'll be with Carl where there are palm trees and a beach and a small house with a veranda and not many people about. And the things I've waited for and dreamed about and hoped for will be mine. And I'll belong to Carl....

"What are you thinking about, Faith?"

"That if you dream enough, hope enough, wait long enough...." She looked up at him and touched his face. "I'll never love you less than I do this minute and I couldn't love you more. It has all of me in it—all of me."

"And all of me.' He kissed her again long and ardently before he said, smiling, "You're taking no chance with this flyer. I'll let them ground me for good, and take my aviation from the office. And not mind in the least. Do you feel what I feel, Faith? That love doesn't bind you and tie you down? I thought that once. It sets you free. It's a huge splendid world. We'll look at it together, darling, and enjoy it and share it."

He chuckled, low. "No man ever gave up his precious bachelorhood more willingly than I. I'm going to kiss you again and then I'm going to call Walter. I believe they make you wait to get married these days and I'm going to see if he can't do something about it, a special dispensation of some sort. Or maybe a dash to another state. And then you'll put on your hat and coat and some lipstick because I've kissed it all off and then...."

"We'll go out together. It doesn't matter where...." She stood apart from him a little, looking absurdly young and disheveled and happy. "Then I wasn't a girl of the moment, after all...."

He laughed, "I don't know what you're talking about but you're the girl of my life. You're the girl about whom people will say, "She's Carl's wife. And would you believe it —he never goes anywhere without her? And they've been married for years and years and he's still crazy about her!"

'And she's still crazy about him."

Not long later they came out of the dark building and walked down the dark, crowded street .... into tomorrow.

FOUR ARRESTED IN BANK HOLDUP

Three Young Men and Woman Held in Connection With Robbery at Leaside Bank

Toronto, May 1 (CP). — Three young men and a woman have been arrested on charges of arising out of the robbery of the Leaside branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce on Monday, city police announced today.

Those arrested are Marjory Constable, 27, charged with receiving stolen goods; James Hogarth, 28; Robert Orr, 23; and Robert George Harrison, 19. The men are charged with armed robbery.

Hogarth was arrested a few hours after the robbery, but police kept secret his arrest until today when they took Orr and Harrison into custody. The authorities said they have recovered some of the stolen money and have obtained statements from Orr and Harrison.

In the robbery Monday, three young men, carrying revolvers, kidnapped, slugged and bound a taxi driver before entering the bank in suburban Leaside. They obtained about $1,500 in loot and fled under fire from the teller.

Sidney A. Purdy, a taxi driver, said three men kidnapped him and used his taxi to drive to the bank, leaving him bound and bleeding in the back seat while they staged the hold-up.

Later the men abandoned the taxi. Purdy was found, still bound in the car.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

The German march to the sea at Trondheim in Norway appears to be making progress despite the resistance of Allied forces opposing the different German columns. The establishment of firm communications between the main German concentration at Oslo and Trondheim as well as other German-held ports in western Norway is vital to the whole German plan of utilizing Norway in the war.

Thus a vigorous continuance of the drive is to be expected and even should the Germans encounter setbacks they can be expected to return in force. To prevent the Germans from establishing such communications would be an important triumph for the Allies but failure to do so would not jeopardize their position in Norway.

While land operations are described in considerable detail in the reports coming out of the war zone from official and unofficial sources there can be little doubt that air operations are of equal or greater importance.

The Germans enjoy an undoubted advantage in the air in that they are closer to home air bases than the British and have the use of the principal air fields in Norway. Allied fighter planes have to operate from aircraft carriers or improvised land bases. The repeated raids of German-held airfields are carried out by long-range bombers from the British Isles but fighters can not operate far from their bases.

K. VOROSHILOFF GIVES ORATION

Russia Must Double Vigilance and Strength of Army and Navy Says War Commissar

Moscow, May 1 (AP).—War Commissar Klementi Voroshiloff declared in a May Day address from Lenin's tomb today that it is necessary "to double our vigilance and strength of our army and navy. The U.S.S.R. is only standing aloof from the war."

Speaking to Red army troops which staged an impressive review, the commissar said:

"Today there is a deeper difference between the capitalistic and Soviet countries and deep is the abyss between them.

"The international situation is very tangled. The incendiaries of war will try to involve our country in the war."

Joseph Stalin, Premier Vyacheslaff Molotoff, Voroshiloff and other Soviet leaders stood for hours on the Lenin tomb in Red Square reviewing a tremendous parade of troops and singing workers.

The dominant theme in the May Day celebration in this capital of Communism was that workers of the world should unite under the Communist banner against capitalism and war.

In contrast to the practice of former years the marching workers carried no caricatures of Adolf Hitler.

There was a military review in Leningrad, principal base of the recent war with Finland. Diplomats and military attaches of foreign powers witnessed the spectacle in Red Square.

Mechanized units, infantry and cavalry swung past the tomb of Lenin, followed by almost interminable lines of workers. Numerous military men were awarded the title, Hero of the Soviet Union, and other decorations.

AT THE BELLE

"THE EARL OF CHICAGO"

Described as the most unusual picture of the year, "The Earl of Chicago" opens next at the Belle Theatre. Dramatic story of Silky Dilmount, Chicago gangster who becomes an English Earl by inheritance, the picture stars Robert Montgomery in the most challenging role of his career, an adventure in characterization.

That there is something new and different in movie plots is evidenced by the twists this story takes. Silky is the typical gangster, illiterate but calculating, shrewd, cold and cruel, who operates a streamlined liquor business, strictly "legitimate" and "government", but using the gang salesmanship methods of prohibition days. Greed for what he believes is a $10,000,000 inheritance takes Silky to England.

Bewildered by a situation he can't understand, Silky is forced to depend on his lawyer and pal, Doc Ramsey, played by Edward Arnold. When Doc "rats" on him, Silky murders him and is tried by his peers in the House of Lords, a famous murder trial shown on the screen for the first time.

Silky gives Montgomery a powerful role from a dramatic standpoint, but also humorous in its unusual, surprising and spectacular situations. "The Earl of Chicago" features Reginald Owen, Edmund Gwenn, E. E. Clive, Ronald Sinclair and Norma Varden.

"The Ghost Comes Home"

"The Ghost Comes Home", featuring Frank Morgan in one of the most hilarious roles of his career, is the companion feature attraction, with Morgan as a small-town storekeeper tangling with night club high life and the problem of spending a million on his home town amid tribulations galore. The story deals with a timid petshop keeper who, after being supposedly dead in a shipwreck, returns home to find his family gleefully spending his insurance money, and trials and complications keep up the hilariousness until he exposes the local banker and becomes the town's Number One Hero. Billie Burke plays the wife and Ann Rutherford the daughter.

"Atlantic Patrol", a thrilling film of the briny deep will be exhibited on the same program.

Cobourg Resident Refused Permission To Raise Pigs

Cobourg, Ont., May 1 (CP). — When a Cobourg citizen applied to council for permission to raise pigs on his property, which is just south of Main street, the request met with poor response. He was advised that health regulations would not permit him to raise pigs there.

But the citizen, mindful of the fact that a hotel keeper has two bears in his yard, drew this to the council's attention.

"If he can raise bears I can raise pigs," argued the citizen.

Council referred his request to the Board of Health.

$700 FIRE AT ALMONTE

Almonte, Ont., May 1 —(CP)—Fire which destroyed the barn and back kitchen of the home of William McCaughan, causing $700 damage, threatened several buildings in this town 30 miles west of Ottawa before being brought under control by the local fire brigade. Roofs of four nearby houses were ignited before firemen extinguished the fire after an hour-long battle.

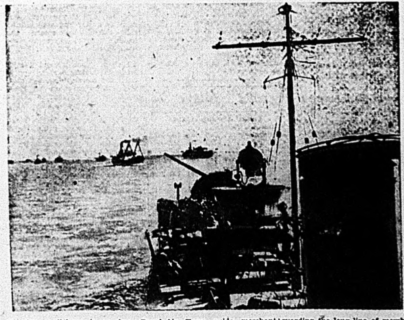
The J. T. Clark Memorial trophy was presented by J. W. G. Clark, LEFT, of Toronto, son of J. T. Clark, to L. C. Thompson, RIGHT, of Lucknow, at the 12th annual convention banquet of weekly newspaper editors of Ontario and Quebec. The cup is in memory of the late editor of The Toronto Star and is presented each year for the best all-round newspaper in towns of 1,500 or under. It was received by Mr. Thompson for Hugh Ferguson, publisher of the Port Elgin Times, winner of the competition. More than 200 editors and publishers, their wives and guests attended the convention in Windsor.

THE ROYAL NAVY KEEPS SEA LANES OPEN FOR BRITAIN



Britain's small losses in merchant shipping these past few months can be attributed to the success of the convoy system, whereby ships of the Royal Navy and planes of the Royal Air Force guide merchant shipping through dangerous waters surrounding England. # Four Clubs Are Represented At Round Table Discussion Of Bay of Quinte Ball Loop

R. A. Elliott Said Parent Body Toying With Proposition to Hold Baseball Tournaments in the Province

NO OFFICERS ELECTED

Meeting Adjourned for Week at Which Time League Will be Established

Prospects loomed brighter along the Bay of Quinte baseball front when four clubs were represented at what was to have been the Bay of Quinte League's annual meeting and election of officers held at Napanee last evening. Following a round table discussion, however, the election of officers was left in abeyance for a period of one week, at which time the league will be organized. The clubs represented last night were Kingston Ponies, Belleville, Picton and a proposed new entry from the town of Napanee, the Gibbard A.C., that has held the banner of baseball high in Napanee and brought several provincial ball pennants home, announced the disbandment of that club.

One of the highlights of the meeting was the announcement, made by R. A. Elliott, past president of the O.B.A. of Deloro, to the effect that the parent association was toying with the introduction of baseball tournaments throughout Ontario to supplement the old playdowns systems. "It has been suggested that baseball tournaments, in the senior, intermediate and junior series, be played at different points throughout the province in late July and early August, thus eliminating the playing of championships during cold raw football weather in the fall," stated Mr. Elliott.

Explains Proposition

"The suggestion is to bring the leaders of all leagues together at a central point during baseball weather and stage a tournament over a period of two or three games. As an example, we could bring senior clubs representing the various leagues throughout the O.B.A. jurisdiction into say Kingston, where games would be played in the morning, afternoon and evening until the championship was decided. While the seniors were playing in one section of the province, the intermediates and juniors would be playing elsewhere. This is the system so successfully employed by the National Congress of Baseball in the United States and I feel it has its merits," stated Mr. Elliott as he added that the respective winners would be recognized as provincial champions for that year.

"And remember, after the tournament these teams would return to their respective leagues and continue their schedules until late in September, thus eliminating all of the hurry in late summer league play-offs," added Mr. Elliott.

Speaker Thanked

President Lorne McDougall, of the Quinte League, thanked Mr. Elliott for his enlightened discourse after reviewing the efforts of the Bay of Quinte League for 1940. President McDougall regretted the loss of the Air Force from the league, but welcomed the Kingston delegation.

In a general round-table discussion, Walter Gerow, speaking for Napanee, announced the disbanding of the Gibbard A.C. but added that another organization might sponsor a team in Napanee this summer. Harry Doyle, speaking for Picton, stated that club was ready to function, but in a lower classification. "Bob" Elliott, representing the Kingston Ponies, told the meeting there was plenty of material for an intermediate team in Kingston. "We are merely listening in tonight, but we'll be back next week with a definite answer," stated Mr. Elliott, who was accompanied by "Yammy" Jamieson, veteran Kingston pitcher. "We have a successful junior league in Kingston and do not desire to jeopardize it in any manner," added Mr. Jamieson.

Sponsor Juniors in City

H. M. "Dolly" Gray, speaking for the Belleville interests, stated the only possible chance of baseball in Belleville for 1940 would be the sponsoring of a junior team. "If we can get some assistance in the matter of executive work, Belleville may be able to enter a team composed of young players only into the league," revealed Mr. Gray.

Secretary Lynn Crossman presented the treasurer's report, while Ken. J. Colling, district O.B.A. executive member, stated that he intended to be present at the O.B.A. executive meeting in Toronto on May 4th in the interests of all clubs in Central and Eastern Ontario. The Kingston delegation took very favourably to the discussion made by Mr. Elliott and stated the proposition of a baseball tournament might be tried by their City Association this summer as an experiment. The meeting adjourned for one week at which time the annual election of officers will be held.

JUST A BREEZE FOR BIMELECH

Louisville, Ky., May 1 —(AP)— It's one of those daffy things without rhyme or reason but all signs pointed today to the probability that eight other horses actually are going to the post with Bimelech in the Kentucky Derby Saturday.

What they'll be in there pitching for no one among the thousands already in Derby Town for the big show seems to know. Of course, that $8,000 second money "ain't hay," and in times like these your not sneezing at $2,000 for third or even $1,000 for fourth. But there doesn't seem to be any chance for anything with four legs catching Bimmie once he moves.

The way he came home in 1:38 on a slow track in the derby trial at Churchill Downs yesterday, made one thing just about a dead eyed cinch. The other fellows are going to get a lot of his dust kicked in their faces—provided they can stay within kicking distance.

Several of the candidates thought they had an outside chance up to yesterday. But after the trial was over, five of them saw the light. Of those in the trial, only Mrs. Ethel V Mars' Gallahadion, a $5,000 yearling purchase at Saratoga two years ago, which ran a creditable second to Bimmie yesterday, and Charles T. Fisher's Sirocco, which wound up third, will get a ticket to the derby post.

TORONTO LEAFS SCORE 7-6 WIN OVER BALTIMORE

Eric Tipton Belts a Homer and Drives in Three Runs in Contest

GIANTS WIN AGAIN

Jersey City, Cut to Pieces by Graduation Last Winter, Again Appears Team to Beat

(By The Associated Press)

They practically junked the Jersey Giants, 1939 International League pennant winners, during last winter but somehow Manager Bert Niehoff seems to have come up with another team that looks as good as ever.

Admittedly no team can be judged accurately on the basis of nine games, all played on its home lot, but eight victories in the first nine starts have stamped the Little Giants as the team to beat this season.

The Little Giants wound up their home stand yesterday with a 3-2 decision over the last-place Buffalo Bisons. Salvo pitched six-hit ball for his second mound victory while Jim Trexler, Bison rookie, allowed seven and saw a well-pitched game get away from him on two eight-inning errors.

The northern teams won all the day's other games, led by Montreal and Rochester, the most successful tourists. Montreal's Royals put together two five-run innings behind Bill Crouch's eight-hit hurling and beat Syracuse Chiefs 12-3. They made a total of 18 hits off Bill Clemensen, Pep Rambert and Art Jones to finish their tour with a .500 average.

Newark's Bears gave Joe Vance shaky support and took a 4-2 beating from Rochester although the Red Wings made only seven blows. Ziggy Sears, Newark's rookie catcher, belted a 400-foot homer in the ninth, but that couldn't make up for the two unearned runs his mates had given the Red Wings.

Toronto's Maple Leafs edged out the last-place Baltimore Orioles, 7-6, in a game that saw each team score four runs in the ninth. A triple with the corners crammed by Eddie Collins, Jr., featured Baltimore's late uprising. Another former college star, belted a homer and drove in three Toronto runs.

Vancouver Leafs One Up in Cage Finals

Winnipeg, May 1—(CP) — Vancouver Maple Leafs, a team favoring long shots, found their long-range shooting eyes again here last night and defeated Winnipeg St. Andrew's 48-37 in the third game of the best-of-five series for the Western Canada Senior Men's Basketball title.

The victory gave the seven-man coast team a 2-1 lead in games. They won the first contest Saturday 37-30, then dropped the rough second start 49-40. The teams meet again tomorrow with the fifth game, if necessary, on Friday.

Art Willoughby, slim forward with uncanny accuracy from 20 feet out, provided the big margin in the Leaf victory with a contribution of 13 points. Captain Joe Ross scored 12 points and Ralph Henderson 10.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was thinking about doing my homework and pop was smoking to himself in his private chair, and I said, Hay pop?

At your service within reasonable limits, pop said.

Meaning what, and I said, Do you think I'll ever be a great man?

I'll go so far as to say you're a great boy, and if you hitch your wagon to a star and take infinite panes there's no reason you shouldn't turn out to be a great man, pop said; and I said, Well I mean a really great man.

So do I, pop said, and I said, Like in the history books?

Even the incyclopedias, pop said, and I said, Do you mean even great enough for my berthday to be declared a holliday and kids wont have to go to school on it?

Absilutely, pop said. So just imagine the happiness you would spread by closing down the entire educational sistem of your country for a whole day every year and let that be an incentive to put your mind to the task and your shoulder to the wheel and make something of yourself, he said, and I said, Only jimminy, pop, I'd never know it, I mean by that time I'd be under my monument and I couldn't hear them yelling and see the happy expressions on their faces.

Well yes, I must admit that's the reverse of the meddle and the dark cloud on the other side of the silver lining, pop said, and I said, Well my berthday is only 4 days away, so why cant I at least stay home on it myself and get a little sattisfaction out of it?

I cant deny that's an original thought and perhaps worthy of a future great man, pop said, and I said, Well then can I, pop?

I'll take it up with your mother, pop said.

Being less encouraging than if he had of been just sattisfied to take it up with me.

Brooklyn Dodgers Tie Record In Winning First Nine Games Behind Carleton's No-Hitter

Second Team in Fifty Years to Win First Nine Games in Major Loops

YANKEES STOPPED

25-Year-Old Rookie Southpaw Limits World Champions to Two Hits

By JUDSON BAILEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

There's just no use being skeptical any longer. Destiny's Dodgers are so hot they're setting the National League on fire and the glare is so bright that the other clubs are blotted out of the picture.

Nine straight victories climaxed by a no-hit pitching performance from a 33-year-old Texas cowhand who almost decided last winter to quit baseball and stay at home on the range show that Brooklyn is taking baseball seriously and will have to be taken seriously.

Winning streaks aren't always lucky. The only other club to win nine in a row at the start of the season in the last 50-odd years—New York Giants in 1916—finished second.

But winning streaks sometimes are put together with luck and the Dodgers' wasn't. They simply have overwhelmed every foe they have met. Tex Carleton's masterpiece against Cincinnati yesterday pointed to the fact that Brooklyn pitchers have allowed only 63 hits and 14 runs in nine games.

The homer that Pete Coscarart hit with two on in the fifth to score all the runs of yesterday's game kept intact the Dodgers' average of a home run for every game since the start of the season.

Pirates Beaten for Fourth Time

St. Louis Cardinals were idle yesterday, but Pittsburgh Pirates were beaten for the fourth straight time, 6-2, by the Phillies, who piled up 11 lusty hits, and Chicago Cubs had an 8-7 squeeze to win in 10 innings from the Bees. Al Todd hit a homer in the extra instalment for the victory.

Until the returns from Cincinnati were posted yesterday, the plaudits of the baseball world were all going to a 25-year-old southpaw of St. Louis Browns, Emil Bildilli, who stopped the World Champion New York Yankees 2-1 on two hits in his first start of the season. The rookie from San Antonio gave up a run on a triple and a single in the first inning and then proceeded to hold the famous sluggers hitless the rest of the way.

Southpaw Beats Yankees

It was the seventh time in 10 games a lefthander has started on the mound against the Yanks and the fourth time they had fallen. They have been beaten twice by righthanders.

Cleveland Indians climbed back into exclusive possession of the lead of the American League with a 10-5 victory over Philadelphia Athletics on Willis Hudlin's 12-hit pitching and two homers apiece by Hal Trosky and Ken Keltner.

Boston Red Sox, who had shared the top spot for a day, were 9-4 victims of Chicago White Sox. Chicago made 12 hits and Boston four errors to give John Rigney an easy ride.

Washington Senators bagged Detroit Tigers by the same score, 9-4, with Joe Haynes' steady hurling getting the support of a 13-hit Washington attack, including Gee Walker's double with the bases loaded.

O. B. A. Names Two Executive Members

Hamilton, May 1—Secretary W. J. Snyder, of the Ontario Baseball Association, today announced the appointment of two members to the executive of the O.B.A. made recently by President J. C. McDonald. The names of Ken. J. Colling, Belleville, and Dr. L. C. Sturgeon, Meaford, were added to the association executive by appointment, the latter being a new member added this year.

The officers of the O.B.A. for the year 1940 were announced as President, J. C. McDonald; Vice-President, W. G. Ward, Niagara Falls; 2nd. Vice-President, C. S. Gilbert, St. Thomas; Secretary, W. J. Snyder, Hamilton; Treasurer, A. Hillmer, Oakville. The executive consists of Messrs. A. E. Southerst, Windsor; H. H. Berscht Hamilton; A. H. Lowe, Kitchener; Bruce Oliver, Sunderland; Ken J. Colling, Belleville and Dr. L. C. Sturgeon of Meaford. R. A. Elliott, of Deloro, is a Life Member of the association.

VOLLEYBALL

The Y.M.C.A. volleyball team moved into the finals of the district Volleyball League last night by defeating the O.S.D. three straight games. The "Y" team won 15-11, 16-14 and 15-9, and thus go into the finals against the Bata team from Frankford.

The winners were supposed to meet the Bata team after the semi-final game last evening but the Czechs failed to make an appearance and the games will be played next week.

The teams:

O.S.D.: Brown, May, Robertson, Grazzianno, Hazlitt, Bartu, subs, Gerow, Quinell and Cork.

Y.M.C.A.: Brown, Cole, Wickerson, McLean, Weir, Clare, sub, Townsend.

Between the Lines

Sooner or later it was bound to come regardless as to the prosecution of war, simply because the set-up was broadening and eventually would become self-contained within its own bounds. What are we referring to?—merely the sports set-up at the Trenton R.C.A.F. base. Belleville and district sport fans have been too dependent upon Air Force sporting ventures, primarily hockey, in the past, when it was quite evident that it was only a matter of time before the Air Force would revert to intramural sporting activities. The very latest and authentic news we have received from within the portals of the Trenton R.C.A.F. camp is to the effect that the "Flyers" will no longer compete in outside, provincial or district sporting ventures. The Air Force softball team now included in the Trenton Town League will finish out their 1940 schedule, but after the league is terminated the R.C.A.F. will confine its future sporting activities solely to intramural efforts.

Two well-known and renowned athletic instructors have been added to the personnel of the Trenton Air Force base in the persons of Tommy Walker and Andy Reeke, both of whom are recognized as outstanding sports coaches. Tommy Walker is the son of Johnny Walker, who managed George Young. Tommy came to the Air Force from Winnipeg, where he was engaged as athletic instructor at the Winnipeg Winter Club, prior to which he was connected with the Toronto Central Y.M.C.A. Andy Reeke is well known in Belleville having preceded "Pete" Beach at Albert College. Andy has a firm athletic background in London, where he worked in the London "Y," but came to the Air Force direct from the Western University, where he was athletic director. The new athletic project at the airport is a program of sports within the base, which is to include the greatest number, rather than a select few as is the case when teams are selected to compete outside in district sports. This intramural system was tried by George Laughlin at the Belleville Collegiate for three years, but it was found to be devoid of the paramount ideals of sport, common competition with others who are not closely related or acquainted.

We have been reliably informed that even the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" hockey teams will be disbanded or rather discontinued another winter and only inter-unit puck-chasing employed at the Airport. As there was a recent suggestion that Peterboro' try senior hockey in 1941, we felt that the "Petes" should be acquainted with this fact in order that they may set their house in order for senior hockey, now that the Flyers are said to be deserting the O.H.A. "With over 2,000 men in camp, we must provide sport and athletics for the majority rather than for a select few. The morale of these men must be taken into consideration and aside from this they must be provided with recreation and sport aside from their regular duties. It is only by the employment of intramural sports that this can be attained, thus assuring the maximum numbers participating in sports," stated our informant, who wishes to be anonymous at this time.

Intramural sports are quite alright in their place and do provide the greatest number possible with an opportunity to participate in sports, but in the long run what does such a set-up attain? There is nothing at stake nor is the zest or keen sporting sense enjoyed, as is the case in district or provincial games. Intramural sports merely mean that softball leagues, football leagues and other sporting ventures within the realm or enclosure of the boundaries of sponsorship, bring out the masses, but not the competition or qualities. Actually it can be defined as sports quantity rather than quality. During the state of war, when so many men are employed at the Airport this system is undoubtedly necessary, but once introduced and if it provides the necessary results, Belleville can get back to the point of sponsoring its own sporting ventures for a change. Local sport fans may soon be faced with the problem of fostering their own sporting ventures, although we feel quite certain that eventually, perhaps after the war, the Air Force will once again return to district sporting competition, as other attempts at intramural sports have not met with exact success over a period of time. No organization can live within itself.

Do you remember when War Admiral won the Kentucky Derby's 63rd renewal three years ago today? Man O'War's son, piloted by Charley Kurtsinger, winner in 1931, with Twenty Grand, covered the mile and a quarter in the second fastest time in the history of the event. Owner Samuel D. Riddle received $52,050.

Did you know that few horses nominated for the Kentucky Derby have names with a "militaristic" ring. There are four to be exact—Call to Colors; Battery; Carrier Pigeon and Flight Command are the nags, the latter two named being top-notch candidates.

Judging from the reaction of local wrestling fans last fall the paying public will be over-joyed to hear that at last a suitable opponent has been procured to meet the pugnacious "Wild Tiger" Daniels, who repeatedly brought the wrath of the fans upon his head as the result of his unscrupulous attacks on his opponents. Daniels is to meet "Speedy" Williams, the lithe Detroit lad, who has been wrestling on the same circuit with Franke Hart all winter. The Daniels-Williams bout precedes the main bout at the Hume Arena Friday night when Joe Maich, a popular favourite, meets "The Ringer," an unknown grappler, who boasts of a formidable ring record on three continents.

"Red" Townsend's junior softballers are holding a practice at the Collegiate campus Thursday evening and juvenile players are requested to join the throng, as there may be a Belleville team entered in the O.A.S.A. juvenile section this year.

SPORT SPICE—Chances of the revival of the Bay of Quinte Baseball League seemed slightly brighter when Kingston, Picton, Napanee and Belleville were all represented at a meeting held last night . . . All but Belleville seemed certain starters, so we'll let the other district scribes comment on Belleville's position and their remarks will doubtlessly be potent. There seems no stopping of the Brooklyn Dodgers, they not only won their ninth consecutive National League game yesterday, but equalled the record of opening season victories made by the Giants in 1918. . . . Atop of all this the veteran Tex Carleton, who was brought back from Milwaukee last winter, pitched a no-run-no-hit game as the "Daffiness-men" won 3-0 over the champion Cincinnati Reds to remain the only undefeated major league club. . . . Over in the American League a 25-year-old rookie pitcher from San Antonio Texas, gave up two hits to the Yankees, as the St. Louis Browns beat the world champions 2-1. . . The Galento-Baer bout has been postponed from May 28th to July 2nd and that about postpones our day's effort.

Winnipeg Policeman Says Seniority Not Considered

Winnipeg, May 1 (CP)—Constable George Boal told the Donovan Royal Commission yesterday that seniority is not considered in making promotions in the Winnipeg police force and that men are losing interest in their work in consequence.

The Commission was set up under Mr. Justice W. J. Donovan at request of city council to investigate charges inefficiency and favoritism in the police department.

Boal said he considered his 25 years' service and record of arrests entitled him to one of the easier posts but this had been refused him while younger men were favored.

Commended by the Police Commission for arrest of two bank robbers in 1934, Boal said the reward sent to the department for him and another constable had never been paid to him but was paid instead to the Police Athletic Association.

Asked by R. D. Guy, counsel for Chief Constable George Smith, whether he had told the grievance committee of the Police Athletic Association on his complaints, Boal said complaints "didn't get you anywhere."

"I have seen the grievance committee members waiting outside the office of the Chief but they couldn't get in."

DAVE CASTILLOUX EASILY DEFEATS BILLY MARQUART

Montreal Lightweight Now in Line for Important Bouts

FIGHTS UPHILL

Winner Badly Hurt When Hit Low by Marquart in the Fifth

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, May 1 — Chances of a world title match for Dave Castilloux this summer brightened today as promoters clamored for the services of the Montreal lightweight, brightest figure on the Canadian fistic horizon

Castilloux became a matchmaker's dream last night after his convincing 10-round victory over Billy Marquart of Winnipeg His manager, Raoul Godbout, has numerous offers for bouts, and indications are that the Canadian lightweight champion will get a shot at Lou Ambers' world title either in Montreal or Toronto.

"It was the best fight I have ever put up," said the little French Canadian, also sought by United States promoters. "I've put on a lot of weight lately and feel much better. Marquart is a hard puncher and for the first time in my life I was badly hurt when he hit me kind of low in the fifth."

The champion at 133, was three pounds lighter than Marquart for the non-title bout that thrilled about 5,000 fans. He had to fight an uphill battle and was trailing on points when he staged a punishing drive in the eighth round that had the Winnipeg boy on the verge of a knockout.

Making his first professional appearance in Canada, Marquart fought courageously and both judges and referee Jackie Johnston credited him with four of the first six rounds. He forced the fight but never got a clear opening for his left hook.

Marquart appeared to be in the driver's seat in the eighth when Castilloux scored with a left hook to the westerner's right eye. The blow obviously bothered Marquart and the champion pounced on his victim as a tiger after wounding his prey.

Castilloux fired both hands viciously at the bewildered Marquart who reeled helplessly, his hands hanging at his sides. The bell saved him.

Toronto, May 1 —(CP)— Dressedweight were up 35 cents at Chatham, down 25 cents at Brantford and Liveweight were up 25 cents at Chatham in bacon-hog markets reporting today.

Other markets were unchanged.

Liveweight: Brantford $7.75, Chatham $7.75.

Dressedweight: Brantford $10.50 Chatham $10.60, Hull $10.40, London $10.40 plus transportation Stratford $10.40 plus transportation.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 1—(CP)— Stocks moved to new lows for the years on Toronto exchange today. Turnover aggregated 205,000 shares with Bidgood-Kirkland the most active issue.

Utilities, senior oils, foods, steels and textiles registered losses chiefly. Weakness in New York, inspired by depressing war news helped the downward drift locally.

Smelters, Nickel, Noranda, Steep Rock and Pend Oreille were all losers in the base metal list and a majority of the secondary golds, including Aunor, East Malartic, Powell Rouyn, Kerr-Addison, Little Long Lac and Macassa, declined.

Shares of Reinhardt Brewery Company Limited were delisted today, having been taken over by Cosgraves - Dominion Breweries Limited.

WALL STREET

New York, May 1 (AP) — Stock prices eased today as traders, made dubious by reports of German victories in Norway, dabbled only tentatively in the market.

Slow early transactions turned even slower toward the fourth hour, although a few quotations rose fractionally from their lowest positions.

The slate of retreating shares included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, United Aircraft, Sperry, Dupont, Union Carbide, Kennecott, American Smelting, Great Northern Pfd., General Electric, Loft and Western Auto Supply. The latter was off as much as 6 points at one time, but showed some comeback later.

Distillers and Canadian Pacific, in the Canadian section, dipped fractions. Canada 4s, among bonds, were easy. Other issues were neglected.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, May 1—(CP)— Cattle trade continued too dull to establish prices up to mid-session on the Toronto livestock market today. Veal calves were 25-50 cents cwt. lower. Sheep were steady. No price was established for hogs. The cattle holdover was 800 head.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: cattle 550, calves 560, hogs, 1,100, sheep and lambs 360.

A few lots of butcher steers and heifers sold at $6.25-$7. Butcher cows sold at $4.50-$5.75. A few bulls ranged from $5-$5.75.

Veal calves sold at $10-$10.50 for choice with common selling downward to $5.

A few local feed lot lambs sold at $9-$11.

Sheep sold at $3-$7.

Hogs closed previously at $8.25 off-trucks for bacons and $11 dressedweight.

Montreal, May 1 — (CP) — All classes of livestock held steady in early trading on Montreal Livestock Markets today according to a report from the Dominion Department of Agriculture. There were not enough cattle and sheep to make a market.

Receipts: Cattle 39, calves 424, sheep 4, hogs 356.

Calves were unchanged at $5 for common light veals to $7.50 for good. Fair to medium veals in mixed lots brought around $6 to $6.25 with more common kinds mostly at $5.60. Hogs were sold on rail grade basis at $11.50 hot weight.

NEWS ON FRONT PAGE

Cardiff, Wales, May 1 — (CP-Cable)—The Western Mail today began putting news on its front page, following the example of the Daily Telegraph and Daily Mail, London morning newspapers, and the Yorkshire Post, published at Leeds.

The Western Mail explained that the innovation was due to requests from influential readers and to meet production changes made necessary by the war.

Price Recessions In Butter and Eggs

Toronto, May 1—Trading remained at a standstill for butter, and prices closed nominal on the Toronto open produce market yesterday. Another 1-2c per pound was lopped off butter, with cream reflecting the decline. Graded eggs eased slightly.

Buyers again stood aside and permitted the butter market to sink still lower. An odd sale of first-grade Ontario creamery solids was reported in the morning at 23 1-2c, but other than that demand was absent. While fresh receipts are showing the seasonal increase, production in Ontario continues to lag behind last year, with output for the week ended April 20, amounting to 825,279 pounds, against 835,365 pounds a year ago, a drop of 1.2 per cent. Prints to the retail trade were revised downward in accordance with the decline on the wholesale market. Top grades moved at 25-1-2c to 26c. Churning cream followed butter lower, as No. 1 grades were quoted at 24c to 25c, on truck country points.

Arrivals of fresh receipts were not heavy on the egg market, but supplies were sufficient to meet demand. Prices were shaded down in the graded section, while the retail division held unchanged. Storage packed and Government inspected shipments commanded a premium of 1-2c per dozen.

Montreal Produce.

Montreal, May 1—(CP)— Produce market prices here, as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Butter: First grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 25 1-2c to 26c; first grade solids, jobbing, price 25c to 25 1-2c.

Eggs: Graded shipments in used free cases, selling price, A-large, 23c; A-medium, 21c; A-pullets, 19c; B, 21 1-2c; C, 18c to 18 1-2c; (Government inspected lots 1-2-cent higher). Receipts: 2,903 cases.

Delivery of Mail For Canadian Troops Now Greatly Improved

Soldiers' mail reaches English training camps from Canada from one to two weeks more quickly following an investigation ordered by Postmaster-General Power.

Letters from Picton, Belleville and other parts of this district destined for local boys with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, with the First Division, C.A.S.F., at Aldershot now average fourteeen days en route compared with 21 to 28 days under the old system.

Many factors were found to be responsible for slow delivery. Boat sailings from Canada were curtailed by the war, and kept secret. Trains in England were cancelled and the railroads congested with troops and supplies. Post office staffs over there were shorthanded and mails moved with difficulty at night because of the blackouts.

Under changes constituted, mail for the local and other regiments in the C.A.S.F. now goes to London for sorting instead of going to Aldershot where facilities for sorting were limited.

Addressed separately at the base post office here to the C.A.S.F., the 2,000 or more bags of each mail are rapidly handled at Canadian military headquarters in London where improperly addressed letters can be checked with military records. From there all C.A.S.F., mail is sent to mail clerks, including some Canadians, who sort it accordingly and forward it to military units.

Rail communications from Bournemouth to Aldershot where previously there was as high as three-days wait for local letters, are less congested, and the soldiers mail is more promptly delivered to the mail orderlies of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

BRITAIN DIVERTS

A source close to the Foreign Office declared: "We should frankly deprecate to much attention being paid to the notice that His Majesty's government has closed the Mediterranean for through traffic."

Purely Precautionary

He described the measure as "purely precautionary and of a defensive character," added that it is the government's "earnest hope" that the measure prove temporary and declared Britain still is hopeful of re-opening trade negotiations with Italy.

The measures are a result of certain utterances "which seem provocative," the authority said, and the government decided that in the present situation "every precaution must be taken" on all fronts.

At the outbreak of the war Britain routed her merchant ships around the Cape for a while, until Italy's non - belligerent status seemed assured.

The diversion of shipping, announced last night, shared attention with the trend of war in Norway where the Allied challenge to the German invasion reached a critical point.

Report Not Confirmed

The German claim that land contact had been established between German-held Oslo and Trondheim, isolating Allied forces on the central Norwegian coast, found no confirmation in London.

Balanced against the German claim was a British War Office announcement that "fresh landings have taken place on the coast of Norway" and that the British, fighting with indomitable courage, have resisted any further advances by the enemy" in the region of Dombas, strategic junction of railways linking Andalsnes, a British coastal base, with Oslo and Trondheim

A military spokesman said later, however, that the British situation in the Dombas area is "dangerous and very obscure." He said British authorities had no confirmation that Storen and Dombas had been captured by the Germans—as reported in Berlin yesterday — but said this is "quite possible."

Prime Minister Chamberlain may break his silence on the Norwegian situation with a statement in the House of Commons later this week —he declined to do so yesterday— and perhaps reply to a sharp personal attack made on him last night by Liberal leader Sir Archibald Sinclair.

King Given Account

Mr. Chamberlain was believed to have given the King a confidential account of the war in an audience last evening before the King and Queen left for Lancashire.

Sir Archibald brought into the open rumbling criticism, especially among Labor members of parliament, on the conduct of the war.

Speaking at Glasgow, he warned that the government must adopt vigorous measures in Norway on Europe's remaining neutrals or they would hop on the German bandwagon.

Sir Archibald was absent Monday when Mr. Chamberlain conferred with Labor leader Clement R. Attlee and Arthur Greenwood, Deputy Labor leader, after which they deferred demands for an immediate statement on the war situation.

Archibald Speaks Plainly

"If the government muddles this Norwegian campaign it will be for parliament to act objectively, fearlessly and resolutely at the grand inquest of the nation," the Liberal leader told his Glasgow audience.

He threw back at Mr. Chamberlain the Prime Minister's recent declaration that Hitler had "missed the bus," and said that it reminded him of the Prime Minister's prophecy, after the Munich agreement on Czecho-Slovakia, Sept. 29, 1938, that "peace in our time" had been established.

"Although we shall muddle through to victory in the long run," said Sir Archibald, "we shall pay for the feebleness of our political direction by prolongation of the war.

"There is nothing in the rules of war against a country moving skillfully and striking without warning, and the British public would not complain if the British government moved and struck the Germans."

Entitled to Know

He said the nation was entitled to know whether the troops sent to Norway were "highly trained, regular troops with experienced officers and staffs, and whether they were adequately equipped."

Aside from Sir Archibald's speech there was little sign of open feeling against the government over the turn of events in Norway. However, faces were glum and there were distressed whispers in parliamentary lobbies about the Norwegian campaign.

Said the man-in-the-street: "It's not over yet."

The press, including the well-informed Times, indicated that the disadvantages under which the Allies were fighting would compel them to effect a strategic withdrawal to the north for formation of battle lines north of Trondheim.

This would leave the Allies in possession of the northern part of Norway, excepting only Narvik, and even at that Arctic ore port the beleaguered German garrison was believed to be unable to hold out much longer against pressure from land and sea.

"The junction between German forces based on Oslo and the garrison of Trondheim, if it has not already been established, is now certainly imminent," said the Times, adding:

"In effect the Nazis have closed their grip on the whole of southern Norway containing the richest and most populous regions.

"The Allies are placed upon the defensive, though their troops in the immediately threatened area have recently been reinforced both in numbers and in equipment and may be trusted to give a good account of themselves—as indeed the War Office midnight communique makes clear they are doing.

"At the same time and on a longer view, the principal task henceforth is clearly to establish and hold a line that will bar access of the invader to the long narrow strip of country running between the Swedish frontier and the North Sea and extending far into the Arctic Circle."

Chamberlain Responsible is Claim

The Liberal News Chronicle declared that responsibility for any faulty decisions rested with Mr. Chamberlain and not with Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty and head of the fighting services.

"The Norwegian campaign has produced—if reports are to be believed—at least one case where divided counsels have checked effective action," the newspaper said.

"There are strong reasons for believing that at the outset of operations — when the feat would have been easier and less costly than now—naval chiefs were in favor of a sea attack on Trondheim and thought it would succeed.

"It is believed, however, that the cabinet turned down the project on the ground that it was too rash and too costly."

The Daily Express commented that "those who believe that Norway is a major operation, a determining factor which can settle the result of the war, are deluding themselves."

The Daily Telegraph contended that "Narvik is the Allies' principal interest in this campaign."

HOUSES DAMAGED

The spot where the bomber, a huge Heinkel, crashed is at the busiest junction on the main street of Clacton, less than 50 miles from London.

The crash occurred shortly after three enemy planes had been sighted flying at a low altitude over the Humber River estuary— a favored objective of German mine-laying aircraft. Explosion of the plane indicated it was carrying explosives.

Dropped Landing Flare

Apparently crippled by the anti-aircraft batteries one of the planes headed inland, circled Clacton for half an hour, dropped a landing flare, and then suddenly plunged into a row of seven houses which it demolished.

The explosion blasted out a crater which eye-witnesses said was "as big as a house." Walls of neighboring homes collapsed, burying their occupants.

A baby carriage standing beside one house, was blown into a treetop. Other trees were uprooted and fell across the street.

As first aid crews went to the aid of the injured another plane was heard overhead and all lights were ordered extinguished, adding to the difficulty of rescue work.

The crash caused the biggest turnout of air raid precautions units under actual wartime conditions in Britain since the start of the war.

Centre of Town Damaged

Witnesses said the centre of Clacton looked as though it had undergone an artillery bombardment, traffic was completely disorganized today and bus service was rerouted around the town.

By an ironic coincidence, Clacton hotel operators, seeking to assure the public of the safety of the resort, announced only yesterday that their guests would be given a one-third discount on their bills for any day on which a bomb fell near the town or a mine exploded near the promenade pier.

Residents along the Yorkshire coast told of hearing two airplanes overhead and several heavy explosions and seeing tracer bullets fired from guns at sea.

Two Not Identified

One of the victims whose bodies were recovered from the wreckage was identified as Mrs. Gill, 30. The other two bodies were not identified at once.

A local school official said none of the town's children were among the seriously injured. Cuts, bruises and shock kept many from school today, however.

The Heinkel circled the town and surrounding area for more than 30 minutes, apparently trying to find a place to land. The flares were seen to drop as it lost height. The ship crashed within 200 yards of the waterfront. The roar of its engine stopped abruptly just before the impact. Then came the explosion and the petrol tanks burst into flame. Bullets crackled in the blaze. It was impossible to approach it.

Bedrooms Exposed

Officers and soldiers billeted in nearby houses and hotels were the first to start rescue work. The whole back of a pair of semi-detached houses was torn off and the bedrooms and kitchens were exposed. Occupants of the houses were buried under debris that piled six feet high in some places.

The body of a second lieutenant in German uniform was the first to be discovered in the charred wreckage of the plane

An elderly bedridden man and his wife were rescued from the upper room of a house, the face of which was torn away.

Four Revolvers Found

The prompt action of the fire brigade was believed to have averted serious additional loss of life. The "Stand By" signal was sent out as soon as news of the disabled plane was flashed, even before it crashed. Firefighters were practically on the scene at the moment of the fall.

One curious fact reported was the finding of a piece of parachute about half a mile away. Four revolvers were also found.

A member of the town council said: "Although this terrible thing has shocked the whole of Clacton, we can take some consolation from the fact that but for the great work of our fire units and the A.R.P., the disaster might have been greater. The crash has proved how really alert our A.R.P. workers are. It has proved that the long hours of training and the victims of the crash will receive compensation under the terms of the personal injuries section of the emergency provisions covering civilians and A.R.P. personnel injured in raids.

Graduated Pensions

Broadly speaking, these pensions are on the basis of those paid to soldiers on active service and provide for pensions to those permanently disabled up to a maximum of 32 shilling six pence ($7.25) for a single man and 22 shillings sixpence for a single woman. Married men receive an allowance for wives and children. Payments are graduated according to degree of injury and incapacitation for work.

Property damage is to be covered by compensation to be paid by the government after the war on the best terms possible at that time.

BRITISH WITHDRAW

is quite possible that they have outrun their lines of communication.

The situation in the Dombas area was described as "dangerous and very obscure."

This source declared he was not prepared to speculate on the nature of the developments in Norway since "speculation at this stage may mean the loss of men's lives."

A report from Namsos yesterday described the situation there and in the sector where the Allies were entrenched at Steinkjer as 'good,' he declared.

There is no reason for supposing the situation has deteriorated since then, he added.

More Closer to Narvik

At Narvik, the Allied forces are reported moving closer to the town.

There was no attempt by this British source to discount the German announcement that the Nazi forces in Oslo and Trondheim had joined hands.

"We must remember that with demolitions and bombing German communications will not be easy," he said.

The source said if small parties of troops have made contact it "does not mean there is a constant flow of men and material."

RESIDENT

It is a radical departure in Canadian Government finance but follows a policy adopted by most empire countries at the start of the war. The general aim of the new measure is to block additional loopholes for flight of capital from Canada and to conserve foreign exchange in Canada for war purposes.

The new foreign exchange regulation has been planned for some time, it was learned, and no particular emergency at the present time led to its adoption. The board now will be able to purchase a large backlog of foreign exchange which previously it was unable to obtain. The new purchases will be made at the official buying rate of exchange prevailing today.

In his announcement Col. Ralston said: "Although the general effect of the new measure is to transfer foreign exchange owned by Canadians to the Foreign Exchange Control Board, exemptions have been provided for in the case of those to whom a certain amount of foreign exchange is deemed necessary for carrying on normal business transactions."

The large gold and foreign exchange reserve of the Bank of Canada is being transferred to the board and the minimum gold reserve requirement for the Central Bank is being discontinued. The government believes that in the war emergency it is desirable to group in one central fund all the gold and foreign exchange reserves of the Dominion.

Under the new order the board will, as part of the transfer procedure, be purchasing about $250,000,000 of gold and foreign exchange from the Bank of Canada, plus the foreign exchange which will be sold by other Canadian residents.

It is necessary to provide additional funds for this purpose and the Dominion Government therefore is increasing the Exchange Stabilization Fund by about $325,000,000 by the sale to the Bank of Canada of that amount of short-termed Dominion securities. The bank has agreed to buy these securities and the proceeds will be credited to the fund.

Insurance companies are included in the various exemptions connected with the board's purchases of foreign exchange.

Insurance companies of all classes will not be obliged to sell any amount of foreign currency required to carry on their business outside Canada. Non-resident branches of Canadian banks also are exempt.

Residents of Canada who own foreign securities are allowed to switch into other similar foreign securities by selling any or all such securities and simultaneouly reinvesting the proceeds.

It also is provided that any foreign currency balance which arose from the sale of maturity of securities subsequent to Sept. 15, 1939, when foreign exchange control was instituted in Canada, and which was held temporarily pending reinvestment may be invested not later than May 31.

Special consideration will be given United States residents of Canada. Discussions are under way between the government and James H. R. Cromwell, United States Minister to Canada, concerning exemptions for such citizens who hold foreign exchange.

NORSE REOCCUPY

the German claim yesterday that the two columns had met south of Storen.

The Tidningen story said that the Norwegians still were holding positions a mile north of Storen, after delaying the Germans' southward march at Lundamo, where a young Norwegian had dynamited a bridge as two Nazi cars were crossing the span, killing himself and eighteen of the enemy.

Lundamo is about ten miles north of Storen and twenty miles south of Trondheim.

Air Raid on Namsos

The German air raid on Namsos, approximately 100 miles north of Trondheim, was recounted by the correspondent of the newspaper Svenska Dagbladet, who said the Nazi bombers attacked persistently from 7:15 a.m. to 6 p.m. yesterday, despite a steady fire from British anti-aircraft batteries.

Two of the German raiders were reported shot down.

The Swedish correspondent said the Nazi bombers concentrated their attack on a British cruiser and a destroyer which had entered Namsos harbor during the night. One bomb fell squarely on the stern of the destroyer, he declared, starting a fire which spread to the magazine and caused an explosion that "blew the entire vessel to pieces."

"Scores of British marines and sailors were believed killed," the correspondent wrote. "The remainder, number unknown, were taken aboard the cruiser, which then managed to get out of the fjord."

The British warships were said to have been anchored when the German bombers appeared, but got under way and steered a zig-zag course in an attempt to escape.

Six planes participated in the first attack, the correspondent said, and bombers continued to fly over at intervals in groups of three each.

Fugitives fleeing across the Swedish border from the Arctic Norwegian port of Narvik reported the German garrison beseiged there by the British was running short of provisions and could not hold out for more than a week.

British guns were said to have silenced all the German artillery, compelling the Nazis to retire from mountains around the town to a precarious position along the coast.

Soldiers Released

Among the fugitives reaching the Swedish border were 134 Norwegian soldiers who were captured by the Germans when they occupied the town. The Norwegians, who were interned on crossing the frontier, said they had been released by the Germans because provisions were running low.

Many of the Norwegians were so weak from lack of food that their companions were compelled to carry them.

Some of the refugees said that all the higher German officers had disappeared from the town in the last few days, and expressed belief that they had made their way across the Swedish border disguised as civilians.

Military activity on the Steinkjer front, midway between Trondheim and Namsos, apparently was stalled temporarily by the beginning of the spring thaw. German mechanized forces were reported unable to get under way against positions held by the French and supported by the British.

A Swedish business man who succeeded in making his way from Trondheim to the border estimated that the original force the Germans landed there totalled no more than 1,200 men.

More than five times that number, however, he said, have since been brought in by planes, which also transported light anti-aircraft guns.

U. S. EXPORTS,

December when the "moral embargo" was instituted. That "moral embargo" is still in force, greatly reducing American exports to the Soviet.

Commerce department statistics for 1939 show United States exports to Soviet Russia of the three commodities cited by Mr. Cross were:

Rubber: 11,383,000 pounds, valued at $2,521,000.

Tin: 1,957,000 pounds, valued at $1,012,000.

Copper: 45,496,000 pounds valued at $5,791,000.

The Soviet normally imported about 120,000,000 pounds of copper to supplement its annual production of 145,000 tons to meet peacetime requirements of that metal.

Presto Music Club Presents Concert For Holloway St. War Unit

On Tuesday evening, April 30, the Presto Music Club meeting took the form of a very interesting concert, given in Holloway St. Church auditorium, the proceeds from which are to assist the Holloway St. War Work Unit. After a brief welcome by Mr. Newman the program under the direction of Mr. S. Anglin, got under way. It consisted of the following numbers: 1, Piano duet with organ obbligato, War March of the Priests—Mendelssohn, Mrs. Houston, Lazelle Brown and Wm. A. Connor; 2. Songs, If My Songs were Only Winged, Hahn, and Little Pickaninny Kid, Guion, by Doris Houston; 3, Organ (a), Aria, Handel, (b), Christ Lay in the Bonds of Death, Bach, (c) Fugue in G minor, Bach, C. Kilgour; 4, Ladies' Chorus, Blow Soft Winds, Vincent, by the ladies of the club, directed by Mr. Anglin, 5, Piano and Organ duo, Grand Aria, Demarest, Mrs. Hubbs and Wm. A. Connor; 6, Song Maytime, Newton, Phyllis May; 7, Violin, (a) Meditation from Thais, Massenet, (b) Elegie, Massenet, Dr. Locke; 8, Piano Scherzo from G minor concerto, Saint Saens, Wm. A. Connor. The orchestral parts were played on the organ by S. Alec Gordon. 9, Song, Time, You Old Gypsy Man, Besly, Ann Brown; 10, Piano, Spinnlied, Litolff, Florence Davis; 11, Ladies' Chorus; Pure as the Air, German, directed by Mr. Anglin; 12, Piano duet, Hungarian Rhapsody, No. 2, Liszt-Bendel, S. Alec Gordon and Wm. A. Connor.

Following the program very tasty refreshments were served to the club members by the ladies of the War Work Unit.

DIES IN WRECKAGE AS CAR OVERTURNS

Charles Cruse of Weston Found Dead When Extricated After Accident

Islington, Ont., May 1—(CP) — Trapped in the wreckage of an overturned car for half an hour early today, Charles Cruse, 46, of Weston, was dead when extricated by members of the Weston fire brigade who chopped a hole in the roof of the machine.

The accident occurred on the Malton Road, as Cruse, with Wilfred Byron 44, Mount Dennis, was homeward bound, Byron driving. The machine struck the soft shoulder of the road and continued diagonally for 100 feet to strike the concrete wall of a culvert with terrific force, and overturn in the ditch.

Police laid a charge of reckless driving against Byron, who suffered a severed tendon in his finger and chest injuries.

MANY SUCKERS TAKEN FROM MOIRA RIVER

A long string of large "suckers," carried by a group of teen-aged lads, as they made their way slowly up Front St. at noon today was the source of much admiration by pedestrians as they queried the youths as to where they made the good catch. The string of suckers was the result of the morning's catch along the banks of the Moira.

R.A.F. Bombers Wave on Wave Pound Nazi Bases

One of Strongest British Formations Attacks Stavanger Airport

SHALLOW DIVE TACTICS

Wave on Wave of Bombers From Different Directions —Daylight Raid is Made Today on Stavanger

London, May 1 (CP)—One of the strongest and largest Royal Air Force formations ever to be dispatched on a single night raid attacked Stavanger airport in Southwestern Norway during the night and shot down four German fighter aircraft.

Other raids were made on Fornebu, near Oslo, and on Aalborg, in Denmark, causing heavy damage. The R.A.F. lost seven planes in the operations, which were continued this morning.

The first wave of bombers reaching Stavanger dropped explosive and incendiary bombs over an area where large numbers of German planes were seen.

Following soon after the first wave came another and still stronger force of bombers, said an account compiled from the reports of the participating pilots.

Shallow Dive Approach

Approaching the airdrome in a shallow dive, the British bombers launched their attack from different directions, battering the ground defences and registering hits on all parts of the airdrome.

Salvos of high explosive bombs were seen to straddle the principal runways and several fires, visible from a long distance, were seen to break out.

The pilots described the fighter opposition as intense.

In the Fornebu raid a fire was started which was visible some 30 miles away. This was started in a first attack just before midnight and other planes were guided to the airport by the blaze.

Guns placed around the airdrome and on promontories to the east and south attempted to screen the target with a barrage of fire but could not hold off the attackers, who ran the gauntlet of powerful defences and dropped bombs on the hangars and runways.

The R.A.F. followed up the night raids with a daylight attack on Stavanger today. Large numbers of high explosive bombs were dropped and bursts of smoke and flames recorded a series of hits on the landing ground.

Damage inflicted on the air base during the previous attacks was clearly visible, the attacking pilots reported. No German fighters were encountered in the daylight raid and all the R.A.F. bombers returned.

PRIME MINISTER BACK IN OTTAWA

Mackenzie King Looks Refreshed and Healthy After His Southern Holiday

Ottawa, May 1—(CP) — Prime Minister Mackenzie King, looking refreshed and healthy after his southern holiday, returned to the capital today but had nothing to say on public questions nor on his meeting with President Roosevelt and Cordell Hull, United States Secretary of State.

"I never felt better in my life," said Mr. King. "It was a real holiday. Everyone was kind and respected one's desire for rest, change and privacy.

One newspaper report trickling back to Canada to the contrary, Mr. King said he played no golf during his 2 1-2 weeks in Virginia, Georgia and at Washington.

The Prime Minister said he declined to give interviews in the United States and the last promise he made to newspapermen on leaving Washington was that he would give no interview on arriving back in Canada.

A group of personal friends, cabinet ministers, members of parliament and government officials gathered at the station to welcome the Prime Minister home.

Old Soldier, Possessor of Military Medal and Three Bars, Pays Visit to Former Buddy in City

Just three old soldiers, they strode down Front street with the military precision they learned twenty-five years ago.

On the breast of their new battle-dress gleamed the colorful ribbons of the 1915 Star, the Victory and General Service Medals. Beneath jaunty forage caps, worn on their heads at a rakish angle, gleamed the grey hair of middle age. They swung along in step, arms swinging with all the apparent jauntiness of the good old days of 1914-18.

But what caught the eye of civilian veterans and a number of non-service men, was that which adorned the breast of the centre of the trio. It was the Military Medal, a common enough decoration, but on its red, white and blue striped ribbon gleamed three "bar". In other words its wearer had been awarded the decoration on four distinct occasions.

He was Private Andy McGowan, late of the Black Watch (48th Highlanders of Canada) of the immortal First Canadian Division.

Quiet-spoken, modest to a degree, the silver-haired veteran was in the city to look up a "pal" of years standing; one who had helped him when he was needy, and whose kindnesses many times had not been forgotten now that "Andy" was in good standing again.

He had not long to search. A few minutes after his arrival in the city, Mr. Leo Bellinger, himself a wearer of the famous Mons Star, few of which are in Canada, and one of the famous "Old Contemptibles" were together again, reminiscing of old times, both good and bad, in that army vernacular which is reserved for old soldiers alone.

Refuses to Tell of Exploits

But while he discussed about the present and past wars, Private McGowan, still possessed of a broad Scottish burr, refused to tell of the exploits that brought him his quadruple decorations.

However, Private "Jock" McHattie, a grey thatched Imperial veteran and "buddy" of McGowan, (the three comrades are members of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals) told the story how McGowan, like a modern Horatius, held the bridge at Canal du Nord in Belgium while grey-clad German hordes hammered at the Allied lines.

The rest of his company killed or wounded, McGowan and his colonel held the important position against overwhelming odds, firing his machine-gun until it became too hot to handle.

Held at bay, the Germans successfully mined the structure and blew it up. McGowan went "up" with the bridge but emerged with slight wounds.

Questioning regarding the citations of the three remaining awards was useless. The likable Scotchman refused to talk and referred his questioners to the official war records.

His two companions likewise pos-
His two companions likewise possess enviable military records. "Jock" McHattie, another braw Scot, likewise served with the Imperial Black Watch and saw service in France and Italy. He was one of the seventy-five veterans chosen from Christie Street Hospital last May to form a special guard of honor for Their Majesties the King and Queen on the occasion of the Royal visit.

The third member of the trio, Private Sam Toft, served with the famous Lancashire Fusiliers, and was wounded in action twice. A professional rugby football player, he played with such famous British teams as Wigan and St. Helena's for a number of seasons.

Now all three "old swaddies" from widely divergent parts of the old army, are together again. Grey haired, in good physical condition, they have once again answered the call of the colors. And by the time this story is read, the three old soldiers will be once again viewing the broad Atlantic on their way to "Blighty."

SCENE OF FIGHTING ON WEST FRONT

This evacuated village on the Franco-German border has been the scene of bitter fighting on the Western Front with the wreckage and shell-craters attesting to intensity of the artillery fire. The village, captured by German troops early in the war, recently was recaptured by the French.

PAPER WORKERS VOTE TO STRIKE

Demand Changes in Working Conditions at Kapuskasing, Smooth Rock Falls and Iroquois Falls

Timmins, Ont., May 1 (CP)—Threat of a strike in the pulp and paper mills at Kapuskasing, Smooth Rock Falls and Iroquois Falls loomed today following strike votes taken in the three towns last night. Workers voted in favor of strike action if their demands are not met by the companies concerned.

A strike-favoring vote of 99 per cent. was said to have been recorded at Kapuskasing where workers maintained that they would favour the halt in work if their demands for changes in various working conditions and in the rates of pay were not met with by the company through negotiation. Members of Local No. 89 of the Pulp and Sulphite Workers' Union took part in the strike vote.

At Iroquois Falls a "one hundred per cent" strike-favoring vote was said to have been returned by the workmen of the Abitibi Pulp and Paper Company. Union officials, through George Poirier, president of the local, said that they were relying upon the officials of the international body to take the matter up with the company heads.

"Our international head officer, John P. Burt of Fort Edwards, N.Y. is going to take the complaints up with heads of the company today," Mr. Poirier said. The meeting, he said, would likely take place in Toronto.

Another meeting will be held in Iroquois Falls this evening at which other details of the dispute will be discussed.

TOTAL EFFORT OF PEOPLE NEEDED TO ENSURE VICTORY

London, May 1 (CP)—Dominions Secretary Anthony Eden declared today that "nothing less than the greatest effort of which our people are capable will ensure victory."

Mr. Eden spoke at a luncheon to which guests carried newspapers with headlines reporting, "Allied troops fighting with backs to wall," in Norway.

"It is inevitable as this war proceeds," he said, "that we shall have bad days as well as good before the struggle is closed in final victory."

Describing the Nazi war machine as "truly formidable," he added that "no scruple is ever going to hamper the Nazi leaders" in its use.

Furniture Movers Find Business Grows Heavier, Season Nears Its Peak

This Period of Year Marked by Considerable Migration in City

SCARCITY OF HOUSES

Belleville's annual hibernating population shook themselves from winter cobwebs with the passing of the snow a couple of weeks ago, and made ready for the annual trek to other homes and houses.

From as early as February, homeseekers within the city started the yearly hunt for other domiciles. Gradually the demand has increased and the spring moving will reach its peak this week.

May 1st is the date and moving vans, trucks, family automobiles will rub fenders with each other as household furniture gets its annual airing.

Heavier Migration

According to furniture movers, the migration this year is much heavier than that of a year ago, especially in long distance hauling. This is due, it is said, to the removal and entry into the city of members of His Majesty's Forces, who have been transferred to and from the district.

However, that is a situation in itself. The regular change of homes is also heavier than that of preceding years. Many private "deals" have been arranged, especially among the cheaper homes. This week has seen many such removals and this situation will continue for one or two weeks at least.

Scarcity of Homes

At present, it is stated that there is a decided scarcity of better class houses in the city. There is also a decided shortage of dwellings that rent for between $15 and $20 a month. One real estate agent states that he could use twenty or more lower priced rentals for potential clients.

The demand for lower-priced houses is caused partially by the influx to the city of laborers and their families drawn here by the possibility of securing work on highway governmental projects it is explained. This transient population has increased by a large percentage since last year, according to employment agency official.

Another evidence of the increased May moving activity is seen perhaps in the recent uptrend in sales of paints, wallpapers and other spring-cleaning necessities. While the annual "rush" has been postponed, dealers say, by lateness of spring, there has been marked activity on the part of property owners to renovate and decorate. This could be taken as a sign of increased desire on the part of residents to make a change in their addresses and telephone numbers.

Moving and the Child

But, like everything else, there is generally a touch of human interest in this job of moving. Yesterday, a truck loaded with furniture drew up to a vacant house in the southern part of the city. A grimy urchin sat on the loaded van. Nearby two of his new neighbors eyed with boyish disdain the arrival of the newcomers. Satisfied, eventually, they resumed their game of softball. Suddenly the ball shot high over the truck to be picked out of the air by the youngster sitting high on the load of furniture.

He leaped to the ground with the ball, joined his new-found next-door neighbors and became engaged in a heated altercation regarding the respective merits of the "gang where I came from" and the possibilities of the new friends. In a few minutes the argument was over. The ball game was resumed and a new friendship formed.

PILOT OFFICER IS PRISONER OF WAR

Windsor, May 1 (CP).—Reported missing as a result of air action on April 20, Pilot Officer Howard Douglas Wardle, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Wardle of Windsor, is a prisoner of war in Germany.

Fears for the safety of their son, held by Mr. and Mrs. Wardle during the past ten days, were allayed today by a cable from the British Air Ministry.

The cable said: "From Air Ministry, confirmed by International Red Cross that your son Pilot Officer Howard Douglas Wardle is a prisoner of war in Germany."

BACON BOARD MEETING

Ottawa, May 1 (CP) — The Dominion government Bacon Board announced today that discussions still are in progress on the pork surplus problem confronting the Board.

Under the chairmanship of Hon. J. G. Taggart, Minister of Agriculture for Saskatchewan, the Board held a lengthy meeting yesterday in an attempt to find means of disposal of a pork products surplus of 37,000,000 pounds. The Board holds 30,000,000 pounds and the remainder is in the hands of the packing companies.

FEAR FOR SAFETY OF N.S. FISHERMEN IS EXPRESSED

Lawrence Sweeney, Owner of Seretha, Says He Believes Derelict Sighted is His

ON FISHING TRIP

Yarmouth, N.S., May 1 (CP)—Fear for the safety of ten Nova Scotia fishermen was expressed here today by Lawrence Sweeney, owner of the schooner Seretha, who said he believed a derelict sighted off Cape Sable, N.S., Monday, was his vessel.

The derelict was reported 56 miles off Cape Sable, southwestern point of Nova Scotia, by Capt. Frank Hines of the Boston fishing schooner Shamrock. The vessel was on her beam ends with decks awash and sails still set.

Sweeney said the Seretha, a 65-foot auxiliary craft, was long overdue on a trip to the fishing grounds off southern Nova Scotia and he believed she had been caught in a gale which swept the coast.

The Seretha, which left Yarmouth April 19, had ten days' supplies aboard. Sweeney said he is asking the Federal Fisheries Department to send out a search ship.

The ten men aboard were Captain George Bungay, Engineer Albert Porter, Cook Clyde Tidd, John Foster, Marsden Penney, Arthur Parrington, William (Dick) Muise, Emilien Muise, John Muise and Bernie Cottreau. Farrington comes from Lunenburg, N.S., and the others from Yarmouth or Yarmouth County.

It was the second time in little more than ten weeks that the Seretha had been reported missing. In mid-February fears were aroused for her safety when she was overdue at Yarmouth after what should have been a trip of only a few hours.

That time, however, she made port three days later, badly battered by a storm.

WAR BRIEFS

Belgrade, May 1 (AP)—Yugoslavia and Rumania have rejected Hungary's proposal for international policing of the stretch of the Danube River under their sovereignty, it was announced officially today. The Hungarian plan would have made all Danubian countries responsible for guarding the river near the "iron gate." It was understood to have been advocated by Dr. Karl Clodius, German trade negotiator, in an interview yesterday with the Yugoslav foreign minister, Alexander Cincar-Markovic.

GUEST AT PRIVATE LUNCHEON

London, May 1—(CP-Cable)—Hon. Norman Rogers, Canadian Minister of National Defence, was the guest of honor today at a private luncheon given by the Empire Parliamentary Association.

Guests included Charles Corbin, French Ambassador to Great Britain, Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner in the United Kingdom and Lieut. J. H. Tremblay, member of the Alberta Legislature and an officer of the Canadian 1st Division.

IMMIGRATION SPURT FORESEEN AT END OF WAR

Figures For Immigration From Europe to Canada Have Dipped Sharply

BRITISH IMMIGRATION

Ottawa, May 1 (CP) — A spurt in immigration from Europe to Canada and other nations of the Western Hemisphere when the war ends is forseen by Frederick C. Blair, Director of Immigration.

In an interview, he said today he felt that two great conflicts in a single generation cannot but lead many peace-loving folk in Europe to seek haven for their families in the Americas.

Meanwhile, however, figures for immigration from Europe into Canada have dipped sharply compared to the pre-war period. Figures for 1940 to date are not available but Mr. Blair calculated that arrivals in Canada from Europe this year are only one-fifth as great as in 1939.

More Britishers Arrive

Immigration from Continental Europe has shown large decreases in the first three months of this year while arrivals from Britain and the United States have increased.

Lack of shipping space has made it difficult for refugees and other travellers to cross the Atlantic from Continental Europe and the exchange situation has added to the difficulty. Exchange control regulations in European nations make it impossible for persons to leave with their money — and in most cases they cannot leave without it.

For these reasons, despite the offer of Premier Hepburn of Ontario to settle thousands of Finnish people in Northern Ontario, no flood of applications for entry has come from war-stricken Finland, Mr. Blair said.

Canada offers no obstacle to entry of immigrants of good character, except that the Dominion wants assurance the immigrant will not become a public charge.

Skilled Machinists In Great Demand, Labor Dep't. States

Toronto, May 1 (CP)— Skilled machinists are in general demand throughout Ontario, the Provincial Labor Department reported today in its weekly summary of employment conditions.

Lathe hands, bench fitters and boring mill operators are needed in many sections. Practically all skilled bricklayers and carpenters in the Galt district are employed on construction work, and machinists, moulders and weavers are needed.

Kingston, Gananoque and Brockville report industries working full time and competent mechanics scarce. At Kitchener the "metal trades are getting busier every day."

At Port Colborne, a Nickel Company is increasing plant facilities. Heavy demand for cranes and some war orders has caused a Niagara Falls plant to operate on a 24-hour basis. All machine shops, foundries, textile and box factories in London are busy.

Companies in Toronto with war orders are adding skilled workmen daily to their staffs.

A large shoe factory in the Belleville area will increase its staff from the present 700 shortly. A demand for domestic help is steady throughout Ontario.

Much activity is expected about the middle of the month in the Fort William-Port Arthur district on pulpwood peeling.

Hamilton reports a brisk business in iron and steel.

Scattered Bush Fires Extinguished by Rain

Toronto, May 1 (CP)—Rain and snow in northern parts of the province today put out scattered bush fires and materially reduced forest fire hazards, according to reports reaching the provincial government today.

Rain last night put out many of the fires and the rain continued today. The forests of the north had been drier this year than for a decade, Rangers reported this Spring. More rains will be required before conditions approach normal for this time of the year.

Hon. Norman Rogers Returns From Visit to the Western Front Greatly Pleased With Visit

Rogers States Canadians Always Serve Where They Can Make the Greatest Contribution

By SAM ROBERTSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 1—(CP Cable) — Hon. Norman Rogers, Canadian Minister of National Defence, flew back to London today after completing a whirlwind trip to France that gave him an insight into what he termed "the Allies' thorough and realistic preparations for the task ahead."

In two busy days he talked with French Government and military officials, toured the zone manned by the British Expeditionary Force, and met General Viscount Gort and other British staff officers at General Headquarters in the field.

Aboard the Royal Air Force plane that brought the Minister and other members of his party back to London, he summed up his impressions for The Canadian Press in these words:—

Been Reassured

"The visit has made me more confident than ever of the final outcome of the struggle on which we are launched. Britain and France are equipping their forces with the best money can buy. In touring the British zone of operations I was deeply impressed by the thorough, realistic preparations which have been made. I know the same holds true for our French allies.

"One purpose of the trip was to see the conditions under which the Canadian troops may operate in the future. I have been reassured in this regard."

Asked if this might be taken to indicate that the Canadians are destined to see service in France, Mr. Rogers said the matter would be decided by developments. On this point he recently said "Canadian troops have always served where they could make the greatest contribution."

Visits Vimy Memorial

Just before taking off from a R.A.F. base that was a hive of activity, Mr. Rogers, together with Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner to the United Kingdom, Major-General H. D. G. Crerar, senior officer of Canadian Military Headquarters in London and Captain H. A. Dyde, special assistant to the minister, visited Canada's massive memorial that dominates the country around Vimy Ridge.

The party also tramped about the trenches which the Canadian Government has perpetuated in cement as a reminder of the glorious victory her sons scored over Germans in the last war.

The party's earlier tour through a large area of Northern France, now alive with Tommies, revealed a great assortment of blockhouses and pillboxes which the troops have been constructing instead of sitting waiting for Hitler's threatened Blitzkrieg to strike.

Covered by Blockhouse

Every one of the scores of roads along which we drove was covered by a blockhouse. An enemy column moving along the road would be inviting annihilation from the armaments bristling through small muzzle holes in the blockhouse's walls of steel and cement.

The walls of the blockhouses, which look like overgrown igloos, were three and more feet thick.

Rolling farm fields of the area, which old men and women till while the younger men serve in the war zone, also were speckled with blockhouses and smaller pillboxes equally staunch.

Far back of the line being buttresed for this war lie constant reminders of the other war that the world hoped would end all wars. Farm fields just coming to life under the caress of spring have not lost the scars cut by trenches more than 20 years ago. Here and there rise ugly ruins of buildings shattered by shells. And everywhere there are monuments to the victory won or the dead lost in winning it.

Almost Million Canadian Coppers Imported Into City of Windsor Since Outbreak of Hostilities

Windsor, Ont., May 1 (CP)—Close to one million copper coins of Canadian issue have been imported into Windsor since the outbreak of war last September, a check of banks today revealed. Large quantities are still being brought in, it was reported.

Windsor's position was unusual, bankers explain. Before last September well over 90 per cent of all copper coins in circulation here were of United States issue. It was unusual to find a Canadian copper coin even in a large package of pennies.

Almost overnight this vast sum of U.S. coinage was withdrawn, creating the largest recorded shortage of copper coins the city has experienced. Calls immediately were put in for more Canadian copper coins.

Seldom, if ever, have banks in Windsor had to ask Toronto for copper coins, it is pointed out, but since last September a continual stream of imported coppers has been flowing in this direction.

"There is no reason for it other than the sudden withdrawal of U.S. coins from circulation," an accountant in a large Windsor bank declared this morning.

Stockholm, May 2—(AP)—Norwegian troops strengthened by foreign volunteers were reported today moving west from the Swedish frontier and south through the Glomma River valley as German forces fell back from their advance posts to protect their supply lines in central Norway.

The Norwegians' occupation of Roros, point of the Nazis' farthest advance in the Glomma River valley and Tynset, 25 miles south of Roros, after the Germans had withdrawn apparently has prevented the Germans linking their northern and southern forces, at least temporarily, along this route. Roros is 195 miles north of Oslo.

Why The Weather?

By MAJOR A. H. THIESSEN
Science Service Meteorologist

Exploring the stratosphere! It may be asked: Why explore the stratosphere with manned balloons since unmanned free balloons are capable of going much higher and are cheaper? Most characteristics of this faraway region may be obtained from the surface or by automatic instruments carried by free balloons, but the manned balloon seems to be necessary to investigate cosmic rays, as timing of the exposures must be accurately controlled. At 70,000 feet the air has the same proportions of oxygen and nitrogen as at the surface; the sun is 20 percent brighter; the sky is only one-tenth as bright; and radio signals may be sent to the earth. Cosmic rays were found as numerous coming in from the sides as from the zenith.

ASSETS "FROZEN"

(By Lloyd Lehrbas Associated Press Staff Writer).

Washington, May 2 (AP)—Germany's secret "war chest," fortified by acquisition of convertible assets in Denmark and Norway, now totals more than $200,000,000, on the basis of estimates by United States officials charting the economics of the European war.

The Federal Reserve Bank's figures credit the Third Reich with only $29,000,000 in gold, but that total has not varied since December, 1937, and officials do not doubt the existence of far greater unreported reserves.

The exact amount of gold and convertible assets Germany may have gained in Denmark and Norway is not known to Americn economists. At the time of Hitler's lightning thrust into Scandinavia, Norway reported $51,000,000 in gold reserves, and Denmark had $53,000,000.

Financial authorities pointed out, however, that both nations reputedly had sent large consignments of gold to London for safekeeping just

Mystery Surrounds Death of Grimsby Man, Wound is Found in Head, Gun Lies Near Body

Grimsby, Ont., May 2—(CP)—Police today are investigating the death of Stefan Olejnik, 47-year-old Pole, who was found dead in front of his home here early today.

There was a shotgun wound in his head and a shotgun was found lying by his body. Olejnik and his wife had moved here from Hamilton only three days ago and had purchased a two-acre fruit farm.

Mrs. Olejnik told police her husband had paid a deposit of $100 on the property and appeared to have been worrying because he had been told that a grain farmer from the west might fail as a fruit farmer and lose his money. The Olejniks came east from Saskatchewan early in March.

According to Mrs. Olejnik, her husband arose at four o'clock this morning after which she went back to sleep. No shot was heard but the body was found within ten feet of the front door some hours later.

Appearing at a hospital some time after school to have wads of paper removed from their ears, the youngsters reported" We whistled and whistled, but it didn't work."

Daffy Season on Hand Says Police After Several Incidents Recorded

Orillia, Ont., May 2—(CP(—The daffy season is here police decided today after the following incidents:—

A thief stole a 300-pound safe, carted it for miles and smashed it open. He obtained seven cents loot.

A frantic housewife reported the theft of hundreds of dollars worth of jewels. Police searched for hours for the thief, and on their return to the station the housewife called to announce her sister merely had moved the jewels.

An angry gardener demanded police protection, saying someone was stealing his flowers as fast as they grew. Later he apologized. He remembered he hadn't planted flowers, hos his conclusion that he was being robbed was based on a wrong premise.

Freighter Collingwood Following Closely Behind the Stricken Vessel Rescues Crew

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 2—(CP)—In a violent wind and snow storm that raked Lake Superior, the freighter Arlington of Midland, Ont., sank early yesterday with loss of one life, it was reported here today.

Captain T. J. Carson of the freighter Collingwood said his vessel rescued the 16 members of the Arlington's crew, all aboard except Captain Fred Burke of Midland who went down with the ship.

The Collingwood, like the Arlington downbound through the Great Lakes, was expected to dock tonight at Midland where most of the Arlington's crew live. Both vessels are grain-carriers.

Captain Carson reported the disaster briefly early today when the

YUGOSLAVIA SAFE FROM INVASION SAYS COUNT CIANO

Italian Foreign Minister Reported to Have Given Assurance to U. S. Ambassador

RELIEVES TENSION

Rome, May, 2—(AP)—Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano today assured United States Ambassador William Phillips that Yugoslavia, Italy's neighbor on the Adriatic, is safe from Italian invasion, it was reported in usually reliable quarters.

The ambassador's talks with Premier Mussolini yesterday and with Count Ciano today noticeably eased tension in diplomatic circles. Anxiety had reached an acute point with the announcement that British shipping had been diverted from the Mediterranean as a precaution.

Mr. Phillips' visit to Count Ciano was his second in two days. The ambassador called at the Foreign Ministry yesterday after seeing Mussolini and, it is said, received assurances from Il Duce that Italy did not plan any war move for the present.

Although nothing was made known at the American embassy, it was said in political circles that Germany wanted to keep all Balkan countries, including Yugoslavia at peace as sources of supply for the Nazis.

It was explained that Italy, as an ally of Germany, would follow this policy.

Yugoslav circles were said to feel

A LONG-SUFFERING WIFE REBELS

Camden, N.J., May 2—(AP)—Mrs. Dorothy C. Kipp of Burlington, N.J., told a divorce master she kept her troubles to herself when her husband, Samuel, of Altoona, Pa., knocked her down and kicked her, hit her with a bed lamp, pulled a gun on her while they were out for an automobile ride and threatened to throw her down a well. But when he threw her out a kitchen window, she testified, she decided to do something about it. She sued for divorce and got it.

'Excessive Human Covetousness And Thirst For Power' Blamed As Cause of War by Pope Pius

Vatican City, May 2 — (AP)—Pope Pius blamed "excessive human covetousness and thirst for power" for the war in speaking briefly at St. Peter's today at the canonization of two saints.

Men, blinded by these passions, have "repudiated the laws of God" in loosing the horrors of war, he said.

In approving the canonization of the two saints, the Pope appealed to them to intercede with God on behalf of mankind for the restoration of unity, concord and the counsels of peace.

A French nun and a humble Italian girl—the first persons to be canonized by the present pontiff attained sainthood at today's ceremonies.

The sainted women were Marie Euphrasia Pelletier who founded the Sisters of the Good Shepherd and Gemma Galgani, who was noted for her reported stigmas, or marks corresponding to the wounds that Christ received when crucified.

The canonizations preceded a series of beatifications, preliminary steps toward sainthood, for five other persons which will take place during the next two months. Among the beatifications will be that of May 12 of another French nun, Mother Philippine Rose Duchesne. She introduced the Society of the Sacred Heart in the United States and died at St. Charles, Mo.

Bestows Apostolic Blessing

Seated on a throne near the central altar in the Church of St. Peter's, the Pope was approached by a cardinal and two other priests who thrice petitioned him to declare the blessed pair saints.

On the third request, the Pope rose, put on his three-tiered crown and pronounced in Latin the words that created Saint Marie Euphrasia and Saint Gemma. After Mass the Pope bestowed his apostolic blessing on the congrgeation, the trumpets sounded and he was borne to his apartments.

Marie Euphrasia Pelletier was born in 1796 at Noirmoutier, France and joined the order of "Our Lady of Charity of the Refuge" at 18. Some years later she was Superior of the House at Tours, then founded a chapter at Angers and petitioned the Pope to make it the motherhouse of the whole world.

She was accused of disobedience, ambition and innovations, and although upheld by the Pope was forced to found a new order, the Sisters of the Good Shepherd, which spread throughout the world and was introduced in the United States in 1843. She died in 1868.

Gemma Galgani, the daughter of a pharmacist, was born in Lucca, Italy, in 1878, and was reported to have had heavenly visions as a child. Her biographers relate that the stigmas appeared in her side, hands and forehead in 1899. She died in 1903 and has been known since then as the Virgin of Lucca.

Both women were beatified by Pope Pius XI in 1933 on the basis of healings attributed to their intercession.

FRENCH LINER LEAVES PORT

Ile De France Moves Out of New York Harbor for Undisclosed Destination

New York, May 2—A pretty girl, waving a dainty handkerchief from decks loaded with warplanes, put a dash of peacetime gaiety into the sailing of the Ile De France, the great French liner which ploughed the Atlantic today toward some belligerent port.

Three thousand well-wishers were stirred to voluble delight at dusk yesterday when a shapely brunette in blue appeared on the liner's bridge and waved adieu as the ship departed from its Staten Island pier.

Loaded with copper ingots, brass bars, oil and crated airplanes, the "Eel" carried two passengers who were described as a member of a French purchasing commission and his 16-year-old daughter.

Captain Herbert Fontaine who brought the vessel into New York last Sept. 8 was in command as the ship set out on her first mission since the war began. She was manned by a crew of 375.

The ship's destination was veiled in secrecy.

WOMAN, 113, DIES IN FLA.

NO CASUALTIES ON H.M.S. BITTERN

Sloop of 1,109 Tons Repeatedly Attacked by Enemy Aircraft Off Norwegian Coast

London, May 2—(CP)—The Admiralty said today that no casualties have yet been reported in the loss of H.M.S. Bittern off the Norwegian coast. Making a formal announcement on the sinking of the vessel, reported from Norway yesterday, the Admiralty said:—"The Secretary of the Admiralty regrets to announce the loss of H. M. S. Bittern, a sloop of 1,109 tons, Lieut.-Commander R. H. Mills.

"This ship was repeatedly attacked by enemy aircraft and, after prolonged fighting in which one aircraft was shot down in flames and others severely handled, was set on fire.

"Efforts to extinguish the fire were unsuccessful and the crew were taken on board another warship. H.M.S. Bittern was finally sunk by our forces in order to avoid her becoming a danger to navigation.

"No casualties have yet been reported."

The sloop's normal complement was 125 men. She was a sistership of the admiralty yacht Enchantress which carried the King and Queen to France on their state visit in 1938.

PLEDGES BRITAIN WILL NOT REST TILL NORWAY FREE

Sir Kingsley Wood Tells Primrose League Freedom of Norway Essential

NAZI 'WICKED FORCE'

'The Stake is Humanity and Civilization Itself,' Says Lord Privy Seal

London, May 2 — (CP)—Sir Kingsley Wood, Lord Privy Seal, today pledged Great Britain not to rest until Norway again is free.

Speaking to the Primrose League, Conservative party political organization, Sir Kingsley said:

"I believe this country regards restoration of the freedom of the Norwegian people as vital to world peace and that we shall not rest until that has been achieved.

"It is perfectly true that we are fighting to defend ourselves in a life and death struggle, but we are also waging war against an evil thing, a wicked force, which, if it could, would destroy humanity itself just as it has broken every international rule, sunk merchant ships without warning and sought not only to conquer but to exterminate."

Indirect Warning to Italy

Sir Henry Page Croft, Conservative member of parliament, conveyed an indirect warning to Premier Mussolini in another address before the league.

"For every German capital ship, cruiser or destroyer," he said, "the Allies can dispatch two capital ships or cruisers to any other ocean such as the Mediterranean or the Black Sea, where a possible ally might be persuaded to enter the conflict on Germany's side."

Sir Kingsley's reference to the restoration of Norway as vital was interpreted as an indication the government is entertaining no thought of relaxing the campaign there.

"The issue is clear and unbridgeable," Sir Kingsley said.

"The stake is humanity and civilization itself.

"The German dictator is driving his people into the gulf."

Yugoslavia Assured Fears of Aggression Are Groundless

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, May 2 (AP).—Italian and German diplomats today assured the Yugoslav government that any fears of aggression by those countries against the Balkan states are groundless. Similar assurances were reported delivered in other Balkan capitals.

The Balkan countries continued all their military precautions, despite the assurances. They realized the situation might change at any moment.

By J. F. SANDERSON

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 2 (CP).—The British government has abandoned plans to capture Trondheim from the south and has withdrawn its forces from that part of Norway, Prime Minister Chamberlain announced in the House of Commons today.

Within the past few hours the whole force has been withdrawn from Andalsnes, 100 miles south of Trondheim, "under the very noses of German airplanes without, as far as I am aware, losing a single man in this operation."

Despite this withdrawal from southern Norway, the prime minister stressed two points. The first was that "it is far too soon to strike the Norwegian balance sheet yet, for the campaign has merely concluded a single phase in which it is safe to say that if we have not achieved our objective, neither have the Germans achieved theirs, while their losses are far greater than ours."

"We have no intention of allowing Norway to become merely a side show, but neither are we going to be trapped into such a dispersal of our forces as would leave us dangerously

WAR OFFICE COMMUNIQUE

London, May 2—(CP)—A War Office communique today said "Allied forces which have been carrying out delaying operations south of Trondheim during the past few days have after repulsing many enemy attacks, been withdrawn in the face of ever-increasing enemy strength."

"They were successfully embarked at Andalsnes and other ports in the neighborhood," the War Office statement said. "This was done in spite of the enemy's incessant efforts to destroy these ports and communications by air action.

"In the Narvik area, operations are continuing and detachments have been in contact with the enemy. There is nothing further to report from Namsos."

GREECE CALLS UP RESERVE OFFICERS

Ten Classes Report May 5th as Tension Increases in the Mediterranean

Athens, May 2 (AP)—Greece today called up 10 classes of reserve army officers for active service as tension increased over Italy's possible plans in the Mediterranean.

The officers were ordered to report for duty May 5.

The call of the colors followed a May day speech by Premier John Metaxas declaring Greece is "strong and united in this most formidable of all wars, which will decide the destinies of mankind for many centuries."

Speaking at Piraeus, Metaxas disclosed the government was negotiating with "a great friendly power" which is engaging great numbers of unemployed Greek workmen.

Although Metaxas failed to identify the nation, informed quarters said it was France who wanted thousands of Greeks to work in French war industries, in the mines and on farms.

(The Allies have given Greece pledges similar to those made to Rumania that any threat to its independence or territorial integrity would bring Allied assistance

(Ever since Premier Mussolini occupied Albania in April, 1939, the Greeks have feared he might strike on eastward to take Salonika and obtain a foothold on the Eagean.)

Gov't Acts as Guardian of Soldier's Wife, Children, While He Serves

Ottawa, May 2—(CP).—The Dominion Government acts as a guardian of a soldier's wife and children while he is serving with the Canadian Active Service Force, officials of the Dependents' Allowance and Assigned Pay Board said today.

Regulations of the Board concerning the allowance cheques sent to dependents prevent victimizing of soldiers' wives and children by unscrupulous persons, and also provide for protection of children's interests in a case where a mother is improvident.

The dependents allowance must be considered a gratuity rather than a "right," it was said. An allowance is granted only when a member of the C.A.S.F. assigns half his pay to the family. Allowance for wives range upwards from $35 a month for a private or equivalent rank, with additional allowance of $12 a month for each child up to a maximum of two child dependents.

The combined assigned pay and allowance cheques may be used to liquidate back debts or for any purpose desired, Board official said. However, where investigations reveals abuses, the Board has power to take special measures.

Should a mother be found to be squandering her allowances to the detriment of her children, the cheque may be stopped and the money sent in trust to the local Children's Aid Society or other welfare agency for proper administration for the childrens' sake. In other cases government agencies assume control of the household financial administration.

The cheques may not be assigned, attached or give as security for any purpose whatever, and the regulation declares that the board, "in its descretion, refuses to recognize any power of attorney rendered by a dependent with reference to payment of an allowance." Object of such regulations is to protect wives and dependents from unscrupulous persons.

In Sarnia, Ont., Magistrate C. S. Woodrow yesterday rebuked Mrs. Thelma Janess for using her allowance to pay her accumulated debts. "You should be paying cash for your groceries rather than running monthly bills, and I think maybe the government should appoint guardians to look after such cases as this and keep the people out of trouble," he said. The woman was charged with conversion in conversion in connection with household purchases.

FIREMEN ANSWER CALL THO POLICE WANTED

The first mix-up resulting from the change of the police telephone number to 77 and the fire department taking the old police number of 51, occurred yesterday when a call was received at the firehall requesting them to go to 75 Grier Street. Although the fireman who answered the phone when the call came in distinctly said "fire department" two or three times, when the reels arrived at the required addressed it turned out to be the police department which was wanted.

Shortly before six o'clock last evening the firemen were called to 149 William Street where the roof of a small barn was ablaze as the result of a spark from a bonfire catching in the shingles. One lead of hose was turned onto the flames which were extinguished before much damage was done to the building.

LOCAL ENTERTAINERS GIVE CONCERT AT AIRPORT WED. EVEN'G.

Under the direction of Gardiner Duff, chairman of the "Y" War Service Committee, a number of Belleville entertainers put on a concert in the theatre at the Trenton Airport Wednesday evening. The party was introduced by Squadron Leader Lloyd and J. E. Shortt acted as chairman for the occasion. The following artists participated: Walter Taylor, guitar and vocal numbers; Lloyd Hicks, saxophone solos; Misses Jean and Betty Shorey in vocal and instrumental duets; Philip Flagler, readings; The Pigeon Sisters and Bruce Sills, accordian trio; Miss Mary Pigeon, accordian solo, and Walter Taylor and Bruce Sills in an instrumental duet.

The numbers were well received and the thanks of the men were expressed by Mr. Reekie, the "Y" secretary at the Airport.

FIRST FREIGHTER UNLOADS COAL CARGO

FIRST CRUISE PLANNED FOR COMING SUNDAY

Sunday next will be the big day for Belleville yachtmen and weather permitting, many of the local pleasure-boat owners are planning for that date their first cruise on the Bay of Quinte. Owners of many of the various boats now lying in their winter docking quarters at the harbour are busily engaged in caulking the seams and, where necessary, repairing the hulls to make their boats seaworthy for the forthcoming yachting season.

CHILD IS BITTEN BY BLACK DOG

While playing a game of ball in front of her home along with playmates, 12-year-old Ilean Greenwood, 11 1-2 Boswell St., was attacked and bitten on the thigh by a large black dog yesterday afternoon. County Constable Thomas Thorne was notified and upon investigation found that the canine was the property of Mr. Underdonk, 26 Boswell St. The wound inflicted was not serious and it is believed the dog may have merely been entering into the spirit of the ball game and joined the play of the children.

PROPERTY DAMAGE QUITE EXTENSIVE

Considerable property ramage resulted when two automobiles collided at the intersection of Pinnacle and Bridge Streets early last evening. Mrs. Gertrude Benter, Trenton, assured investigating police she had failed to see the 'stop sign' while proceeding north on Pinnacle Street. At the same time Robert Munro, also of Trenton, was proceeding easterly on Bridge Street and the Munro-driven vehicle crashed into the north bound car broadside. Fortunately no person sustained serious injuries, but property damage to over $100.00 resulted to both vehicles. P.C. Evans and Sergeant Arthur Booth investigated. No blame was attached Mr. Munro, police stated.

Payment of Taxes Of First Quarter Coming in Early

Despite the fact that Friday is the official date for the first payment of city taxes under the new system inaugurated by the Chairman of the Executive of the City Council, a steady stream of taxpayers appeared at the City Hall today armed with cheques and cash to, as one lady puts it, "get it over with."

Under the new system, taxes will be paid in four quarterly instalment, these falling due on May 3rd, July 3rd, September 3rd and November 3rd.

While there have been a few people who have expressed dissatisfaction with the new scheme, the greater majority of the taxpaying public has placed its stamp of approval on the four-payment system, if payments made to date can be used as a criterion city officials said today.

"Taxes are coming in in a highly satisfactory manner, and if the present rate of payments maintains its status of the last two days, we should not experience much difficulty in collections," one official said.

OBITUARY

MRS. ISRAEL TRIPP
(Contributed)

Prudence Elizabeth Inglis was born in Percy Township, Dec. 25th, 1861, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Inglis. She lived all her early life in and around Norham village. In 1899 she married the late John Sherman and lived between Brighton and Smithfield and attended church at Smithfield where she took a keen interest and was a great help in that church. A year before Mr. Sherman died they moved west of Wellington on the Lake Shore where he died.

In 1911 she married Cornelius Smith of North Lakeside, Consecon. After Mr. Smith's death in 1914, she still made her home with Mr. Lee Smith, (Cornelius Smith's son) until her death April 17, 1940.

In 1934 she married Mr. Israel Tripp, who survives her.

Having no family of her own, still she was a mother and a grandmother to a host. She was dearly loved by all who knew her; her sterling Christian character, her loving disposition, her kind words and her loving deeds made her a wonderful mother to all. She was a mother to all members of the families alike. Mr. M. J. Sherman, Kingston; Mrs. Wm. Fritz, Brighton; Mrs. Hattie Long, Oshawa; Mr. Lee Smith, Consecon; Mr. Daniel Tripp, Wellington and Mrs. Lee Smith, Consecon.

Mrs. Tripp endeared herself to all her friends and the sympathy of the community is extended to all the families and especially to the aged husband.

Of five brothers, Mr. Robert Inglis of Norwood is the only one living.

The funeral service was conducted at her late residence on Friday, April 19th by Rev. J. W. Parsons, pastor of Melville church where she was a faithful and untiring worker of the Melville Woman's Missionary Society.

The pallbearers were six grandsons, five sons of Mr. Daniel Tripp, and Isaac Smith, Toronto.

Interment took place at Greenwood cemetery, Smithfield.

MISS HELEN WIGGINS
(Toronto)

Friends in Belleville of Miss Helen Wiggins will regret to learn of her death which occurred in Toronto on Wednesday, May 1st. She was in failing health for some time.

The late Miss Wiggins came to Belleville from Marmora with her parents Mrs. Wiggins and the late Hugh Wiggins, her father occupied for some time the position of Bursar at the Ontario School for the Deaf. She was a student at the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School here and in religion she was a member of the Church of England, being a parishioner of Christ Church. Since going to reside in Toronto she held a position in the head office of the Ontario Hydro Power Commission.

Interment will be made in the cemetery at Stirling on Friday afternoon.

MRS. CHARLES F. CHISHOLM
(Sidney Township)

Mrs. Charles F. Chisholm passed away early this Thursday morning at the residence of her son, Mr. John M. Chisholm, in the 5th. concession of Sidney Township. Obituary and funeral notice will appear later.

GIRL CYCLIST SEVERELY HURT

Driver of Toronto, Which Struck Jane Sharpe, Not Held by Police

While riding her bicycle across East Dundas Street, 18-year-old Jane Sharpe, 64 South Front Street, rode into the side of an east bound motor car and was crashed to the pavement, where she sustained lacerations and minor injuries last evening. The lass was assisted at the scene and taken to the hospital by the driver of the motor car which was struck. P.C. Evans investigated and was informed that Albert Goldhamer, Toronto, was driving easterly on Dundas Street when a girl riding a bicycle came out of the Ann Street intersection without observing the stop street sign. X-rays of the girl were taken by Dr. James at the hospital and later she returned home suffering from leg lacerations and shock. The motorist was permitted to continue on his journey. The girl stated she swerved her bicycle to avoid being struck by a motorist on Ann Street, which caused her to strike the Toronto car.

COUPLE LOSE LIVES BY ASPHYXIATION

Ex-Mayor Greenleaf Hears News of Tragic Death of His Sister and Her Husband at Poughkeepsie

News of the sudden death of the sister of Mr. Harry Greenleaf, ex-mayor of Belleville, was received in the city when it was learned that Mr. and Mrs. Erwin R. Waelide, both 88 years old, of Poughkeepsie, N.Y., had been asphyxiated in their apartment home in that city this week. Mrs. Waelde was a sister of Mr. Greenleaf.

The couple were found dead in their apartment, having been overcome by escaping gas. Officials stated that it would indicate Mrs. Waelde was preparing breakfast, as the coffee pot was on the stove. The deaths were officially said to have been purely accidental. The double funeral was held at Poughkeepsie yesterday, Mr. Greenleaf was informed. Residents of Belleville extend to Mr. Greenleaf their heartfelt sympathy. Mrs. Waelde was well-known here. She and her husband were in Belleville on a visit about two years ago.

Mrs. Waelde was a daughter of the late Orlando C. Greenleaf.

Vacant City Property Available To Reliefees For Use as Gardens

All Seeds and Tools Needed Will be Provided for Families on Relief

IS COMPULSORY

Reliefees of the city and other people desirous of so doing will be given the opportunity to raise their own garden produce during the coming summer, according to an announcement made by his Worship Mayor Glen Thompson today.

In accordanace with instructions issued by the Ontario Department of Welfare land belonging to the city will be transferred into garden plots and reliefees given the work of raising vegetables and other produce. Approximatey two hundred plots will go into immediate production, or as soon as weather conditions permit. Produce raised on the plots will be the property of the person or persons who have worked and planted the gardens.

"It is absolutely compulsory that all persons on relief undertake to plant and care for one of the gardens," Mayor Thompson said today "This edict is not of the city's doing, but comes directly from the government."

The government has also issued instructions to the various municipalities that in the event that insufficient land is available to accommodate the needs of the relief population private properties may be confiscated for the purpose. This will not be resorted to in Belleville, the mayor stated, as there is plenty of city property available.

Work on the project will start immediately. Reliefees will be furnished with seed potatoes and other seeds, a few gardening tools and equipment, free of charge. An inspector will be appointed within the next few days and all persons engaged in tilling the gardens will work under his jurisdiction.

Not only will those at present on relief be employed at the gardening, but also those who at present are off relief, but who will later apply for it.

Residents of the city, not on relief, but who wish to take one of the plots for the purpose of raising garden truck will be furnished with the land, but no seeds or equipment will be issued to them.

St. Julien Chapter I. O. D. E. Activities

St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E. has met every Monday evening, making five meetings for the month of April. Following is the report of activities during that time: The War convener, Mrs. Watkin, reported that 82 pairs of socks, 21 sweaters, 3 pairs wristlets and 1 scarf had been knitted and turned in, and some of these distributed as follows: 48 pairs of socks and 1500 cigarettes addressed to the Officer Commanding the Hastings & Prince Edward Regiment at Aldershot camp, England, to be distributed among the Belleville boys. Six sweaters to the R.C.A.F. at Trenton; 16 sweaters and 2 pairs of socks to the Midland Regiment "D" Det. at Trenton Airport. Four pairs of socks and two writing cases fully equipped to two Belleville Officers of Hastings & Prince Edward Regiment. Two pairs socks and 1 sweater, each, to three Belleville boys joining the Canadian navy.

The Chapter held a very successful afternoon tea at the home of Mrs. Stewart Lazier.

The Sewing Committee reported finishing six surgeons' gowns and caps, made from material supplied by the local Red Cross, and ready to be delivered to them.

It was omitted reporting in March that the Chapter sent an Easter treat of fruit and tobacco to the inmates of the Belleville Home for the Aged. The Chapter would be pleased to hear from or about any individual cases of Belleville boys who are leaving the city for active war service or training camps, as the members would be pleased to contribute towards their needed comforts or equipment in some way if at all possible.

'Automotive Night' At Moira Lodge

The motor car trades reigned supreme at "Automotive Night" of Moira Lodge, A.F. & A.M. No. 11, at the Masonic Temple last evening. The chairs were occupied by members of the craft, who are engaged in various phases of motor car sales and services, with Buff Cooper of Picton in the master's chair. Some nine lodges of Belleville and district were represented in the chairs, and the occasion was featured by the largest attendance at a Masonic function in Belleville in some time.

At the banquet and entertainment following the degree work, the master of Moira Lodge, Edgar Bateman, turned the chair over to Buff Cooper, who presided most acceptably. He urged Masonry to stand firm in the present world conflict and to emphasise its foundation principles more than ever before.

The programme included trombone solos by Walter Aselstine, some clever magic by C. Newman and assistant of Picton, selections by the Belleville Male Quartette, stories by Harry Stafford of Kingston, and the usual toasts.

It was announced that members of Moira Lodge would be guests of St. John's Lodge, Cobourg, on May 14th.

NIGHT PROWLER IS ARRESTED

Alertness of P. C. Evans May Eventually Solve Series of Break-ins

The keen observance and alertness of P.C. Evans last night may eventually result in the solving of the mystery of so many petty break-ins, which have baffled the city for some weeks. Constable Evans hastened to answer a hurried call received from Mrs. Fred Gazley, 28 Frank Street, who reported that a man nad entered her home.

Enroute to the investigation P.C. Evans saw a man lurking in an alleyway at the lower end of Frank Street. Stopping the police cruiser the officer apprehended the man, who refused to answer any questions put to him. Constable Evans arrested the man on a charge of vagrancy, handcuffed him to the rug rail in the rear seat and continued his investigations.

Upon arrival at the Gazley home, P.C. Evans was told, that a man had entered the back kitchen and was rummaging around yhen the occupants heard a noise. The man nonchalantly walked out of a rear door and was seen by the family.

"I've got a stranger out in the car, come and see if you can identify him," asked the officer.

Miss Helen Gazley and her mother later identified the man as the night prowler, who had been in their home. He was also identified as having been seen loitering near the home of Robert Weldon, 32 Frank Street. Upon arrival at the police station, however, Sergeant Arthur Booth questioned the man, who still refused to talk in English. He made indifferent replies in French, but showed complete indifference and rfeused to divulge his name. This morning the man still refused to talk in English when questioned by Chief Kidd and was remanded in custody on a charge of vagrancy. City police stated later several homes had been entered locally and only small sums of cash taken, other valuable articles being overlooked.

Police Blotter

Sneak thieves were again active on the east hill last night when a break-in was reported at 276 Albert Street. P.C. Evans investigated and found that entrance had been made with the use of a skeleton key. Cash to the amount of slightly over one dollar was reported missing, while other household valuables were left unmolested.

A transient, who gave his name as John McMannus, was arrested on a charge of panhandling. McMannus was apprehended after citizens had complained they were being accosted on the street by a man, who used insulting language.

Belleville police today recovered a motor car that had been stolen in Toronto yesterday. The vehicle a 1935 Ford coach, was left abandoned on Burton Street. Sergeant Arthur Harman notified the Toronto authorities of the recovery before the car had been reported stolen there. A set of licence plates were found on the vehicle, which had also been stolen and used as decoys during transient to Belleville.

Three teen-aged boys were apprehended loitering around the premises of a Dundas Street service station and acting rather suspiciously early last evening. The lads were taken to the police station and warned to refrain from loitering around parked automobiles.

Last night's rain storm saw an increased number of transients seeking shelter at the police station when 19 rain-soaked weary knights of the road were given shelter.

POLICE COURT

Leonard Maracle, 17, of the Mohawk Reserve, was today sentenced to serve three months in the common jail after being convicted on two counts of knowingly using forged cheques.

Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., pointed out to the court the fact that Maracle was illiterate and had engaged another Indian lad to forge the cheques, using the name of Frank Naphin, Tyendinaga farmer, who had employed Maracle as a farmhand.

"The lad who forged the cheques is now residing in Buffalo. Maracle cashed them, however," explained Provincial Constable W. E. Smith, who added the sums were for $20.00.

Charged With Mistreating Horse

C. W. Bailey, Point Anne, appeared on a charge of working a horse, which was said to be unfit for farm duty. Bailey pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., today. The charge was preferred through information received from the Belleville Humane Society.

"I understand this man was working a horse that was suffering from a broken leg, but I'll have to ask for a week's enlargement as I'll have to bring witnesses into the court," revealed Crown Attorney Donnan.

"The horse was born that way," interrupted Bailey before His Worship had a chance to enlarge the matter.

Pleads Guilty to Theft

Daniel Dordand, Belleville, pleaded guilty to the theft of a coal shovel and a coal scuttle through his counsel, Mr. Allan Sprague. Dordand had been in custody since April 19th. "That's sentence enough, you can go free now," added His Worship.

A liquor case concluded the morning's proceedings.

FREIGHTER SINKS IN LAKE SUPERIOR,

Collingwood passed through the Sault locks. The rescued members of the Arlington's crew stayed aboard. Without wireless or radio telephone equipment, the Collingwood had been unable to report the accident earlier.

Refused to Leave Ship

Captain Carson said the Collingwood and Arlington rode througn seas, the Arlington foundering within sight of his vessel, owned by the Canada Steamship Lines.

He could give no reason for Captain Burke's refusal to leave his ship. The sinking occurred at 5:45 a.m. EST.

The Arlington was built in 1913. She was purchased in 1917 from American interest by the late James Playfair of Midland for $750,000. Captain Fred Burke and his brothers bought the Arlington from Playfair six years ago. She was equipped with salt-water apparatus, including condensers.

The Arlington's sinking was the first major loss in Great Lakes shipping since Sept. 24, 1937, when the steamship Neeping sank in Nipigon Bay, Lake Superior, with loss of five lives.

The Arlington, bound down the Great Lakes from Fort William with a cargo of grain, floundered and sank during a storm at 5:45 a.m., EST., yesterday, Captain Carson said.

Aboard the Collingwood were all members of the Arlington's crew, rescued by the Canada Steamship Lines freighter. It was not stated the number aboard when the Arlington went down.

Collingwood Stands By

Captain Carson said the Collingwood, also downbound from the head of the lakes, stood by when the Arlington foundered in heavy seas during a violent wind and snow storm in the middle of Lake Superior, about 12 miles off Superior Shoal.

The Collingwood, bound for Midland, had been following the Arlington through the storm. Captain Carson said the Collingwood's boats picked up 16 members of the crew of the Arlington.

Without wireless or radio telephone, the Collingwood was unable to flash news of the disaster. Sault Ste. Marie was its first port of call after the rescue and the vessel passed through the locks shortly after daybreak today.

Captain Carson reported the accident only briefly and the Arlington survivors aboard did not disembark.

NAZIS' CRIME AGAINST REFUGEES

The Nazis of Germany are piling up against them more and more crimes. One of the greatest is the creation of so much pain and suffering.

Invasion of Austria brought trial and tribulation to Jewish families and to Austrians who had their own conception of liberty, free from the chains of Hitlerism. Austrian liberty set when the swastika was hoisted up. It was worse in Czecho-Slovakia, for even yet the trials and sufferings of the Czechs go on, persecution succeeds persecution and liberty is crushed as far as a Nazi can crush it. Poland too is a victim of the brutality of the German Government. It was a bloody deed, the invasion of Poland, which time can never wipe out for Poland will always wear the martyr's crown even in the day of her restoration from the ashes left by the Nazis when they beat their retreat in the last days of this war. What can be said of Denmark, which by force is dumb and silent in the presence of the oppressor? What must be the agony these people have to hide from the Nazi Gestapo? And Norway—her civilians heroically stayed with their homes until the German forces blasted and destroyed them with bombs in some sections, leaving the people no escape but to the hills and mountains. The plight of the Norwegian refugees is only to be imagined for in parts where the Nazi troops are, one may be certain that the invader grabs everything, food, shelter, clothing, bedding, wealth and the resources of the country.

The Associated Press report says that adequate clothing and food have been lacking for them and that illness among children and older persons is occurring in one section with practically no medical aid. Tragic scenes are reported at night as people slip down from the mountain retreats into valley communities to poke into the ashes of their homes seeking lost possessions. Mountain huts are said to be so crowded that refugees have to take turns sleeping indoors. Mountain peasants are sharing their food with the refugees.

So scattered are the refugees that there will be a difficulty in reaching some of them for many are in the almost inaccessible mountain heights. Meanwhile their sons, husbands and fathers battle heroically against the invader.

Many a time in the long centuries the old Vikings and their sons and daughters down the centuries even to this day must have looked to the hills as the points of security, nature's bastions which would yield defence if danger ever came. Today's sons and daughters of the ancient Norse heroes must feel towards those hills as the Marquis of Lorne felt towards the hills of Scotland and towards the hills of Zion when he translated the words of the Psalmist who composed the memorable thoughts in the 121st psalm:

"Unto the hills around do I lift up
My longing eyes.
O whence for me shall my salvation come,
From whence arise?
From God alone doth come my certain aid,
From God the Lord who heaven and earth hath made."

Something of the spirit of the peoples who have always trusted in their hills can be understood by almost everyone, for the hills provide the distance view which sees beyond trouble and affliction. The hills and mountains are signs of strength and of ultimate triumph through the principles of right, justice and goodness in a Providence-directed universe, as the hymn says and through the power of these principles in the hearts, courage and sacrifices of men and women and of the Allied nations.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT AT NINETY YEARS

A notable figure of the Empire is His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught who on Tuesday celebrated his 90th birthday. On Monday of this week on the eve of his birthday he reviewed the Canadians at Aldershot.

For Canada he has a warm heart for in the days of King George Fifth, his nephew, the Duke of Connaught lived among the Canadian people as Governor-General from 1911 to 1916 when he was succeeded by the Duke of Devonshire. The Duke of Connaught was to have been followed by the Earl of Athlone, now Governor-General-designate, in 1914 but the outbreak of war interfered.

The Duke is the senior marshal of the British Empire.

While he is not naturally as active as he was in the days when Canadians knew him so well, he still takes a deep interest in the Empire and in the Dominion of Canada. He takes daily walks through Bagshot Park.

Canadians and other peoples of the Empire wish him years of continued happiness and health. He remains one of the inspirations of the Empire today as the young defenders of the Commonwealth of Nations look to the royal Duke of Connaught with deepest afection.

Trusted the Navy

A writer in a London newspaper draws attention to an incident in the North Sea fighting which he calls one of "the greatest tributes ever paid to a nation at war."

A raiding Nazi bomber, after attacking an unarmed trawler, was crippled by a British pursuit 'plane. A forced landing was necessary and the Nazi airmen were rescued by the very trawler they had just attacked. On their arrival at a British port to be interned, the German pilot remarked:

"We saw our plight was hopeless so we brought the machine down near the trawler — we knew the British would save us."

Rearing the Fighting 'Musky'

It has been the experience of fish culturists, in the past, that while maskinonge fry can be hatched out quite satisfactorily the difficulties and expense involved in carrying them through to a more advanced stage have been almost prohibitive. It is a generally accepted principle that the larger the fish planted the more satisfactory will be the resulting yield. One of the experiments carried on by the Game and Fisheries Department of Ontario during the summer of 1939 was an attempt to raise maskinonge to an advanced stage in a selected natural area where the fish would, as far as possible, be protected from enemies and have good opportunity for growth.

The area selected was a marshy bay, about ten acres in extent, which was closed off from other waters by barriers across the two ends, which were respectively 50 feet and 150 feet wide. Screens were placed in the barriers to allow circulation of water. The water was from three to five feet deep. The bottom was deep muck, permitting a rich growth of weeds. The area is a natural spawning ground for maskinonge and hence should be suitable for raising these fish. Compared with all other areas examined it was relatively free from snags and obstructions.

When the area had been closed off coarse fish and other possible predators of the maskinonge were netted out. Minnows which would provide food for the maskinonge were not removed from the area. There was an abundant supply of these.

On June 4th, 100,000 maskinonge fry, about three weeks old and approximately ⅝ of an inch long, were planted throughout the area in locations where natural food was most abundant. At this time the maskinonge were observed to be feeding on small aquatic animals, water fleas, etc. These little crustacea were present in vast swarms about the patches of cat-tail and marsh grass. About the middle of June the maskinonge commenced to feed on minnow fry, of which there was an abundant supply naturally spawned in the area.

During the summer, observations were made on the habits and growth of the maskinonge whenever opportunity offered. One observation of particular significance was, that for two weeks while commencing to live on a diet of minnow fry, the maskinonge crippled at least half a dozen minnows for every one eaten. They would not attack crippled minnows. Hence a very large supply of minnow fry is necessary at this time. As the maskinonge grow in size the minnow fry also grow, so that they provide a constant supply of food throughout the remainder of the year.

Growth of the young maskinonge under the natural conditions was truly remarkable, as is indicated by the following figures:

Approximate length of young Maskinonge on date indicated (inches): June 6, ⅝-inches; July 5, 3-5 inches; Aug. 1, 4-7 inches; Sept. 1, 6-8 inches; Oct. 1, 7-9 inches; Nov. 1, 8-11½ inches.

Seventeen fish taken in November averaged between 9½ and 10 inches in length. Since, as is well known, the weight of the fish increases over three times as fast as the length, it will will be seen that November fish are twice as long and nearly six times as large as July fish.

During the season eighty-one advanced fingerlings were recovered from the 100,000 fry planted. This is roughly at the rate of one advanced fingerling for every 1,000 fry planted, which is probably considerably better than could be expected under unprotected conditions. However, too much significance should not be attached to this figure for two reasons. In the first place we feel quite confident that by no means all of the fish were recovered when the experiment was brought to a close.

From the number of fish taken the first three days in November, with but one setting of nets, it seems quite likely that at best not more than half of the fingerlings in the area were recovered. To counterbalance this it is unquestionable that some natural spawn was deposited in the area before it was closed off from the lake. Several times adult maskinonge were observed performing spawning motions in the area.

Again, it is altogether probable that the production of maskinonge fingerlings was not what it would have been under more ideal conditions because only a fraction of the predators had been removed when the fry were planted, in spite of heavy netting. The following figures indicate the conditions.

A total of some 5,987 coarse or predatory fish were removed previous to planting the fry. This included 380 catfish, 4,762 sunfish, 467 rock bass, 320 large-mouthed bass, and some small-mouthed bass, perch, suckers and maskinonge. In addition 256 turtles comprising four different species were destroyed.

By the end of the season the numbers of such fish removed amounted to 17,883, and the total of turtles destroyed was 563.

By November the maskinonge have little to fear from any of these predators, due to their great increase in size, where as in July they would still be subject to attacks by such fish as perch, black bass, etc.

One difficulty in raising the fish by the method indicated is in recovering them for subsequent planting. Seining in such marshy areas, where snags are difficult to eliminate and weeds interfere with netting, is impractical. It is certain that at some time before the next year's spawning they must leave the area, since only three yearling fish were taken during the entire summer. In November there were still maskinonge "fingerlings" in the weedy parts of the area.

There is still much to be learned of the life history of the maskinonge during the first year. Much of this information which is lacking would undoubtedly be of great value in determining cultural practices for the fish. Nevertheless, what seems a very promising method of culture is suggested by the past season's experiment.

Hatchery Production of Maskinonge

While the experiment to determine the possibility of raising maskinonge to "fingerling" size, under more or less natural conditions, was being conducted at Stony Lake, an experiment of the same sort under different conditions was carried on at Deer Lake Hatchery in Peterboro County. It was an attempt to determine the practicability of raising maskinonge to the fingerling stage under hatchery conditions and in such quantities as to justify the labour and expense involved. At the hatchery a rearing pond entirely free from other species of fish or predators was used, and maskinonge fry introduced thereto. In an adjoining pond minnows were raised to supply food for the voracious muskies, and as both ponds were connected the food supply could be regulated.

The chief difficulty has always been the problem of food, for, unlike trout, which thrive on a diet of liver, etc., maskinonge demand live food in considerable quantities, and if the supply of fodder fish does not meet the demand, they develop cannibalistic tendencies which rapidly deplete their numbers. As the maskinonge grows its appetite increases, necessitating an ever-increasing number of food fish.

In view of the difficulties involved and the fact that the raising of maskinonge to the fingerling stage has heretofore presented fish culturists with almost unsurmountable difficulties — economic and biological — it is considered quite satisfactory that during the first year some 1,900 advanced fingerlings were successfully raised in this manner and duly planted in suitable waters.

In addition to the fingerlings mentioned above some 2,796,000 muskie fry were also planted in various waters throughout the Province.—Paul Elson, in Department of Game and Fisheries Bulletin.

NAZI 'WAR CHEST'

prior to the German invasion. Norwas also shipped $33,000,000 of the metal to the United States during January and February.

Assets "Frozen"

President Roosevelt's executive order, meanwhile, has "frozen" Danish and Norwegian assets in the United States, preventing their transfer to Copenhagen or Oslo where they might fall into German hands. Preliminary estimates place Norwegian holdings here at $88,000,000 and Danish at $51,000,000.

A large part of Germany's gold resources is believed to have come from seizures made when German troops took over Austria and her $46,000,000 in gold reserves, and Czecho-Slovakia, which reported $67,000,000 in gold shortly before the end came.

The Poles managed to spirit their gold stores out of the country barely in time to cheat the conquerors.

Although Germany has shipped only $1,318 in gold to the United States since the war started, the Reich's commercial commitments are reported to have been met promptly. Officials assume that some German gold, for payment of purchases abroad, has come out through neutral Switzerland or Hungary.

Where can the Nazis get more gold to carry on their economic warfare and make vitally needed foreign purchases?

Students here see poor prospects of Germany increasing her gold supply. The country's annual gold production amounts to only $650,000 counting $350,000 from Czecho-Slovakia.

Stream of Destiny

II

BUCHAREST.

It takes only ten minutes to cross the Danube from Ruschuk on the Bugarian side to Giurgiu on the Rumanian side. In the bright spring sunshine the Bulgarian town has something of the aspect of a spa. Perhaps it is the quay on the river, or the horse drawn carriages, their seats and back covered with fringed linen. Even if one has sat all day the Bulgarian side to Giurgiu on cause the Bulgarian visa had been used already going eastward and the telephone to the legation had to be set in motion, and then sat up all night in a train without a sleeper in order to make a short cut and catch up on lost time, the breeze from the river blows the grit of sleeplessness out of one's eyes.

The little ferry ship bobs along gaily. One sits on deck and drinks a breakfast of syrupy Turkish coffee. Yesterday was cold and rainy. Today spring has burst, as it does in the Balkans where winter burgeons into summer without a pause.

x x x

The river is full of craft, their flags flickering in the sun. The war seems far away. What, we wonder, is happening in Norway. The radio in the railroad station at Svilingard retails news in Bulgarian only, interspersed with German opera.

The last papers are from Vienna, three days old, and contain nothing but news of German victories. A columnist, we think, should stay in New York and read the news of the world.

But there is news here, too, on the Danube. We count the flags and look at the names of the ships. There are the Waelhem and the Mons, destination Antwerp. But no the destination has been painted out, and the ships fly the Union Jack. There is another ship that used to be Belgian. That's the French tricolor on it now, is it not? Bobbing along the side of them are swastikas, and interspersed with them the flags of the Balkan states.

These small craft are warships too, waging their own grim camouflaged war of trade. In Istanbul, on the Black Sea, we had learned of the competition for buying every sort of boat that swims this river. Some people were making lots of money. Flags changed from day to day. Union Jacks used to be rare on this stream; now they are numerous.

Britain is waging war in the Near East with money and diplomacy. These ships are here to carry off oil and grain. Canada and Persia and the United States can supply the Allies with both, but Britain and France are buying what they do not need to keep it from the Allies.

Almost all the foreign oil that Germany gets comes through this river—Russian oil from Batum and Baku, through the Black Sea to the Bulgarian port of Varna, then up the Danube. Rumanian oil leaves from this very port where we shall disembark.

To purchase the products of the Danubian states and outbid the Nazis, the Allies have just set up a new corporation. It offers high prices and foreign exchange— the foreign exchange which is essential to these states, with their rapidly declining currencies.

But the swastika flags offer stiff competition. As long as Germany is getting what she needs you are relatively safe, is the message they wink into the air. What we cannot buy from you, however, we may eventually come and get. We do not need to buy Polish oil any longer, or Czechoslovakian; there are others ways of getting what we want.

We are in Bucharest in another hour, by taxi. The very thought of another train draws lines in our faces. We have been three full days getting here from Ankara.

Bucharest looks handsome and gay "The Paris of the Balkans" it has been called. The great square before the royal palace has been vastly enlarged. Tree-lined boulevards have been built. The palace itself is being extended, since the King became dictator, as well as King.

Dictators are good for architects, we observe, thinking of Rome.

The shops are full of furs and goods from all over the world. There is an air even of luxury.

Boys in white berets, white shorts and bright blue uniforms remind us that King Carol has copied Mussolini and Hitler, even to the salute. These are the youth of the National Renaissance Front. The Parliament has become a body of co-operation. There is only one party. The King appoints his ministers and rules, through them, as absolute monarch and modern dictator, removing or dismissing them at will. They wear uniforms.

Rumania had her Quislings too, the leaders of the Iron Guard. The leaders have all been slaughtered. The King took a leaf from Hitler himself. "Rumania awaken" seemed to him an excellent slogan—but not as preached by Nazi agents. If there is to be an "ism" it will be Carolism. And so it is.

x x x

We are not two hours in the hotel before we are aware that we are in a most fantastic centre of politics, intrigue, plot and counterplot, espionage and counter espionage, propaganda and counter propaganda, fact and fiction, all part of the great war, all preparatory to possible armed action, all integrated with the desire of the Nazis to get this country's support and produce, and with the desire of the Allies to prevent their doing so.

Journalists from all over the world have flocked here. Some arrived last week and are leaving for somewhere else. Their departure means that they think nothing will happen—nothing, that is to say, for the time being.

This is a city where every one can hear information in a low voice. "Over there at that table is the British Military Attache. The man sitting with his back to him is the chief of the German Gestapo here." Newspapers are published in French and German as well as in Rumanian. They are pure and simple propaganda sheets. One paper published in French, called "Paris Noir"—Black Paris—was a take-off on the "Paris Soir" the most popular evening paper in the French capital. It was published here by the Germans but has been suppressed by the Rumanian government at the instigation of the French Embassy. It was extremely cleverly done.

In any case, the German propaganda in this part of the world is more prolific and infinitely better done than the Allied propaganda. It is sometimes of breath-taking audacity. My companion, dining alone on the first evening here, read our American "Foreign Affairs." Before going to bed she put her shoes before the door to be cleaned. In the morning she found a little bouquet of flowers in each and an anonymous note: "You cannot read 'Foreign Affairs' all the time." Along with the flowers is a pamphlet on the German "case."

The Rumanian propaganda department is informed by the Germans regarding the opinions of all journalists, from whatever country. They sent a letter regarding my own arrival. I am anti-Nazi, it says, and the Rumanian authorities had better be warned. The result of this confidential memorandum is that every newspaper in Bucharest knows about it. But the Rumanian authorities are courteous in the extreme. Everything reasonable I ask for is granted. For Rumania walks a tightrope, and as long as she can will be, to the greatest possible extent, all things to all men.

Rumania walks a tightrope because there is more than one menace to her independence and security.

There are the Germans, but there are also the Russians who unlike the Germans, have a frontier on Rumania, and did not Mr. Molotov say the other day that Bessarabia, part of Rumania on the Russian border was Russian?

There are Hungarians, who in the division of Czechoslovakia got a piece of Slovakia and 2,000,000 new citizens. Hungary has a grievance against the last peace treaty no less virulent than that of the Germans, and she claims nearly a third of Rumania. If she is not pushing her claim today, she did push it yesterday and will tomorrow. If the Germans should march, it would have to be through Hungary and Hungary would probably want her price.

Still, there is Poland to remember. Poland also got part of Czechoslovakia, but who has it now?

x x x

These various incidents, crowding Rumania do not work wholly to her disadvantage. Italy does not want to see Russia get anything in the Balkans. Italy has just sent aviators to Rumania, to train Rumanian pilots. To use against whom? Italy, they say, is doing everything possible to keep Europe quiet. Why then, does she talk war? Is her penetration everywhere in the interests of peace? You can discuss this subject for hours with Rumania subjects. Nobody knows. Only they say, "Machiavelli is not sitting in Berlin, but in his own home country, Italy."

x x x

Rumania's independence is guaranteed by the Allies against an attack by Germany, but not against an attack by the Russians. But the Russians are on her border and the Rumanians' hate of the Russians is deeper than their fear of the Germans.

The Germans occupied Rumania in the last war, but the Allies won the war and Germany got out. The Rumanians remember the occupation as orderly, efficient and well controlled. Besides the Allies won the war and everything turned out well for Rumania.

But Russia? Russia was an Ally. When the Germans threatened Rumania the crown jewels were sent for safe keeping to Moscow. So was the country's gold reserve. And so was one of the world's greatest archaeological gold treasures .The Bolsheviks came in and Rumania never got any of them back. Russia is treacherous. So they think in Rumania.

x x x

In Rumania they think the Allies will win the war. Most Rumanians want them to win. They say, like Roosevelt, "We are neutral as a government, but no individual is neutral in his heart." Still, they are afraid of the Allies too. They are afraid that the Allies may so tighten the blockade or undertake some adventure in the Danube that the Germans will decide to march. You say, "Well, you can threaten, if attacked, to scuttle the oil wells, can't you?" That idea seemed more plausible before you had seen the miles of derricks. They say gloomily, "Well, the English and the French burned some of those in the last war, but the Germans got all the oil they needed out of Rumania anyhow."

So they tread softly here.

Behind Westwall

Remarks by German prisoners in Norway indicate that the Nazis still cling to the hope that they can separate the French from the British. That has been the keynote of German strategy ever since the war began. All Nazi propaganda in France is directed toward that goal.

German prisoners intimate that the Nazis intend to remain inactive behind the Westwall or Siegfried Line. Holding that front with sufficient troops to man the fortifications, the Germans plan to extend their manoeuvres to Scandinavia and the Balkans.

Everything that has happened so far confirms that theory. Hitler did not strike at Poland until the Siegfried Line was ready. Whether or not that Westwall would hold back a determined assault is a debated point. But, no one doubts that it is of sufficient strength to delay an advance for a long time. An attacking force would have to go through a lot of preparation to smash into Germany.

Although there have been patrol actions along the Western Front, there have been no attacks in force. Airplane activity has been more or less desultory. A few fighting craft have engaged one another, and a number of bombing squadrons have made flights, but there has been no mass flying by either side.

The Germans believe that the French will hold the Maginot Line with the tenacity of a people defending their country against the invader. But, the Nazis are depending on the French to be content with holding the frontier. They do not expect France to launch an assault in force with the object of smashing through into Germany. Berlin realizes that France has no thought of conquest in this war and that Paris has no desire to add any parts of the Reich to France.

Berlin is also depending on France to keep the British from launching any major offensive against the Westwall. The British and French forces are co-operating on the Western Front and the Nazis believe the French generals have sufficient influence to discourage the British from any idea of carving through the Siegfried Line to march into Germany.

While this period of inactivity exists along the Maginot Line, the Germans are working on the French people. They keep dwelling on the theory that Great Britain is only using France to protect the British. Dr. Goebbels has recently "bombed" France with pamphlets saying that while the French soldiers hold the line, the British enjoy themselves in Paris. That is the general trend of the Nazi propaganda effort among the French.

In the meantime the Germans have been active in Denmark and Norway and they are threatening the Balkans. Nazi troops are sent where it is difficult to aid the invaded nation directly. It was not until the Germans went into Norway that the Allies were able to send direct help to an oppressed country.

x x x

The Germans had hoped they would establish themselves there before the British could send help to the Norwegians. They lost out on that, although they have managed to gain a strong foothold.

But, they have found that there is no Westwall to hide behind in Norway. This is the opportunity the Allies have to administer a smashing defeat to the German army. The people of the Reich think their army is invincible. If the British and French can defeat the Germans decisively in Norway, the victory will have a telling effect on the people of Germany. They will realize their army is not all they had thought it to be.

That is why a British victory in Norway is of such paramount importance.—Windsor Star.

French Planes Carry Out Reconnaissances

Paris, May 2 (CP-Havas).—With extreme calm prevailing on the western front during the past 24 hours, somewhat intensified artillery activity in the Saar and Vosges regions was outstanding.

A slight improvement in weather conditions permitted French planes to carry out a few reconnaissance missions.

Tuesday night three or four German planes were seen over eastern France. Yesterday a few German machines flew over Alsace toward Belgium and over the German-Luxembourg frontier. There was no air combat.

"Nothing to report," said this morning's communique from the French high command.

Possible Republican Nominee for President Well-Known in City

Frank Gannet, well-known Rochester newspaper publisher and owner of the Rochester Times-Union as well as a string of other New York State newspapers, whose name is being mentioned quite frequently as a possible nominee for the Republican Party for the office of President of the United States at the forthcoming Presidential election, is not only an active member of the Bay of Quinte Country and Golf Club, but frequently spends week-ends at the Country Club west of Belleville, Bob Martin, genial Secretary of the Country Club revealed today.

"Practically every week-end from early in May until late in September Mr. Gannet sails across Lake Ontario in his palatial yacht to spend the week-end at the Bay of Quinte Country Club. When the seas are rolling too high and Mr. Gannet desires the peace and tranquility of Canadian solitude, he sometimes flies by plane from Rochester to the Country Club," added Mr. Martin today as he learned that Mr. Gannet was planning to sail his yacht from Rochester to Belleville this week-end.

"Mr. Gannet is an active member of our club and takes a pointed interest in the business affairs of the club. He says he likes to play golf in Ontario, where he can enjoy a rest without the hustle and bustle of Yankee hubbub," concluded Mr. Martin. When Mr. Gannet's name was recently linked with the Republican ticket as potential Presidential timber in the 1940 primary, several members of the Bay of Quinte Club tendered Mr. Gannet their good wishes and congratulations. It is expected that Mr. Gannet will attend the Republican nomination convention to be held in Chicago this summer. In the meantime Mr. Gannet will seek the solace of quietness and tranquility in Canadian week-ends at the Bay of Quinte Country Club this summer regardless as to his Presidential aspirations, he admits.

Rawdon Circuit Y. P. Close Season's Program

Rawdon—On Friday evening about one hundred people from Rawdon circuit gathered at Mount Pleasant hall and the three unions enjoyed a pleasant time together. Mrs. Cyrus Summers, presiednt of Mount Pleasant, opened the meeting with Mrs. Merle Spencer at the piano. The guests from Bethel and Wellman's were heartily welcomed and the president staged a Bible quiz, with Bethel as winners.

Rev. J. E. Beckel then presided over the program which had been arranged by Mrs. Sam Elliott of Bethel and Miss Ana English of Wellman's, who are vice-presidents.

Mr. Lorne Wilson read the Bible lesson. Misses Dorothy Hinds and Betty Hulin sang "Room for Jesus." Miss Muriel Welbourne of Bethel read "A tribute to John Buchan, Lord Tweedsmuir." Mrs. Walter Warren of Bethel rendered a vocal solo "Blessed Memory" with Ray Shortt as accompanist. Rev. J. E. Beckel spoke briefly on "Loyalty to the Church." Mrs. Frederick Beckett and Miss Mina Dracup of Wellman's sang two duets: "Shall We Gather at the River", and "When the Roll is Called Up Yonder" with guitar and piano accompaniment.

Dr. M. E. R. Boudreau of Burnbrae was guest speaker and gave a splendid discourse on "The Church and What It Means to Us." He based his thoughts on Scripture passages and traced all through the Bible that the church is scorned by multitudes and totally ignored by others who have always had a church in their midst but to those who, like the Psalmist of old, were totally cut off from fellowship with God's people these people felt a distinct loneliness. He spoke of the great company of the redeemed who have supreme faith in the church militant and the church triumphant, and gave three reasons why he believed in the church: 1.—The opportunity it offers for Christian worship. 2.—It is the best means for Christian fellowship. 3.—The only effective means for promoting Christianity. True the church is needed in these days as never before and all should be loyal to the church of their choice.

Miss Ila Myers read a patriotic selection "Are You Doing Your Bit for the Empire." Mrs. George Watson and Miss Ana English sang "Have You Been in the Garden with Jesus." Mrs. Wm. Heath Staged an "Apple Contest" and Miss Eileen MacMullen of Mount Pleasant an "Auto Contest." Mount Pleasant people served lunch to the visitors. This will conclude the Y.P.U. work until the fall term.

H. Lunn, who has a position at Oakville, spent the week-end at his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ellis and Mr. G. Istead spent Saturday afternoon in Picton.

Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Dafoe, Mrs. Lunn and Richard attended the show, "Mama's Baby Boy," under the auspices of Christ Church, at Allisonville on Monday evening.

Good Advice for Constipation!

A doctor will tell you that the best thing to do in case of sickness is to find the cause. If you are constipated, don't be satisfied with temporary remedies. Find the cause of the ailment!

It would be easy if your diet, like that of most people, is unbalanced — no doubt it lacks "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean quantity, but the kind of food that does not completely assimilate and leaves a soft "mass" in the bowels that helps the bowel to move.

If that is what is lacking, the solution is to eat Kellogg's All-Bran, crispy and tasteful, for breakfast. It helps form the "bulk" and contains Vitamin B₁, the natural intestinal tonic.

Eat some All-Bran every day, drink lots of water and become "regular"! Made in London, Canada, by Kellogg. At all grocers.

Mrs. W. H. Merry and Miss Nellie Merry entertained at a charming afternoon tea and cup and saucer shower yesterday in honor of Miss Jean Williamson, a June bride-to-be. Among those present were Miss R. Templeton, Mrs. Howard Trusdale, Dr. Ethel Noble, Mrs A. B. Baird and Mrs. J. Buchanan.

WEDDINGS

CROSBY—KEMP

Wooler (Special).—On Saturday, April 27 a pretty wedding took place at the Free Methodist Parsonage in Frankford, when Faeola, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Kemp of the Ninth Concession, became the bride of Mr. Noble Crosby, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Crosby. The Rev. Bache officiated.

The bride wore a most becoming gown of dusky rose sheer. She was attended by Miss Ruth Kemp who wore a pretty dress of teal blue crepe. The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. George Crosby.

After the ceremony the happy couple left amid showers of confetti for Niagara Falls. For travelling the bride wore a rose coat and blue hat with matching accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Crosby will reside in Frankford.

HOLLOWAY ST. W.M.S.

The members of the W.M.S. of Holloway St. Church met in the church parlor on Wednesday afternoon. The president, Mrs. Newman, opened the meeting. Owing to the absence of Mrs. Coulter, Mrs. Cordes took over the duties of secretary. The report of the 16th W.M.S. annual Presbyterial held in this church in March was given by Mrs. F. Lloyd.

Mrs. S. P. Hagerman then took charge of the meeting. Scripture readings in reference to Christian Stewardship by Mrs. Walters and prayer by Mrs. Livesay were followed by a beautiful solo, "The May Day Carol," by Miss Ann Brown.

The guest speaker of the afternoon Mrs. Stafford then gave a very inspiring talk, taking as her topic "After Easter—What?" The apostles spent this time of preparation in worship and prayer and went out willing for God to do as He would do with them. She pointed out that God works through, first, those who contact Him, second, those who believe He is willing and able to help, third, those who are willing to let Him work through them and compared us to rivets in building a bridge.

Mrs. Wilbur sang a very lovely solo, "The Lonely Heart." Mrs. Holmes, with the use of posters she had prepared, gave a splendid talk on that chapter of the Study Book entitled "The Christian Church in India." She gave a picture of a church and congregation in India and of the missionaries' task.

The meeting closed with prayer.

New Ways With Macaroni and Spaghetti

MACARONI WITH MUSHROOMS

1-2 Package Milk Macaroni
1 onion
2 ounces butter
4 tablespoons oil
2 slices of bacon
6 ounces of dried mushrooms or
1 lb. of fresh mushrooms
Few sprigs of parsley
Salt and pepper

Chop the onion, parsley and bacon, put in a saucepan with butter, oil, salt and pepper and let fry until the onion becomes golden brown. Add the bushrooms (if they are dried mushrooms, they must be parboiled). If instead they are fresh then they must be washed in lukewarm water, well drained and cut into small pieces. Cook for about 20 minutes. Use this sauce over the macaroni already separately cooked. This recipe will serve four.

SPINACH WITH SPAGHETTI

1-2 Package Milk Spaghetti — cooked until tender
2 cups grated old cheese
2 cups cooked spinach
1 cup milk
3 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon flour
1-4 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
Paprika and buttered crumbs

Place the cooked spaghetti in a buttered baking dish and cover it with half the grated cheese. Put the chopped spinach over the cheese. Make a sauce of the milk, butter, flour and seasonings and pour it over the spinach. Sprinkle the remaining grated cheese on the sauce. Sprinkle with buttered crumbs anad then a bit of paprika. Bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

Serve immediately garnished with parsley.

SPAGHETTI "RUSTIC" STYLE

1-2 Package Milk Spaghetti
2 cloves garlic
1-4 cup oil
2 cups tomato juice
Salt and pepper
Grated Parmesan cheese
Few sprigs parsley

Chop the garlic and parsley very fine and cook with the oil When well browned add the tomatoes, salt and pepper and continue cooking for about 40 minutes. Pour over the spaghetti which has been cooked separately. Sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese. This recipe will serve four to six.

CREAMED MACARONI WITH SHRIMPS OR LOBSTER

1 1-2 cups cooked Milk Macaroni or 3-4 cup uncooked
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
1 1-2 cups milk
1-2 tin shrimps or lobster
Salt and pepper

Make a sauce of butter flour and milk, add the shrimps or lobster (broken in pieces) and the cooked Macaroni, and season. Serve on Melba toast, garnished with chopped parsley and paprika. Serves 5 people. Takes 20 minutes.

MACARONI AND CHEESE

1-2 Package Ready Cut Milk Macaroni
2 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper
1 cup grated cheese
1-2 cup buttered crumbs

Cook the macaroni as indicated above. Make a sauce of the butter, flour, milk, salt and pepper, add cheese and mix well, then add macaroni. Turn into a buttered bake dish or six buttered patty dishes. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake until golden brown in a hot oven. If individual dishes are used—place them in a pan of hot water.

THE LUNAR and mutual aspects for this day point to fairly ctive conditions in a business way, but with much imprtant movement in all relatons of a group nature. These will be accelerated with high pressure force where corporations, political or fraternal organizations ae involved, but they also are beset with questionable or dubious entanglements of a rather treacherous aspect, read as subtle as well as sinister. Some unexpected friendly interest may benefit. With precaution there should be definite progress and profit.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a progressive and productive year, with advancement, enhanced fortunes and growing business and much expansion in several directions, especially in group interest or affiliation. But such fine prospects are beset with trickery and deceit from sinister and underhand alliances. Strange and subtle situations complicate. Seek support from influential friends or other personages in power and authority.

A child born on this day may have great versatility and unusual talent, with much subtlety and imagination .Although genial, gracious, cultured and humane, it may have depths of character difficult to fathom. It may be an idealist or humanitarian, liking social science or uplift movements.

BRIDAL SHOWERS VARY IN TYPE

Showers given in honor of the bride-to-be may be only 'sprinkles' of attractive, useful and inexpensive trifles, or they may be deluges of important and fairly expensive gifts for the new home. Before you decide on the kind of shower to give, consider the budgets of the guests who are to be invited, give thought to the kind of showers that may already have been given for the bride-elect, and also, and especially to the home plans of the couple

There are several newcomers to the list of showers, notably the Gadget Shower. You can find cleverly designed devices of all kinds and descriptions and in all price ranges, which will not only delight the bride-elect but also intrigue Her Man.

High in popularity, too, is the buffet accessories showers—gifts in silver, modern pewter, brass, aluminum, wood, china, glass, chromium, copper. Keep in mind gifts that won't need polishing. This kind of shower offers the advantage of a wide price range, much to be desired in planning such a consequential shower.

Fortunate is the bride who has an electric accessories shower given for her. If there are to be many guests, it might be wise to assign several groups, each to join financial forces to give one important electric item.

This is the moment when the bride-to-be becomes recipe-minded, and she will, therefore, welcome the wise and inexpensive recipe-shower. You can find excellently designed recipe boxes, and recipes printed or typed on cards for the boxes. Then, for some of the extra cards, each guest gathers together and types several of her favorite recipes.

Another inexpensive and welcome shower is Pantry-shelf Shower consisting of jars and tins of favorite brands.

Another low-budget shower is a Paper Shower, with gifts of shelf-edgings and shelf-papers, paper doilies, lamp shades, decorative wrapping-papers, a "paper trousseau" consisting of letter-papers of various sizes and cards. A Bridge Shower too—all necessary items for bridge-table equipment—is inexpensive. Sometimes, when the girl has been given many kinds of showers, it is amusing to plan a five-and-ten-cent shower, or a five, ten and twenty-five cents nothing-over shower.

Kitchen showers—often the most welcome of all—glassware and china showers, bathroom accessories showers, need careful planning, for there is the question of ensemble, pattern and color to be considered. Linen showers never, of course, lose their popularity, and never have linens been so enchanting and of such varying types and prices. A silver shower is not usual, but sometimes when, say, the family of the bride gives the chest of silver, the guests each give a serving piece or a piece of hollow-ware, in the same pattern as the flat silver.

There doesn't live the bride-elect, I think, who is not enchanted to have a lingerie shower, a stocking shower, a dressing-table accessories shower, or a "beauty accessories" shower.

When all other inspirations fail, there's always the good old standby—the Miscellaneous Shower!

A novelty idea, very attractive and personal, is to have each guest enclose with her shower present (instead of her card) a tea-towel with the facsimile of her signature embroidered on it.

A PERFECT PICTURE is an evening frock of flesh colored silk chiffon stitched to a slim bodice of black Chantilly lace. Roses with stems and leaves cut from the lace are appliqued all over the full skirt, hemmed with bands of the lace.

LOOKING AHEAD we see compliment for a trim tailored suit of white twill, made with navy velvet collar and cuffs. Worn with a chevron stripe blouse in navy satin on white organdie.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

To Keep Young, Young-Olders Say, Don't Worry, Slouch or Idle

If you ask a little girl her age, she is likely to say "eleven going on twelve." But after she reaches the middle teens, she drops the "going on." And after that, with both men and women, a system of subtraction sets in, and we take refuge in such genial platitudes as "a woman is no older than she looks," and "a man is no older than he feels."

Growing old can be a highly unpleasant performance. No wonder staving off age is the third greatest industry in the country. Glance into any barber shop and you'll see that the gentleman are not immune to the steaming and creaming, or even to permanents.

But there are several examples of perennial youth in this country and the general recipe seems to be don't worry, keep busy and if you're a lady and want to preserve your throat line, hold your head up.

Four decades of teaching English at Yale hasn't dulled the enthusiasm, energy or sprightly gait of Professor Emeritus William Lyon Phelps He still runs upstairs, sometimes two at a time, and is busy every moment, to which he attributes his youth. He lectures and writes, producing last year an auto-biography of 986 pages, brimming over with the good times he has had and the interesting people he has known.

He says he has no sympathy with old people who are worried about young people. He thinks it may be because the old people are jealous. They realize they can't play the game much longer and hate to open the door to the younger generation. But this hasn't been Dr. Phelps' attitude. He staves off age by keeping busy.

Actress Effie Shannon, whom I interviewed when I was a cub reporter, hardly looks older today than she did at the turn of the century Miss Shannon must be at least seventy, but she looks at least thirty years younger. The other day she onfessed: "I chose the age of 40 some time ago and I intend to stick to it."

Miss Shannon's favorite recipe for youth is "you must love your work and find it interesting and inspiring." When asked about her perfect throat line, which makes her the envy of all chinny ladies, she said: "The whole secret is posture. Never slouch. Once a stage director tells an actress about her posture, she stays told." Miss Shannon thinks that relaxation is equally important. She dispenses with a chauffeur and drives her own car, because when you're driving, you can't think about anything else.

Ruth Chatterton is still another example of perennial youth. Her recipe is "if you want to stay young, don't worry about growing old. Worry adds years to a woman's appearance. The strain affects the health. The more you worry, the worse you look. A glance in the mirror adds more worry—it's all a vicious circle."

Ruth Chatterton is athletic. She rides horseback and for five years she has held an air pilot's license. She's a great one for fun, fresh air and relaxation. She doesn't diet, but drinks lots of milk, eats vegetables, and sweets,—never!

Women's Hospital At Chengtu Burned

Chengtu, China, May 2 (AP) — The Chengtu Women's Hospital, capitalised, and operated by the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada, was destroyed last night by fire of undetermined origin.

The loss was estimated at $10,000. All patients were removed safely.

The Superintendent, Dr. Jean Miller of Toronto, is investigating. A fire of undetermined cause destroyed another Chengtu Hospital—the dental hospital of the West Union University—on Feb. 19.

TAKE THE "LEAD" FEELING OUT OF YOUR LEGS

Get More Oxygen In Your Blood and Get the Pep that Sends You Bounding Up the Stairs

People who smother to death die because oxygen has been completely cut off from them. Just as surely you are slowly smothering if your blood lacks red corpuscles. Red corpuscles are your oxygen-carriers. They carry the oxygen you breathe in to every part of your system. Without enough oxygen-carrying corpuscles, your kidneys, liver, stomach and bowels slow down. Your skin gets pale, flabby, often pimply. Your nerves may become jittery—you tire quickly—feel depressed.

What you need is Dr. Williams Pink Pills. These world-famous pills help make more and better red corpuscles and thus increase the oxygen-carrying power of your blood. # DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

"THE FIGHT FOR LIFE"

It isn't often I see a motion picture and it is much less often I try to review one. But I saw one the other day that so impressed me that I feel impelled to say something about it.

I refer to "The Fight for Life," produced by the U. S. Film Service, which is the most eloquent advocate of greater and more scientific care of women in childbirth that I have ever encountered in any form. It taught a somewhat old practictioner who has attended more than 150 confinements something. I think it will be a message to all medical men as well as show mothers and mothers-to-be that womankind's greatest burden is being lightened by medical science. It will provide thrilling news for many by revealing that there are marvelous institutions where the wives of poor men have the same medical attention that any millionaire's wife gets.

The film story, which was adapted from a book by Paul De Kruit and directed by Pare Lorentz, the man who made "The River," begins in the delivery room of a city hospital. A woman is giving birth to a child and the attendant scenes are impressive indeed. The child is born quite normally, but just when the doctors think everything is over satisfactorily, they suddenly discover that the mother is sinking rapidly. Her pulse is weak, her blood pressure low. They do everything for her they know, but she dies.

One of the young doctors present is upset by this death, and in his depression goes to an older member of the profession to discuss the problem. From the latter he learns there are places where doctors may discover better means of saving the lives of mothers and babies during childbirth. I was impressed by one line of the older physician: "There is nothing on all medicine and surgery that requires broader knowledge than obstetrics." I agree one hundred percent with that statement.

This fact has not had the recognition it deserves. I remember when I was graduated from Medical School, over 3 years ago, I knew very, very little about delivering a child into this world. I had seen several born, but had no opportunity for any real experience. There had been far too little instruction in obstetrics. Fortunately, when I went out into practise and I attended my first birth, I had with me a woman who was a well-experienced mid-wife. one was my instructor!

Of course, things are changed now. Medical students must serve interneships in hospitals after they are graduated. If the hospital handles maternity cases, they get the practical experience that childbirth calls for.

In the movie ,the doctor goes to Maternity Centre in Chicago to study and we see a marvelously realistic account of the experiences of the Centre's efficient doctors attending childbirth in homes in the slums. The advanced techniques they are shown using were an inspiration to me.

Of course ,in my practise I haven't had the same battles with septic poison and eclampsia that doctors in the large cities have. The sunshine and fresh air in the country seems to sterilize most of the dangerous bacteria.

In my 30-odd years, I have lost three mothers in childbirth—all of septic poisoning. But that is three too many, even considering them among 1500 confinements. The last one I lost was 15 or 20 years ago, but I'll never forget the feeling I had. It was the same the doctor in the movie felt when his patient died.

FACES ATTEMPTED MURDER CHARGE

Driving a car in which Audrey Clayton, 19, LEFT, was a passenger into the Trent Canal near Peterboro, Ont., R. L. Martin, RIGHT, is charged with attempting to murder Miss Clayton by drowning. At a loss to explain his act, police say that Miss Clayton has known Martin for several months and that she said there had been no quarrel between them.

Letters From the Troops

Following are two letters from a sister of Mrs. George Neal, Ameliasburg, who is a member of the Women's Farm Auxiliary, now doing agricultural work on the farms of England:

Oct. 10th.

I do so hope you don't feel too angry towards me for not writing before, but really and truly, I've been waiting till I had some sort of fixed abode before I wrote to you.

As you know I am now a full-fledged member of the Women's Land Army. I went through a course of training in Yarmouth last month and am now working on a very big farm in Great Rissington. The farm consists of 700 acres and 800 cattle, which are kept for selling. The cattle are 100 - 200 bullocks and heifers, 500 sheep, 250 pigs, also there are about 300 chickens, ducks, geese and cockerels; there are four Guernsey cows kept for milk for the Manor, the lady of which owns the farm and five horses for ploughing, etc., and also a tractor, which I can drive, the nearest thing so far to any ambition of driving a car. After I've been working here for a while I should know quite a bit about farm life, what! I do truly like the work and I am not at all scared of the animals. I thought I might be, but if ever I was, I've got over it. There's another girl with me: we both trained at the same college, so I don't feel at all lonely and the people with whom I'm lodging are perfect dears; the old lady just mothers my friend and I.

Alec is stationed at Gosport waiting to go and give Hitler the works. He's quite cheerful in his letters. Roy won't be called up until December, so there's still the hope that the war might be over by then. No harm in hoping, is there? I see Canada is going to send some of her men in the near future. George won't have to go, will he? The blackouts are getting on Gillie's nerves. Sometimes the blackouts come in most useful, eh! Of course not so much if one's married. I haven't heard from Nance, so I guess she's all right. How are you and all the royal family keeping Well, I hope. Maybe I shall be able to come to Canada in the future and farm in the big way. At the college there was a Canadian woman, she had everyone in fits of laughter, even the old Matron, who was in charge of us. She told me that where you are is a lovely place. Is that right?

Well, my dears, I must leave you for the present and get some sleep. I don't start work until 8 a.m., but the air down here makes me sleepy and my room-mate also wants to go bye-byes. I finish work at 5 p.m. The W.L.A. only work a 48-hour week, but will get paid overtime money while harvesting, etc.

Lots of love to you all,
NELLIE.

Nov. 23.

I used to be very scared of cows and horses, now I'm so used to them that I've got over it; getting to know them and their ways makes a lot of difference. There's really very little harm in them if they are treated kindly. My present job is under-stockman. I've 31 bullocks and heifers to look after and feed twice daily, plus pigs and poultry. I don't even have a half-day off now.

Since I wrote you I've made a move in lodgings, as the lady with whom I was staying was unable to look after my pal and I any longer, because her husband has been confined to his bed. I now live in a cottage, furnished. My pal and I have to look after ourselves. We get our mid-day meal from the woman next door, so that saves us a lot of trouble. I haven't had time to visit Cheltenham and Civencester yet. I hope to go to Cheltenham next Saturday with a fellow. I'm going to the pictures when I get there. I miss the cinema something terrible. I don't think I shall ever have time off to go to London during Christmas. Worst of trying to be patriotic.

I'm surprised George signed up again after going through the last war. I thought that would have been enough for him, but then men are such queer creatures, aren't they? Reason for Roy not being called up before December, is that he's working for the government and so gets three months' grace. No Leslie B., nor George M. are in the army. Leslie's brother is, and as Alec is also, reckon that's enough for our family.

The weather here lately has been terrible. Rain, rain, rain. Today I left work half an hour earlier as I was so wet. No, we're not on rations yet, although we've been supplied with our ration book. Somehow I don't think there will be the queues, as there was during the 1914-18 war. Things are so different now, a bit better organized. After Christmas will be ration time, is generally thought. Bacon and butter have gone up in price owing to the difficulty of importing it. It's shocking how the Germans are attacking neutral shipping.

Maisie is still at the same address (30 St. George's Place, Hythe, Kent.) Will be most pleased to receive reading.

Cheerio for now.

P.S.—Have ridden a pony. Great fun.

Lots of love to you all,
NELLIE.

Not So Daffy Dodgers Will Get Real Test Today; Reds Stop Winning Streak at Nine

Lombardi and Werber Blast Homers to Dunk Dodgers 9-2 for First Loss—Bucky Walters Wins Third

YANKEES CLICK

Monte Pearson Hurls a Five-Hitter for Slumping Champions—Phillies Stop the Tribe

By JUDSON BAILEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

The real test for Brooklyn Dodgers will start today.

This isn't as ridiculous as it may sound ,because an era in the lives of the darling Dodgers has just been completed—a miraculous era of nine consecutive victories climaxed by a no-hitter—and today they are just another strong contender in the National League.

Everyone know, of course, the Dodgers would lose a game sooner or later (or just sooner) and everyone knows now that they will lose a lot more over the long, arduous stretch of the season. The important question—the real test—is whether they show the same proclivity for losing streaks they have for winning.

Now that they are out of the straosphere of the record books and bucking their way along the National League's main street, the Dodgers are going to find that baseball after all is a rough and tumble pastime and not a motion picture.

The awakening—beaten 9--2 by Cincinnati—certainly was rude enough to shake any day dreams that may have been afflicting the Brooklyns. Hugh Casey was going along pitching a no-hitter for three innings and the writers were wondering what superlatives they could say about a second no-hitter that they hadn't used the day before for Tex Carleton's remarkable exploit.

Then it was boom-boom-boom so fast in the fourth inning manager Leo Durocher didn't have a chance to get Casey off the mound before the Reds had made six hits and scored eight runs.

Bill Werber and Ernie Lombardi were the big booms. Werber started all the trouble in the fourth by leading off with a double and finished it with a home run on his second chance in the same inning. Then in the seventh he got in the way of a pitched ball and eventually scored from second on a single Lombardi homered while the bases were jammed in the midst of the fourth.

In the meantime Bucky Walters held the Dodgers to six hits— one of them Pete Coscarart's third home run of the season—for his third victory without defeat.

The Reds and Dodgers had another date today and since only two games now separate them in the standings, more fireworks are possible.

The rest of the National League was rained out yesterday, but the American had a full day.

New York Yankees got back in the groove with a well-pitched five-hit game by Monte Pearson giving them a 5-3 victory over St. Louis Browns.

Philadelphia Athletics stopped Cleveland Indians 5-1 on the effective seven-hit hurling of Nelson Potter, with Wally Moses and Bob Johnson lending helping home run hands.

This setback enabled Boston Red Sox to move back into a tie for first place with a 12-4 conquest of Chicago White Sox. Boston benefited from a 13-hit offensive led by Jimmie Foxx with his fifth home run and the notable relief pitching of rookie Herb Hash, who allowed one hit in five innings.

HUNCH PLAYERS FAVORING DIT

Louisville, Ky., May 2 —(AP)— The hunch player in the "beat Bimelech" fraternity, looking for something to stop "Mr. Big" in Saturday's Kentucky Derby, put the finger right smack on Max the Mystery Man Hirsch today.

"Is it possible," the fraternity brothers wondered, "that Max has another Bold Venture to spring on the folks in his Dit this year?"

He did it against Brevity in '36 and the set-up is similar this year in some ways although Saturday's expected field of eight or nine is considerable short of the 14 who ran then.

Of course, Colonel E. R. Bradley's hope for a fifth derby win is still the "people's choice" in this derby village.

Max came down four years ago with Bold Venture, so lightly regarded he wound up paying $43.20 in the mutuels. Bold Venture led all the way down the last half mile, while Brevity, the favorite, knocked to his knees at the start, finished second.

Dit comes down as a horse that's still a mystery. Owned by Arnold Hanger, he's been back east all spring, winning two races at Jamaica, including the Wood Memorial last Saturday. But in both he had things all his own way, with no competition, didn't answer any questions.

"Now," Hirsch said today, "I won't exactly say he's another Bold Venture, but———."

MacPhail Glad Dodgers Lost

Montreal, May 2 (CP)—Snapping of Brooklyn's sensational nine-game winning streak in the National Baseball League failed to disturb the Dodgers' President, Larry MacPhail, who regards the loss as only a natural let up.

"I'm glad we finally dropped one" said MacPhail in philosophical comment on Brooklyn's defeat by Cincinnati yesterday. He believed any more victories without a defeat would have left the Dodgers playing always under a strain.

"If those streaks go too far, they are likely to upset a ball club and send it plunging into a slump as a natural reaction," added MacPhail, here to attend the home opener of Montreal Royals, International League team controlled by the Dodgers.

The Brooklyn President was more interested during an interview last night with the brilliant no-hit, no-run game that Tex Carleton pitched to give Dodgers their ninth straight victory Tuesday.

He revealed the 33-year-old hurler would not have been bought by Brooklyn this year but for a friendship between the Dodgers and Milwaukee of the American Association, where Carleton played last year.

Henry Bendinger, the Milwaukee President told MacPhail at the end of last season that Carleton seemed to have recovered from a sore arm that had forced him out of the majors once. He offered to let Brooklyn take the pitcher to spring training camp for a tryout and wanted no payment unless Brooklyn decided to buy him.

Carleton, who has won two of Dodgers' nine victories, showed during spring training that the ailment was completely healed.

Between the Lines

with

Ken J. Colling

Published in his column "Sports of the Times," John Kieran, well known sports writer and radio personality, recently heralded the efforts of the Brooklyn Dodgers in verse. Under the heading of "Nursery Rhymes Revised," Kieran published the following ditty, which we feel is worthy of passing along:

Twinkle, twinkle, Dodger team
(Pinch me, boy Is this a dream?)
Up above the league so high,
Like a pennant in the sky

Rock-a-bye Dodgers, 'way up on top;
Keep up that pitching—or watch for the drop!
Keep up that fielding and socking the ball,
Or down come Durocher, Camilli and all!

One recent April afternoon, when sunny was the weather,
I chanced to see some Brooklyn gents laying ash to leather.
I began to compliment and they began to grin:
"We cannot lose," they blithely said "because we always win."

When the Bay of Quinte League met at Napanee on Tuesday night, R. A. Elliott, Past President of the O.B.A. and native of Deloro, accompanied the Belleville delegation to the conclave. During the meeting Mr. Elliott introduced a proposed new plan for baseball play-offs in Ontario, which may prove revolutionary to the game and a system we feel is a step towards the return to popularity of the summer pastime. "The idea is to dispense with the late fall provincial play-downs, some of which are played during snow storms in weather unfit for baseball. To supplement this it has been suggested the O.B.A. run baseball tournaments at different points around the province in the middle of summer when baseball weather is in vogue. This plan may sound radical now, but after it is carefully analyzed it may prove a better system than the one now in effect. Take the senior series for example—along in early August the clubs leading the various senior leagues throughout the province could gather at a central point, say Peterboro or London and a two or three day tournament held. The fans of the district would see the best teams in common competition," explained Mr. Elliott, as he added the same thing could apply in intermediate and junior circles, giving each section of the province at least one classification of tournament ball per session.

On paper the idea seems quite practical, with the sole exception of the matter of expenses. However, the monetary question could easily be settled, perhaps on a pro ratio scale in the matter of games played and won. After hearing Mr. Elliott's lengthy oration on the proposed tournament system for O.B.A. championships, the Kingston delegation showed a marked interest in the idea and the Kingston City League may try the system as an experiment. Kingston lies in an ideal position to hold a two or three-day baseball tournament. Clubs could be invited from the entire Central Ontario zone, as well as from Smith's Falls, Perth and other Ottawa Valley centres. Of course during the experimental stage the matter of expenses would have to be a secondary consideration, but such matters would soon iron themselves out. A two-day baseball tournament in Kingston, where baseball flourishes and the fans really support the game, would doubtless prove a success from all angles, including financial.

Getting around to the local baseball situation would it not be a good idea to employ the same system as has been introduced at Peterboro' and now Oshawa, where active players have been named to executive positions? Russ Kitchen is President of the Petes, while more recently "Peg" Hurst, diminutive centrefielder of the Motor City nine, was elected president of the Oshawa senior ball club. After all if the players desire to play baseball, why shouldn't they bear some of the executive work and its problems? In his report to the Bay of Quinte League, H. M. "Dolly" Gray, whose efforts resulted in some baseball played locally last year, openly admitted the only salvation is for Belleville to sponsor junior and juvenile baseball for a year or two on a scale similar to that employed in Kingston, where a city junior league proved most successful last year. After all teams composed of local boys only should attract sufficient following to make such a project at least pay its own way for a season or two, but coaching and executive work is badly needed in Belleville.

The members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment now in England are fast assuming top-ranking positions in the sporting circles of the C.A.S.F. The "H. and Pips," as they were known locally, have defeated all comers at softball and we might add that Andy Knott a local softball product, is with the unit. We also hear that Captain Ron Church, whose antics are well known in Eastern Ontario ball circles, is the chief attraction, when the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment nine play softball. We can readily understand this, as Ron was an actor of the first water when it came to clowning on a ball field. Recently a picture was seen in an English magazine showing Sergt. Davie Young in action as a ball umpire. Davie knows how to give the fans a show also and doubtless would prove popular in England. Then along came Cpl. Art Kirkley, of the same unit, to win the lightweight boxing championship of the Aldershot camp and now Kirkley is in training for a shot at the C.A.S.F. lightweight boxing title. Incidentally eight of last year's Picton intermediate baseball club left with the original detachment of this regiment, a record we feel is not equalled elsewhere in Canada.

SPORT SPICE — The Oshawa Generals, twice winners of the Memorial Cup and junior hockey champions of Canada, arrived home in the Motor City last night. . . . It was a gala night at the corner of King and Simcoe Sts., where bonfires and general joyousness reigned supreme . . . And why not—hadn't the Generals made hockey history this season? . . . The Cincinnati Reds, with Bucky Walters scattering six hits well, halted the Brooklyn Dodgers' rampage in the National League yesterday by beating the "Daffinessmen" 9-2 . . . There was no joy in Flatbush last night, the Dodgers had muffed a chance to establish a record of ten consecutive opening victories. . . . With Monte Pearson hurling five-hit ball the Yankees climbed back into the win column yesterday, while the Tigers edged the Senators to gain third place in the junior loop. . . . It is expected that upwards to 10,000 fans will usher in the baseball season at Toronto today, if they don't freeze.

TORONTO LEAFS OPEN SEASON WITH SYRACUSE

A Win Today Will Put Them in 5th Place—Northern Clubs Celebrate Home Openings

GIANTS STRONG

After two weeks of barnstorming through the southern half of the circuit, the northern division clubs of the International Baseball League will celebrate their home openings today.

Montreal will play host to the first-place Jersey City Giants, Toronto will entertain Newark Bears, Buffalo will tangle with Baltimore and Rochester will be "at home" to Syracuse.

Of the four teams which invaded the south Montreal Royals return with the best record, having won four of eight games for an even .500 percentage. The Brooklyn farm team, in third place, has shown plenty of power so far this season, averaging 11 hits a game, and shapes up as the dark horse of the campaign.

Kemp Wicker is scheduled to pitch for the Royals and judging from his record it would be hard to find a better "opening-day" hurler. Kemp has been victorious in his last three inaugural assignments, stopping Baltimore Orioles at home and away last year and Newark Bears on the road this season. The veteran southpaw has allowed only five hits in the 17 innings he has worked this season, so it appears that the Little Giants will have their work cut out for them this afternoon.

Today's game will be the first meeting between the two clubs this season. Their opening series at Jersey City was washed out.

Toronto Maple Leafs were not as fortunate as the Royals on their opening swing and take the field today tied for sixth place in the standings with Syracuse. Each has won three and lost five. The Leafs started the season with a 5-4 victory over Newark, dropped the next three, came back with a 4-0 triumph over Syracuse and then lost a doubleheader at Baltimore. They finished the tour by nosing out the Orioles 7-6. A victory today will boost them into fifth place.

Rochester has won five, lost six and tied one, a 17-inning affair against Newark which was called on account of darkness and are holding down the fourth-place spot.

Buffalo Bisons will be out to convince their followers that they are not as bad as the records to date show. The Herd has lost eight and won only two away from home and are firmly lodged in the cellar.

There were no games yesterday as the teams were travelling.

New York, May 2 —(AP)—Bobby Feller has offers from two movie studios to make a series of shorts next fall . . . Umpire Bill Stewart was behind the plate in the last two no-hitters in the National League . . . Oddly enough, the same teams were involved.

This town is simply nuts over the Brooks . . . Headline in the World-Telegram: "Nuts to everything—hooray for Tex Carleton . . . What did Napoleon ever do that Dodgers can't? . . . children of destiny threaten to run winning streak to at least 50" . . . Everybody pokes a lot of fun at Durocher's dizzy crew, but one and all are for them 100 per cent . . . While Carleton was unreeling his no-hitter, announcer Red Barber refused to say anything about the Red hit totals at the end of each inning for fear of putting the whammy on Tex.

It can happen here!

Daniel Baker college ran an ad in an Indianapolis paper for basketball players . . . Several Elkhart (Ind.) players responded, but on the way to Bronwood, Tex., they became detoured and wound up at Howard Payne College in the same town . . . The ball game between Greenwich and Fairfield (Conn.) had to be postponed when Greenwich requested an additional four months for practice . . . Nothing interferes with baseball down in Clarkesdale, Miss . . . The municipal election was postponed a week because it conflicted with the opener and last week they called off a big political rally so all hands could turn out for the first night game.

Chicago Monarchs Expected to Win A. B. C. Championship

Detroit, May 2 — (AP) — The dopesters are ready to close their books at the American Bowling Tournament, confident that nothing short of a miracle can knock the Chicago Monarchs out of the 1940 team championships.

The last major contenders for the title, the Detroit Strohs, folded completely under pressure last night and failed even to make a dent in the list of leaders. An estimated 6,000 fans jammed the coliseum to watch the local favorites perform, thereby contributing to a case of the A.B.C. jitters which held the former champions to games of 912, 956 and 964.

The Strohs encountered 14 splits and were charged with seven errors. Their 2,832 total fell more than 200 pins short of the Monarchs' score of 3,047 which is expected to win top prize of $1,500.

Of the original entry list of 6,072 teams, 386 have yet to roll, but none of them is considered a likely bet to finish among the top 10.

Recreation Alleys

The Major B bowling championship was won by the Houston Company who defeated the Nightshifters by 332 pins. The final scores were:

Houston Co. 4 points: M. Storms 643; C. Jenkinson (2) 399; H. Reid 551; W. Reynolds 577; J. Martin (2) 280; M. Callaghan (2) 403 — 2853.

Nightshifters 0 points: L. Lennox 539; J. Ronsky 473; F. Ethier 500; E. Darrah 480; R. Lennox 529 — 2521.

KENTUCKY DERBY ENTRIES

LONG-SHOT TO COP DERBY

"Tola Rose," three-year-old quoted at odds of 200-to-one to win the Kentucky Derby to be run at Churchill Downs, May 4. Tola Rose is owned by A. J. Sackett. Jockey Leon Hass is up, here.

OVER THE FENCE AND HOME

Myrmidon, ridden by Hugh J. O'Donovan, clears the last fence with plenty to spare as he wins the Grand National point-to-point race over muddy three-mile course on the Whittingham estate in Baltimore. Comeonhome, with Jack Bosley up, is second here—and was second at the finish. The race over the slippery course was marked by several spills, but no rider was injured.

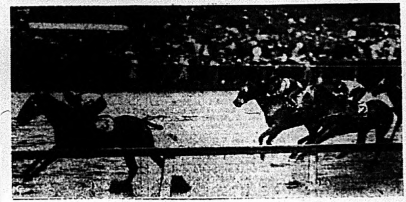
AS CLAPAIR LED THE PACK HOME AT JAMAICA PARK



A sight guaranteed to warm the cockles of every racing fan's heart is Clapair, with Jockey C. Durando up, as he shows a clean set of heels to the rest of the pack at Jamaica Park. Mr. Knick, Renick up, is second and Play Fence, Longden in the saddle, is third.

HE'S GOT A DATE

"ROMAN" MAY ROAM AT DERBY

"Roman", Joseph E. Widener's entry in the Kentucky Derby is shown being ridden here by W. D. Wright. 30 to 1 are the odds quoted against Roman's chances in the 3-year-old classic.

WHITNEY ENTRY IN THE DERBY

"Flight Command," three-year-old owned by C. V. Whitney, quoted at 20-1 odds to win the 1940 Kentucky Derby to be run May 4.

DERBY ENTRIES

"Titilator" chestnut colt owned by Mrs. E. S. Moore, is the offspring of Stimulus-Sheila Ryve.

TWENTY-TO-ONE DERBY ENTRY

"Marogay," owned by R. A. Firestone, and ridden here by Jockey Ira Hanford, is looked upon to have a good chance to win the Kentucky Derby. The husky 3-year-old is quoted at odds of 20-1 to cop the roses.

"GO OUT AND WIN" SAYS WIFE

Mrs. Kelly Petillo, wife of the racing driver, thus encourages hubby as she adjusts the racing helmet he will wear in the 1940 Indianapolis 500-mile race. Petillo will drive his own high-flying speed wagon in the U. S. Memorial Day race.

CLOSE CALL — FORE AND AFT

Next time you feel the urge to bawl out the umpire, remember that he may see something that you do not see. For instance this play with Benny McCoy, Philadelphia Athletic $45,000 star, sliding into the plate in the game against the Red Sox at Boston. TOP photo shows the play from one angle. The umpire calls McCoy safe, although he seems to be blocked off from the plate by Catcher Johnny Peacock. However, LOWER photo shows you what's what from the umpire's side, and you can see where Catcher Peacock is looking at the dropped ball.

DERBY DARK HORSE

"Multitude," the Le Mar Stock Farm hopeful is quoted at odds of 30-to-1, and is looked upon as a possible "dark horse."

ASP WINS — Asp, No. 5, is ridden under the wire ahead in a Jamaica L.I., feature race. Jockey Ashcroft is up.

DON'T KILL YOUR BEAUTY

By Suffering Monthly Pains

CAN you see your youthful beauty slipping away? Do you find yourself looking far older than you should because of the suffering you endure each period? Then this message is for you.

For over 70 years, countless thousands of women who suffered functional monthly pains have taken Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription over a period of time—and have been overjoyed to find that this famous remedy has helped them ward off such monthly discomforts which may actually destroy your beauty.

Most amazing, this scientific remedy, formulated by a practicing physician, is guaranteed to contain no harmful drugs—no narcotics. In a truly scientific way, it improves nutritional assimilation; helps build you up and so increases your resistance and fortifies you against functional pain. Lessens nervousness during this trying period.

Don't allow yourself to become old-looking and haggard long before your time because of such monthly discomfort. Get Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription from your druggist, or write Dr. Pierce, Dept. M513, Fort Erie North, Ontario, for generous free sample. Discover how it helps relieve you of beauty-robbing reassured and Allied circles also showed signs of an easier attitude.

YUGOSLAVIA SAFE

French Ambassador Andre Francois-Poncet consulted Mr. Phillips this morning after the United States envoy had returned from his interview with Count Ciano.

It was learned that Ambassador Phillips acted on direct instructions from Washington on calling on Il Duce last night.

Meanwhile, Bruno Mussolini, Il Duce's son, cancelled an inspection trip he was to have started today of the trans-oceanic bases of the Italy-South America airline, which he heads.

Sir Noel Charles, British Charge D'Affairs here, had a long talk last night with Count Ciano. It was understood the conversation centred around London's order to its merchantmen to keep out of the Mediterranean for the time being. The meeting was cordial and informative, British sources said, and presaged no fundamental change in Anglo-Italian relations. They denied Sir Noel and Count Ciano exchanged sharp notes as was reported in some circles.

OBITUARY

MRS. WILLIAM CROSS
(Formerly of Madoc)

Mrs. Mary Judith Cross, widow of William Cross, barrister, Madoc died in Toronto on Wedesday, May 1, after a brief illness.

The late Mrs. Cross who was in her seventy-third year, was born at Simcoe, Ont., the daughter of Owen Harvey Falls, one of the pioneer residents of that district. Following her marriage to the late William Cross she made her home in Madoc, Ont., but for the past two months had been residing with her son, the Hon. Eric Cross, at Simcoe. She was a member of the United Church and for many years took an active part in the work of the Canadian Red Cross, of which she was a life member.

Surviving her are two sons, the Rev. Harold Cross, rector of the Anglican Church at Wiarton, Ont., and the Hon. Eric Cross, Minister of Municipal Affairs and Public Welfare in the Ontario Legislature; one brother, Mr. Harvey S. Falls of Simcoe, Ot.

The funeral service will be conducted in the United Church in Madoc on Friday afternoon, May 3, and interment will be made in Lakeview Cemetery.

WALL ST.

New York, May 2.(AP).—Buyers nibbled warily at the stock market today without working up much of an appetite. Steels and motors attracted the principal support, along with a handful of specialties. Initial gains running to a point or more were reduced near the fourth hour.

Stocks favored the greater part of the time were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, United Aircraft, Sperry, Pan American Airways, Loft, American Bosch, U.S. Rubber, Westinghouse

On the Canadian list Dome Mines and Distillers dipped fractions. Hiram Walker, Lake Shore Mines and, in the Bond market, Canada 4S held unchanged. Others were neglected .

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 2—(CP)—Continuing on the downward trend through the early session on Toronto Exchange today, stocks were at new lows for the year at noon. Both mining groups and the Industrials weakened .40 to .50 and the Western Oils showed minor losses. Turnover was again small at 182,000 shares for the first three hours.

Base Metal stocks posted the widest declines, ranging up to 1 1-2 point. Nickel and Noranda, down 1 to 1 1-2, were at new lows for the year. Selling of nickel for British account was rumored. Smelters, Pend Oreille and Normetal were slightly lower.

Weakness in the Golds was confined mainly in the secondary issues. Central Patricia and Kirkland Lake lost 5.

Most of the Industrial groups, including the Utilities, Foods and miscellaneous issues were irregularly lower. Fanny Farmer dropped a point to 28. Royalite, Home Oil and Calgary and Edmonton recorded declines.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, May 2—(CP) — Cattle trade was dull up to mid-session on the Toronto Livestock Market with sales too few to establish quotations. The veal calf trade was slow. Hogs were steady. No sheep or lambs were offered. The holdover from Wednesday was 500 head of cattle.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 60, calves 20, hogs 300.

Small lots of good butcher cattle sold at $6.75 to $7. A few cows sold at $4.50 to $5.40.

Veal calves sold at $7 to $10.25.

Hogs sold at $8.25 off trucks for bacons and $11 dressedweight.

CREW OF STEAMER TAKEN TO N. Y.

British Freighter, Matakana Runs Ashore on Mayaguana Island

New York, May 2 (AP). — The Panama Lines flagship Panama is due in New York Saturday with most of the 78-member crew of the smashed British steamer Matakana which ran ashore on Mayaguana Island near the Windward Passage between Cuba and Haiti.

A wireless message from Captain Eric J. Erickson of the Panama told of the rescue after the Panama answered the stricken vessel's plea for aid.

The 8,048-ton Matakana, laden with frozen beef destined for the British Isles, reported running aground, probably in high seas, at 7:40 a.m. (EDT) yesterday.

The Panama Lines' port captain in New York said presumably all members of the British ship's crew were saved, adding that the captain, chief officer and chief engineer had remained on the island with a week's food supply. Two of the crew suffered broken legs.

NEW TAXES IN AUSTRALIA

Canberra, Australia, May 2—(AP)—Doubling of the land tax, an increase in death duties and measures to increase the income tax yield by 50 per cent were announced today by the Federal Government. It was estimated that the projects would raise an additional 20,000,000 pounds ($70,000,000) annually.

The budget was brought down in the House of Representatives by P. C. Spender, Commonwealth Treasurer.

He announced that 50,000,000 pounds will be raised by borrowing to supplement the revenue from taxation.

The new taxes include a wartime company tax ranging from four to 60 per cent of all profits over eight per cent.

The sales tax was raised from six to 8 1-3 per cent and a tax of five per cent was levied on undistributed income.

Increases in customs duties were forecast.

Butter and Graded Eggs Easier

Toronto, May 2—Butter continued on the downward path on the Toronto open produce market yesterday, although there was a little revival in demand. Another slip occurred in graded egg prices.

Feelings were mixed as to the immediate trend of the butter market when buyers stepped in to cover current requirements. Some quarters still pressed for sales while other points held out for prices higher than the levels at which business was transacted. Sales were reported all the way from 22 1-2c to 23c per pound for top grade Ontario creamery solids in the course of the day's dealings, but the bulk of orders went through at 22 3-4c, with the market closing at 22 1-2c to 22 3-4c. Prints to the retail trade moved in the wide range of 24 1-2c to 25-1-2c for No. 1 grades.

Supplies were enough for the slower demand on the egg market. The two top grades in the graded division eased slightly, but the retail section showed no change.

Montreal Produce.

Montreal, May 2—(CP)— Produce market prices here, as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Butter — First grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 24 3-4c-25-1-2c; first grade solids, jobbing price, 24 1-4c-25c.

Eggs—Graded shipments in used free cases, selling price, A-large, 23c-23 1-2c; A-medium, 21 1-2c; A-pullets, 19c; B, 21 1-2c; C. 18-1-2c (Government inspected lots, 1-2 cent higher.) Receipts: 3,741 cases.

OBITUARY

Freeman, pastor of the Alliance Tabernacle

The bearers were Messrs. George Reid, Dorland Dennison, Charles Coirns, J. E. Irvine, W. MacKenzie and B. Van Allen. The first three mentioned are nephews of the deceased.

R.A.F. Bombers Harry Nazi Airport Terminals

London, May 2 (CP).—Royal Air Force bombers harried German airport terminals in Denmark and Norway yesterday, causing heavy damage and shooting down one seaplane without losses to themselves, the Air Ministry reported today.

Its communique said:

"The Royal Air Force maintained their pressure on enemy air bases in Norway and Denmark.

"Stavanger (on Norway's Atlantic coast) was bombed twice during daylight hours of yesterday and this airdrome, together with airdromes at Aalborg and Fornebu, was heavily bombed during last night.

"In the course of the night's reconnaissance over the southern area of the North Sea, one of our aircraft encountered an enemy seaplane near the Island of Norderney and shot it down into the sea. No losses were suffered in these operations."

Fornebu, airport near Oslo, is the Nowegian terminal of the Nazi military air-ferry operating from Aalborg, in northern Denmark.

GERMAN SHIP SUNK

to halt the flow of German troops into Norway appeared to be taking shape.

Latest reports indicated that the Germans still held Kvikne, west of the Glomma valley and northeast of Dombas, where Allied forces are said to be struggling to check the German drive.

Dombas controls an important railroad junction in the Gudbrandsdal, another route of the German effort to establish a land connection between Nazi forces at Oslo and Trondheim.

Observers on Sweden's west coast said that British warships, reinforced by bombing planes, invaded the Kattegat yesterday and fought a two-hour battle with German naval vessels during which one Nazi ship was sunk and another set afire.

Word of the naval engagement coincided with Norwegian dispatches asserting that the Germans, unable to maintain their thinly drawn lines of communication in the strategically important Glomma River valley, had withdrawn southward some 35 miles, presumably to await reinforcements.

A Norwegian communique also declared the Germans had suffered a defeat at Otta in the parallel Gudbrandsdal 20 miles south of the Dombas railway junction and had fallen back with "heavy losses."

Admit Withdrawal

Norwegian accounts of the German withdrawal in the Glomma Valley indicated a severance of communications between Oslo and Trondheim, establishment of which Berlin claimed earlier in the week.

The Germans were said to have surrendered the key point of Roros, at the northern end of the Glomma Valley, and to have retired to a position below Tynset, 25 miles further south.

A captured Nazi officer was quoted as saying that the withdrawal was necessitated by a lack of supplies and adequate reinforcements.

Norwegian military authorities said that bands of guerilla fighters, composed partly of "foreign volunteers," had been harassing the German supply lines in the valley. It was hinted that the "foreign volunteers" might have included some Swedes, but the Norwegians did not commit themselves on this point.

The full significance of the German withdrawal in the Glomma Valley was obscured by conflicting information concerning developments in the Gudbrandsdal to the west.

Retreat Not Important

If the Germans have control of the railway line extending northward through the Gudbrandsdal, through Dombas and Storen to Trondheim, their retreat from Roros is not strategically important.

If, however, the British and Norwegians still hold Dombas the German force at Trondheim still is isolated from Oslo so far as land communications are concerned.

British headquarters in Norway not only deny that Dombas had been relinquished to the Germans but said that the Allied position there had been strengthened by the arrival of fairly heavy artillery.

Strategic Move

The War Office in London presented a less conclusive picture of the situation in the Gudbrandsdal. A communique issued yesterday said merely that the British had withdrawn to "prepared positions" in the Dombas area, but neither confirmed nor denied German reports that Nazi troops had occupied the town Tuesday.

Even if the Germans control Dombas, military observers pointed out, it is still important for them to keep a grip on Tynset to maintain communications with a column reported to have advanced westward from that point in an attempt to cut the railway north of Dombas.

There apparently was little change in the situation on the Steinkjer front, 50 miles north of Trondheim, or at Narvik, the Arctic ore port where the Allies were reported to have a German force surrounded.

An Allied-Norwegian communique issued last night from Grong, Norway said there was little ground activity in the Steinkjer sector but that aerial warfare was continuing there. Unabated reports from that area in the last few days have told of reported forays by Nazi planes in strafing Allied lines of communication.

weak at the vital centre," he declared.

German Losses in Norway Heavy.

The second point emphasized by the prime minister was the German losses in Norway, particularly naval tonnage, and the closing to Germany of the ore port of Narvik.

In this connection he announced that Britain and France already have strengthened their Mediterranea fleets with cruisers and battleships not needed any longer in the North Sea because of the destruction of so many German vessels.

Mr. Chamberlain made his statement, which he stressed as an interim report, to a crowded house. It was received in comparative silence, many members appearing to be stunned by its implications.

Full Debate Next Week.

The government's whole conduct of the Norwegian campaign will be debated early next week. Clement Attlee, leader of the opposition, and Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal leader, agreed that this was not the time for debate because of danger to the withdrawing of forces.

The German high command earlier in the day had reported its troops within 25 miles of Andalsnes, which is 100 miles south of Trondheim.

Not One Lost in Withdrawal

Mr. Chamberlain said that "German local air superiority" had made it impossible to land "the artillery and tanks which would be necessary to enable our troops to withstand the enemy drive from the south."

He said the troops were withdrawn "under the very noses of the German airplanes" without loss of a "single man."

The Prime Minister assured the House Britain has "no intention of allowing Norway to become merely a side show."

Though it has not been possible to capture Trondheim, Mr. Chamberlain said he was satisfied "that the balance of the advantage lies up to the present with the Allied forces."

Norway Not Conquered

"Norway is not conquered," he stated, "after three weeks of war in which heavy losses have been sustained by the enemy on the sea, on land and in the air."

The naval movement to Alexandria, he said, was to effect "more normal distribution" of ships through release of some from the North Sea.

Substantial Losses to Enemy Navy

He said he could not give details of casualties in Norway but believed they were not proportionately heavy.

The Prime Minister gave German naval losses as two capital ships damaged, three or four cruisers sunk, 11 destroyer sunk, five submarines sunk and 30 transports and storeships sunk, scuttled or set on fire with the loss of several thousand lives. In addition, he said 10 German transports or storeships probably were sunk.

"The losses of the German navy," he said, "were so substantial as to alter the entire balance of naval power and permitted an important redistribution of the main Allied fleets."

"I can only make an interim statement today," the prime minister began, and added it was "impossible to make public as yet plans and movements which are not complete."

He declared he hoped that "the First Lord of the Admiralty and I may be able to say a good deal more early next week."

"I know how many must have been longing for news, even of most meagre description," he continued, "but members have realized the difficulty of making any such statement without disclosing information of value to the enemy."

"How was it that Germany was able to forestall us," Mr. Chamberlain asked.

"By long planning and carefully elaborated treachery against an unsuspecting and almost unarmed people," he declared in answer to his own question.

The prime minister revealed that when Britain made ready for dispatch of an Allied force to Finland's aid, she took into account the possibility that Germany might attack Norway's western ports.

After permission to send troops to Finland through Norway and Sweden was refused, the greater part of the forces which had been accumulated were dispersed since both they and the ships were wanted elsewhere, he continued.

About a month ago, however, it was decided that certain small forces should be kept in readiness to occupy Norwegian western ports at short notice in case of aggression by Germany against southern Norway.

"Accordingly further forces were made ready to occupy these places," he continued.

Orders To Commanders.

The prime minister said the instructions to the commanders of these forces provided that they were to do so by the Norwegian government or that the Norwegian neutrality had already been violated."

The prime minister declared that Britain "had been aware for many months that the Germans were accumulating transports and troops in Baltic ports and that these troops were constantly being practised in embarkation and disembarkation."

"It was evident that some act of aggression was in contemplation," he went on. "But these forces were equally available for an attack upon Finland, Sweden, Norway, Holland or this country, and it was impossible to tell beforehand where the blow would fall.

"If we had known that Denmark and Norway were to be the victims we could not have prevented what happened without the cooperation of these countries."

Denmark, Norway Depended on Neutrality

Denmark and Norway took no precautions against invasion "in the belief that their neutrality" would save them, the Prime Minister asserted.

Referring to Britain's minelaying in Norwegian waters, he said "it was a curious chance that this date of April 8 decided upon by the Government should have coincided almost exactly with that chosen by Germany for the invasion of Norway."

The Prime Minister related how after "we got information on Sunday, April 7, that a large German naval force was moving towards and along the west coast of Norway" the main battle fleet and the second cruiser squadron sailed from Scapa Flow and Rosyth "in the hope of engaging the enemy."

British Objectives

"Our objectives in deciding on further action were:

1. To give all the support and assistance in our power to the Norwegians.

2. To resist or delay the German advance from the South.

3. To facilitate the rescue and protection of the Norwegian King and Government."

"It was obvious that these objectives could be most speedily attained if it were possible to capture Trondheim and, in spite of the hazardous nature of the operation, we resolved to make the effort," Mr. Chamberlain declared amidst cheers.

2 Landing Places Selected

"Two landing places were selected, respectively north and south of Trondheim," he revealed.

Naval forces landed at Namsos, north of Trondheim, on April 14 and British troops followed on April 16 and 18. A few days later French "Chausseurs Alpins" landed and their arrival was "a welcome support to our men", the prime minister continued.

Part of this force advanced rapidly to the neighborhood of Steinkjer to support the Norwegians known to be holding that place.

Mr. Chamberlain declared he could not give any details of fighting on either front since the landings.

Troops Gallantly Fighting.

"All that can be said at present is that our troops fought with gallantry and determination, and inflicted heavy losses upon the enemy," he told the House.

The Allied forces were faced with "serious difficulties", the foremost of which was the fact that available airdromes were in German hands and "the use of fighter aircraft was thus largely denied to us."

The prime minister said "it became evident to us some days ago that it would be impossible, owing to German local air superiority, to land the artillery and tanks which would be necessary to enable our troops to withstand the enemy drive from the south.

Withdrawal From Andalsnes.

"Accordingly we decided last week that we must abandon any idea of taking Trondheim from the south and that we must withdraw our troops from that area and transfer them elsewhere.

"We have now withdrawn the whole of our forces from Andalsnes under the very noses of the German airplanes."

Britain has not lost "a single man in this operation," he disclosed.

The prime minister said he hoped, "and I have some reason to believe" that British casualties "have not been heavy in proportion of the scale of the operation."

He asserted it was possible for the Germans, "with their usual disregard of life, even of their own people," to send reinforcements to Norway "at a much greater rate" than the Allies, "with the inadequate landing places we have to rely on."

Nazi "Walk-Over" Frustrated

"I have no doubt that the Germans expected a walk-over" in Norway, as in Denmark, he continued, adding that this expectation was "frustrated by the courage of the Norwegian people and by the efforts of the Allies."

The Prime Minister declared that "in the face of overwhelming difficulties it has not been possible" to capture Trondheim, but said he was satisfied "that the balance of the advantage lies up to the present with the Allied forces."

German Supplies Suspended

The Prime Minister said he expected "more detailed reports before long" and trusted that "this most distressing, but inevitable period of uncertainty may not be prolonged."

"Norway is not conquered," he added, "after three weeks of war in which heavy losses have been sustained by the enemy on the sea, on land, and in the air."

Germany's "considerable supplies of ore, which she was formerly obtaining from Narvik, have been indefinitely suspended," he stated.

Comparative Losses

The Prime Minister listed German losses in just over three weeks as two capital ships damaged, "certainly three and possibly four cruisers sunk, 11 destroyers sunk, five U-boats sunk, 30 transports and store ships sunk, scuttled or set on fire, with the loss of several thousand lives.

"Further, ten transports or store ships have been struck by our torpedoes and probably sunk."

He said the losses of the Royal Navy in the same period were four destroyers, three submarines, one sloop and five trawlers sunk.

"Five other warships were damaged by air attack," he added, and one store ship has been sunk by a torpedo.

Foe Naval Losses So Great Balance is Altered

Losses of the German navy "were so substantial as to alter the entire balance of naval power," Mr. Chamberlain told the House.

He added it had permitted "an important redistribution of the main Allied fleets."

"A British and French battle fleet, with cruisers and auxiliary craft, is already in the eastern basin of the Mediterranean, on its way to Alexandria, Egypt, he revealed.

He said that German losses in transport to Norway or in the fighting there could not be estimated "with any accuracy but they must have amounted to many thousands."

Norway Not to be 'Side-Show'

"We have no intention of allowing Norway to become merely a side-show, but neither are we going to be trapped into such a dispersal of our forces as would leave us dangerously weak in the vital centre," he told the House.

He declared the Allies "must not disperse or tie up our forces" as to weaken "our freedom of action in the vital emergencies which may at any moment arise."

The Prime Minister said, "We must seize every chance, as we have done and shall continue to do in Norway, to inflict damage upon the enemy, but we must not allow ourselves to forget the long term strategy which will win the war."

Savage Hordes May Attack Neighbors

He enumerated possible future German moves as the invasion of Holland or Belgium, or both, and added, "It may be that their savage hordes will be hurled against their innocent neighbors in the south-east of Europe.

"They might well do more than one of these things in preparation for an attempt at a large scale attack on the Western Front or even a lightning swoop on this country."

"It would be foolish" to reveal to Germany Britain's conception of "the strategy best calculated to secure their defeat."

Lives Not To Be Jeopardized

Operations are in progress and "we must do nothing which might jeopardize the lives of those engaged," he said.

"I therefore ask the House to defer comment until the debate next week when I anticipate that that particular difficulty will not arise."

Debate on the campaign was fixed for next Tuesday after Mr. Chamberlain sat down. Clement Attlee, Leader of the Opposition, and Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal Leader, announced amid cheers that they would not make any comment or ask questions today.

Lord Snell, Labor Leader in the House of Lords, said the Opposition in the Upper Chamber would comply with the Government's request not to debate the Norwegian campaign today, but they were "far from happy" over "certain events in Norway."

FOREIGN EXCHANGE ACQUISITION ORDER

IMPORTANT NOTICE

As announced by the Minister of Finance, the Foreign Exchange Acquisition Order, 1940, has been enacted by Order-in-Council under the authority of the War Measures Act.

Unless exempted by the Order, every resident of Canada who, on May 1st, 1940, has any foreign currency in his possession, ownership or control, whether in Canada or outside Canada, is required forthwith to sell such foreign currency to an Authorized Dealer (i.e. a branch of a chartered bank) for payment in Canadian dollars at the official buying rate of the Foreign Exchange Control Board.

"Foreign currency", for the purposes of the Order, means any currency (excluding coin) other than Canadian currency and includes bank notes, postal notes, money orders, cheques, travellers' cheques, prepaid letters of credit, bank drafts and other similar instruments payable in any currency other than Canadian currency, and also includes any amount in foreign currency of which a resident has a right to obtain payment by reason of a deposit, credit or balance of any kind at or with a bank, savings bank, trust company, loan company, stockbroker, investment dealer or other similar depository.

The Order does not require the sale of any foreign securities.

The Order does not affect any foreign currency, deposit or securities of any non-resident of Canada and for greater certainty the Order expressly declares that a non-resident visiting Canada for business or pleasure for a period or periods not exceeding six months in the year continues to be a non-resident for the purposes of the Order unless such person enters or has entered Canada with the intention of becoming a permanent resident.

No resident is required to sell any foreign currency if he satisfies the Foreign Exchange Control Board that he held such foreign currency on May 1st, 1940, solely as trustee or agent for a non-resident and that the non-resident's interest therein had not been acquired from a resident since September 15th, 1939, except in a manner approved by the Board.

Under certain conditions stipulated in Section 1 (b) of the Order, a resident who is not a Canadian citizen may be granted exemption, but only after application for exemption is approved by the Board.

No life insurance company incorporated in Canada is required by the Order to sell any foreign currency which it needs for the purpose of carrying on its business outside Canada.

Further particulars may be obtained from branches of chartered banks. Any resident who has any foreign currency in his possession, ownership or control on May 1st, 1940, regardless of amount, should consult his bank at once in order to ascertain the extent to which he is affected by the Order.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper ma was pushing crooked things straight and straight things crooked, and pop said, What's the populer consensus of opinion on the subject of taking in a movie tonight?

Well Willyum, this is an unexpected pleasant surprise, ma said.

Meaning on account of her genrelly being the one that has to mention movies the first, and she hurry up turned the paper to the movie page, saying, The Sky's the Limit at the Narcississ.

Here too, pop said.

Meaning he would go anywheres, and ma said, But Valerie Vallence is in it, and you're not very fond of her, in fact you intensely dont like her.

I might grow to like her, I'm getting more and more broadminded, pop said, and ma said, Well there's no sense in actually suffering if there's a 2nd choice. Three Maids and a Man at the Mawsoleum, she said.

That makes a quorum, let's go, pop said, and ma said, But there's singing in it and you genrelly object to singing.

That wont stop it, pop said, and ma said, My, you're certainly in a yielding mood this evening. Let me see what's at the Grand Plateau. Princess Charming with Dimples Dugan, your pet hate. I believe I could even persuade you to go and see her, she said.

Why not? pop said, and ma said, If I'm dreaming dont wake me up. O shaw, we cant go anywhere, Mr. and Mrs. Clabble are coming tonight. O deer such boars, but imagine how gassly if they hadn't found us home. I forgot all about them as clean as a whissle, she said.

I didn't pop said, and ma said, O, so that's it, Willyum Potts such a man, I could throw something at you, and pop said, Benny, hand your mother a cushion, I feel perfectly safe.

Meaning she couldn't hit him, and I handed her one only she didn't even throw it.

Four Injured When Heavy Transport Crashes Into Tree

Two Men and Two Girls Now in Belleville Hospital With Severe Injuries

THREE UNIDENTIFIED

Seriously injured, four people, two men and two girls, were rushed to Belleville General Hospital shortly after twelve-thirty a.m. today following an accident when a large Foyster's transport of Hamilton crashed with terrific force into a tree on the south side of Highway No. 2 approximately six miles west of the city.

The driver of the transport, Stanley Christenson, Hamilton, suffered a fractured pelvis, while an unidentified man received head lacerations and possible skull fracture. The girls also unidentified at time of going to press, and who it is alleged refused to reveal their identity, received head and facial lacerations. One of them, the most seriously injured of the quartette suffered a fractured pelvis, dislocation of a hip and a fractured leg. The three unidentified people, were said to be hitch-hikers, picked up by the driver.

The injured people were rushed to hospital by the ambulance of the Royal Canadian Air Force base.

According to information given to investigating Highway Traffic Officer Sam Ervine by Christenson, visibility was very poor at the time due to driving rain and fog. His vision obscured by accumulating rain on the windshield, and the wiper temporarily out of order, he leaned out of the cab window and attempted to clear the shield with his hand. The large vehicle went out of control, skidded across the highway while rounding a curve, struck the soft shoulder of the road at this point, and lurched into the ditch. Then it plunged directly into a large maple tree.

Terrific Impact

The impact was terrific. The large trailer loaded with eight tons of cargo, added momentum to the cab as it struck the tree "dead centre." The force of the impact reduced the front part of the cab and engine to a mass of tangled wreckage. To the casual observer, it gave the appearance of a tree growing through the hood of a motor vehicle.

The cab itself was a heap of smashed wood and glass. Heavy steel parts of the undercarriage of the vehicle were smashed like matchwood. The heavy trailer, turne dover, it is believed, a split second before the moment of impact. Police believe that this fact saved the lives of the quartette of riders as only inches of space separated the wreckage of the motor and the rear part of the cab.

Dr. Ralph Bird, who attended the injured people, said late today that although the injuries of one of the girls, and the unidentified man were serious, they are expected to recover.

COURT SUSPENDS SENTENCE ON MAN

James E. Little Admits Making False Statements to Fire Marshal's Department

James E. Little, Belleville, was given a two year's suspended sentence by Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., after pleading guilty to charges of making false statements to the Fire Marshal's Department, and secondly of attempting to obtain the sum of $1,500.00 from an insurance company by making a false affidavit with intent to defraud. The charges arose as the sequel to a fire which occurred at Mr. Little's home on March 26th. last, following which, it was charged, he not only made false statements to D. H. Saville, of the Fire Marshal's Department, but allegedly tried to collect $1.500 insurance by fraud. Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., read the charges to Little, and in both cases the accused man admitted guilt.

"This man has very little education and is not in a position to properly understand legal proceedings. He does not appreciate the value of properties and I submit he was under police pressure when he made the original statements to the department, which resulted in these charges," was the opening statement made by E. O. Butler, local barrister appearing on Little's behalf.

"My client did not deliberately try to mislead the authorities, nor was there any filful intent to defraud. He is illiterate and does not understand such proceedings when it comes to making statements," aded Mr. Butler, Jr., and he referred to Little's war record and his previous unblemished character within the community.

"I concede this man is illiterate, but I do not agree that he was not aware that he was committing a crime, although he may not have realized or appreciated the serious consequences of such statements," held Crown Attorney Donnan, as he pointed out that Little had had two previous fires, whereas the accused man claimed in the statements he had only had one fire previous to March 26th.

"Perhaps this man needs a medical examination," prompted Magistrate Butler as he passed sentence of a suspended nature.

Mr. D. H. Saville, of the Fire Marshal's Department, Toronto, preferred the charges and assisted in the prosecution of the case.

KING AND QUEEN CONTINUE TOUR

Visit Lancashire Armament Factories and Inspect Territorial Service

Lancaster, England, May 2 (CP)—The King and Queen today continued their tour of Lancashire armament ractories after spending a restful night aboard the Royal train at the side of Lake Windermere.

Their Majesties first came to Lancaster, where, after watching the production and trial tests of tanks, they visited the local barracks. Seven hundred soldiers and 300 girls belonging to the Auxiliary Territorial Service were drawn up on the parade ground.

The King, who wore the khaki uniform of a Field Marshal, inspected the troops while the Queen walked along the ranks of the A.T.S. and chatted informally with the girls.

The King and Queen were accompanied by the Earl of Derby and Sir Warren Fisher, commissioner for civilian defence in the northern region.

Bagpipes Skirl as "Jamie" Clarke Leads Company on Route March

The streets of Picton thrilled to the strange sound of the skirl of the bagpipes yesterday. Behind the gay pibroch echoed the sounds of marching feet as a company of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment strode gaily down the street behind the colorful kilts of "Jamie" Clark, Belleville's seventy-three-year-old piper.

Garbed in the full-dress uniform of a Scottish pipemajor, the diminutive "Jamie," pride exemplified in his bearing, brought out the martial strains of Auld Scotland as he walked proudly once again at the head of a military party. For a mile the company, new recruits of the regiment, swung along, halted and returned to the Armouries.

But behind the battle-dress of the recruits, walked bemedalled veterans. Members of the crack regiments of the British Army in the last war, now joined together under the Imperial Veterans Association of Belleville, they swung along with a precision learned in the lessons of war."

They were the guests of the officers of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regimental Depot in Picton yesterday, and enjoyed once again the thrills of barrack-room and other phases of army life.

They inspected the quarters of the troops and enjoyed luncheon in the sergeants' mess. Under the guidance of Lieut.-Colonel B. C. Donnan, ex-commanding officer of the regiment, and James Sheppard, president of their association, they wandered through the spacious armoury living again the scenes that characterized their early army life.

Later they were the guests of Major E. T. Naylor, officer commanding the depot unit, and his staff at an informal reception in the officers' mess.

Today, President Sheppard and his comrades were loud in their praises of the fine reception accorded, and expressed the opinion that the army life of today is vastly different to that of twenty-five years ago. "The boys are exceptionally well-treated, well-fed, clothed and housed," was the general consensus of opinion of the ten veterans who were guests of the regiment.

Film Graphically Pictures Canada's Navy Vital Factor In Convoy and Coast Defence

'Atlantic Patrol' First of Series of Canadian Government Motion Pictures Portraying Important Phase in Nation's War Effort

(By G. H. C.)

Sleek rakish destroyers racing through spume-crested seas; grimy tramp steamers and stately ocean liners in route of convoy; Britain's mighty battleships, bows plunging deep into foaming waves; Canada's "Jack Tars" aboard Canadian destroyers in action and at rest, form but part of the dramatic picturization of this country's war effort in the first of a series of films entitled "Canada at War," and which is now being shown in the Capitol and Belle Theatres.

The series of pictures is being shown under the sponsorship of the Director of Public Information, throughout the Dominion.

"Atlantic Patrol," the first picture to be released, pictures in graphic detail Canada's effort in guarding her Atlanitc seaboard and the every-day life of her navy in their patrol of the high seas on convoy duty.

It shows in a marvellously authentic epic of motion picture photography, the ships that supply the Empire with food and munitions, and the alertness and ability of those entrusted with the guardianship of the Empire's life-lines that stretch across three thousand miles of Atlantic Ocean.

The long lines of the convoy are seen ploughing through the seething seas of the Atlantic. Whippet-like destroyers of the Canadian Navy dart in zig-zag courses ahead of the food-laden ships. Seaplanes, darting and swooping overhead, "the eyes of the navy", keep a close watch over the grey expanse of sea ahead.

Suddenly comes the call to action. A lookout has sighted something "off the port bow." Woollen-helmeted seamen dash to battle stations. On the bridge, smart officers whip out commands in staccato tones. Telegraphs echo shrilly in engine rooms as the speed is brought up to thirty knots.

Gun crews are ready. Deadly-looking torpedo tubes swing seaward, ready to loose 300 pounds of deadly explosive at the enemy. Depth charges are made ready.

An officer shouts a command. Ranges are checked. Then the order "Fire." Guns belch flame and smoke, and shells hurtle seaward. At the stern of the ship the deadly depth charges are loosed. Tremendous geysers of water spout skyward as the "enemies of the submarine" detonate with terrific force far beneath the surface of the water.

The action is over. In the distance loom the ghostly shapes of Britain's mighty battle-cruisers and warships, ready to take over the convoy duty. Canada's navy salutes, comes about and returns to its base to refuel for another hazardous trip.

"Atlantic Patrol" is a picture which should be seen by all red-blooded Canadians. It is an authentic proof of what our ships and Jack Tars are doing to not only protect our shores, but guard the precious food-lines that are part of the life-blood of the Empire.

The picture will be shown with the main features at the Capitol theatre today, Friday and Saturday and at the Belle theatre today and Friday. Don't miss it.

Withdrawal of British Forces From Difficult Position South Of Trondheim Brilliantly Executed

(By Fred Backhouse, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 2—(CP-Cable)—Prime Minister Chamberlain revealed in the House of Commons today that Major-General Bernard Charles Tolver Paget is in command of the British land forces south of Trondheim, which have withdrawn before the German advance northward.

General Paget is 53, a bishop's son and a "brilliant military brain" according to military circles.

Mr. Chamberlain said "withdrawal in face of the enemy has always been recognized as among the most delicate and most difficult military operations."

He cited the classic retreat on Corunna, Spain, during the peninsula war of the forces under Sir John Moore, the story of whose death is remembered by every British schoolboy.

The Prime Minister added that "in the present instance we have been more fortunate" inasmuch as the entire force has been withdrawn without the loss of a single life.

"Thanks to the powerful forces which the navy was able to bring to bear," Mr. Churchill said, "and the determination and skilful dispositions of General Paget, backed by the splendid courage and tenacity of the troops, we have now withdrawn our whole forces from Andalsnes under the very noses of German airplanes."

The Prime Minister expressed his "profound admiration" of all ranks for the way they performed their tasks in this area.

The man who directed the operations is called "Tolly" by his troops. The name is Tolver, but Tolly happens to be the name of a popular brand of ale in this country.

General Paget served throughout the first Great War and came back with the Distinguished Service Order, the Military Cross and the Italian Military Medal for valor.

Since 1938 he had been commandment of the staff college at Camberley—the cradle of Britain's military leaders.

Apart from his experience in Flanders, General Paget was attached to French headquarters during the Riff campaign against Abd-el-Krim. In 1925 he headed a British military mission to Morocco.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Allegheny Uprising"

Claire Trevor and John Wayne, who recently won salvos of praise for their superb performances in "Stagecoach" again combine their talents in an historical epic, "Allegheny Uprising" now playing at the McCarthy theatre.

The production is based on Neil Swanson's best-seller "The First Rebel" and deals with a stirring chapter in American history.

The colorful story laid in the 1760's depicts in dramatic fashion the revolt of Pennsylvania colonists against British soldiery over protection given unscrupulous traders selling guns and ammunition to Indians. These events are said to have forecast the Battle of Lexington more than several years later when Minute Men, called from their plows, grabbed up muzzle-loaders and precipitated the Revolution of 1776.

John Wayne is cast in the role of James Smith, a name all but lost to history. As the courageous leader of the frontiersmen who were driven to take up arms against the arrogant British army officials, Wayne has a most virile part.

Claire Trevor portrays Janie McDougall, impetuous daughter of a tavern keeper, whose hectic romance is constantly being thwarted by her lover going off to do battle.

The story records how James Smith, held captive by Indians for five years, escapes and returns to his home in the Valley of Conococheague, in what is now Franklin County near the Maryland border. He finds the frontier inflamed by Indian massacres. When the army and the King's officials refuse to halt the contraband trading which is responsible for the raids, James Smith is elected leader of the frontier folk. His uncanny success in outwitting the smartest officers of England's crack regiments provides thrilling action.

George Sanders heads the supporting cast in this RKO Radio picture as an arorgant British officer, Brian Donlevy, as a dishonest trader, Wilfrid Lawson, as the father of Claire Trevor; Robert Barrat, as a magistrate, and John F. Hamilton, Moroni Olsen, and Eddie Quillan all have important roles. William Seiter directed "Allegheny Uprising."

AT THE BELLE

"The Earl of Chicago"

Starring Robert Montgomery for the second time in his screen career in a picture selected by himself and with a role he wanted to portray—the first was the psychopathic murderer in "Night Must Fall," which won him nomination for the Academy Award—"The Earl of Chicago" is now on the Belle theatre screen.

One of the most unusual characterizations ever brought to the screen, it marks an abrupt departure from Montgomery's comedy wise-cracking playboy roles, with the star seen as Silky Kilmount, Chicago gangster. With the repeal of prohibition, Silky has engaged in a legitimate business, the Kilmount Distillery. He operates on the level, pays his taxes to the government, but retains his gang methods of salesmanship.

Montgomery went to J. Edgar Hoover, a personal friend, to obtain authentic information about gangsters for his challenging characterization. He also did research in London, where much of the action takes place against such colorful and historic settings as the House of Lords and the Tower of London. A production highlight is a murder trial sequence in the House of Lords, never before filmed.

"The Ghost Comes Home"

Frank Morgan, as a small-town citizen, in "The Ghost Comes Home," which brings him to the Belle theatre in a wild adventure with wealth and romance. The new story sees him in a "straight" human characterization. Morgan plays a timid henpecked pet-shop owner in a small town who suddenly becomes a man of prominence when a boyhood friend who made a fortune promises him a million to spend improving the home town. His supposed death in a shipwreck and his return apparently from the dead, complicates his hectic existence. He plots against his domineering wife who tries to marry their daughter off to the town banker's son, and grief in general dogs his path. He exposes the crooked politicians in extricating himself from his troubles and becomes the town hero. The cast includes Billie Burke as the domineering wife, Ann Rutherford as the romantic daughter, John Shelton, Reginald Owen, Donald Meek, Nat Pendleton and Frank Albertson.

Canada Carries On!

Canada Carries On as shown in, Atlantic Patrol, revealing Canada's navy on convoy duty . . .guarding the Allies, Atlantic lifeline, scenes never before filmed. You owe it to yourself as a Canadian, as a member of the British commonwealth of nations to see this timely and authentic film, that will be exhibited on the same program.

MAKES OWN FIRE TRUCK

Ballantrae, Ont., May 2 (CP) — Roy Andrew has achieved the dream of every boy and many a man, he owns a fire engine of his own.

The fire engine lacks glamor, but has something much more important, a 300-gallon tank that makes it the most effective fire-fighting machine for miles around. Residents of this district, 30 miles north of Toronto, feel safer since Andrew tinkered and traded his way into possession of the essentials for the truck. Andrew, who is a storekeeper, township auditor and service station operator, made the fire truck himself.

Kiwanis Club Celebrates Goodwill Week at Luncheon

Two New Members Initiated and New Directors Appointed to Vacancies

SECRETARY LEAVES

International Good Will Week in Kiwanis was celebrated by the local club on Tuesday at the Queens Hotel with the committee in charge of International Affairs being in charge of the program of which Jack McVeigh is chairman. A number of incidents tended to make this day memorable in the history of the club. With Bill Anderson, president of the club presiding for the first part of the meeting, Dr. Reg Anderson and Charles Richardson of the National Cash Register Company were introduced as new members in the club by Dr. "Dick" Flynn and Eddie Logan respectively, while Harold Seldon initiated the members into the club and George Griffin presented the buttons.

This was the last official act of Secretary George Griffin, who has been the efficient go-between of the officers and members of the club for the past eighteen years, a position held longer than any other secretary of a Kiwanis Club in Canada. George simply grew up with the club serving as President for one year and then being transferred to his present post. George is taking on new responsibilities with the Express Association having been appointed as Inspector over all lines east of Port Arthur and leaves to take up his new duties in Toronto on Monday. Everyone in the club is sorry to see George leave but Toronto will be the gainer and the Kiwanis Club in that city will be the richer for a real live member. The club bestowed on George an Honorary Life-Membership in the Belleville Club, an honor conferred upon very few in Canada.

A New Secretary

Due to the relinquishing of the post, Bill Anderson announced that Bruce Lattimer had accepted the position of secretary and the past secretary endowed Bruce with his pin of office. The appointment is a popular one with the club and there is no doubt that Bruce will give efficient service in his new post. Bill Cook and George Forhan were named Directors of the unexpired terms of Herb Muir and Bruce Lattimer. Dr. "Dick" Flynn, past president of the club will take over the chairmanship of the Inter-Club Committee in place of Eddie Shapiro, who vacated on account of being away so much.

The members were shown a sample of the work done by the Kiwanian Queens in their war effort. A large box ready for shipment to Red Cross headquarters in Toronto was closely inspected by the members and it was seen that the good ladies of the Kiwanis Club are sincere and very efficient in their endeavors. P. C. MacLaurin spoke on International Good Will Week over a table decorated with flags of Canada and the United States and after the members had heartily sung "The Star Spangled Banner" and "God Save the King" and a toast proposed to the President, Franklin D. Roosevelt and His Majesty King George VI. at the conclusion of the luncheon "My Country 'Tis of Thee" and "O Canada" were sung. Mr. MacLaurin stated that Kiwanis only took into membership those countries, which were based on great fundamental principles. Each believes in a Creator, there is a God and a future beyond. He read letters of peace from many clubs in the United States and Jack McVeigh told the members 25 letters had been sent out to clubs in the United States.

Mr. Anthony Cekato of Frankford, was the principal speaker and was introduced by Jim Barclay, chairman of the Program Committee and Kiwanian appreciation was voiced by J. O. Herity. The speaker talked on European and American Nationalism and said in part:

"If you speak about the abstract, and Nationalism is one of the greatest Abstracts, it is recommended to say at first, a definition. A great trouble in our time came from the fact that we are living in the century of abstracts, which nobody understands in the same meaning.

"The Man in the Stone Age, "Pithecamthropus Erectus" suffered from the Pterodactylus, and other beasts which he, at least, has seen. But what is Nationalism, Socialism, Capitalism, Nazism, Fascism. "I will stop to save you from hundreds of other such isms of which you are not aware, but which are common in Europe. An American author, Stuart Chase, has written a book about the danger of these abstracts. The people are living among them as amongst Gorgons without shapes—laying in them all their desires, hopes and faiths and losing, therefore, in the end everything because of the loss of their common sense—the first foundation of the thought—clarity.

"Well, what now is Nationalism—who has created it and what is the difference between the Nationalisms of today?

"I think the first step to Nationalism we shall find in the Bible—better say in the human pride and ambitions to achieve what is unachievable. You will understand, perhaps, what I mean—the building of the Tower of Babel, of course, it ends with the confusing of languages. And here you have the first explanation between Nationalism in Europe and this on the North American Continent. As you know, there are about 31 different nations with different languages in Europe, and the space of the whole of Europe is not much larger than the space of Canada.

"A student of the Bible, who is also a student of Sociology will understand the handwriting and signs on the wall in the life of a nation when the language of this nation is not going to be understood by the others. If you study it a little more carefully you will find how these new abstracts and isms in the language are connected with the most proud projects, ideas and promises for the salvation of the people from all the troubles under the sun, and if you look into history you will find, to your surprise, that this period is preceding the period of flaming and fighting Nationalism.

Not Satisfied With Own

"This second type of Nationalism which is not known on this continent is not satisfied with its own, and is always mixed with the ambition to solve all the people of the world. There is a proverb in German about this and I have tried to translate it with all its poetry in verse, but I am afraid that it was not possible to catch the full meaning. It is something like: "If you will not be my brother in full, I am sorry but I must break your skull." As you see some nations in the last years were very busy teaching this national message. The Japs to the Chinese, the Italians to the Yugo-Slavs and Abyssinia and Germany to all her neighbours.

They have started with intent to teach it to the British and Frenchmen, who have reached the third stage of Nationalism, and that is one of the reasons why we are at war.

"The majority of the European nations have passed through all these three periods of Nationalism, and have lived in considerable happiness and with great understanding for the minority. That is, too, one of the reasons why Great Britain has waited so long. There was an opinion in that country that the events of the last few years in Germany were the signs of growing Nationalism, of making the German nation from the different German tribes, as it was in the 19th century by the Italians.

"According to this British theory, Germans were the last great people in Europe, who were not united into a nation. Lord Lothian, especially, has supported this theory explaining how the English and French speaking people grow into nations by internal struggles and revolutions.

Started by Napoleon

He was partly right. There was a process as it was in England and France of the making of national unity in Germany, but this process was not the result of individual struggle of the German soul. This process was started by Napoleon after the defeat of Prussia and accelerated, especially in Versailles.

The British and French Nationalism was born in the struggle of the individual of a man for freedom. The desire for the freedom was the foundation for the American Nationalism and Canadian Nationalism too. This adult kind of Nationalism, the strongest because of rooting in the heart-free will of the individual was never achieved in Germany.

It is not a chance that on the American continent has grown the clubs as the Kiwanis and Rotary, with their spirit for tolerance and cooperation. These clubs are the product of the highest form of Nationalism, as well as the fruit of the same on your thousands of miles frontier without the guns your free movement over! Your free exchange of ideas, your economical cooperation! Because you enjoyed the blessing of this nationalism for generations, some of the people think that it is gratis. It is not. It prevailed only by the daily struggle of the individual for freedom. Economical freedom by working, spiritual freedom by thinking and by tolerance. There was said about Bismarck, that he has made Germany great, and the German small. The world is looking to this continent for a better message.

BRITISH BOMBER SCORES HIT ON NAZI TRANSPORT SHIP

Evidence of the successful raid by British bombers, a 10,000-ton German transport ship is seen belching clouds of smoke after being hit by a bomb from an R.A.F. Lockheed Hudson bomber while unloading troops and supplies off Bradgo Island, Norway. The island is near the town of Kristiansand, which the Germans bombed early in their war against Norway. This spectacular picture was taken from one of the R.A.F. bombers participating in the raid.

SCENE OF HEAVY FIGHTING BETWEEN ALLIES AND GERMANS IN NORWAY

A view of part of the town of Lillehammer and part of Lake Mjosen, on the shores of which German invaders and Norse defenders are reported locked in a stubborn battle. Lillehammer is to the northwest of Hamar and Elverum, where Germans and the Norse-British forces are battling. The Germans claim to have taken both those towns, but in a following announcement the German high command announced their aircraft had bombed and machine-gunned Elverum—something they obviously would not have done were it in their possession.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

The military situation in southern Norway is at a critical stage but whatever way the tide of battle turns in the next few days hard fighting is in prospect for months to come.

With the Germans consolidating their hold on the southern part of the country by linking their force at Trondheim with their main army at Oslo which enjoys more or less secure communciation with the Reich through Denmark, the task of the Allies in ejecting them becomes more difficult.

On the other hand the Germans still are far from ejecting the Allied forces from southern Norway or so establishing their control over it as to make it easy to launch submarine and air attacks on the British Isles and on Allied shipping from Norwegian bases.

That, apparently, was their main purpose in invading the country. To prevent it is one of the main purposes of the Allied expedition to Norway. Thus even if the present German operations effectively forestall any Allied offensive against Trondheim the struggle in southern Norway will continue unabated with more and more troops coming into action.

Despite the advantage enjoyed by the Germans in air power they have not succeeded in preventing the landing of Allied forces. And as more Allied forces arrive the Germans must bring in more in order to hold their positions and work towards their objective of undisputed domination of Norway.

London Says Withdrawal From Andalsnes, Port South of Trondheim, Not Preliminary to a General Retreat

(By J. F. Sanderson Canadian Press Staff Writer).

London May 3 (CP Cable)—British forces are still fighting in Norway and there is no disposition to regard this theatre of war as a military sideshow, it was emphasized at the War Office today.

At Narvik the Allied forces are closing in on the German garrison but there is still no definite news of this part of the Allied land operations.

After the evacuation of southern Norway through Andalsnes, the Norwegian commander who had been directing Norwegian operations in this area transferred his Long range forecasting! Despite skepticism among some scientists regarding the feasibility of forecasting the weather for more than 48 hours, others are always pounding at the problem and a few are actually issuing forecasts. There are several avenues of approach to this problem. One which seems promising is to study the intensity of zonal circulation (that is, circulation at various latitudes) and the displacements of the semi-permanent areas of low pressure areas over Iceland and the Aleutian Islands, and of semi-permanent high-pressure areas over Asia, the Pacific and the Azores, and connecting up these data with the weather for the next five or seven days

PLAN TO QUESTION 16 SURVIVORS

Private Hearing Information Will be Forwarded to Dep't. of Transport

Midland, Ont., May 3—(CP)—Plans to question in camera the 16 survivors of the sunken freighter Arlington were made by officials of the Federal Department of Transport today as the rescue steamer Collingwood neared this Georgian Bay port.

Captain F. S. Slocombe of Toronto, supervising examiner of Masters and Mates in the Inland Waters Division of the Department, said no press statement would be issued after a preliminary inquiry in the Midland Town Hall. Information gathered at the private hearing will be forwarded to Ottawa, where a decision will be made upon whether a formal inquiry is to be held.

Newspapermen were not allowed on the property of the Canada Steamship Lines, owners of the Collingwood, near the hour of the expected arrival of the rescue ship, which picked up the 16 crew members from lifeboats when the Arlington sank with her master, Captain Fred Burke, in Lake Superior Wednesday.

DROWNED CAPTAIN ONCE SAVED TWO

Lake Sailors Recall Deed of Heroism by Fred Burke of Midland

Midland, Ont., May 3—(CP)—Lake sailors of this Georgian Bay port recalled today how Captain Fred Burke of Midland, who went down with the freighter Arlington when she sank in Lake Superior Wednesday, once saved the lives of two of his crew who were trapped in a sinking boat.

In the fall of 1924 the Glen Orchy, owned by the late James Playfair and with Burke as master, was crashed by the Leonard B. Miller of the Columbia Steamship Company off Harbor Beach, Mich., and sank within nine minutes. The bow of the Glen Orchy was demolished and two men sleeping in the forward cabins were imprisoned by a jammed door.

Saving of Two of Crew

Burke, ordering his crew to the lifeboats, noticed two were missing. He refused to leave the ship and started a search. Discovering the plight of the two, he seized an axe and chopped a hole through to them while standing knee-deep in water.

The captain and one of the men, wheelsman Ward White of Midland, carried the other sailor, who was injured, to the deck. He was taken aboard the Leonard B. Miller, which stood by.

Then Burke motioned White off the fast-sinking craft and followed him—the last man to leave the ship.

R. A. F. CARRY OUT HEAVY ATTACKS ON GERMAN BASES

ALL AIRCRAFT SAFE

Danish Field at Ry, Used by Germany as Base for Norway, is Successfully Attacked

London, May 3 (CP)—The Air Ministry announced today that Royal Air Force planes had carried out heavy attacks on German air bases in Denmark and Norway.

The Ministry also anonunced that R.A.F. planes drove invading aircraft off the southeast coast of England today.

The statement said:

"The large Danish air field known as Ry lying in open country on the shore of Lake Salten Langso in north Jutland, is known to be extensively used by the enemy in connection with operations by the enemy in Norway.

"This air base has been heavily and successfully bombed by Royal Air Force aircraft.

"The attacks began yesterday evening and continued during the night.

"A daylight attack was made on Stavanger (Norway) and both this base and Fornebu (airport outside Oslo) also were bombed during the night.

"Numerous R.A.F. aircraft were engaged throughout yesterday in providing protection against air attack for the convoy transporting British military forces from Andalsnes.

"No British aircraft was lost in any of these operations."

Midland, Ont., May 3 (CP)—Captain Fred Burke died a hero's death when his vessel, the Arlington, sank in a storm on Lake Superior Wednesday morning, the Canadian Press was told today by one of the sixteen surviving crew members.

"He stuck in the wheelhouse guilding the ship while the rest of us took to the lifeboats," said Francis (Fat) Swales, 17 year-old deckhand and a Midland hockey star. "He couldn't have had much chance to save himself, for the ship went down within twenty minutes of the time I was roused from my berth and told to get to a boat."

Tales of Beatings With Knotted Rope Told Montreal Police by Young Girl

Montreal, May 3 (CP). — Police said Thursday they had arrested a man and his wife on charges of sequestration, assault with intent to maim and robbery with violence, arising from a story told them by a 23-year-old girl.

In a statement to police, the girl told a tale of beatings with a knotted rope, steel heels and straps while being held prisoner by the couple for nearly 24 hours in a house on Beaudry street, in downtown Montreal.

Police quoted the girl as saying she went to the house with the man on Tuesday evening after meeting him in a night club. Once inside the house, she said, the man and woman attacked her and stripped off her clothes, which were burned, along with her purse, ring, watch and other articles.

The girl claimed she was beaten and punched repeatedly, tied to the foot of the bed on which the couple slept and forced to wash floors and make up beds. When she asked for something to eat, the girl told police, she was given "an old pair of shoes to chew upon."

The girl said she was given a cheap dress and an old pair of shoes Wednesday and released from the house with a threat of death if she divulged any of the occurrences.

A detective said that police visited the house and found among stove ashes a ring bearing the girl's initials, a compact and lip stick and clothing buttons.

He declined to reveal the names of the girl or the couple. The man and his wife will be arraigned in court today.

GIVING LIE TO GERMAN PROPAGANDISTS

Giving the lie to German propagandists, that there is a food shortage in London, this casual picture in one of the English chain stores, shows just the opposite to be the case. Eggs are plentiful, in fact, and British consumers are being urged to buy them.

Norwegian Troops in Western Norway Being Demobilized States the German High Command

Berlin, May 3—(AP)—The German high command today claimed Norwegian troops were being demobilized in western Norway and that "pacification" was being accomplished rapidly since the British withdrawal from Andalsnes, landing point which the Germans have taken over.

The Germans announced that the Allied troops are closing in on Narvik.

The high command's communique said:

"After the last British troops evacuated the Andalsnes region and the city itself was in German hands, the pacification of all Norway is making rapid progress.

"The demobilization of Norwegian troops in west Norway is proceeding. German cleanup troops are meeting resistance only at isolated spots from dispersed Norwegian units who are without knowledge of the situation in general.

"The enemy remained quiet north of Trondheim.

"Enemy forces were slowly advancing toward our positions north and southwest of Narvik. Attacks were repelled by our patrols.

"German naval forces, successfully continuing a submarine hunt in the Skagerrak, destroyed two additional U-boats.

"As reported in a special announcement the Air Force May 1 succeeded in dispersing an enemy naval unit with the certainty that one airplane carrier and one destroyer and probably a second airplane carrier were hit by bombs of medium calibre and two enemy chasers shot down.

(There was no report in London that any aircraft carriers had been touched.)

"The Air Force on May 2 again raided enemy forces. One cruiser was severely damaged by two square hits forward. The effects of bombs on a second cruiser were not observed in detail because of fog and one larger transport ship was sunk by two square hits of medium calibre.

(The claims of damage to cruisers likewise was not confirmed in London.)

"Several airports in Norway and Denmark were bombed by the British without success.

"No special events on the western front."

The morning newspapers devoted practically all their front pages to the taking over of Andalsnes boasting that Allied resistance had been smashed.

Similar optimism was expressed in foreign office circles. A spokesman voiced the opinion that the withdrawal from Andalsnes, in which large quantities of war supplies were said by Germans to have been left behind, was only the beginning, and that "the rest of Norway will soon be abandoned by the Allies."

Admiralty Congratulates Personnel of Airforce for Manner in Which Attacks Have Been Made on the Enemy

RECORD OF PAST WEEK

London, May 3—(CP)—The Admiralty issued a communique today stating that its air arm had inflicted "severe losses" on German aircraft in Norway and that "the most vigorous attacks have been pressed home against vital German bases, transports and supply ships."

The statement said:

"We are proud of the fleet air arm. A message of congratulation in these words has been signalled to officers and men of the fleet air arm who for the past week have been taking part in sustained and large scale operations in Norway during which they have achieved the most brilliant success.

"Severe losses have been inflicted on enemy aircraft attempting to

ALLIED MOVE SEEN AS PRESSURE ON ITALIAN GOV'T

England and France Want Italy to Clarify Her "Non-Belligerent" Status

WAR NOT EXPECTED

(By Charles H. Guptill, Associated Press Writer)

Rome, May 3—(AP)—Reinforcement of the Allied naval power in the Mediterranean was seen today as a move toward applying pressure on Italy for clarification of her "non-belligerent" status.

The Allied action, announced yesterday by Prime Minister Chamberlain, left Italians outwardly calm. While Fascist spokesmen claimed Italy is prepared to act the moment Premier Mussolini should give the order, observers saw some evidence that that day is not looked for immediately.

With the liner Rex en route to New York and other crack Italian liners on the high seas, they considered a sudden move is unlikely.

Anxiety in some quarters, however, was heightened last night

NO CABINET CRISIS LIKELY DESPITE HARSH CRITICISM

Observers Believe Cabinet Will Face Severe Test When Inquiry Begins Next Tuesday

RESERVE JUDGMENT

Press and Public Although Critical, Willing to Await a Fuller Report by Churchill and Prime Minister

London, May 3—(CP)—Critics of Prime Minister Chamberlain's Government were given scant chance by diplomatic observers today of precipitating a cabinet crisis over the British withdrawal from southern Norway.

At the same time it was predicted the cabinet would face a severe test when the House of Commons begins an inquiry next Tuesday into reasons for the Allied failure to prevent the Germans from establishing a hold on Norway as far north as Trondheim.

Mr. Chamberlain's announcement yesterday that the Allied battle fleet was moving into the eastern Mediterranean allayed somewhat the feeling of some members of parliament and the public that the blow to British military prestige in Norway might encourage Italy to enter the war on Germany's side.

Press and public generally reserved judgment on the government's conduct of the war pending a fuller report next week by the Prime Minister and Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty.

John West, Charged With Carrying Air Pistol and Sheath Knife With Felonious Intent

MEDICAL EXAMINATION

London, May 3 (CP)—A man arrested for bearing arms at London's Euston Station last night shortly before the King and Queen arrived there from Lancashire was sent to jail today for a week pending submission of a medical report on his case.

The man, John West, 38, an engineer, was charged with carrying an air pistol and a sheath knife "with intent to commit a felonious act."

West was arrested shortly before the King and Queen arrived from a tour of arms factories in Lancashire. A crowd had gathered at the station to welcome Their Majesties.

Aerial Attacks on Moving Warships 'Complete Failure'

British Airplanes Have Proven Their Technical Superiority Over Germany's—Planes of Value Against Submarines

CONVOYS FOIL ATTACKS

Italy's Submarine Navy is Reported to Consist of 106 Completed and 23 Building

London, May 3—(CP)—British naval experts, surveying the first eight months of war, today expressed belief Germany's submarines had been "mastered" and that air attacks on warships had proved a "complete failure" except where the ships were stationary.

In view of new tension in the Mediterranean addition interest was aroused by the assertion that Italy with 106 submarines completed and 23 building has the world's strongest undersea fleet but for "the reputed exception of Russia."

Writing in the authoritative Brassey's Naval Annual, the experts said that the German submarine menace had been "mastered" far more quickly than in the last war and that British airplanes had proved their technical superiority over Germany's .

Plane Valuable Against Subs

The Annual, published today, said air attacks on warships had been "a complete failure" except where vessels were stationary, and that the activities of the German pocket battleships Deutschland and Admiral Graf Spee had proved the "inadequacy" of surface attacks on shipping

At the same time, it said, the airplane had proved to be of value against submarines.

The publication recorded completion of the two 35,000-ton Italian battleships Littorio and Vittorio Veneto, armed with nine 15-inch guns as compared with 10 14-inch guns of the five British battleships of the same tonnage now being put into commission.

The annual added that "rapid progress" was being made on Italy's third and fourth ships of this same class and that old battleships were being reconstructed and modernized.

Dr. Herbert Rosinski, a former lecturer at the German military academy, wrote that wholesale attacks on Allied shipping convoys had been planned as the "centrepiece" of Germany's entire strategy.

German Strategy Fails

He said the strategy had completely failed to materialize, though it had promised, by combining surface attacks with submarine activity, better success than strategy of the last war which ultimately failed because of inadequate support.

By concentrating the full strength of submarine, surface and air strength on merchantmen, Germany planned to strike "not against superior strength but weakness, and not for illusory military advantage but for the real aim of naval warfare—control of communications," Rosinski said.

ITALIAN FORCES IN DODECANESE ISLANDS, REPORT

Athens Hear Troops, Warships, Fighting Planes, Concentrated in East Mediterranean

FORCES AT RHODES

Premier of Egypt Yesterday Said There Was No Occasion for Immediate Alarm

Athens, Greece, May 3—(AP)—Information reaching diplomatic quarters in Athens today said that Italian troops, warships and fighting planes are being concentrated in large numbers in the Dodecanese Islands in the eastern Mediterranean.

The Dodecanese Islands are an Italian-owned group in the Aegean between Greece and Turkey approximately 400 miles airline northwest of Alexandria, where a British and French battle fleet concentrated today.

The Italian concentrations were reported especially heavy at the Island of Rhodes, 375 miles from Alexandria.

Allied Naval Forces

Diplomatic observers said that the information, if confirmed, would explain the action of the Allies in moving naval strength into the eastern Mediterranean as well as extraordinary defence measures recently taken in Egypt.

(Under emergency measures taken throughout Egypt, army and police leaves were cancelled yesterday and all strategic points were placed under armed guard. Premier Aly Maher Pasha conferred with British Ambassador Sir Miles Lampson and defence chiefs and then stated that while the situation was serious there "is no occasion for immediate alarm.")

Diplomatic reports said there were between 50,000 and 55,000 Italian troop reinforcements already in the Dodecanese to strengthen the regular garrisons.

Brooklyn Street Cleaner Will Swap White Cap For Gleaming Mitre

New York, May 3 (AP).—On Sunday, to the strains of Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus" a 38-year-old Brooklyn street cleaner will swap his white wings cap for a gleaming mitre and be consecrated as a Bishop of the Church of God.

On week days, he will continue his broom-pushing in the Brownsville section where he has swept streets for the last twelve years.

The new supreme authority over four hundred Italian-speaking Protestant churches is Rev. Eustachio Paolicelli who came to the United States from Italy in 1915 and worked as a bootblack and newsboy before joining the Department of Sanitation.

"Why shouldn't a Bishop clean the streets?" he asked.

"The Apostle Peter was fishing when God called him. Peter didn't have to attend any seminary to win souls. He fished, and I clean streets—happily and proudly, glad that what I have I earn. It gives me spiritual strength, for I know street cleaning is useful, worthwhile work."

Paolicelli, whose name means "Little Paul" in Italian, has been pastor of the Church of God in Brooklyn for several years, with his wife as his Sunday School Superintendent. They have two children.

His authority will cover Italian-speaking churches of the denomination in Canada and all over the United States, South America and Italy.

DRIVER LOSES CONTROL OF CAR

Losing control of the automobile he was driving, 21-year-old Harold Gerow, of the Trenton R.C.A.F. base, sustained severe bruises and lacerations, when the vehicle turned over into the ditch on the south side of Highway No. 2 near the Jones' Creek intersection west of Belleville shortly before midnight last night. It was raining at the time and the pavement was quite slippery. Gerow was proceeding easterly when the car got out of control, struck the soft shoulder on the south side and turned over end for end without breaking the glass windows. The fenders and body were damaged and Gerow was suffering from severe bruises, lacerations and shock, Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Ervine revealed after his investigation. The injured man was removed from the wreckage by an R.C.A.F. officer, who was passing, and was taken to the Belleville General Hospital, where he was attended by Dr. J. R. Lind. Gerow is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gerow of this city.

REPAIRING FENDERS PRINCIPAL WORK

The work of bumping out fenders and bodies of motor cars, that have become dented and twisted in motor accidents, comprises by far the major portion of the work done in local garages equipped to do this work was the opinion formed this morning as the result of a visit to many of the garages in the city. In one garage in particular, mechanics were doing a rushing business in this class of work with no less than seven different men hard at work on fender and body repairs, while only one mechanic was occupied on a motor job.

APRIL BUILDING PERMITS TOTAL $8,450

Building permits issued by the city during the month of April amounted to $8,450, an increase of approximately $5,000 over the corresponding period of a year ago. The greater majority of the permits were taken out for alterations to dwellings and stores.

SATURDAY LAST DAY FOR DEBRIS REMOVAL

Warning that after this week all removals of debris from city properties would be charged to owners, was issued today by the City Public Works Department. For the past three weeks city workmen and trucks have patrolled the city removing accumulated debris from streets and property fronts.

"There are still a few delinquent residents who put off the cleaning of their lawns until the last minute," City Engineer Mott said today, "and while the city has endeavoured to co-operate with residents, we must put down the official foot, and warn these people that the cost of removal must be borne by them after this week."

FOSTER WARD CON. CLUB HOLDS SOCIAL EVENING

Members of the Foster Ward Conservative Club paid tribute to Mr. George H. Stokes, member-elect for the riding of Hastings South last night when they were hosts to a large number of their friends at a euchre and dance held in the Conservative club rooms on Front Street. Cards formed the entertainment during the early part of the evening with a large number of tables in play. Winners of the handsome prizes were: Ladies' division, Mrs. Vanalstine, Mrs. R. Collins and Mrs. D. Bunnett, while the lucky gentlemen were Messrs. Storms, L. Howard and Daverick.

Following the awarding of the prizes the large crowd danced until a late hour.

TRAINED GIRLS FOR HOUSE WORK REPORTED SCARCE

"The only thing rarer than a day in June in Belleville is a trained domestic", Superintendent W. D. Ross of the Employment Office here said today. "We could place at least twenty girls, if they were available, in city homes right now, but the trouble is there are none to be had."

There are plenty of young girls who are willing to work as domestics, but employers are reticent at "breaking them in," Mr. Ross said.

Avonde Orchestra To Open Season at Oak Lake Casino

Oak Lake Casino, one of the district's popular dance spots, opens for the summer season next week. For the opening night the management is featuring one of Canada's outstanding musical organizations, Richard Avonde and his orchestra of 11 artists. This band has attained great popularity throughout Western Ontario, playing at the famed Brant Inn, Port Stanley, Port Dover and for numerous college and club dates during the past two seasons.

"Sweet or Swing—As you like it," is Avonde's answer to dance fans. The management of the Casino really endorse this attraction as an event in the entertainment field.

Rain Forces Farmers To Discontinue Seeding

The intermittent showers which have continued throughout the district since Wednesday evening have forced local farmers to completely discontinue their spring seeding operations. During the early part of the week practically all the land had dried sufficiently to permit cultivation, but farmers in town this morning report that they have been held up since Thursday morning when the land became too wet and sticky to work. If the wet weather continues, and farmers are unable to get their seeding completed soon, it will be one of the latest season's on record, it is pointed out.

GIFTS PRESENTED TO GEO. GRIFFIN

Members of Board of Health Present Desk Set and Lamp to Associate Who is Leaving City

Tangible tribute to a popular chairman was paid by members of the City Board of Health at the regular meeting held in the City Hall last night, when they presented Mr. George H. Griffin with a handsome desk set and electric lamp, before going into the business of the meeting.

Mr. Griffin, Canadian National Express official here, is leaving in the near future for Toronto where he has been appointed Inspector of Traffic Association with jurisdiction over all lines east of Port Arthur.

The presentation was made by Dr. G. S. Cronk, Medical Health Officer for the city, who expressed the appreciation of himself and colleagues of the many years of happy associations enjoyed with Mr. Griffin. Taken completely by surprise, Mr. Griffin expressed his thanks for the handsome gifts, and his regret that circumstances force a severance of the associations enjoyed by himself and members of the board during his tenure as an official.

Mr. Griffin has been a member of the Board of Health for five years, the last three of which he has occupied the chairmanship.

THREE ORDAINED INTO ANGLICAN CHURCH MINISTRY

William L. Simmons of Frankford One of Those Ordained at Picton by Bishop Lyons

GLEE CLUB HEARD

THREE ORDAINED R R(JrS

Picton—Three were ordained into the ministry of the Anglican Church at a service held in the Church of St. Mary Magdalene here Thursday morning. They were Stanley Kerrison of Kingston, William L. Simmons, B. A., of Frankford and William Thomas Boddy, B.A., of Peterborough. All were recent graduates of Wycliffe and Trinity Colleges.

There was a large congregation in attendance, including most of the Anglican ministers of the district. Matins were said at ten o'clock by Rev. M. Cantrell of Milford. During the Ordination service, the litany was sung by Rev. E. N. Grant of Wellington. The preacher was Canon J. D. Paterson, Lth., Rector of All Saints Church, Peterborough.

Canon Paterson spoke from the text 'Now therefore we are all here present before God to hear all things that are commanded thee of God.' He stated these words were inscribed on the pulpit from which he preaches. Canon Paterson stressed the necessity of loyalty on the part of the congregation. 'While it is true the minister makes a congregation, it is also true that a congregation makes a minister,' he said. In worship, he urged an attitude of humility, an attitude of expectancy and an attitude of honor. He pointed out that God alone was the judge of a minister and his work and urged them to preach more of the gospel and less of themselves. He dealt with the essentials of a good minister and said that all power came from God and urged all to keep the Bible open, to spend more time in prayer and to have a listening ear.

Communion and the ordination service were in charge of Rt. Rev. John Lyons, Lord Bishop of the Diocese. Provost Cosgrave of Trinity College, Toronto, read the Epistle and Rev. W. L. Simmons, one of the ordinands, read the Scripture.

Dinner was served to the many clergy from points in the district and others from a distance attending. Judge E. H. McLean extended a welcome, with Bishop Lyons, a former rector of the Picton church, replying.

Glee Club Scores Hit

The Glee Club of Picton Collegiate and Vocational Institute scored a hit with their presentatino of the operetta 'In Old Japan', in the Collegiate Assembly Hall, Thursday night. There was a capacity crowd in attendance. The stage was beautifully arranged with blossoms and a Japanese pagoda, while the school orchestra supplied fitting music. The story revolved around the return of a young Japanese gentleman from Canada where he had been studying. He had learned the customs of the new land and attempted to win his love in the modern manner, but met with difficulties as the parents of the couple desired the marriage to be carried out in the Japanese way with a go between and a contract. In spite of this the lovers managed to meet secretly with the aid of their friends and there was a happy ending.

The chorus, which took part, included the following:

The vocal numbers were arranged by Miss Mildred Caughey, the dramatics by Miss D. Purkis, the stage arrangements by Elmer Huff assisted by Archie Pierce, Mary Gentile, Jack Neer, Betty Scott, Eleanor Goodmurphy, Jack Ward, while the costumes were made by Misses D. Paddon, J. Huddleston, M. Caughey and D. Black.

The orchestra numbers were much appreciated and members of the group were Helen Cahoon, Evelyn Mitchell, Glen Harrison, Muriel Miller, Fred Walden, Eric Bronskill, Joe Pair, Alberta Holmes.

The cast of characters was as follows:—

O Matu San—Daughter of an Aristocratic Family—Helen Yarwood.

A Tano San—A Friend of O Matu San—Dorothy Martin.

O Cho San—A Friend of O Matu San—Eleanor Foster.

Hinai San—Amah or Governess of O Matu San—Theda Anderson.

Mr. Maruyana—Japanese Gentleman Who Has Studied in Canada—John Walton.

Azuchi San—A Friend of Mr. Maruvana—Woodrow Blakely.

O Hara San—A Friend of Mr. Maruyana—Ralph Harrison.

Nonno San—Go-between Who Arranges Marriages—Marian Fraleigh.

Hau San—A Coolie —Joe Pair.

Father of Mr. Maruyana—Borge Kraglund.

Father of O Matu San—Alex Carman.

Girl Cadets.

Our new Girl Cadets are under the splendid leadership of Mr. Harcus. Everyone thinks we are getting along quite well, for the two practices we have had. At the beginning of this new adventure we promised our leader we would honour and obey. With grades IX and X combined we have two companies which make half a battalion. This is absolutely voluntary drill. It is great fun, but will help us in future years if women and girls ever have to fight for their country. Every Monday, Wednesday and Friday we hope to be out on the campus, and we feel so sorry for the people inside the school. There are no officers as yet, but there will be soon because we are progressing quite rapidly.—M. W. S.

OBITUARY

LATE HERBERT M. MOXON
(Picton)

Picton, May 3—The funeral of Herbert M. Moxon, for many years a prominent businessman of the town, was held this afternoon in Glenwood chapel, with Rev. J. B. Creeggan officiating and interment in Glenwood cemetery. Mr. Moxon died shortly after midnight yesterday. He had been confined to Prince Edward County Hospital for the past ten days having fallen and suffered a broken hip.

Born in Picton, 73 years ago, he spent all his life here. His father, John Moxon, started a hardware store here and this was carried on by the son after his father's death in 1909. During the earlier years of his life, he was an employee of the Allison drug store here.

He was a member of the Anglican church and a Conservative. A brother and sister predeceased him. Surviving is a sister, Mrs. A. Horsey of Kingston, who with Mr. Horsey was in attendance at the funeral.

GEORGE ROLLINS
(Ivanhoe)

George Rollins of Ivanhoe, passed away in his sleep between Thursday night and Friday morning. When he retired Thursday night he was apparently in his usual good health and death is said to have been caused by a heart seizure.

The late Mr. Rollins, who was in his 79th. year, was born in Ivanhoe, being a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Rollins. Most of his life was passed in the United States and for some years he lived in Detroit, Mich. Seven years ago he returned to his native place to pass the remainder of his life. He was a member of the United Church and well esteemed in the community. He was a bachelor.

Surviving him are one brother, Mr. Joseph Rollins, Ivanhoe, and one sister, Mrs. Catherine Vinton, Syracuse, N.Y.

The funeral announcement will be made later.

LATE MRS. FRANCES N. TOWNSEND

The funeral of Mrs. Frances Nethery Townsend, widow of John Townsend, who died in Detroit, Mich., on April 30th., took place from the residence of her son, Mr. Frank Townsend, in the second concession of Ameliasburg Township, Prince Edward County, on Thursday afternoon to the Centre United Church where service was conducted by the Rev. W. H. Boomhauer.

Interment was made in Burr's Cemetery. The bearers were Messrs. Clarence Young, Harold Young, Wellington Howell, John Cairns, Roy Giles and Ray Fox.

LATE MRS. WILLIAM H. CURLETTE
(Sidney Township)

Thursday afternoon, May 2nd, the funeral of Mrs. William H. Curlette took place from the family residence in the 7th concession of Sidney Township. The service in home and at the graveside in Guffin's Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. Rural Dean A. Beauchamp Payne, Vicar of St. Thomas Church.

The bearers were Messrs. Leo Ryan, Fred Faulkner, Harry Reid, Lorne Reid, George Spencer and Emery Demille.

MISS HELEN WIGGINS
(Formerly of Marmora)

Marmora (Special)—It was with feelings of deepest regret that news was received in the village on Wednesday evening of the death of Helen Margaret Wiggins, daughter of Mrs. Blanche Wiggins of Toronto and the late Hugh Wiggins. After a long illness, deceased passed away at the family residence 110 Wellesley Street, Toronto.

Several years of her young life were spent in Marmora where her father conducted a grocery business. She was of a bright sunny disposition and made many friends. While resident in Marmora she was a member of St. Paul's Anglican Church and a faithful attendant at St. Paul's Sunday School. Since moving from Belleville to Toronto some years ago, she had frequently spent summer holidays with her mother at their Crowe Lake cottage. Being the only child her mother alone survives her. Funeral services were conducted at the Funeral Home of the Thompson Burial Company, 246 Dupont Street, Toronto at 8 p.m. Interment takes place in Stirling on Friday afternoon with Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell officiating.

FIRE IN LIGHTHOUSE DIFFICULT FOR FIREMEN

Milwaukee, May 3 (AP). — Extinguishing the blaze was easy but getting to it was a problem when fire fighters were called to the Lake Michigan lighthouse here. The blaze was a quarter mile off shore and reachable only by way of a pier lashed by spray and gale-driven snow. The firemen made slow progress carrying equipment along the pier, but made fast work of the fire.

CANADIAN FORCES WILL SOON SHED WINTER UNIFORMS

All Branches of the Service Will be Given Cooler Attire for Summer

SOME WEAR SHORTS

Ottawa, May 3—(CP)—Canadian fighting forces will shed their heavy winter uniforms shortly and don cooler attire for summer so that a June sun won't catch the boys perspiring in clothing meant to keep out January winds.

The Navy leads the way with the first dress concession to warmer weather, but the army and the air force plan to follow soon with hot weather dress order of light khaki cloth.

First gesture of the navy was to order white-topped caps effective May 1 for both seamen and officers. In addition, seamen have discarded their navy blue jerseys, worn under their jumpers, for a white flannel shirt with short sleeves, also worn under the navy blue jumpers.

Seamen have dropped their greatcoats but still wear navy blue trousers and jumpers. In really hot weather they may change to all white uniforms with blue collars at the discretion of the officers, who then also will change to crisp white uniforms.

Summer dress for the air force will be light khaki drill tunics and long trousers of the same pattern as their air force blue, but shorts will be worn by both officers and other ranks when on active duty in the "dog days." Air force blue headgear will be worn, wedge caps for the men and round-topped forage caps for officers.

Summer Style Varies

Summer styles for the army vary somewhat with the nature of the branches of service. Generally, standard summer attire will be sun helmets and a new version of the battle dress, which will be of light khaki denim instead of blouse and trousers of heavy wool.

Here again, soaring temperatures of mid-summer call for special order of dress, and the hot weather kit will be light sun helmets, short-sleeved khaki shirts of cotton, and cool khaki drill shorts with black ankle boots and puttees.

Officers have a wider choice. The general trend is towards serge battle dress for officers, but the present officers' service dress of long trousers and skirted tunic with built-in cloth belt is permissible. A summer version of the service dress will be of lightweight khaki drill, a shade lighter in color than the khaki serge. For general duties, cavalry officers may continue wearing service tunics, breeches and field boots or leggings.

Headgear provides several options. The wedge cap, the round-topped service cap and white or khaki wolsley sun helmets all are permissible. Tank regiment officers may wear their black berets and Irish and Scottish units their tam o'shanters.

While the officers have some latitude in what they will wear for general duties and leisure hours, they must conform to what other ranks are wearing on all training parades for the sake of uniformity.

AIR TRAINING PLAN PRAISED BY J. C. DUNCAN

Deputy Minister of National Defence Speaker to Weekly Newspapers' Executive

PROGRESS MADE

Ottawa, May 3—(CP)— The British Commonwealth Air Training Plan has been established on a solid foundation and "work is proceeding actively, methodically, according to a carefully worked out plan," James S. Duncan, acting Deputy Minister of National Defence for Air Services, said here today.

Making his first public address since assuming his post in the Defence Department three weeks ago, Mr. Duncan, a former Toronto manufacturing executive, spoke to the executive of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers' Association.

"Before taking up my official duties in Ottawa, I heard much talk concerning the fact that the Air Training Plan was not progressing as it should," he said.

"I am glad to be able to say to you, and this most emphatically, that quite to the contrary great progress has been made to date, and that the program is being carried out entirely in accordance with the prescribed and prearranged schedule."

110 Formations in Canada

The plan was founded on the conviction that "it is essential that we attain not only air equality with our enemies but air supremacy—supremacy in men, in aircraft, in equipment, in training and in morale."

It is the greatest single enterprise Canada has ever known and is launched and well underway, Mr. Duncan stated.

Provision has been made for approximately 110 formations and units in the training scheme, which will be established throughout the Dominion, and when the plan is in full operation, more than 40,000 officers, airmen and civilians will be required to man the various schools, equipment depots, repair depots and other units.

"From now on new units will be put into operation almost weekly and these are being located primarily with special regard to service requirements, but also with a view to allocating them as far as possible to each of the provinces of the Dominion.

"As an outsider, who has suddenly been interjected into this branch, I marvel at the work which has been accomplished, at the knowledge and resourcefulness displayed by the vast body of carefully selected officers operating under the outstanding leadership of Air Vice-Marshal G. M. Croil, Chief of Air Staff."

Photographs Purporting to Show Canadian Troops in Norway Actually Snapped at Camp Borden

London, May 3—(CP)—Publication in United States and Canadian newspapers of photographs purporting to show Canadian troops in Norway—but actually snapped last winter at Camp Borden, Ont., today climaxed two weeks of persistent but false reports that regular Canadian units are fighting in Scandinavia. The reports have been authoritatively denied both at Ottawa and London.

The tip-off on the photograph which showed the troops allegedly front-bound was the license plate on the truck carrying the soldiers. It looked suspiciously like the regular Ontario license plate.

A check-up by the Canadian Press with military authorities here disclosed that the only Ontario license plate on any vehicle with the Canadian Active Service Force overseas is on the automobile of Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton, General Officer commanding the 1st Division.

Admitted Photos Not Authentic

In New York, The New York Times, which published the photographs, admitted that it had subsequently established they were not authentic, but apparently had been taken at Camp Borden during the winter and represented as coming from Norway. The Times captioned the photographs: "Canadian troops on snow-covered battlefields of Norway." One of them showed white-clad fighters on skiis with one of their tanks. The other showed a group of chilled-looking soldiers in the truck.

The legend of the presence of Canadians on the Norwegian battlefronts was born almost on the day when British troops landed in Norway on April 14 and gradually grew to fantastic form. By April 23 an American news agency's London correspondent said he had learned that men of a well-known Canadian regiment had already landed in Norway. From the outset the Canadian Press stayed with its original report that all Canadian units were still at Aldershot.

Never Confirmed

Reuters News Agency and Havas News Agency carried unconfirmed reports that Canadians were with the British Expeditionary Force in Norway. The British Broadcasting Corporation announced that it "now is officially confirmed that Canadian troops are with the British and French forces in Norway."

In quoting these reports, The Canadian Press pointed out that the War Office was not confirming them and that if there were Canadians they would be either volunteers or members of British units.

On April 23 Robert Rieffel, Havas correspondent, reached the northern front and reported that Canadian ski toops were participating with French Alpine chasseurs. Rieffel's later stories indicated the Canadians he mentioned were individuals enlisted in the British forces.

Also on April 23 the London correspondent of an American News Agency definitely stated he had learned that troops from a regiment "one of the most famous in the Dominion's great war history" were landed in Norway "yesterday and today." No such report was carried by The Canadian Press or its ally, The Associated Press.

Denied by Minister

On April 24 at Ottawa, Hon. C. G. Power, Acting Defence Minister, said that "overses press reports to the contrary notwithstanding, there are no Canadian troops operating in Norway."

In London an official announcement stated: "Reports have appeared in the press that Canadian units are fighting in Norway. It is authoritatively stated in London that these reports are incorrect although there may be individual Canadians serving in the B.E.F. in Norway."

Coincident with the official denials, Germany claimed that Canadians had been taken prisoner on Norway fronts.

Possibility that the Princess Pats Canadian Light Infantry might be in action in Norway was indicated when a resident of Albuquerque, N.M., said he had been advised his son, enlisted in the P.P.C.L.I., had been killed in Norway. A check-up by The Canadian Press showed the soldier paraded that day at Aldershot.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking the last end of his first cigar and proberly thinking about lighting the first end of his 2nd, and ma said, Here's a little knott in one corner of my hankerchiff, Willyum.

Who do you suppose did it, the Brownies? pop said. It's to remind myself of something, but what? Can you think of anything special that I'd be likely to want to remind myself of, Willyum? she said.

Well, let me see, maybe you intended to write a letter to the paper inquiring whether something cant be done about the sparrows chirping so early in the morning, and if you hadn't intended to, I wish you would, by the way, pop said, and ma said, Now Willyum something of that nature might be practical in Germany or Russia, but certainly not in a free country such as this. Maybe I intended to remind myself to buy something, she said.

It would be the first time, pop said. Maybe you intended to remind yourself to adopt a couple of childern, he said, and ma said, I hardly think I'd of waited till I was a double grandmother for that. I've just ballanced all my arrears in correspondence, so it cant be to remind myself to answer a letter, she said.

9 chances out of 10 it was to remind yourself to have a gigantic mess of liver and onions steaming for me when I get home tomorrow evening, pop said and ma said, Nothing could be further out of the question, seeing that liver and onions was the menu this evening. But just a same you've given me the clue, it was to remind myself to be sure to remind you to try to adjust the vacuum cleaner. The idea of driving the scent of onions out of the house naturelly leads to the thought of driving the dust out of carpits. You better do it now, Willyum, before you get any more comfortable, she said.

Horse blanket to blazes, that's the last time I'll ever try to be funny, pop said.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN'S STATEMENT ON NORWAY

Prime Minister Chamberlain gave light on the situation in Norway when he unfolded some of the facts on Thursday. That the British south of Trondheim had withdrawn successfully and without the loss of a single man was not only a great achievement but it shows why the lips of the Prime Minister had been kept closed until the manoeuvre was completed. He set before the people the fact that although the British found it advisable to abandon the attempt to capture Trondheim from the south, the war in Norway has been only in its initial phase and that if the British have not achieved their objective, neither had the Germans succeeded in achieving theirs. In fact, the balance of advantage lies up to the present with the Allied forces in Norway, he declared. That is cheering news.

The German losses to their fleet have been so heavy as to alter the entire balance of naval power so that readjustments have become possible, such as the increasing of the strength of the Mediterranean fleets of Britain.

Mr. Chamberlain emphasized the long term strategy which must not be forgotten as the way which leads to victory. Britain is resolute. Norway is not conquered and will not be a side-show, he said, and at the same time Britain is not going to allow herself to be led into a trap of dispersing her forces.

The British Prime Minister spoke of the heroic work of the British force in Norway and of the brilliant feat of the withdrawal at Andalsnes.

He also laid heavy words upon the carefully planned treachery of Germany against her neighbors in Denmark and Norway and hinted that Germany might exert her force against Holland or Belgium or hurl her savage hordes against those in southeast Europe. Or their plans might include a lightning swoop on Britain or a large scale attack on the West Front.

Britain will not fail, he promised, to seize every opportunity as she has done, and shall continue to do in Norway, to inflict damage on the foe.

Looming out of the address is the understanding of the fact that Germany had long and carefully planned the invasion of Denmark and Norway in contravention of every international rule.

In the speech of Mr. Chamberlain the world had the sight of a great Empire and a great democracy being consulted by the Prime Minister. Through it ran a careful reticence of course lest some information of value should reach the enemy and the British, French and Norwegian lives be endangered. Mr. Chamberlain remarked how German disregard for individual human life had figured in the invasion of Norway. It had, he said, been possible for the enemy "with their usual disregard of life, even of their own people, to send reinforcements to Norway at a much greater rate than the Allies" who possessed inadequate landing places. But there was no walkover in Norway as Germany expected, thanks to the defence of the Norwegians and the Allies.

In other areas of the war in Norway there was nothing new to report.

MAYOR USES BROOM IN PARK

Those who litter streets after property owners and city employees have done their best to keep them clean should be a little more thoughtful about what they throw on the streets, paper wrappings, little cardboard containers, and such like litter. The receptacles on the main street of the business section are placed where they are fo rthe conveniences of citizens, and on other streets there likewise seems no need of throwing away refuse paper. It might well be carried home and put with the garbage.

New York City put on an act a few days ago. Mayor La Guardia, other officials and pretty show girls were shown handling brooms in Times Square. They did not long carry on, as the mayor had a cold and the show girls gave up sweeping to take to dancing as the Sanitation Department band began to play.

It is believed the little drama of the cleanup will improve even the clean streets of the city of New York. Yet the mayor and the others realize that even New Yorkers needed a little education in disposing of litter.

A New York Times writer remarks "Some of us haven't learned that the streets are everybody's front yard and that it is beneath nobody's dignity to put newspapers, gum wrappers and miscellaneous refuse in the receptacles conveniently provided for them. It's time we did learn, not only in the show business places but in the back streets where most of us live."

Everyone will agree with the truth of this remark. But still some will disregard advice and drop pieces of paper which will blow into someone's hedge to be lodged against the low branches of the bushes, there to anger the householder who has done his best to keep his lawn clean.

That little drama in New York may help to draw attention to the value of cleanliness on the streets.

INTEREST IN HOMES OF PIONEERS

Referring to an editorial in the Ontario Intelligencer on the fine old homes in Ontario with particular reference to the Barnum house west of Grafton, the Woodstock Sentinel-Review say sthat "some months ago the Architectural Conservancy asked the Sentinel-Review for information regarding the older houses of this district, and it was understood that a number of these would be studied. In Western Ontario, there are few if any localities that possess more interesting specimens of 80 to 100 years ago than Woodstock and district. Partial dismantling of the Admiral Vansittart residence in Blandford a couple of years ago brought to attention some architectural characteristics of the great homes of its day. Old Country families settling in Oxford in the early part of last century erected a number of large and substantial residences on extensive lands, and with exception of 'Lyte's Cary' west of the city, former home of Colonel Light, a majority of them remain today, though in some cases altered. It is to be hoped that detailed descriptions of some, at least, may be included in the publications of the Conservancy."

The editorial in the Sentinel-Review is a proof that there is a wide interest in the architecture of the great houses of Ontario about a century ago.

This is a happy sign that architecture is more and more attracting attention of the people of this Province as it grows older and more and more settled and developed.

Cuba's Sleepy Batabano

(By Temple Manning)

The little places off the beaten track are receiving a big play today. Forty miles by winding highway out of Havana there's one of those big little spots that is getting attention. This is Batabano. Headquarters of the largest sponge fishing fleet in the West Indies, Batabano feels that its luck has changed. The fishing fleet is beginning to do well and visitors are flocking to the lovely little town. The trip is well worth it.

Twenty miles after leaving the centre of Havana the highway begins its twisting course that leads to Batabano. Forests of royal palms sparkle in the sun, and there are gardens just ablaze with tropical flowers and plants that perfume the air. Along the road are native bohio huts, made of palms, with thatched roofs that provide primitive but sturdy protection from the elements.

Batabano, like most Cuban towns seems to drowse in the sun. But there's plenty doing, especially in the sponge factories. It is a very interesting process, this seeing a sponge through from the time it is brought ashore until it is sorted, dried and bleached to the golden cleanliness of bathside duty.

The waters of Batabano Bay, which connects with the Caribbean are unbelievable in their turquoise beauty, a striking foil to the white sails of the sponge-fishing boats as they come and go. Less than two miles off shore one finds the schools of fighting marlin. While quality folks go out in comfortable power boats, natives endeavor to hook the fish on a hand line. Friends who are down there tell us that sometimes the natives turn in the better job.

When not out after marlin or strolling around the two miles of waterfront, it is nice to watch the pretty town and the tropical waters from the tiled roofs of the hotels. It is a sleepy spot, soothing and tranquil, which is perhaps why it is beginning to attract visitors.

In Cuba's Batabano.

Impressive Drive

Let them talk about European travel thrills and the beauty of the Corniche along the Riviera There is nothing in Europe to compare with the drive back to Havana in the approaching dusk. Everywhere there is the eerie feeling of the jungle, the overhanging trees, the heavy foliage that seems to blot out almost all signs of life. The wind whistles through the majestic royal palms as they sway in the light of the setting sun.

But the jungle feeling is dispelled as a bus loaded with country folk whizzes by. Soon houses appear and lights become more frequent, and then, suddenly, approaching a rise in the road, the lights of Havana gleam in the tropical night. In the distance is the illuminated dome of Cuba's Capitolio, on Central Park in Havana. The jungle, the wilderness, is left behind, and the brilliant life of a metropolis takes its place, a dramatic conclusion to a visit to a sleepy spot off the beaten track.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

CAUSE OF IRRITABLE BOWEL OR UNSTABLE COLON

It is rather hard for the average individual to understand what is true when a manufacturer of health foods states that the large bowel or intestine should have three movements a day—one after each meal—and a high authority who has given the intestine extensive study, state that a bowel movement twice a week may be all that is necessary to maintain health.

It is said that as a nation we have become "bowel conscious" and believe that unless the bowel moves once or twice a day something should be done about it. The result is that thousands, hundreds of thousands in fact, have disordered bowel or colon action, unstable colon, the symptoms of which vary considerably.

Dr M. C. Morrison, London, Ont., in the Canadian Medical Association Journal states that the colon may have too much or not enough tone, so that in some places it will be of small calibre and in others large, so that it looks like the inner tube of a tire with large bulges at different points.

The symptoms of unstable colon or irritable colon include gas distension, or passing of much gas. There is distress in the abdomen with or without shifting, cramplike pains. "Headache, nausea, and vomiting are reported in a considerable percentage, while weight loss, dizziness, early fatigue and loss of appetite are not uncommon symptoms. Nearly all the patients describe abnormal tools, ribbonlike, in sections, dry, watery, or with mucous." The outstanding symptom however, is their intense belief that they "must" have a daily movement or serious consequences will follow.

Dr. Morrison suggests that much time, money and worry will be saved by an X-ray examination with a barium enema which "offers a simple and reliable method of estimating condition of the bowel and the presence of this 'unstable' or 'irritable' condition."

The barium will show that no organic disease is present but that the cause of the trouble is usually due to one of two factors or both. First, the patient has been taking too much rough food or purgatives; second, he is having emotional upsetments—worry, fatigue, and fear of organic disease.

Treatment is to avoid rough foods and to acquire calmness of spirit.

In Vienna Today

The Independent Labor Party has received a report from its associated group in Vienna declaring that the state of mind of the great majority of the population can be expressed in a few words—opposition to the war.

"The difficulties in getting food, intensified exploitation in the large factories and shops have increased the discontent of the working class and the lower middle class."

At an "information" meeting of the Nazi party in the workers' district of Ottakring, says the report, women interrupted the speech of the Nazi leader, Krebs, with loud protests against the difficulties they had in procuring their food rations, and many were arrested. At the markets housewives demonstrated because they could get neither eggs nor vegetables. The women formed a procession and cried, waving their empty shopping bags, "We thank our Fuehrer."—Manchester Guardian.

Barrage Balloon Interesting Job

Many people probably imagine that looking after the barrage balloons is a very dull job indeed. Far from it.

Each unit is manned by a crew of 10, and, by the way, the unit is a crew and not a squad; naval terms are used in all words of command. A rope is not "untied," a cable is bent; and a balloon has a port and a starboard side. In each crew you'll find R.A.F. regulars, volunteers and auxiliaries, working together, and men who, before the war, were tailors, upholsterers, lorry drivers, fabric workers or scaffolders, all find they are particularly suitable to one or other of the jobs to be done.

In fact it is the men who already know such trades, who are between 35 and 45 years of age, for whom the R.A.F. balloon barrage has room. The work is made particularly interesting by the system used in training. When a man first joins he starts in a job to which his trade or his particular accomplishments best suit him. Then from time to time he remusters, that is to say he undergoes training in some different work, passes a test, and so improves his grade and, of course, his rate of pay. When he's fully trained he's given the rank of leading-aircraftsman, and he's able — indeed he's expected — to be interchangeable with any other members of the crew.

Since these balloons are up in all weathers there are times when repairs have to be made. Unless they're very serious, they're done on the site. A guide-rope may rub and weaken a panel, while the balloon's on the ground — bedded down, as they call it, and the fabric will have to be reinforced. Cables may part and have to be spliced, but if it's really badly damaged it's packed up — it goes into a canvas bag about as big as a good-sized laundry basket — and is taken to a balloon centre, and there absolutely anything can be done. New panels are sewn in and treated with a special rubber solution, or new stabilizing fins are fitted. Then it goes into a hangar for testing. Here I'd like to mention that the little flaps one sees, from which the mooring cables hang, which look so frail, are each tested to take a ton weight; in fact they're called "ton patches."

In the hangar the balloon is inflated with air and men wearing rubber-soled boots go inside where they adjust the valves that keep the balloon at an even inflation.—From the London Listener.

Pipes of All Nations

which marched into the Rhineland toward the end of 1918 brought or sent some interesting specimens of tobacco pipes, including the kind with a big china bowl and long jointed stem. Evidently it will be some time yet before the C.A.S.F. gets into the right territory for that sort of souvenir, but in France they will be in the country which finds the wood for most of the pipes used by smokers all over the world.

The trade in briar pipes is almost entirely in the hands of Britain and France. The wood is found only in the French Empire and the rubber for the vulcanized rubber mouthpieces comes from British Empire plantations. Britain alone is responsible for more than 80 per cent. of the world's pipe exports, and since the war business is reported brisk.

Leading firms that cater specially for overseas smokers produce about 400 different designs to suit the tastes, fashions and requirements of different countries. The U.S.A. is the biggest market, and Americans are said to favor pipes of distinctive designs, such as square bowls. Pipes must have very large bowls for smokers in Holland, where tobacco is light and cheap. In Australia, where slow-burning tobacco is smoked, small pipes are in demand. And almost every country demands a few really bizarre shapes for men who like to be "different."

Genuine briar pipes, by the way, are not made of briar at all. A. H. Comoy, member of Britain's biggest pipe firm, whose greatgrandfather founded the business 115 years ago, explains: "The wood is heather root from the desolate regions of the Atlas Mountains in the 'Foreign Legion' country of French North Africa. This heather is 'erica arborea' to botanists, but just 'bruyere' to the ordinary Frenchman. The French name has been corrupted to 'briar' by the British, presumably because 'bruyere' sounds like the English word for an entirely different wood."—Woodstock Sentinel Review.

Scots a Real Guard

Events in the North of Scotland, since war was declared in September last, have stirred—and there is not an Englishman of humble and contrite heart who will hesitate to add, "justified"—patriotic Scots to write a rejoinder to the proud and popular song of the day in England: "There will always be an England." With more truth than poetry the parody says: "There will always be an England, as long as Scotland's there, to give the navy shelter and the brunt of air raids bear." We read that the revised Scottish version of the English song has made "a great hit" north of the Tweed; and south of this river which at Kelso becomes the boundary between England and Scotland, the justice of the Scottish view is ungrudgingly conceded. The Manchester Guardian, for example, in frank recognition of the contribution which Scotsmen have made in Britain's greatness, declares that the dependance of England on Scotland has long been admitted and, with an attempt to be jocular, goes on to say: "The very existence of the British Empire probably depends on the fact that so many Englishmen had to move out and seek 'lebensraum' overseas in order to make room in England itself for the army of occupation from the more energetic and accomplished North." The well-known British biographer and historian, Philip Guedalla, expressed a kindred idea, but in a better way, and with more genuine humor, when he wrote that an Englishman is a man who lives on an island in the North Sea governed by Scotsmen.

If there is a moral in all this for Canadians who are not of Scottish extraction it is that we need to exercise constant care to avoid the sorry error that many people in this country commit by referring to Britain as England, thus leaving Scotland entirely out of consideration. "Stands Scotland where it did? The enlarged version of the familiar song gives answer in an emphatic affirmative, and the irritation which the false designation of Britain as "England" causes the Scots every time is wholly justified.—Montreal Gazette.

London's Clubland Feels Burden

Something comparable to a banking crisis has overtaken London's clubland, center of that particularly British form of life invented here centuries ago, as some may say, to enable the benedicts to enjoy perpetual bachelordom in a rigorously preserved atmosphere of perfect butlers and good port.

The doors have now closed on several of those grand old mansions located in the park end of Piccadilly, St. James Street and Pall Mall that, as the years passed, were vacated by princes, dukes and early to accommodate coteries of fly-fishers, dog-lovers, bookmakers, card players, beefsteak eaters, toxophilites, criminologists and defiers of the "thirteen" superstition, that periodically joined politicians, judges, bishops, members of the fighting services and business men of various ilks, in establishing peaceful hideouts with the best of food and wines and perfect comfort and service in this quarter of London.

Managements Relax Rules

With every rise in the income tax, club subscriptions and benefactions to hospitals were among the first things in most men's expenditure to be slashed. And as the chief asset of most clubs is its membership roll—excluding, of course, those institutions like the Portland Club and some bridge clubs which always have a few hundred members, all reputedly with incomes in excess of £10,000—the managements of several of the older establishments are relaxing their rules and taking in homeless clubmen.

Even civilians are now passing the portals of one of the exclusive Piccadilly service clubs that never hitherto admitted any one to membership under the rank of senior major. And the one-time waiting list of this club averaged twelve years.

Club managements, like bankers, stick together in the crisis and now those clubs with a chance of weathering the storm are not only taking in members less fortunate than their associates but also members of their staffs who for weeks past have been standing behind empty dining tables. Unlike restaurants and hotels, clubs cannot "cater for" the crowd, no member of the staff can accept a tip and no member can give an employee a job.

Haunt of M. P.'s Now a Hostel

Thus far, about a dozen of the more famous clubs have closed. St. Stephen's Club, a handy rendezvous for members of Parliament, opposite Big Ben, with a tunnel running under the street to the division lobby, is now a soldiers' and sailors' hostel selling eleven-penny dinners and the cocktail bar, where the young backbenchers, over drinks, once planned the overthrow of the government, has been converted into a soldiers' chapel.

The Junior Naval and Military Club—known all over the world to soldiers as the "Incubator" and to navalmen as the "Pothouse"—has been absorbed by the parent club—Naval and Military— a few yards away on Piccadilly.

The "in and out," as this club was known for seventy-four years on account of its big black-lettered instructions to cab drivers, which every passer-by notices on the stone pillars of the driveway, was the club of almost every retired or serving general and admiral in Britain. The "incubator" could not keep going with so many young naval and army officers away on service, thus the parent club added about one thousand new names to its membership.

Among other mergers have been that of the Badmington Club with the Public Schools Club; the Old Sports Club on St. James Square has become the East India and Sports Club, the new University Club has merged with the United University Club and the premises of the first named have been vacated.

The Athenaeum Holds on

The Athenaeum Club, housed in the massive building at the corner of Pall Mall and Wellington Place, with a library of between 90,000 and 100,000 books, which was the haunt of bishops, judges and scientific men, has offered its hospitality to a number of Allied missions and diplomats but otherwise has not been affected by the war. This one-time London resort of Dickens and Thackeray—it is said that they patched up their famous quarrel on the Athenaeum staircase—still commands an entrance fee of £31 10s and an annual subscription of £15 15s.

The secretary of the Royal Automobile Club is also among those officials who, despite the roominess of their clubs, hope that all their members will not one day arrive together.

Government statistics show that the number of British clubs has increased 40 per cent in the last decade and last year 18,133 registered clubs paid £195,000 in liquor license dues to the Exchequer.—New York Times.

Gibraltar's Fate

Generalissimo Franco has refused to take part in an attack on Gibraltar, in the event that Italy goes to Germany's aid in the war, according to reports reaching Paris. Though unconfirmed, there is much in those reports that dovetails with Spanish history.

There is an old Iberian saying that the first thing a Spanish statesman must learn is to link the nation's foreign policy to that of Great Britain. Ex-President Manuel Azana recalled it while in a reminiscent mood a few years ago, and said that to Spain this trust in Britain was sound politics.

True, the Spanish royal house that went into exile a decade ago leaned toward the Hohenzollerns, and helped bend one of the nation's two monarchial groups in the German direction. Yet, even in that era, Spain found it feasible to get a nod from Britain before venturing into foreign fields.

Many of the old guard Spaniards still are in the saddle in Spain, so it is not unreasonable to assume that London still is their lodestar in foreign affairs. If this is so, then any change in the status quo at Gibraltar, British for 236 years, would be viewed by them with some misgivings.

During the Spanish Civil War there was much talk about the big German-made guns that had been set up at Ceuta, within range of Gibraltar. Yet, apparently no one was more unimpressed by those guns than General Sir Edmund Ironside, present chief of the Imperial General Staff, and at that time Governor of Gibraltar.

On a visit to London before the end of the civil war, and a short time prior to his retirement as governor, he revealed that there never had been more than four big guns at Ceuta, and that even those four had been moved away.

These are unpredictable times, but on the basis of Spanish tradition, and lack of authoritative evidence of any menace to Gibraltar on Franco's part, there are reasons for believing that the reports reaching Paris are not mere wishful thinking.

There is still another point to be considered, however. A British writer who toured Nationalist Spain in 1937 found that one of the idols of old guard Spaniards on Franco's side was none other than Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, who today is First Lord of the Admiralty and Britain's kingpin on the military front.—Windsor Star.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

Prime Minister Chamberlain's announcement that the British troops in the Andalsnes area had been withdrawn leaves the status of the Norwegian campaign somewhat obscure. German pressure from the air was no doubt responsible for failure of the force landed at Andalsnes to accomplish what was expected of it.

The move apparently means abandonment of the proposed pincers movement against German-held Trondheim. As yet there is no indication as to whether this means a more intensified drive on Trondheim from the British base at Namsos to the north.

In the Andalsnes area British troops moved inland past the railway junction at Dombas where the railway line from Andalsnes to Oslo joins a line running north to Trondheim through Storen.

Coincident with this restriction of the Allied land operations in Norway appears to have gone an intensification of naval activity against German supply and transport ships moving to Norway. British warships moved into the Kattegat to attack German craft.

Marmora

Marmora—The Pals Group C. G. I. T. held a very successful Mother and Daughter Banquet in St. Andrew's Hall on Friday evening. Pretty decorations of white and blue adorned the tables. Keitha Tandy, president of the group acted as toast mistress. After a hearty sing-song the following toast list was submitted:

The King.

The Church, proposed by Wilma Sweet and responded to by Rev. Dr. W. P. Fletcher.

Our Mothers, proposed by Rita Phillips with Mrs. H. A. Burwash responding.

The leader, Mrs. W. P. Fletcher then introduced her daughter, Mrs. Aylsworth of Bath as guest speaker. Her theme was "If I could in vision see the girl God meant me to be." Joyce Kouri moved a vote of thanks to the speakers and helpers which was followed by the singing of "Taps". Miss Loreen Connor and the girls of her Sunday School Class were guests at the banquet, the girls acting as waitresses.

The funeral of the late Patrick O'Brien took place on Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock. Requiem Mass was held at the Sacred Heart Church, Reverend Father W. J. Farrell officiating. Interment was made in the Sacred Heart cemetery. The pall bearers were E. D. O'Connor, D. Shannon, W. Forestell, G. Forestell, Joseph Doyle and A. Reynolds.

Mr. Harry Gardner of Toronto was a guest at the Royal Hotel on Thursday.

Local stores commenced the summer half holidays.

J. O. Herity Addresses Business Men's Association, Frankford

Frankford — Frankford Business Men's Association held a banquet in the Community hall on Wednesday evening at 7 P. M. when around sixty-five attended. The sumptuous repast was supplied by the Mission Circle.

The meeting which followed the banquet was opened by Reeve Spencer and was then taken over by the President, Mr. G. Dixon, who called upon the guest speaker, Mr. J. O. Herity of Belleville. Other speakers of the evening were Mr. Thos. Bata, Honorary President; Mr. LaFontaine, Secretary; Mr. MacDonald, Treasurer and Rev. J. F. Lane.

Mrs. Matilda Hinds was honoured on Sunday last when her family all gathered home to commemorate her birthday. Her guests included: Mr. and Mrs. Earl Benson, Darwin and Barbara of Stirling; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Blight, Billy, Mary and Lloyd of Trenton; Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Mitchell and Mary Bell of Frankford and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hinds at home.

As the day was fine many pictures were taken including pictures of her 5 grandchildren and 4 great grandchildren.

She was the recipient of several beautiful gifts. Her many friends of Frankford join in wishing her many more such happy events.

The bicycles are getting very plentiful on the Frankford streets and it is almost impossible at times for driving to continue in a logical manner. Cyclists must use an equal amount of precaution as the motorist in order to save accidents.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kennedy announce the engagement of their daughter, Lillian Maria, to Mr. Archibald Eugene Boyd, Phm.B., son of Mrs. Boyd and the late J. N. Boyd, the wedding to take place June 3rd at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church at 2.00 p.m.

The friends of Miss Violet Grant, Grier Street, will be glad to know that she has been successful in completing her secretarial course at the O.B.C., with special credit to her teacher, Miss Dorothy Grant.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Baragar have returned after spending the winter in Badenton, Florida, and are visiting for a few days in the city before proceeding to their home in Stirling.

Mr. Arthur Jones has returned to the city after spending the winter months in trailer travel in Florida.

Miss Iris Richards, student at Queen's University, returned to the city today to spend the summer months with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Richards, John Street. Miss Alice Scott, also a student at the University, accompanied her and will be a week-end guest enroute to her home in Saskatchewan.

Kenneth Cherry, Jack Hickey and Don Strickland have been accepted for training in the Royal Canadian Navy. They left Wednesday to report at the naval base at Esquimalt, B.C. Mr. E. P. Strickland accompanied them to Kingston earlier in the week where they underwent medical tests.

A surprise party of thirty relatives gathered at the home of Mr. Walter Thornton last evening to celebrate with Mrs. Archie Thompson her eighty-first birthday. A happy evening was enjoyed by the guests, during which Mrs. Thompson received many fine gifts. A delicious lunch was served, the handsomely decorated birthday cake being the gift of Mrs. Thornton.

Following choir practice last evening the members of Holloway Street Church choir honoured Miss June Denton, bride-to-be, at a kitchen shower held in the church parlours. About thirty-two choir members were present and Miss Denton received many pretty and useful gifts which were presented to her in a huge basket carried in by Mr. Harry Atkinson and Mr. James Cordes. Mr. S. Anglin, choir leader, voiced the good wishes of her associates to Miss Denton who made a gracious reply. A social evening followed the presentation of gifts.

Miss Marjorie Chaplin, bride-to-be, was guest of honour at a miscellaneous shower held on Tuesday evening at her home by Cedar Street neighbours. About twenty-five friends surprised Miss Chaplin showering her with lovely gifts. Mrs. J. Adams read an address expressive of the good wishes of the gathering and their regret at losing Miss Chaplin as a neighbour. Miss Chaplin thanked the guests in a charming manner for their gifts and for the sentiments expressed in the address. Enjoyable games of euchre and Chinese checkers followed. The winners at cards were Mrs. R. Sargent, first, Mrs. L. Robinson, second, Mrs. O. Hales, consolation, and Mrs. R. Rodgers, lone hands. Mrs. H. Carter won the prize for Chinese checkers. Dainty refreshments were served at the close of the interesting party.

WEDDINGS

BRYANT—WELLBANKS

Only immediate relatives attended the quiet marriage ceremony at which, Mary June, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Hedley P. Wellbanks of Belleville, became the bride of Arnold H. Bryant, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bryant also of Belleville. Rev. Albert Paul read the vows at five o'clock Wednesday afternoon, April 30th, in First Baptist Church.

The bride had been visiting Mr and Mrs. Robert Hay, the groom's aunt and uncle on Angus Drive, since she arrived here April 12th.

When they return from a wedding trip to Victoria, they will make their home in Vancouver.

—Vancouver Sun.

QUINN—WALSH

The Church of the Holy Name of Mary, Marysville, was the scene of a pretty wedding, Monday, April 29th, when Lillian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Walsh, became the bride of Tracy James Quinn, son of Mrs. Quinn and the late Mr. Michael J. Quinn of Tweed. Rev. Fr. O'Gorman officiated and acolytes were Wm. Walsh brother of the bride, and Ambrose McAlpine. Present in the Sanctuary were Rev. Fr. Callaghan, cousin of the bride, and Rev. Fr. Quinn, cousin of the groom. The church was tastefully decorated with white lilies and daffodils.

Miss Mary V. Walsh presided at the organ.

The soloists were Mr. Wm. Callaghan and Mr. Arthur Shannon.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a classic gown of white satin fashioned on princess lines, with lace insets and medium train, with a fingertip veil with orange blossoms in Juliette style. She carried Johanna Hill roses.

Her bridesmaid, Miss Mildred Callaghan, wore blue net with blue net fingertip veil caught with roses. Her bouquet was Sweetheart roses. Mr. Raymond M. Quinn, cousin of the groom, was groomsman.

After a reception held at the Quinte Hotel, Belleville, Mr. and Mrs. Quinn left on a motor trip to New York, the bride wearing a navy ensemble with white and wine accents and a corsage of white gardenias.

On their return Mr. and Mrs Quinn will reside in Tweed.

MAY—BALL

The marriage took place at the home of the bride's parents, under an arch of pink and white streamers and roses, of Hazel Gertrude daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Ball, of Baltimore, to Mr. Douglas Clarke May, of Stirling, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. May of Belleville, at 3.30 Tuesday afternoon, April 23, the 27th anniversary of the bride's parents' wedding day. Wedding music was played by Miss Vera May, of Port Hope, and Miss Eva VanSickle of Palermo, sang "The Sunshine of Your Smile" during the singing of the register. Rev. D. M. Smith officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowned in a smart floor-length gown of turquoise net and lace over taffeta, finger-tip length veil of matching net, held in place with tiny blue flowers. Mrs. Alec Lucas, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, was gowned in a floor-length frock of Hollyhock velvet and carried a bouquet of bronze Talisman roses. Mr. John Ball, brother of the bride, was groomsman.

Following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served with the girls of the Baltimore softball team serving. The bride's mother received in a black and white ensemble with matching accessories, and was assisted by the groom's mother in a gown of navy blue trimmed with white and accessories to match.

Later the young couple left on a trip to Lake Placid and other points. The bride chose for travelling a dusky pink frock, short fur jacket and matching accessories.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. May will reside in Stirling.

Guests were present from Belleville, Palermo, Milton, Bronte, Port Hope, Trent River and Cobourg.

Fashion Flashes

A DREAM of an evening frock is fashioned of layer on layer of green, black and white tulle. Enormous self-ruchings mark the hipline of the wide skirt and there are ruchings at the shoulders.

HANDS OUT to hold a handsome afternoon bag. It is of putty colored moire piped in black and fastened with alternating gold and silver metal buttons.

TREAT YOURSELF to a handsome print. Such a model is an afternoon dress of brown and bright blue printed silk with knife-pleated skirt and fine tucking on the bodice yoke. Neck is edged with pleated brown lace ruffle.

SOMETHING DIFFERENT in coats is a black wool model with snug bodice, waist and hips, the skirt then widening into fullness in faille-trimmed bands.

"ATLANTIC PATROL"

The first of the new series Canada Carries On "Atlantic Patrol", now showing at the Capitol as an added special attraction, depicting in graphic detail Canada's effort in guardinig her Atlantic seaboard and the every-day life of her navy in their patrol of the high seas on convoy duty. It's authentic! exciting scenes, never filmed before.

On the same programme a splendid double feature programme that the whole family can enjoy brings to the screen a western with the up and coming Roy Rogers in the picture "In Old Caliente" with Gabby "George" Hayes. The companion feature "Young as You Feel" is the riotous comedy starring the Jones Family. The second chapter of "The Phantom Creeps" starring Bela Lugosi, concludes the bill.

AT THE McCARTHY

"ALLEGHENY UPRISING"

One of the year's most spectacular adventure productions, "Allegheny Uprising" is now locally playing at the McCarthy Theatre.

Claire Trevor and John Wayne have the leading roles in this picturization of Neil Swanson's best seller, "The First Rebel", and turn in performances that top their sensational work in the recent "Stagecoach."

The story concernes itself with the dramatic uprising of the Pennsylvania settlers against the British army approximately 15 years before the fateful Revolution of 1776. When indifferent army officials failed to heed the protests that crooked traders were supplying Indians with munitions, which in turn were being used in savage raids, the desperate frontiersmen openly revolted.

James Smith, portrayed by Wayne, was elected leader of the "rebels." With his faithful followers, he tried to expose the illicit traffic of the traders, but the arrogant officer in charge of Fort Loudon ignored the charges. Through the treachery of Callendar, leader of the unprincipled traders, a warrant was issued for his arrest. From this point on the tattered frontiersmen were obliged to take up arms against the British garrison.

"Allegheny Uprising" deftly captures all the color, drama and romance of this memorable period, transplanting it to the screen in spectacular fashion. Hundreds of "extras", authentic replicas of Fort Loudon near the Maryland border, and Governor Penn's mansion in Philadelphia, further enhance the realism of this epic film.

AT THE BELLE

"REBECCA"

Against a background of chilling mystery, David O. Selznick's production of "Rebecca", best-selling novel by Daphne du Maurier, will have its first showing at the Belle Theatre on Saturday, through United Artists release. Directed by Alfred Hitchcock, master of mystery-thrillers, "Rebecca", was filmed with Laurence Olivier and Joan Fontaine in the top starring roles, while the featured supporting cast includes Judith Anderson, George Sanders, Nigel Bruce, C. Aubrey Smith, Reginald Denny and Florence Bates.

"Rebecca" was transformed to the screen from the scenario written jointly by Robert E. Sherwood and Joan Harrison. The story concerns a young and unsophisticated girl who becomes the bride of the wealthy and socially prominent Maxim De Winter. When they return to live on his vast Tudor estate, Manderley, the second wife learns, to her horror, that her life is being dominated by the past of Rebecca, Maxim's first wife, a very beautiful woman who fascinated all who knew her.

Furthermore, the memory of Rebecca is kept alive by Mrs. Danvers, de Winter's housekeeper, played by Judith Anderson. Mrs. Danvers resents the second Mrs. de Winter and does everything in her power to harrow her. After an elaborate ball given at Manderley, the story moves swiftly to a smash climax, stunning in its surprise, and terrifying in its impact.

Among the unusual settings constructed for the production of "Rebecca", were included London streets, old taverns, a coroner's office and a boathouse facing a windswept bay on the coast of Cornwall. The most elaborate set, depicting the Tudor estate known as Manderley, was built as a two-storey affair on a stretch of ground that measured 100 to 125 feet.

Every detail of English country life in "Rebecca", down to the last drop of ale used in a country tavern scene, is said to be authentic. Major W. A. Bagley, one of the leading experts on British modes and manners in filmland acted as technical adviser on "Rebecca" for Producer David O. Selznick.

Donald Duck in "Donald's Dog Laundry", and the popular Belle British newsreel will be exhibited on the same program. On Saturday matinee another splendid chapter of "S.O.S. Coastguard" will be exhibited.

Platinum is Losing It's Hair!

KATHRYN ADAMS . . . achieves a chic coiffure without aid of tinting

By HELEN FOLLETT

PLATINUM blondes are doing the disappearing act. You don't see many of them any more. The reason Poor tresses go all to pot, get dried out and look terrible. That is, unless one has expert professional treatment. Even then the silky shafts may suffer and go into a decline.

White henna is the medium used, and that's a joke. There's no such thing. Peroxide and ammonia are combined, in proper proportions, with magnesium carbonate to form a paste which is applied quickly and evenly to the silky mop. Now and then a little is scraped away to see how the bleaching is progressing. The hair is shampooed and a lemon rinse follows.

To attain the white-gold shade, the hair must be bleached to the limit. If the operator goes beyond the limit, the hair shafts lose glitter and life. They break at a touch of the comb. Just why a girl with golden hair should want to look as if she had gone grey, we don't know.

For a time the fad had wide popularity. Then the results showed up. Some of the "plats" had their hair dyed a pretty chestnut shade. Some just endured the transition period, which is pretty terrible, the hair being darker and of different shades near the scadp.

Sore, sensitive spots on the inner surface of the gums may be due to some substance caught between the teeth or wedged under the gum. Our favorite dentist tells us he is always treating unhappy patients who have particles of popcorn stored away to cause discomfort. Sometimes he digs out pieces of nuts, even raisin stems.

If soreness is prolonged, it is best to see a dentist, since an open wound invites infection. Rinsing the mouth with a salt solution is recommended. If foreign particles cling between the teeth and the brush will not remove them, use dental floss. But be gentle so as not to cause an abrasion of the flesh.

ECLAMPSIA

One of the most feared complications in child birth and pregnancy is eclampsia. About twenty percent of all women who have it die. Maternity hospitals in recent years have greatly cut down the death rate due to it, by methods dramatized so well in the movie "The Fight for Life," to which I referred here yesterday. The picture graphically shows mothers and doctors alike that the cure for the disease is proper prenatal care.

The exact cause of eclampsia is still unestablished despite an enormous amount of research into the subject, but disturbed metabolic conditions appear to be contributing factors. Even this however, is still largely theory.

Eclampsia appears normally during the last twelve weeks of pregnancy, usually during the last four, but it may occur during labor, and sometime after the child is born. I have noticed in my practise that eclampsia occurs mostly in early spring and late fall, and I have always considered the changeability of the weather at these times as one of the causes.

The first symptom of eclampsia is an increase in the blood pressure together with a swelling dropsical condition, which causes an increase in weight This is the reason that a doctor who is looking after an expectant mother will weigh her frequently, and take her blood pressure often. Albumen in the urine is another symptom

One of the disease's characteristics is a mental sluggishness that causes the patient to fail to report the very symptoms that might give her doctor a clue to her trouble I have found that women with eclampsia usually complain first of a general feeling of illness, headache, drowsiness, swelling of the face and extremities.

Later, the patient will suffer from dizziness, spots before the eyes, perhaps temporary blindness, often blood traces in the urine. At this stage, the patient will likely suffer serious convulsions. These begin with the patient lapsing into a coma, then becoming very rigid. Convulsive contractions of the muscles start in the head, and quickly spread to arms, trunk, legs. The attack will last from half a minute to three minutes, and the woman may have anywhere from three to fifteen of these attacks.

I never had a great many cases of eclampsia, but those I did have were usually severe. This, of course, was because the women in this part of the country normally never bother seeing a doctor while they are pregnant, and I'm not called in until the woman's trouble is in an advanced stage, possibly already in convulsions.

When an attack of eclampsia comes during labor, it is most difficult to handle. I have found that eclampsia is much harder on the babies than on the mothers. No mother I attended died of eclampsia, but I have seen a few babies born dead because of it.

I remember one woman who had eclampsia so badly I had to get persons in to help hold her in bed. When you have to do this sort of thing, it is dangerous, because it is that much harder to keep things sterile and so the risk of blood poisoning is greatly increased.

More than once, in cases of eclampsia, the priest has been administering the last rites of the church to the woman, as I have been working over her to try and save her life as well as that of her baby.

Eclampsia is one of the three dangerous illnesses of childbirth, And in most cases, it is quite unnecessary and avoidable. Proper prenatal care will prevent it.

For Saturday, May 4

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

AFFAIRS move along into successful grooves on this day, according to the ruling influences. While there will be heightened initiative, with many bright deas and a tendency to do thngs by fresh and perhaps audacious methods, industry, application and common sense will not be lacking. Employers and superiors will be quick to co-operate with such enterprise and afford adequate returns. Push toward this end, and don't fear new suggestions.

Those whose birthay it is are on the eve of a promising year, when initiative, enterprise, new plans and fresh ways of doing things will be apprecated by employers and superiors. Approach these with bold and original ways of bettering old processes or remedying static situations. Enduring rewards are in store for novelty and innovation.

A child born on this day, while having much enterprise, aggressive efforts at handling new ways and means of getting things done, may also be industrious, ambitious, dependable and trustworthy.

Fun of Keeping Beautiful

PROCRASTINATION is the foe of the beauty seeker. She's always putting off until tomorrow what would be fun to do today. Old Pop Time stands by and smiles, knowing full well that he is going to make life tougher for her.

Passing a shop window, seeing her reflection therein, a woman may notice that she is not the straight, sapling figure she once was. "Oh well", she assures herself, "I'll get busy some day, do those darn exercises and cut out the cream puffs, or go to a reducing establishment and have the fat cells jiggled away". What she does is precisely nothing. She doesn't even take the trouble to carry herself splendidly, a pratice that makes muscles resilient and wards off the coming of adipose tissues.

So it is when the glorious tiara starts to moult. She keeps on with the finger waves because she must look pretty, doesn't pay attention to the scalp which is the rich soil from which the silky shafts get their living. A good brushing and a brisk scalp friction every night would make tresses shine up and look happy.

Beauty chores are no trouble. Have a regular time for them. After all, they should be a jolly part of the day's job.

Once more we must remind you to take a look-peek at your elbows which you probably haven't observed for y'ars and y'ars. The flesh on that area of the arm is coarse and, because the elbow is a hinge, there are wrinkles. Better keep them in form.

Plunge your elbow into a cut lemon to give the flesh a bleaching treatment. Let the juice remain on for five minutes. Apply a heavy massage cream, cup your elbow in your hand, twist and turn your fingers. Five minutes for each arm hinge. Pat on borated talcum and go beddy.

Next morning you can elbow your way through the crowds with a clear conscience.

Making Complexions Behave

DOLORES DEL RIO . . . constant care keeps her complexion clear.

By HELEN FOLLETT

THERE are times when the best-behaved complexion suddenly goes haywire. It takes on a dingy coloring, seems to have lost interest in life. There may be a reason or two or three, such as overindulgence in the good groceries, not enough fresh air and exercise, not enough water taken each day.

Consider your health habits and if they aren't what they should be, reform. Help along the good work by giving yourself a cleansing pack once or twice a week. No trouble, no expense. But don't let anybody see you. You won't look like anything that was ever human.

From your druggist get a few ounces of kaolin, which is our old friend Fuller's earth made nice and clean. If your complexion is inclined to be dry, mix two tablespoonfuls of the powder with olive oil until you have a paste the consistency of whipped cream. Apply with flattened fingers to a clean skin surface, let it remain on until it flakes. Remove with tepid water, dry gently, have a five-minute tapping with your favorite massage cream.

If the epidermis is inclined to be oily, use witch hazel instead of the oil. When the pack is removed the pores will be free of dust, the complexion will show a delicate freshness.

Puffy eyelids are not a normal condition. They come from loss of sleep, fatigue, rich foods, indulgence in alcoholic drinks usually. Temporary relief can be gained by bathing the eye with warm water then with cold. Dip a heavy washcloth in water as hot as can be borne comfortably, give the flesh a good steaming. Six or seven applications are necessary. Follow with cold applications, holding the cloth close to the eyes, but not pressing on them.

Don't use small gauze pads. They don't cover enough territory to do any good. After drying, apply cold cream lightly, using the first finger, starting on the upper lid close to the nose, sweeping out to the temple, coming back underneath.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

LOVE CAME WITH A GIRL'S DESIRE TO HELP

One of my girl correspondents, who has the nice name of Janet, writes me about her first anad only love affair, which goodness knows is romantic enough in this hard-boiled age.

Janet had taken up a course in first aid with the Red Cross, and succeeded so well she had been admitted as probationer in the besa hospital in town. Now, don't let your imagination rush ahead and think she'd fallen in love with an interne or he with her. The story is nothing like that at all.

On her evening off, she was having supper with her mother when she heard a tremendous crash at the corner. Without waiting to put on her hat and coat she rushed toward the scene of the accident. Part of a building under construction had fallen in. Reports said that people were beneath the pile of bricks.

Without stopping to consider that she had no police pass or was even wearing a probationer's uniform, Janet began squirming through the crowd to help. She was that kind of a girl, she wanted to be of use. But the police holding the crowd back, wouldn't listen to her explanation or her plea that she had had hospital training. She was pretty roughly handled, it seems.

On the scene, there happened to come a young man—all he should be in the way of appearance, manners and willingness—to stand up for a girl in a tight place. She explained to him that she was a pupil nurse, that she knew something of first aid, and that that had been her only desire to get into the melee.

"Officer, I'll be responsible for this young lady," the stranger said, and gave the policeman his card, a glance at which made him loosen his none-too-gentle grip on Janet's arm.

The young man then explained that falling bricks, police and a mob was really no place for a girl at that stage of the accident. An ambulance with internes would be there presently, also the police patrol. And the best thing for the disheveled young woman to do was to go home, and if she were willing he would be glad to escort her.

When a distinctly mussed-up daughter appeared in charge of a strange young man, who gave his name, his residence, and then prepared to leave, Janet's mother suggested that he stay and tell her about it.

But life had begun not only for Janet, but for the young man whom we'll call John, although it isn't his name. The immemorial torch had touched their lives and love had made its appearance.

There really isn't much more to add. John proved to be a gentleman, well situated, who had known plenty of girls in his twenty-nine years. But something about Janet, as she dashed up to help, appealed to him as nothing else had appealed in all the other girls he had ever met.

They are to be married in June, and the prospects are that they'll "live happily ever after." When Janet chose her profession of nurse she wanted to help people. She had already decided she would not go in for private nursing but would take up welfare work, visiting nursing perhaps, where nurses go out and make the underprivileged comfortable.

John hadn't really made up his mind about the type of girl he wanted to marry. He had known lots of them, danced with them, made love to them—even been engaged to one, who broke the engagement because he was too serious. But when he saw this hatless, coatless girl dash in toward a caving building to help, he knew she was the girl for him.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCEMENT ENGENDERS DEFINITE DUTIES

Every engagement has its own special set of circumstances. But no matter what the circumstances, there are certain important points of etiquette, certain details of good form, certain conventions that the fiancee and the fiance and their families should know and abide by.

These social forms are accepted by right-thinking people, because in every one of these traditions is the spirit of good taste, of courtesy.

If, from the moment Mary and John become engaged, they follow the tenets of good taste, they will be happier in their happiness and they will make happy all those most closely concerned with their engagement. If they don't abide by thoughtful taste, they may create unhappy and unfortunate handicaps for the future.

Let's begin at the beginning of the engagement. Mary has said "Yes" to John. She tells the happy news to her mother and father, and John tells his mother and father.

John if he is the well-brought-up man we hope he is, courteously and immediately goes to the head of Mary's family and talks things over. Mary's father probably has a pretty good idea of what John has come to say, and he and John talk over together the details that will concern the couple's future happiness—John's financial standing, his prospects, and so forth. John answers quite frankly any questions that may be put to him. His honest and straightforwardness establish the right relationships with his future in-laws.

Let's take the ideal situation, which, fortunately, is the usual one: The girl's family approves, the young man's family approves, and the engagement is officially decided on.

Now the next social move—and this is most important—should be made by the young man's family. As soon as John tells them of his engagement, his mother and father should go at once to call on the girl and her family. This is the important and significant call that welcomes the girl into the family and into the family circle. It should, if possible, be made within twenty-four hours after the parents have been told the news. Both mother and father should go, unless illness of one or absence from town prevents.

If the fiance's mother and father are not living, his nearest relative should make this call. If the young man's parents do not live near enough to make this call in person, they should immediately write to the girl to tell her of their happiness at the news of the engagement. They should express their good wishes and voice their welcome into the family, and if circumstances permit, tender an invitation to her to visit them.

Mary and her mother promptly return this welcoming call, or Mary promptly, graciously and warm-heartedly answers the welcoming letter.

Now, from everybody's point of view, cordial relations are established between the two families. What follows these family announcements depends on the circumstances of both or either family. Customarily, the family of the prospective groom entertain his fiancee and her family, and customarily, this hospitality is returned by the family of the bride-to-be.

Queen Soap, Of Cosmetics

By HELEN FOLLETT

SOAP IS THE queen of cosmetics. It is a mild antiseptic and, as germs and germeses are ever present on the cutaneous area, ready to scuttle into an abrasion and make trouble, it behooves us to use soap freely. Now and then a complexion rebels against it, but that is an exception. Women who cleanse only with oils, fearing to put suds on their sacred faces, never have the clear, lovely skin that the sudser enjoys

MARSHA HUNT . . . knows the value of soap as beautifying agent.

When washing your celestial countenance, remember that you are dealing with atmospheric dust, sweat deposits, sebaceous oil, dead skin scales and make-up. A fine kettle of fish, if you ask us, and if you don't. What we're trying to do is to urge you to give your face a thorough renovating. And have a clean washcloth every day of your life. Soiled washcloths are an abomination.

To remove suds, rinse with warm water. Follow this with a cold rinsing and you will be avoiding enlarged pores. And cold water acts favorably upon the capillaries that gives coloring to the skin.

Have fine soft towels, use them gently, especially if the skin is cursed with acne.

The poor dear who discovers that her hips are outstanding, expanding beyond the limit of good proportions, must hasten to get active. She won't have a chance to march in the fashion parade if she doesn't do something and do it quickly.

She can roll them away. Let her stretch out flat on her back on the floor, lift her feet high in the air, roll six times to one side, six to the other and repeat. The hands should be placed at the sides to act as braces.

New York Squad Now in Third Place in National Loop and Liable to Stay There

(By Judson Bailey Associated Press Sports Writer).

It doesn't pay to get too enthused about a baseball club winning one game. In fact, no one knows right now whether it's worthwhile getting excited about a team winning nine games—even in a row.

Yet a glance at the National League standing today will show anybody who is interested that New York Giants are in third place and a thought about the manner in which they subjugated St. Louis Cardinals 7-4 yesterday might convince some people that they may stay there.

Making a delayed start against their first western opposition of the season, the Giants got 14 hits yesterday. Mel Ott hit a homer with one on, Mickey Witek hit a round-tripper inside the park, Harry Danning smacked two doubles and two singles and so on.

In addition they got one of the best jobs of relief pitching any team in the big leagues has received this season. Lefty Cliff Melton took charge with none out in the third and proceeded to hurl for six innings giving up only two hits.

Bad weather washed out all but two of the Major League contests yesterday. In the other game Detroit Tigers downed Washington Senators 5-3 on the six-hit hurling of an 18-year-old rookie, Hal Newhouser. Rudy York helped with his first home run of the season with one on in the second and also smacked a triple that didn't figure in the scoring.

This put the Tigers hot on the heels of Boston Red Sox and Cleveland Indians, who are tied for the lead in the American League.

Buffalo Bisons Only Northern Team That Loses Opening Game

(By the Associated Press)

Now that Tex Carleton has demonstrated that "they do come back" by returning to the majors to pitch a no-hit game for Brooklyn, big league managers are on the lookout for castoffs working in the minors, who may be able to duplicate Tex's comeback.

It looks as though the Dodgers have another good prospect in Kemp Wicker, ace hurler with Montreal Royals, Brooklyn's International Baseball League farm.

Wicker has won three games in as many starts for the Royals so far this season, allowing the opposition a total of only eight hits.

Yesterday the veteran southpaw blanked the champion Jersey City Giants 1-0, in the home opener at Montreal to win a three-hit pitcher's duel from Frank Pearce.

The Royals bunched two of their blows in the fourth inning for the only score. Tuck Stainback tripled and Bert Haas sent him home with a double.

Toronto Maple Leafs and Rochester Red Wings also had successful home openings, but Buffalo Bisons went down 14-6 before the invading Baltimore Orioles. Toronto defeated Newark 5-1 and Rochester clubbed Syracuse 12-1 behind the expert hurling of Hank Gornicki.

Toronto Now Fifth

Carl Fisher hurled five-hit ball for the Leafs to chalk up his second straight triumph and only Tommy Padden's home run in the second saved the Bears from a shutout. Toronto combed Hank Borowy and George Beddingfield for 11-safeties with Tom Heath, Leaf catcher, leading the hit parade with three in four trips to the plate. The victory boosted Toronto in fifth place in the standings.

Gornicki limited the Chiefs to three hits in winning his third game of the season. The Wings reached Cy Blanton for five safe blows and six runs in six innings, and got the remainder of their runs off Les Hinckle who relieved in the seventh.

Baltimore Orioles, led by infielder Bill Nagel, collected 16 hits off five Bison pitchers in winning their ninth game. They have lost three. Nagel slammed a double and three singles for a perfect day at bat, driving in three runs.

Glasgow Rangers Heavily Favored To Take Trophy

London, May 3 — (CP-Cable)—Glasgow Rangers are such strong favourites for the Scottish Football League's wartime cup that advance bookings indicate the crowd at Hampden Park, Glasgow, will not exceed 50,000 when the famous Light Blues clash with Dundee United Saturday in the final of the competition.

Cup soccer also holds the spotlight in England. Thirty-two teams battle in the first of home-and-home games in the second round of the English cup tournament. With so many clubs participating in cup matches, regional group schedules will be cut considerably.

Although Dundee United has made a strong bid for cup honors the Second Division squad is not expected to provide serious opposition for the Rangers, beaten only three times in group competition this season. Hampden Park has accommodation for approximately 150,000 spectators, but under wartime restrictions only half this number are allowed admittance.

Rangers' notable career has been marked by ten successes in peacetime cup competition but Dundee United has never won the coveted trophy. On its road to the final the United disposed of Partick Thistle, Third Lanark, Kilmarnock and Airdrie while Rangers were victorious over Alloa, Falkirk, St. Mirren and Motherwell.

Harold Newhouser Detroit Native Makes Good With Tigers

Detroit, May 3—(AP)—The baseball magnate's boxoffice dream—a boy attaining stardom with his home town team—is agaain coming true for Detroit Tigers of the American League.

This time the hero is 18-year-old Harold Newhouser, a six-foot-two-inch left-handed pitcher, who is still a student at Wilbur Wright high school.

With less than a year's professional baseball experience as a background, Harold scored his first big league victory yesterday when he allowed Washington Senators but six hits in getting a 5-3 victory. Last Saturday in his first game of the year, Newhouser lost to Cleveland 4-2.

Newhouser, who looks even younger than his years, was signed direct from the American Legion ranks by Aloysius J. Egan, dean of the Tiger scouting staff. Harold reported to Alexandria, La., of the class D Evangeline league last summer and before fall had jumped first to Beaumont, of the Texas league, and then to Detroit. He made one start last season—losing 3-0 to Cleveland.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—Picton will be included in the Belleville and District Softball Association set-up this summer?........And that Bill Dennis, Bennie Shaddock, Jim Costello et al of the East End A.C. are toying with the idea of sponsoring a juvenile team in the same league?......That H. G. "Twig" Woodley says he may return to the business of guessing and umpire in the city "mushball" loop? ......And that Jack Bundy, Belleville junior centreman, has shaken the dust of this fair city from his heels and returned to his native Toronto?....And that the Phillies have not won a game in Brooklyn or St. Louis since 1938?......Bill Terry got merry h--l from Owner Horace Stoneham after putting the blast on night baseball?....... "What do you think I spent $125,000.00 on a floodlight plant in the Polo Grounds for?" Stoneham asked his $40,000-a-year manager.... If the Belleville hockey fans are willing to support a good junior hockey team there are those willing to sponsor the project.

Whether he had trouble at the international border, or just what caused the hold-up, manager Norm Barriage of the Hume Arena was unable to confirm today, but regardless there is to be a switch in the main bout of tonight's advertised opening wrestling bout at the Hume Arena. Joe Maich will meet Eddie Sobul, of Hartford Conn., instead of "The Ringer", who it is believed was refused admission to the country at the port of Windsor yesterday. Otherwise there will be no changes, that is as far as we can ascertain, in the other two bouts advertised on the card. Local wrestling fans will doubtless welcome back "Wild Tiger" Daniels, the Regina rough-house, with a typical Bronx cheer, but no matter how much the patrons dislike Daniels, they must admit he is a diminutive package of human dynamite and he always provides either something new, or plenty of action. This boy Sobul, who meets Joe Maich, is making his first Canadian wrestling appearance in Belleville at tonight's opening show at the Hume Arena. Sobul is a former New England football star and plenty tough, they say.

Do you remember when—Babe Ruth hit his seventh home run of the American Baseball League season at Chicago 16 years ago today, to give him a lead over his rivals—Gabby Hartnett of Chicago Cubs, Jake Fournier of Brooklyn and Harry Heilmann, Detroit. The Babe hit 46 homers that season, to bring his all-time total to 284. When he retired in 1935 he had 729 to his credit.

First we'd like to welcome home George Campbell, Oshawa sports scribe, who more recently moved into the realm of radio sports commentator while covering the Memorial Cup games at Winnipeg, but we wonder if Georgie knows the true story behind the return of senior baseball into Oshawa this season? It seems Mr. R. S. McLaughlin, who still has a little to say around the General Motors plant in Oshawa, we believe, was visiting the Motors one fine Saturday morning last summer. Approaching one of the older members of Oshawa's baseball picture, Mr. McLaughlin asked—"Who's playing baseball against our team here today?" asked Mr. McLaughlin, who apparently wasn't exactly abreast to the sporting activities of the Motor City last summer. "Why we have no baseball team in Oshawa this year, Mr. McLlaughlin," replied the man questioned. (We're withholding names for an obvious reason at this point.)

Stamping out of the plant and into the spacious General Motors offices, Mr. McLaughlin approached company heads and ordered—"See that there is a baseball team in Oshawa in 1940,"—and there is.

Commenting on our suggestion that the Johnson Cup, emblematic to the championship of the C.O.B.L., be turned into a challenge trophy for 1940, the Peterboro scribe admits it is a good idea, but wonders where in the world we got hold of such a brilliant idea. Surely the Liftlock City scribe doesn't think he has an option of all ideas, as a matter of fact the Peterboro scribe is about as void of constructive ideas as a frog is free from hair.

SPORT SPICE — Some 7,000 baseball fans saw the Toronto Maple Leafs' 1940 International League coming out party yesterday, shivering and shaking before a Lake Ontario breeze ......The Leafs won 5-1 over the Newark Bears, who aren't having much better luck in the minors than their big brother Yankees are enjoying in the majors......Arguments ensued between umpires and players, Catcher Tommy Padden, of the Bears, getting the gate, the home team won and generally speaking the fans left cold, but satisfied......The Detroit Tigers and the New York Giants won the only two games played in the majors, cold weather causing several postponements ......Only eight starters will face the Kenucky Derby barrier tomorrow, even Col. Bradley's Bashful Duck being scratched ......If an outsider wins, and we say IF, watch Mioland or Roman......They are beginning to call the Max Baer-Tony Galento fight " the screwball title go" ....Perhaps another title might be "Fugitives from a squirrel cage" and why not?

Nathan Mann Picked To Beat Buddy Baer

New York, May 3 —(AP)— There doesn't seem to be any point in Buddy Baer fighting Nathan Mann in the Garden tonight.

If he wins, they'll probably throw him in against Joe Louis some time this summer. If he loses, everybody around town will say "sure, I knew it, Buddy's a quitter."

For the remembrance that the handsome youngster brings to New Yorkers is not a pleasant one. They remember his last fight here in March of '38 against Gunnar Barlund, a fight in which Buddy stood helpless while the stolid Swede was punching him dizzy.

"Buddy quit" was the Broadway verdict, and the tag line still sticks.

Virtually every story written this week about tonight's fight has brought out the fact that the aroma of Buddy's pitiful showing the last time still lingers. Buddy emphatically says he's out to make the folk forget that one.

Mann, who will be celebrating his 25th birthday today, is a slight favorite in the scrap that has created little interest. He is thought to be in the best mental attitude since he was almost decapitated by Joe Louis.

COL. E. R. BRADLEY MAY SEE RACE

Owner of Bimelech, Favorite for Derby, is Not Well but May Defy Physicians

Louisville, Ky., May 3—(AP) — Bimelech will go to the post tomorrow for the 66th running of the Kentucky Derby and it looks like about seven other horses will go at least that far with him.

Bimelech is supposed to win hands down, and it would not be truthful to state that the air of Louisville is charged with excitement. It is much as it was a year ago, when Johnstown was so obviously the class of the field.

Col. E. R. Bradley, who owns the favorite hasn't been in such good health down at Lexington. Nevertheless, there is a report going the rounds that he intends to defy his physicians and come up for the race. The Colonel has seen four of his horses win the Derby, and they say he is determined to watch Bimelech make it five.

Rain May Change Setup

The only thing that might pull the management out of the hole on Bimelech is plenty of rain. Should it come down tonight, steadily, and the track becomes really muddy tomorrow, a lot of patrons will shop around for a horse that might beat him.

A scattered few expressed the opinion that Mioland, the West Coast horse, might spring a surprise and run right away from Bimelech down the stretch. Mioland is the "dark horse", and there might be a good bit of money bet on him.

Some are going to take a chance on Dit, the gelding that won the Wood Memorial in New York last week, and a few will make a long shot on W. L. Brann's Pictor.

Gallahadion, Roman and Royal Man, the other three considered certain starters in the big race, mostly will come in for place and show bets.

Vancouver Leafs Ready for Montreal

Winnipeg, May 3 (CP)— Vancouver Maple Leafs looked ahead today to their meeting with Montreal Y.M.H.A. for the Canadian men's senior basketball title and an attempt to take the crown to British Columbia for the third straight year.

Leafs coasted to the western championship here last night by defeating Winnipeg St. Andrew's 40-35 in the fourth game of a best-of-five series.

Vancouver won the first game of the round 37-30, Winnipeg the second 49-40, and Vancouver the third 48-37.

After leading Leafs to their win by scoring 14 points and ably filling the key centre position, acting coach Joe Ross said that Leafs will take their full team east to meet Montreal.

WINNER OF BOUT SUCCEEDS AMBERS

Sammy Angott and Davey Day Meet in Louisville for Lightweight Title

Louisville, Ky., May 3—(AP) — Sammy Angott and Davey Day, who came up from the ranks of the amateurs, tangle tonight for the world's lightweight boxing championship—as the National Boxing Association sees it.

In the eyes of the N.B.A. and its 41 affiliated State associations, the winner will succeed Lou Ambers, whose lightweight title the Association declared forfeited because he declined to defend it within the prescribed six-month period.

Matchmaker Vern Franklin, announcing advance sales had been boosted to $10,000 by out-of-towners here for tomorrow's Kentucky Derby, predicted a record crowd of 12,000 would pay approximately $34,000—at a $5.75 top—to see the 15-round scuffle.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, May 3 (AP)— Those congregations of 2,000, 3,000 and 4,000 the Yanks are playing to at the stadium aren't making the pay roll....Who's got a shot in the arm for the bantamweight division?.... Here's Georgie Pace, the N.B.A. champ, doing his stuff on the N.Y. subway circuit and not so impressively, at that....Tex Carleton was so excited he didn't sleep a wink the night after delivering his no-hitter.

Mebbe the fact that he was speaking at a Brooklyn dinner had something to do with it, but Joe McCarthy predicts it will be the Yanks and Dodgers in October .... Dominic DiMaggio is giving the interviewers trouble. One of them called him the "Japanese school boy" and he no liked....The Dodgers have offered Gene Moore, Jimmy Ripple, a young pitcher and cash for Bill Posedel of the Boston Bees.

BASHFUL DUCK

Col. Bradley's second starter in the 66th running of the Kentucky Derby, Bashful Duck, running as a stablemate to Bimelech, the favorite to win the Blue Grass classic. Around the Bradley stables Bashful Duck is given a far better than an outside chance to win the big race on Saturday. However, Bimelech will go to the post the shortest odds-on-favorite in the history of the race.

Edwin, Tenn., May 3 (AP).—Exploding light bulbs caused postponement of an Appalachian League game between Erwin and Johnson City last night. A cold drizzle of rain began bursting the heated bulbs which lighted the field. After seven popped, business manager Harry Morgan stopped the game in the second inning, explaining: "Those things cost over five bucks apiece!"

ADVISE EATING STEAK

Des Moines, Ia., May 3 (AP).—Eat a big steak dinner immediately after your tonsils have been removed, is the advice of Dr. Marvin F. Jones of New York City. Speaking to members of the Iowa State Medical Society, Dr. Jones said: "A lot of people will object to the discomfort of eating after having their tonsils out, but give him a local sedative to reduce the sore throat and then tell them they'll get well a lot quicker if they go ahead and eat."

COMING SESSION OF PARLIAMENT TO LAST 2 MONTHS

Hon. Pierre Casgrain Joins Privy Council and May Retire as Speaker of House

CABINET MEETS

Ottawa, May 3 —(CP)— Cabinet Ministers concentrated on departmental business today making final plans for the May 16 opening of the 19th parliament's first session, which probably will last about two months.

A lengthy cabinet meeting was held yesterday, presided over by Prime Minister Mackenzie King, just returned from his southern United States holiday trip. A spokesman said sessional matters were reviewed.

There is an impression on Parliament Hill that the session will be comparatively short and is unlikely to extend past the statutory minimum for a regular session, which makes it necessary for 65 days to elapse between the opening day and prorogation. Sundays and holidays are included in this period and the earliest prorogation date thus would be July 20.

If parliament's business, however, is cleaned up expeditiously and work is completed before that date, it is understood the government might recommend that an amendment be made to reduce the required length of the session and enable parliament to prorogue earlier.

The Capital, meanwhile, is speculating on the possible choice of speaker of the new House of Commons. It is believed generally that the government will desire that Hon. Pierre Casgrain, the present speaker, continue for at least one session but there has been no definite indication of this yet.

Sworn in as Privy Councillor

Mr. Casgrain was sworn in yesterday by Chief Justice Sir Lyman P. Duff, Administrator of Government, as a member of the Canadian Privy Council. It was emphasized this had no significance in relation to whether he would continue as speaker.

Among Liberal leaders there is some division of opinion about the next speaker. Several Liberals have protested that it is the turn for an Anglo-Canadian speaker, since Mr. Casgrain, a French-Canadian, has presided over the House since 1935. It has been customary to divide the honor between English and French speaking members.

Should an English-speaking member be nominated by the government and elected formally by the House, a change in the Senate speakership would be necessary. Senator W. E. Foster of Saint John is the present speaker in the Upper House and it is unusual for a French-Canadian to head the Senate when an Anglo-Canadian is speaker in the Lower House.

Ottawa is starting to buzz again with parliamentary gossip and there are reports Ross W. Gray, member for Lambton West, will not seek the post of Chief Liberal Whip, which he has held since 1935. J. G. Turgeon, member for Cariboo, B.C., and Assistant Whip, may be promoted to the whip job.

D. D. G. M. Pays Official Visit to The Belleville Lodge

The Rt. Wor. Bro. Hilton McCartney, D.D.G.M. of Prince Edward District, paid his official visit to The Belleville Lodge, A.F. and A.M. No. 123, G.R.C., at their regular monthly meeting held in the Masonic Temple, on Thursday evening. The Rt. Wor. Bro. Everett Fairman acted as toastmaster for the evening and following the singing of "The King and the Craft", the toast to the "Grand Lodge" was proposed by Wor. Bro. C. D. Crosby and was responded to by Rt. Wor. Bro. Hilton McCartney, who at the same time favored members of the Belleville Lodge with a fine address. The toast to the "Visiting Brethren" was proposed by Wor. Bro. Fred Chapman and was responded to by the visiting members including Dis. Chaplain, Rev. E. N. Grant and Rt. Wor. Bro. Dr. E. A. Carleton of Stirling. The final toast of the evening was the 'Junior Warden's Toast".

During the course of the evening and between toasts Jimmy Bankier favored the members with the rendition of several rollicking solos. Mr. Alec Gordon acted as accompanist. Following the meeting the members of The Belleville Lodge and visiting members retired to the banquet hall where a luncheon was served.

EDITOR WAS SCOOPED

Jackson, Miss., May 3 (AP). — Frederick Sullens, 63-year-old editor who suffered head cuts in a fight with Governor Paul B. Johnson in a hotel lobby yesterday, was carried to his room after the encounter. "His only thought," said his daughter, "seemed to be—'and here I am scooped on my own story'."

Sullens' Daily News, an afternoon paper, had gone to press when the fight occurred.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 4 (CP).—Stocks had the biggest all in a week of losses of Toronto Exchange today. A moderate rally in early afternoon reduced most losses. Volume was the heaviest of the week with 307,000 shares traded in the first three hours.

Depressing war news and rumors of new taxation apparently fostered the weakness. Nickel touched 35, its low for five years, before recovering. Noranda and Smelters lost fractions and the cheaper base metals declined and partly recovered.

Wright-Hargreaves sold in volume for a loss of 20 cents and Dome, Sylvanite, Pamour, Central Patricia, Little Long Lac and other secondary golds were heavy.

In the industrials lower prices were posted by the Utilities Foods, Steels and liquors. Papers held steady.

WALL STREET

New York, May 3—(AP)—Stocks tumbled and righted themselves with bewildering rapidity in today's market.

In a first hour relapse leading Steels, Motors and Rubbers fell 1 to more than 2 points in lively dealings. The sell-off was short-lived and, near the fourth hour, losses were substantially reduced or converted into sizeable gains.

Prominent stocks on the rebound were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, International Paper, Rayonier, Westinghouse and Crown Zellerbach.

Backward were U.S. Rubber common and preferred and Montgomery Ward, all of which hit new 1940 lows.

Canadian issues were lower. Dome Mines, Distillers and Hiram Walker dipped fractions. Canadian Pacific was steady while Lake Shore Mines rested unchanged. Canada 4's, in the Bond Market, were easy.

Weekly Livestock Report

Toronto, May 3 (CP)—After opening the week 15 to 25 cents higher cattle prices lost the early gain in a dull closing market, on the Toronto Livestock Market this week. Calves opened 50 cents higher and lost the early gain by the close. Lambs gained 25 cents and hogs and sheep were unchanged. About 400 head of cattle were unsold at the close.

A light opening cattle run of 1,300 head sent prices higher but heavy truck deliveries practically halted selling by Wednesday afternoon. Weighty steers held steady at $6.75 to $7.50 while butcher bulls and heifers closed at $6.25 to $7. Fed calves finished 25 to 50 cents below Monday at $6.75 to $8, according to quality. Butcher cows closed at $4.25 to $5.75 with canners and cutters at $3.25-$4. Bulls closed at $5 to $5.75.

Stockers moved readily at $5.50 to $6.75. Milkers and springers were steady at $75 to $80 for tested tops with others downward to $50 each. Calves opened 50 cents higher at $11 for tops but the close was down to $10.50. Common to medium vealers were plentiful at $5 to $9.

Hogs held a steady trend for the week at $8.25 off trucks for bacons and $11 dressed.

Sheep and lamb receipts included 2,000 westerns. Lambs were up 25 cents at $11.25 for westerns with some from local feed-lots at $8 to $11 cwt. Spring lambs were mostly $8 to $11 each with a few 70 pounders at $12. Sheep were unchanged at $3 for culls and up to $7 cwt for good, light ones.

3-4 Cent Rise In Butter Price

Toronto, May 3—In direct contrast with the trend of the past two weeks, butter prices jumped 3-4 cent per pound yesterday when buyers stepped into the local market apparently to replenish depleted stocks. Eggs showed little change.

Buying on the butter market, which got underway Wednesday, became more aggressive as yesterday's session progressed. Prices started to curve upward soon after the opening, with first grade Ontario creamery solids selling at 22-1-2c per pound in early morning, at 23c by noon, and during the afternoon business was transacted at 23 1-4c to 23 1-2c. While the market closed at that price range, no offerings were available below 23 1-2c at the close. Sellers withdrew offerings as trading gained momentum, and buyers were forced to raise bids in an effort to obtain supplies. Prints moved through retail channels at 24 1-2c to 25c.

The egg market showed a steady tone, with receipts in sufficient volume to satisfy demand. Storage packed and Government inspected lots sold at 1-2 cent per dozen premium.

Montreal Produce.

Montreal, May 3—(CP) —Produce market prices here, as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Butter: First grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 24 3-4c to 25 1-4c; first grade solids, jobbing price, 24 1-4c to 24 3-4c.

'Espionage Centre' In the Balkans Reported Smashed

Bucharest, May 3 (AP)—Southeastern Europe's fluctuating fears of involvement in the war centred today on Allied fleet movements in the Mediterranean and the reported smashing of a German "espionage centre" here.

Police disclosed they raided the basement of a building near the Royal Palace in the heart of Bucharest where a number of Germans and Polish refugees were arrested and a wireless sending and receiving set confiscated.

Concurrently it was reported from Sibiu, Transylvania, that Rumanian counter-espionage police had arrested and expelled a large number of German army officers. In addition, many householders of German descent, accused of sheltering the officers, were said to have been deported.

Unofficial sources said that wholesale expulsion of a great number of Polish refugees would start today.

There have been charges recently that emigres from German and Russian-partitioned Poland had been selling to German agents passports obtained for passage of Polish refugees to France.

headquarters to another region and is continuing to direct from there.

It is emphasized that the Allied evacuation made no difference to Norwegian resistance. The Norway government is still in Norway and from this remark it was taken that this includes King Haakon.

Determination Expressed

Other authorities, in the face of reports from Stockholm that the Namsos area north of Trondheim had been abandoned like the Andalsnes region south of that German-held port, also emphasized Britain's determination to press the fight for Norway.

There was no official comment on the Swedish report and the military source who discussed operations in Norway refused to discuss the situation in the Namsos sector.

This source scoffed at reports that the withdrawal from Andalsnes, port south of Trondheim, was preliminary to a general retreat.

"The government of Norway is still in being and we have no idea of abandoning it or the campaign," he said.

He said that the British rearguard action before the abandonment of Andalsnes "handled the Germans roughly."

The technical military inference drawn from the withdrawal, he said, was that "our troops have shown they are as good as their forefathers ever were. They were able after weeks of marching and fighting to perform the most difficult of military operations, rearguard action, without loss of life in the fact of overwhelming air superiority.

"This air superiority is the greatest problem we have to deal with today."

Associated Press Staff Writer

Stockholm, May 3 (AP)—The withdrawal of British and French forces from the Steinkjer front and their debarkation base at Namsos, north of Trondheim, was reported today in reports reaching Stockholm through usually reliable channels.

The forces in the Namsos-Steinkjer sector formed the northern jaw of the pincers with which the Allies sought to capture the vital port of Trondheim from the Germans; the southern jaw was abandoned yesterday with the British forces withdrawal from Andalsnes.

(In London a British military source declared Britain has no intention of abandoning the Norwegian campaign or the Norwegian government, but authorities refused to discuss the reports of withdrawal from Namsos.)

Orderly Withdrawal

The reports reaching Stockholm said the Allied withdrawal from Steinkjer, 60 miles north of Trondheim, and the embarkation at Namsos, 40 miles farther north, took place in orderly fashion despite intensive German air attacks which were reported to have killed 30 persons and wounded 60.

The British forces were reported to have withdrawn last night and the French the night before.

The first indication of a possible withdrawal came when correspondents were prevented from visiting either the front line at Steinkjer or the port of Namsos. The withdrawal apparently was timed to fit in with that from Andalsnes, south of Trondheim.

The Germans now have complete control of Trondheim and Bergen, two of Norway's chief west coast ports, and thus have attained their goal of establishing bases in the North Atlantic. However, these were won only at the price of heavy sacrifices in the German naval forces, for which these bases might have been valuable.

Meanwhile German forces moved through the broad southern lobe of Norway to follow up the earlier British withdrawal from the Andalsnes area, south of Trondheim, for a consolidation of positions in roughly half of Norway.

Roros and Storen Taken

This area is inhabited by six-sevenths of Norway's 3,000,000 population. The Germans were also reported to have taken Roros and Storen, key railway points south of Trondheim, which they evacuated in a strategic movement earlier in the week.

British troops were said in dispatches reaching here to have fallen back to Namsos from the Steinkjer line and to have embarked under a rain of German bombs which killed 30 persons and wounded 60.

German air men made repeated attacks on Namsos, churning the ashes and debris of former attacks. Buildings were said to be smouldering and docks were a vista of tangled wreckage.

The German lines moved up the Glomma River valley toward Trondheim. Military observers said the Norwegians could hardly hope to continue their resistance in central Norway without aid.

Barren North of Trondheim

Between Trondheim and Narvik lies the most barren part of Norway—a strip of indented coastline and mountains with scant means of communication. The only rail line there goes directly east into Sweden.

Although no definite word has been received here from the Narvik sector in several days, the British, French and Norwegians there were believed to be still laying sieze to the German garrison landed there on the first day of the Norwegian invasion, April 9.

The Norwegians blew up a bridge on the river as they departed from Roros, but Germans rushed repairs on the bridge and moved in this morning.

Storen was taken by German troops operating south out of the Trondheim region. The Norwegians withdraw eastward across Gauld valley.

Part of Movement

The German advance into these two cities was part of a general movement through the mountain passes and narrow valley roads of central Norway.

The disposition of the Allied troops in the Steinkjer sector, 60 miles north of Trondheim, was a military secret as the Germans moved up to this region in the wake of the British evacuation of central Norway announced yesterday.

A special correspondent for a Swedish newspaper, the Social Demokraten, reported that both Namsos and Grong, 25 miles to the east, were bombed and machine-gunned by German planes Wednesday and yesterday. He reported at least six casualties at Namsos.

He also reported great activity in this region, but he could not say whether the Allies were preparing for an offensive. Telephone operators said calls could not be put through to Grong because of "unexplained reasons."

bomb Allied troops and ships in Norway while the most vigorous attacks have been pressed home against vital German bases, transports and supply ships.

"From the evening of Wednesday, April 24th, onward naval aircraft have been supporting our forces on land against a vastly superior air force working from shore bases. In the course of these operations alone at least ten enemy aircraft have been destroyed and many others damaged.

Aircraft and Hangars Destroyed

On Thursday, April 25th, naval aircraft delivered an attack in force on enemy bases and shipping in the Trondheim area. At Varnes three large hangars were destroyed and other buildings on the airdrome were damaged and destroyed.

"A grounded enemy bomber aircraft and nine seaplanes at their moorings were successfully attacked with bombs and machine gun fire.

"At Thanshavn two enemy tankers were set on fire while four supply ships and two transports were attacked with good results and a direct hit was obtained on a large store depot.

"On Sunday, April 28th, naval aircraft returned to attack at Varnes when in a most determined onslaught all remaining hangars on the airdrome were destroyed together with several grounded aircraft.

"The attack on enemy flying boats and seaplanes achieved excellent results. In the course of these operations five more enemy aircraft were shot down. On the same day three naval aircraft were shot down.

"On the same day three naval aircraft broke up an attack on one of His Majesty's carriers by seven enemy aircraft. Two of the enemy aircraft were brought down.

"Operations of this magnitude must inevitably be attended by some loss and it is regretted that crews of six aircraft are missing. Details of casualties are being communicated to the next of kin as soon as possible.

"Since the German invasion of Norway His Majesty's ships have been exposed to repeated enemy bombing attacks. No losses other than those already announced have been incurred while at least 20 enemy aircraft have been shot down and others damaged by anti-aircraft gunfire of the fleet."

ALLIED MOVE SEEN

when shipping circles in Genoa reported British vessels in that port had received orders to leave the Mediterranean at once, returning to England by way of the Suez Canal. Today the British consul said he knew of no such orders.

Returning Empty to England

British officials on Tuesday announced that "pronouncements by Italians in responsible positions and the attitude of the Italian press make it necessary for His Majesty's government to take precautions as regards British shipping which would normally pass through the Mediterranean."

Shippers said the British collier Alex, which arrived in Genoa with 6,000 tons of coal, had been ordered by her owners to return empty to England.

Two other British vessels, the Llandovery Castle and the Switzerland, were reported to have sailed from Genoa and still another, the Baltara, was ready to leave.

Vessels of the Italian lines continued on schedule, the Vulcania leaving Genoa for South America and the Roma making preparations to sail tomorrow for New York.

While the motive behind the reinforcement of the Allied warships in the Mediterranean was being weighed, some Fascists compared the move to the dispatch of the British home fleet to the same waters during the Ethiopian war. They said they believed the new action is only a demonstration intended to influence Italian policy.

Italian Press Marvels

Italians outwardly attributed greater importance to the German victories in Norway than to symptoms that war may be drawing near Italian shores.

The Italian fleet was reported last month for "naval manoeuvres" but there has been no official news of its activities.

In Italy there is no external evidence of increased preparations for war. Construction of anti-aircraft shelters and preparations for blackouts, which took place in all Italian cities last fall, have not been resumed.

On the other hand, basic war preparations have been going on steadily for several months. There are approximately 1,200,000 men under arms.

Today's newspaper headlines gave prominence to Norway.

Il Popolo Di Roma said that the British withdrawal from Andalsnes would remain more memorable than the British defeat at Gallipoli in the last war and added it marvelled that 'in a democratic country like England a government forced to confess so openly a failure of its own political and military actions can still remain in power.'

NO CABINET CRISIS

Mr. Chamberlain's statement purposely left the military situation in northern Norway vague. Operations might be hampered by too much information, the Prime Minister said. He assured the House that Norway is not to become a sideshow; but warned that the Allies and the neutrals alike must be ready for new German attacks, in the west or the southwest.

It was too early to strike a true balance sheet in Norway, he said. But "the balance of advantage lies up to the present with the Allied forces." British loss of life had been small in proportion to the scale of the action. German losses "must have amounted to many thousands," while blows to the German fleet had altered the naval balance of the war in the Allied favor.

Press Comment

The Daily Herald, organ of the Labor party, commented sarcastically on Mr. Chamberlain's statement, declaring editorially:

"Britain, democracy's champion, has suffered a major defeat in Norway.

"For that defeat Mr. Chamberlain must accept first responsibility.

"Did he appear to understand the severity of the shock which he was delivering to the British people? His deepest emotion — apart from complacency — appears to have been one of injured surprise."

The Herald added that within a few hours of Mr. Chamberlain's "confession, one of his mouthpieces Lord Stanhope, was denying that the Norwegian defeat was a setback and even doubted whether it could be called a 'check.'"

The Herald's political commentator said cabinet changes were unlikely since the cabinet would take "joint responsibility for what has happened."

The Press in general did not emphasize Mr. Chamberlain's warning of the possibility of a direct Nazi attack on Britain but expressed uneasiness over whether the government was prepared to counter German strokes in other directions.

British Confident of Victory

Despite the criticism, the press and public alike reflected no loss of confidence in the Empire's inherent strength to gain ultimate victory.

Under the caption, "still true" the News Chronicle carried on its front page a statement Mr. Churchill made in 1915 after the withdrawal from the Dardanelles:-

"We are passing through a bad time now and it will probably be worse before it is better, but that it will be better if we only endure and persevere I have no doubt whatever . . .

"All the small states are hypnotized by German military pomp and precision. They see the glitter of the episode but they do not see or realize the capacity of ancient and mighty nations, against whom Germany is warring, to endure adversity and to put up with disappointments and mismanagement."

The Times said parliament would "certainly wish to inquire more narrowly into the time-table of our operations." It wondered how the German "wireless announced two days ago our intention to evacuate Andalsnes."

The Daily Express said it was "disappointed because Mr. Chamberlain had not begun his declaration of the war in Norway with a frank admission that we have suffered a reverse."

"That is the primary fact we have to deal with," the newspaper said.

"Politically—in its effect on neutral and non-belligerent nations—we have suffered a major defeat," the New Chronicle said. "Hitler's personal standing with his own people, the power of the Nazis to browbeat and intimidate smaller nations, has been increased as the prestige of the Allies for resolution and effectiveness has been diminished.

"Now the most important two-thirds of Norway is in virtually undisputed control of Hitler's forces.

"It should still be in our power to save the remainder and its importance must not be underrated. If only for preventive reasons the coastline must be preserved from becoming a hide-out for U-boats and Narvik with its proximity to Sweden's essential ore mines must be firmly held at all costs.

"But the swift abandonment of our effort to challenge the German hold is a dangerous reverse which calls for fundamental reassessments both of our leadership and of the scale of our national effort."

The Herald reported that 15 members of parliament who sit on the back benches held a private meeting yesterday "at which the question of the cabinet's resignation was raised." The paper said Leslie Hore-Belisha and Colonel L. C. S. Amery, former cabinet ministers, and Captain Harold MacMillan, attended.

The Air Ministry announced a bombing raid on the Stavanger airdrome took place early Thursday with Royal Air Force bombs playing "havoc" with the landing surface of the airfield. The captain of one British bomber stated that he surprised a German mine-laying plane at close range and shot it down into the sea.

Many Questions Need Answering

"Members of the House will want to know why eight days after the invasion had begun, instead of stressing the hazards of the Allied expedition, he (Mr. Chamberlain) said Germany had made no bigger blunder." The Daily Mail said.

The Times said parliament would "certainly wish to inquire more narrowly into the time-table of our operations. It may, as Mr. Chamberlain said, have been a mere coincidence that the German invasion was so timed as to follow a few hours after our minelaying in Norwegian waters; but that can hardly be an explanation of the fact that the German wireless announced two days ago our intention to evacuate Andalsnes."

"Another Norwegian campaign is due to open next week," the Daily Mail said. "It will be waged against the war cabinet in the House of Commons. Mr. Chamberlain himself will be under fire."

Failure Not Irreparable

The Yorkshire Post, which has been known to reflect the views of the Dominion's Secretary, Anthony Eden, said that "Britain must acknowledge a failure in southern Norway but an excusable failure and not an irreparable one."

The Daily Telegraph said that "National experience of many a long war has taught us to respond to checks to our arms by renewed and intensified effort."

The Manchester Guardian said "The result is deeply disappointing and will do us harm. Mr. Chamberlain's references to our future policy are not promising.

FREIGHTER DOCKS

Winter, and Captain Burke, a hockey fan, accepted his application when the youngster sought a job as deckhand along with Ted Brodeur, another member of the team. It was the first voyage for both.

"And it was my last," Swales said. "I never expected to see such weather as we encountered Tuesday night."

While the waves grew higher, Swales went to his berth to sleep. He was awakened at 4.45 a.m., he said.

Ship Lists Badly.

"The ship was listing badly," he recalled. "At five minutes after five o'clock she went down. Two minutes after we got into the only lifeboat we could launch, she had sunk completely and we were sitting in the lurching boat—all sixteen of us—while the wind and snow swept about our heads."

Swales gave the first story made public on the sinking. He said the strong backs of the ship's hatches were bent by the storm, enabling water to get into her cargo of grain.

"If the cargo hadn't got wet, we'd have been aboard her yet," he declared.

The Arlington started to list to port to such an extent that the crew could put over only one starboard lifeboat. As the forward crew came back to the stern to take to the boat, waves washed over them and almost swept them from the icy deck.

"She listed to port and keeled right over on her side," Swales said. "The stern went down a little and then she sank completely."

Crew Kept From Public.

Swales was the first witness released from a preliminary inquiry opened at the town hall by Captain F. S. Slocombe, of Toronto, supervising examiner of masters and mates in the inland division of the Dominion Department of Transport. Until that time all members of the crew had been kept from the public after the Collingwood's landing in a cold drizzle of rain.

Captain T. J. Carson, master of the Collingwood and a close friend of Captain Burke, was reported near a breakdown with grief. He was the only man to leave the rescue ship in the first half hour she was in port and after a brief talk with the dead mariner's brothers he went into the dock elevators of his employers, Canada Steamship Lines, weeping and holding his head.

Between 600 and 700 persons stood in silence in the rain to watch the Collingwood pull into her berth, her burgees at halfmast and ensign at half-staff. Many in the crowd were relatives of the rescued seamen.

Members of the Arlington's crew, quartered in the forward cabins, poked their heads through the portholes and posed briefly for pictures.

W. L. Mackenzie, Federal government Steamship Inspector for the district, shouted "hey" and the sailors closed the portholes quickly. The Burke brothers went aboard and were closeted with the crew for some time.

Drink

There was no sign of damage to the Collingwood, which followed the Arlington through Tuesday night's raging gale and picked up her survivors about 5.30 a.m. Ice which coated her sides and decks as she cleared the locks at Sault Ste. Marie yesterday had disappeared.

To Hold Inquiry

Captain F. S. Slocombe of Toronto, supervising examiner of Masters and Mates in the Inlands Division of the Dominion Department of Transport, planned to hold a preliminary inquiry in the Midland Town Hall before allowing the sailors to go to their families. His findings will be forwarded to Ottawa, where a decision will be made upon whether a formal inquiry is to be held.

The survivors were bundled into automobiles and taken to the town hall while the crew of the Collingwood began to unload her cargo of grain.

One of the Collingwood's crew said simply, "she foundered" when someone asked what happened to the Arlington. But government and insurance men were standing nearby and he said nothing more.

Average Briton 'Shocked' by News But Resolve Stronger

London, May 3—(CP)—The average Briton was shocked by Prime Minister Chamberlain's House of Commons announcement yesterday of the withdrawal of Allied troops from southern Norway.

"It's bad, isn't it?" was a frequent comment today.

The Evening News commented that the man in the street will take a good deal of convincing before he joins Mr. Chamberlain's placid satisfaction that the balance of the advantage lies up to the present with the Allied forces.

"Public opinion has received a shock," was the Star's view, "but it is certain that the general effect will be to strengthen rather than to weaken the general determination that the campaign in Norway shall be continued with all possible vigor."

GODIVA WINS, 10-TO-1 CHANCE

Captures Classic One Thousand Guineas, Defeating Favorite at Newmarket

Newmarket, England, May 3 (CP).—Edmond Harmsworth's Godiva, a 10 to 1 chance ridden by the apprentice jockey D. Marks, today won the classic one thousand guineas, defeating the 11 to 8 favorite, Viscount Astor's Golden Penny, by five lengths.

Sir Malcolm McAlpine's Allure, 10 to 1, was third by another four lengths in the field of eleven. Godiva, a bay filly by Hyperion from Carpet Slipper, covered the mile distance in one minute, 40 3-5 seconds.

Supporters of Golden Penny, the season's outstanding filly and a big derby hope, were shocked when Godiva, after chasing Lord Astor's Drawing Prize until half way, dashed in front and set the pace to the winning post.

PASSENGER TRAIN REROUTED

Ottawa, May 3 (CP)—Canadian National Railways officials said today a washout during the night, near Pembroke, Ont., had necessitated rerouting of the transcontinental train from the west over the Canadian Pacific Railway lines in order to reach Ottawa.

The washout occurred some 25 miles northwest of Pembroke, and about 125 miles from Ottawa.

The transcontinental train, due in Ottawa at 6.30 a.m., was rerouted over C.P.R. lines from North Bay to Pembroke and will arrive in the Capital about 2 p.m., officials said.

Belleville School Children Greatly Interested in Work Of Ontario Junior Red Cross

Miss Eleanor Hollinger, Field Sec'y., Well Pleased With Results of Survey of Work Being Done by Boys and Girls of Local Schools

TEACHES HEALTH

Miss Eleanor Hollinger, field secretary of the Ontario Junior Red Cross, who has been visiting classes in this district finds among Belleville school children a keen and abiding interest in the work of the Junior Red Cross, an interest that has covered a long period of years and which is manifest by health projects and excursions into international friendship by the exchange of gifts and letters with the children of other lands.

Belleville public schools have long been "Junior Red Cross minded" teachers, principals and the health personnel of the community deserving much credit for their assistance in encouraging and fostering the work. Junior Red Cross stresses the promotion of better health practices but has two other aims, that of teaching children the joy of service to others and of fostering understanding and friendship among the children of the world.

Children of Belleville public schools Miss Hollinger found, have thrilled to the opportunities of contact with students of faraway countries and for several years have prepared elaborate portfolios and have dressed dolls that have found their way across land and sea to delighted Juniors abroad. In return the boys and girls of this community have cherished the mementos they have received in return, dolls in the national dress of Japan, Latvia and Hungary and a beautifully prepared portfolio made by the students of a school in Gyula, Hungary.

Has 19 Million Members

Junior Red Cross by its international nature, with nineteen million members in forty-nine countries, can achieve great things in building up a spirit of international friendship. Recent editorial comment commends this phase of Junior Red Cross work in the following terms:

"In too many countries children are deliberately imbued with prejudices against other nations. Hopes for civil and world peace are thus blighted. The sowing of hatred in young minds cannot be justified by any aim but, while deploring such procedure, too few people pay attention to the fact that there is one really logical international activity carried on at this critical time. The Red Cross Juniors are the human agents in this legitimate modern diplomacy.....The exchange of scrapbooks, and other articles, is developing a mutual respect that is the sure enemy of prejudice, war and low living standards. Yet, peace propaganda is not mentioned. Amid futile, blind efforts to do something constructive, and amid a sea of platitudes, here is one movement of sure logic."

Never neglecting its primary object of health teaching, the Junior Red Cross methods at the same time develop in children the ability to conduct meetings in a businesslike way, (classes being organized with members as young as eight years of age and continuing to High Schools) the desire for service by voluntary contributions of pennies for the soldiers' fund and for treatment of crippled children, (1,733 being assisted in Canada last year) and by the making of articles for soldiers.

Samples of Work Shown

Miss Hollinger brought with her examples of the work the Juniors in Ontario are doing for soldiers. The boys are proving as fine and enthusiastic knitters as the girls and the scarves they make for soldiers, the knitted squares that will be used in warm afghan quilts for refugees, and the string wash cloths also for soldiers in hospitals are beautifully finished. Belleville students, who do much local service work and are zealous in raising funds through their own efforts, for Red Cross work were greatly interested in the display which included personal property bags in gay materials. Before long knitting needles will be clicking and sewing needles flying as the children begin new undertakings of devoted service for Canada's soldiers.

Last evening a meeting of the Federation of Belleville teachers was held in the Y.M.C.A. to which rural teachers were invited, Miss Hollinger being the guest speaker.

11 R.C.A.F. MEN SWORN AS POLICE

Prior to the sitting of the Trenton police court earlier in the week eleven R.C.A.F. men of the Trenton Airport, were sworn in as special constables, their duties being to police the district in and around the Airport in co-operation with the civil police. The constables will wear red arm bands on the left arm with the word "R.C.A.F. police."

The men were sworn in by Magistrate Butler, K.C., with the oath of office and allegiance being read by Chief of Police Wm. Bain, of Trenton.

Names of the special constables are: S. G. Burgess; S. A. Bryson (formerly with the Provincial Police); L. M. Bishop; O. J. E. Baxter; J. E. Cassivi; C. Bernier; J. W. MacWilliams; J. E. Morrison; L. J. Moore; V. M. Pickersgill; W. L. Murphy and H. Wheeler.

GORDON GRAVES SENT FOR TRIAL

Elects Trial by Jury After Refusing Advice of Counsel

Refusing to heed to the advice of his counsel, Gordon Graves elected trial by judge and jury when he appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in today's local police court charged with breaking and entering Wheeler's junk yard premises, Station St., and stealing therefrom 80 pounds of yellow brass and bronze, the property of James Finn of this city. After evidence of the prosecution had subsequently been entered, His Worship committed Graves for trial at the next court of competent jurisdiction.

Graves was represented by Allan Sprague, local barrister, who during a consultation advised his client in the matter of procedure. Graves was seen to shake his head and Mr. Sprague immediately asked the Bench to be excused and left the court room, after Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., had intimated that a week's enlargement would be granted if Graves was desirous of joining the Canadian army. "He'd make a fine looking soldier," remarked Mr. Donnan.

The prosecution, in the preliminary hearing today, introduced the evidence of Mr. Finn who stated he had dismantled a bottling machine and had left the yellow brass at Mr. Wheeler's yard. Mr. Finn identified some yellow brass that was introduced into the court by Detective Fred Isard after being confiscated from another local junk dealer. Mrs. M. Marcus stated in evidence that she had purchased the brass and bronze from Graves last month. There was no cross examination of the witnesses introduced by Mr. Donnan by Graves, who was not represented by counsel when Mr. Sprague left.

Ray Woods alleged accomplice of Graves, appeared on the same charge and stated he also desired to be tried by judge and jury. In this case Mr. Donnan asked for a week's enlargement. "You are making as bad a mistake as warned Woods. Both lads were Graves," the Crown Attorney remanded to the custody of the county jail.

Young Women's Guild Holds Monthly Meeting

"How I have changed my mind in the last ten years," was the topic at the monthly meeting of the Young Women's Guild held this week at the home of Mrs. F. E. Turney, Foster Avenue.

Plans for a rummage sale and other business matters were followed by the worship service in charge of Mrs. A. D. Archibald.

Mrs. Wm. Mills introduced the topic with a plea for the open mind and a stock-taking of one's thought on character. "He who ceases to be better ceases to be good," and other quotations from prominent authors were inspirational.

A man who had spent ten years in Jail and had reconstructed his viewpoint was amazed when he visited a former friend to find the latter had nothing to report for his development during his ten years of freedom but trivialities.

The members were given twenty minutes to fill out for themselves a written questionnaire relative to "How I have changed my mind during the last ten years," with regard to such matters as war, patriotism, political systems, public ownership, trade unions, social questions, the unemployed, methods of child training, education and religion.

An impromptu discussion of some of these topics showed no lack of opinions or of expression.

The summing-up was done by Miss Doris Kerr, who raised the question of when to change and when to remain loyal to opinions, and pointed out that loyalty serves as an anchor and that higher loyalties drive out lesser loyalties. Jesus was loyal to the Kingdom of God and to His Father's will. Such a loyalty to the highest principles costs. Choices should be tested by the counsel of Christ.

The social part of the meeting consisted of a shower for Miss Jean Williamson who has been a member of the Guild and a helper in the School for Leisure Sewing School.

SERGT. THOMPSON TO DEPOSIT WREATH

The funeral of the late Mrs. William Cross, mother of the Hon. Eric Cross, Minister of Welfare for the Province of Ontario, was held in Madoc today, many notables of the provincial government being present. Sergeant H. E. Thompon of the Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police, represented that Department and deposited a large wreath at the graveside, on behalf of Attorney General Gordon Conant.

ROBBERS FOILED IN ATTEMPT TO OPEN C. N. SAFE

Express Company Office at Stirling Station Entered and Although Safe was Removed it Was Not Opened

WEIGHS 600 POUNDS

Robbers were foiled in their attempts to rob the Canadian Express Company safe, taken from the C.N.R. station at Stirling last night. The 600-pound steel safe was hauled out of the building and found this morning, badly defaced and damaged, some 300 yards north of the Stirling Station. Transients are believed responsible as only crude efforts to break open the safe were made, but in their efforts to crack the safe with the use of a sledge-hammer, the would-be safe breakers damaged the mechanism so badly that it was necessary to cut it open with an acetylene torch today.

E. W. Ormiston, C.N.R. station agent at Stirling discovered that the station had been broken into and the large 600-pound Express Company safe stolen, as he opened the station early today. Constable Sam Eggleton of Stirling and Provincial Constable W. E. Smith of Belleville investigated and later were informed that the marauders had entered through a rear window, opened the Express door and had bodily hauled or carried the 600 pound safe some 300 yards away where crow bars and sledge-hammers were used in a futile effort to open it. The strongly constructed safe withstood all attempts at ruinous attacks.

Strangely enough there was only a small amount of change, not more than $10.00 in the safe at the time. After being cut open by an acetylene torch the safe was rendered useless and will have to be replaced by a new one.

French and British Warships Arrive at Port in Egypt

Alexandria, Egypt, May 3 (C.P.-Reuters)—British and French naval forces arrived here today.

Concentration of "a British and French battle fleet with cruisers and auxiliary craft" here in the eastern end of the Mediterranean near the Suez Canal was announced yesterday in London by Prime Minister Chamberlain.

ENGINE, 2 CARS ARE DERAILED

Accident Due to Wash-out Caused by Recent Heavy Rains

Pembroke, Ont., May 3 (CP) — The engine and two cars of the Canadian National Railways Transcontinental train were derailed when the train struck a washout at Kathmmore, a flag station, 28 miles west of Pembroke early today.

The train, the Transcontinental Limited travelling between Montreal and Vancouver, was brought some 28 miles east of Kathmore to Pembroke Junction and rerouted over Canadian Pacific Railway tracks and continued its journey west.

Extent of the damage was not known immediately.

Heavy rains during the night washed out a section of the track but Canadian National officials said the derailment was not very serious. Only known injury was a cut on the face of the engineer.

The derailment occurred about 2 a.m., and auxiliary trains were sent out from Pembroke during the morning to put the limited back on the tracks.

Meantime the eastbound Transcontinental Limited was rerouted at North Bay Ont. over Canadian Pacific lines to Pembroke in order to reach Ottawa, arriving in the Capital several hours after its scheduled time of 6.30 a.m.

Girl Athletes of O. S. D. And Girl Guides Honored By Banquet at the School

Mrs. Leo Riggs and Mrs. M. E. Branscombe Are Guest Speakers

PRESENT CRESTS

Honoring the girl athletes who have achieved prominence in the various sports at the school during the past term, and marking the progress made in Girl Guide activities, an interesting banquet was held Thursday evening in the auditorium of the Ontario School for the Deaf, when the guest speakers were Mrs. Leo B. Riggs, District Commissioner of the Girl Guides and Mrs. M. E. Branscombe, Divisional Commissioner.

The long tables presented a lovely appearance with their decorations of red, yellow and green, carried out in artistically arranged streamers, in bowls of daffodils and tulips, and in place cards and serviettes. Particularly striking were the scenes of Guide life and sports, cleverly fashioned in tiny models to represent a campfire group, badminton, and other sports. These were greatly admired by guests and pupils. Completing the decorative arrangements plaques about the walls illustrated the flower names which teams use in competition.

A delicious banquet was served in splendid style and at its conclusion the National Anthem was sung by the gathering. Mr. W. J. Morrison, superintendent of the school presided and introduced the guests of the evening, Mr. G. F. Stewart, who acted as interpreter of the speeches for the deaf children, Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. M. E. Branscombe, Mrs. Leo B. Riggs, Mrs. H. W. Ackerman, Deputy Commissioner of Belleville Girl Guides, Mrs Morrison, Miss Catherine Ford, Miss Betty Holland, captain of Company Three, Belleville, Miss Rose Mary Gibson, acting captain St. Michael's Company, Miss Audrey Licence, captain of Company 7, Belleville.

List of Winners

Mr. Morrison expressed the pleasure it gave the staff and students to welcome the guests. He called upon the following individual sports stars and team captains to receive the crests and pennants which their ability had won for them:

Junior Rounders — Donna Latawiecz (Amethyst).

Junior Volley Ball — Loretta Hoy (Petunias).

Intermediate Softball — Maureen Stewart (Owls).

Intermediate Rounders — Eleanor Flowers (Garnets).

Intermediate Volley Ball—Norma Aistrop (Tulips).

Intermediate Badminton — Patsy Richardson, Donna Latawiecz.

Intermediate Table Tennis—Donna Latawiecz.

Intermediate Shuffle Board—Mary Innocente.

Senior Softball — Bertha Canning (Bluejays).

Senior Volley Ball — Vivian Richardson (Water Lilies).

Senior Table Tennis — Mary Churchill.

Senior Shuffle Board — Lucille Bourdeau.

Senior Badminton (A)—Dorothy Antonow, Phyllis Thompson.

Senior Badminton (B)—Opal McDonald, Eileen Barratt.

Senior Rounders—Phyllis Thompson (Pearls).

Senior Rounders 1938-39 — Ruby Carnall (Sapphires).

Intermediate Rounders 1938-39—Helen Reble (Emeralds).

Mr. Morrison explained that the games taught the girls stress those which will be most helpful to them when mingling with hearing children, and badminton has proved especially successful. Already competition had been arranged with Collegiate teams and the games thoroughly enjoyed.

Replies on behalf of all team captains were made by Miss Phyllis Thompson and on behalf of Girl Guides by Miss Marion Davidson, deaf girls, who spoke remarkably well, expressing appreciation to their teachers for the interest taken in their sports and Guide program.

Mrs. Riggs, district commissioner, spoke of the pleasure it gave her to be present at such a splendid gathering, complimenting the school on the excellence of the banquet arrangements and the girls on their skill in sports during the term. The Girl Guide Company of the O.S.D. was a fine contribution to Guiding in the city and she wished them success in all their undertakings.

Mrs. Branscombe in her talk to the Guides stressed Baden-Powell's advice to "look wide" urging the girls to look all about them, behind, on the accomplishments of the past, and ahead to work for the future. Members should live the Guide way in such a manner that it will be a challenge to those who come after.

Teachers Thanked

In introducing the staff speakers, Mr. Morrison thanked the teachers for the work they had done in promoting girls' sports and Guide work, and in arranging for this function. It was fitting that it should be held in the Assembly Hall which is a centre of sports activities. To Miss Ford who is keenly interested in all activities of the school, to Miss Keeler through whose enthusiasm Girl Guides were organized, and to Miss Maloney who is instructor for girls' sports and to whose training the girls are indebted for their proficiency at games, he paid a sincere tribute. Mr. Morrison spoke of the many advantages deaf children enjoy at the school, not only in sports, but in educational matters. It was always a matter of keen regret when pupils did not return for their last years at school, many leaving too soon. The recently organised National Society of the Deaf and Hard of Hearing was discussed by Mr. Morrison who said that it would soon have definite plans for vocational placement of the deaf.

Miss Ford in her interesting manner addressed the students and in her remarks showed how the principles of the Girl Guide organization, honor, loyalty, helpfulness, friendship, courtesy, kindness, obedience, cheerfulness, thrift and purity are also the principles of good sportsmanship. It was a pleasure to teachers, she said, to see the great improvement the girls had made in sports and the keen interest they took in Girl Guide work.

Miss Helen Keeler, captain of the O.S.D. Company pointed out that the Guides had been organized in the school since 1937 and this year the company included forty-one. Miss Keeler thanked the teachers who had given special assistance to the work and to Mr. Morrison for his encouragement at all times.

Miss Maloney, in charge of girls' sports, expressed gratitude to all who had helped make the banquet such a success. She explained the decorative scheme which illustrated the emblems of each team. The pennants and crests were made in the school. Miss Maloney thanked the girls for their wholehearted interest in sports, accepting losses with the same cheerfulness as when they won. She hoped that the girls when they went out into the world would carry with them the fine spirit of sportsmanship they had shown in their school games.

Obeyed Instructions But Maintains He Can't Speak English

Claiming he did not understand the English language, a native of Quebec, Joseph Charbaleau a transient, merely shrugged his shoulders indicating ignorance of what was transpiring when the man was arraigned before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in today's local police court on a charge of vagrancy.

"Non de Angleesh," was the only reply made by Charbaleau when the charge was read to him by Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C.

"I don't believe you when you intimate you don't understand me," replied Mr. Donnan as he asked for a week's remand.

"Perhaps you can learn enough English while on remand at the jail to plead next Friday," added Mr. Donnan.

"Go back and sit down," ordered Magistrate Butler and strangely enough Charbaleau took his seat in the prisoners' docket, as court officials smiled as he obeyed the court's instructions to sit down after disclaiming knowledge of the English language.

"Apparently he's learning fast," remarked Mr. Donnan.

POLICE COURT

Allan Asselstine, and his 19-year-o'd son, George, both pleaded guilty to charges of intoxication when arraigned before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., in today's city police court proceedings. Indicating inability to pay the conventional fine which follows convictions of drunkenness, the Asselstines were given 14 days in the common jail.

"Where did this boy procure intoxicants?" asked His Worship.

"His father gave it to him," replied Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C.

John McManus was given seven days after pleading guilty to a charge of vagrancy. "This man has been here before and is a nuisance in the city," revealed Chief Kidd. Thomas McLaren was sentenced to 14 days after being convicted of intoxication. Both were transients.

A. M Hogan, Hastings, appeared on a charge of attempting to obtain $211.00 from an automobile insurance company with intent to defraud. Hogan elected summary trial and pleaded guilty as he added he would "throw myself on the mercy of the court." The accused was remanded for sentence, however.

Omer Gauthier, R.C.A.F. Trenton, appeared on a charge of drunken driving, but his case was enlarged for one week. H. J. Smith, Trenton barrister, appeared on behalf of the owner of the automobile, which Gauthier was said to have been driving at the time of his apprehension in Belleville. Mr. Smith proved conclusively that the vehicle was the property of a Trenton taxi concern and had been rented by Gauthier. The vehicle was released to its proper owners at the command of His Worship.

Three minor H.T.A. cases concluded the court.

HITLER ADDRESSES OFFICERS

Berlin, May 3—(AP)—Adolf Hitler in a surprise address in the Sportspalast today declared the war is "a fight for being, or not of being, of the German people."

Hitler spoke before 6,000 army and air force officers and leaders of the SS, black-shirted elite guard. The German News Agency, in reporting the event, said Field Marshal Hermann Goering also addressed the gathering.

SWEDENSURPRISED BY WITHDRAWAL OF BRITISH ARMY

Swedish Press Speculates on Reasons for Abandonment of Andalsnes Region

REFERS TO PRESTIGE

Stockholm, May 3 (CP-Havas)—Commenting on Prime Minister Chamberlain's statement on the withdrawal of British troops from the Andalsnes region, Evenska Dagbladet, Conservative newspaper, said today:-

"Despite the victorious battles of Narvik and the success won by submarines against German transports in the Kattegat and Skagerrak the British navy did not succeed in preventing regular transport of German troops and material towards southern Norway.

"It may be asked what the reason it. Is it a fear of German air bombings, or apprehension regarding developments in the Mediterranean which prevented the British Admiralty from carrying out a decisive operation?

"Or did the English want to spare their battle fleet in the same manner as Kaiser Wilhelm spared his during the last war? Or are they waiting, without regard for loss of prestige, for the moment when the Allies will also have supremacy in the air?"

Dagens Nyheter, organ of the Liberal People's Party, said that it is not difficult to imagine the feelings of the Norwegian people when they know that the area south of Trondheim has been abandoned.

"Surprised and betrayed, the Norwegian army began a heroic fight against a frightful war machine," this paper said. "Now, once again the Norwegians are alone. If it was impossible to take Trondheim from the south, it will be even more difficult to take it from the north, since the Germans have established their communications between the area south of Trondheim and Oslo.

"It may be that the British statement should be interpreted as a decision to conquer the Narvik sector, which basically is a simple enough undertaking, but which could not give the Allies advantages comparable to those the Germans have."

The Stockholms-Tidningen, also a People's Party organ, referred to the disappointment of the Norwegians at the Allied withdrawal. "It is also easy to imagine the manner in which the small neutral state will react," said this paper. "Certainly these reactions will not be of advantage to Great Britain's prestige."

KNUT HAMSUN ISSUES MANIFESTO

Stands With Nazi Propagandists, Urges Norwegians to Yield

Oslo, May 3.—(AP).—Knut Hamsun, Norwegian novelist who won the Nobel literature prize in 1920, today lined up with Nazi propagandists in this German-occupied capital. He sent to each newspaper a manifesto accusing the British navy of infringing on Norway's neutrality and urging Norwegians to lay down their arms against Germany.

His statement said "When the Britishers in their prodigious savagery forced a passage into Jossing Fjord and infringed our neutrality, you did nothing about it."

(He referred to the British invasion of Norwegian territorial waters when the German prisonship Altmark was boarded February 17 and 300 captive Britons freed in Jossing Fjord.

"But when the Germans occupied Norway to prevent war in our country, you did something: you conspired with our run-away king and his private government and mobilized.

"It is no use. England is incapable of helping you except with small flocks here and there roving about the valleys begging for food.

"Norwegians! Throw away your rifles and return home. The Germans are fighting for us and now are crushing England's tyranny over us and all neutrals."

Pastoral Changes Given Approval

Toronto, May 3 —(CP)— A number of pastoral changes and transfers of ministers now retired, were given approval by the transfer committee of the United Church of Canada, which met here.

Toronto ministers who are moving to other conferences include Rev. Simon Edwards, of Parkdale church, who goes to London, Ont.; Rev. E. W. Jewett to London; Rev. F. G. McLennan to Bay of Quinte; Rev. L. H. Turner to London, and Donovan Jones, a candidate for ordination, who goes to Bay of Quinte.

From the Bay of Quinte Conference Toronto will receive Rev. Harry E. Mellow, also Rev. J. E. McDonald, Rev. A. R. Sanderson, and Rev. Edwin Smith, retired.

Toronto will receive from London Conference in an exchange of ministers, Rev. J. J. Coulter, of Sarnia, and Rev. J. N. Clarry, Rev. J. T. McFarlane, and Rev. J. P. McLeod, retired.

CLAIMS TROOPS LEAVE NAMSOS

Stockholm Correspondent Writes That Allies Have Withdrawn North of Trondheim

(By Gunnar Knutsen, Staff Correspondent of the Stockholm Svenska Dagbladet)

On the Steinkjer Front, Northern Norway, May 3—(AP)—British and French troops which had landed north of German-held Trondheim for the campaign against the Nazi invasion embarked last night in Namsos harbor and sailed away.

The entrance of German troops in this sector is awaited.

The new withdrawal north of Trondheim followed the removal of Allied forces from the Andalsnes region south of Trondheim and apparently left the Narvik area the only part of Norway occupied by Allied troops.

Despite denials given out last night, it was obvious then that the British forces intended to leave the Steinkjer area, (60 miles north of Trondheim and 35 miles south of Namsos).

This first became clear to me when late last night I tried to get to Namsos. A British officer told me that if I did succeed in getting through I could not get back. I therefore assumed something was going on which I was not supposed to witness.

The Norwegians were suffering from lack of ammunition and other supplies and the British forces left for them at Namsos great quantities of supplies, including trucks and high-wheeled army cars. The British troops embarked on six large transport ships escorted by several destroyers.

All available Norwegian trucks and cars have been mustered to rush the supplies down to the Norwegian troops remaining on the Steinkjer front.

TORSOS OF BODIES FOUND IN BOXCARS

Bodies Were Nude and Both Appeared to be Victims of Mutilation

Pittsburgh, May 3—(AP)—Dismembered bodies of three persons, who might be the victims of the "mad butcher" blamed for 12 torso slayings in Cleveland, were found today in the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad yards in nearby Stowe township.

Deputy Coroner Anthony Sappo said the word "Nazi" had been carved on the chest of the third victim, found several hours after the discovery of the first two torsos. One was identified as that of a woman.

All were found in boxcars which arrived here April 21 from Struthers, O., 60 miles southeast of Cleveland and 15 miles from New Castle, Pa., where the torso of a young man was found last Oct. 13 in a swamp.

Sappo said the cars apparently had been sent to Struthers from Cleveland and re-routed to the Stowe township yards.

Search the Yards

He added that a thorough search of the big repair yards would be made in the belief that "We might uncover other victims."

Dr. P. R. Helmbold, coroner's physician, said the bodies had been dissected by some one with a "knowledge of surgery" or a butcher. Bodies, he said, apparently were cut up with a butcher knife.

Heads of the victims were missing, but the arms and legs were found near the torsos. All were nude and there were no clues to the identity of the victims.

A car inspector for the railroad discovered the bodies in a routine check of the cars, assigned to the yards for repair or for dismantling.

DETACHMENT OF "BLUE DEVILS" REACHES NARVIK

Will Reinforce Siege of German Garrison at Far Northern Port

SKI TROOPS ACTIVE

Paris, May 3 (AP)—The War Ministry announced today that a detachment of "Blue Devils"—Alpine Crasseurs—had arrived at Norway's far northern port of Narvik to inforce the seige of the German garrison there.

An earlier contingent arrived at Namsos April 19.

Reviewing Allied fighting on the Scandinavian front, the Ministry spokesman said that French ski troops took 18 German prisoners yesterday and termed British withdrawal from the Andalsnes area as "a strategic incident."

The effect of British operations around Trondheim, he said, had been to delay liaison of German troops at Oslo and Trondheim and secure Allied positions in the north. In the Steinkjer-Namsos sector, he said, operations were progressing "very favorably."

(A dispatch from Stockholm today reported both British and French had abandoned the Steinkjer front north of Trondheim, leaving the Allied forces at Narvik as the only outside aid on hand for defence of Norway.

(In London, however, it was stated British forces still are fighting in Norway.)

32 Nazi Transports Sunk

The spokesman said that at least 32 German transports had been sunk by the Allied fleets in the Scandinavian campaign and that the Germans thus lost "a considerable number of men." He estimated there were 500 German planes in Norway and that they had consumed at least 500,000 tons of gasoline—a war commodity which Germany must use sparingly.

Western front fighting was marked by "quite lively" artillery fire in the Vosges mountain sector and occasional patrol and aerial activity.

The high command's morning communique reported "some artillery fire in the early part of the night.

An air raid warning was sounded in the northern region of France about 3.15 a.m. anti-aircraft guns opened fire.

WAR BRIEFS

London, May 3 (C.P. Cable)—The son of a former British Columbia resident commanded the minesweeper Dunoon, sunk by a mine with a loss of three officers and 24 ratings. The commander was one of the men who died. A death notice in The Times today merely disclosed that Lieut.-Commander Hugh Alan Barclay, second son of the late George Barclay, Ashcroft, B.C., was "killed on active service."

The Dunoon, a 710-ton craft with a normal complement of 73, was one of the "Hunt" class built between 1917 and 1919. Forty survivors were landed at a British port last night.

U. S. Aim is to Prevent Extension of War Says President Roosevelt

Government is Doing Everything Possible to Prevent Widening of War to Other Nations He Tells Italian Ambassador and Also Press Conference

Washington, May 3 (AP).—President Roosevelt said today the United States government was striving as it always had, to prevent the extension of the war to other areas and other nations.

He indicated at a press conference that he had made this plain in a talk with Prince Colonna, the Italian ambassador.

Asked what steps were being taken to check the spread of war, the President said that the government was doing everything it could.

Washington, May 3—(AP)—Apprehensive that Italy's entrance into the war would confront the United States with the most problems since the outbreak of the conflict, state department officials today watched every move in the Mediterranean with anxious concern.

The decision of the British government to divert its shipping from the Mediterranean, coming after the visits of inquiry made by United States Ambassador William Phillips to Premier Mussolini and Foreign Minister Ciano, focussed official eyes on the historic middle sea.

Officials are agreed that, if Italy goes to war beside Germany, the whole Mediterranean will have to be proclaimed a combat area, forbidden to United States shipping. Of all the great nations outside the western hemisphere, only Japan would be left with ports fully open to United States maritime commerce.

New Difficulties Would be Created

But a new combat zone represents only one of a series of difficulties. An Italy at war would raise these points for the United States:

1. More Americans by far are living there than in any other country in Europe. The State Department figure, as of Jan. 1, was 19,561. Most would have to be got out, a formidable undertaking.
2. Italy is the outlet for the removal of Americans from other portions of the continent, particularly Scandinavia.
3. Italy is the principal country of call for American ships going to Europe.
4. If the Mediterranean becomes a combat zone, it will involve the continents of Europe, Asia and Africa. It will embrace more countries than the total of the two combat areas previously proclaimed for northern Europe.
5. American ships now carrying strategic materials such as rubber from the far east would have to use the longer sea route which passes the Cape of Good Hope. Some 17,000 tons of rubber, obtained from Britain in a barter deal for cotton, are now en route from Malaya, mostly through the Mediterranean.

War in the Mediterranean would have the effect of shutting off United States ships from more than a dozen countries—Albania, Bulgaria, Egypt, Turkey, Palestine, Greece, Italy, Rumania, Saudi Arabia, Syria, Morocco, Yugoslavia, Iraq, Algeria and Soviet Russia. It would block cargoes to Russia's Black Sea ports. Trade with Hungary would be difficult.

House of Commons on Tuesday Begins an Inquiry Into Norwegian Reverse and Bitter Fight Expected Unless Allied Arms Achieve Success Over Weekend

London, May 4—(CP)—Britain will continue fighting for Norway "with the greatest vigor," an authoritative source emphasized today.

"The distance from German air bases of the operational area around Narvik will undoubtedly prove to be in our favor," said the British source.

Seizure of ports north and south of Trondheim, which since have been abandoned, was made to form bridgeheads through which more troops could pass, the authority said.

The first troops included territorials. The units which landed at Andalsnes were commanded by Brigadier H. De Rimer Morgan.

This source revealed that after French troops landed at Namsos part of their supplies and munitions were blown up.

Why The Weather?

By MAJOR A. H. THIESSEN
Science Service Meteorologist

The sun and the weather! Scientists are interested in knowing not only how much of the sun's heat energy daily reaches the earth's surface but also how much reaches the top of the amosphere. This latter indicates whether the amount given out by the sun is variable or constant. Since the top of the atmosphere can not be reached, measurements at the surface and on top of a mountain give sufficient data to estimate the value of the sun's radiation at the top of the atmosphere. It has been found that the amount varies about 5 per cent to either side of the average. And since the energy of the atmospheric circulation is dependent upon the amount of heat received, the question studied is how this variation affects our weather.

SHIPS SUNK DURING WEEK

With the Allies and Germany focussing all their attention this week on the Norwegian fighting, sinkings of merchant ships reached a new low since the war began.

Only one merchant ship was reported sunk, the Netherlands vessel Willy, 147 tons. She struck a mine.

PREMIER DE GEER THREATENS NAZIS WITH DISSOLUTION

Declaration Follows Arrest of Number of Dutch Nazi Leaders in Netherlands

THREAT BROADCAST

The Hague, May 4 (AP).—Premier Derek Jan de Geer told the nation in a broadcast today that 21 persons "who endangered the security" of the Netherlands were arrested and interned during the night.

All those interned, he declared, were arrested on the basis of personal acts and not because of their political views.

"These measures have been taken in accordance with martial law, under which the military authorities have the right to take into detention people whose presence is considered dangerous to the order and general security of the country," De Geer said.

One of those placed under arrest was M. M. Rost can Tonningen, a Nazi member of parliament and editor of the National-Socialist newspaper Nationale Dagblad.

No foreigners were arrested.

Government Regrets Move.

"The government deeply regrets being obliged to take measures against countrymen whose acts and thoughts are not in accord with our neutrality and who are a danger to our country," said De Geer.

"They undermine confidence in our firm will to resist every violation of our territory. They break down the security which is involved in the readiness of our defences against all belligerents.

"They are not to be compared with the Dutchmen of 1914-18, but rather to those who, at the end of the 18th century and the time of the French revolution brought about our country's darkest hours.

"This lesson of history forbids us to let them go," the premier concluded.

Lesson From Wisdom of Nations.

"It is not abnormal," the premier said, "that during a war a citizen of a neutral country should show more sympathy for one belligerent than for the other. The difference which exists is this: the patriotic feeling of such citizens is unquestioned.

"But it is different for the persons I now have in view. They are not pro-Netherlanders at all.

"They render themselves guilty of the worst partiality, of which they mistakenly accuse the government.

Body Had Word "Nazi" Carved On Chest in Five-Inch Letters

Pittsburgh, May 4—(AP)—Police of two states, taunted for 10 years by a mad butcher who has counted his victims at more than a score, mobilized today for a manhunt from Pittsburgh, dumping ground for three mutilated bodies.

Detectives came from Cleveland, home of madman's meanderings as they did from Youngstown, O., and New Castle, Pa., ports of call in a tour of death that led yesterday to a railroad siding near here where three surgically-sliced headless bodies were found in three boxcars.

The slaughterer's trail, obscured by perhaps several months of time, apparently traced back to Cleveland, where in the downtown Kingsbury Run section residents for years have been terrorized by a man with a knife who has killed and cut a dozen victims and left them dismembered in city dumps.

Two of the bodies uncovered from crude wrappings had been cut into eight pieces by what morgue attendants said was an expert in the use of a surgeon's scalpel or a butcher knife. The third had the word "Nazi" carved across the chest in five-inch letters. There were no identifying clues. The naked victims, 30 to 40 years old, had been dead an estimated six weeks to two months.

"I think it is safe to say the mad butcher's victims now total 24," declared Detective Peter Merylo of Cleveland, who for four years has hunted the killer. "The whole thing looks like his work."

GERMANY CLAIMS BOMBING PLANES SINK BATTLESHIP

NO COMMENT IN LONDON

Claimed German Aircraft Sent With Specific Orders to Get a Certain Ship

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Berlin, May 4 (AP). — Germany claimed jubilantly today that her bombing planes had sunk one of the largest vessels of the Royal Navy—a 30,000-ton battleship of the Queen Elizabeth class—off Norway's west coast.

The sinking was said by the German high command to have taken place off Namsos, the port from which the last British troops in central Norway re-embarked yesterday. (London did not comment on the claim immediately.)

Germans claimed it was the first time since beginning of the war that German aircraft had been sent out with specific orders to attack a designated battleship.

Adolf Hitler and Air Marshal Hermann Goering were represented as "overjoyed" at the "success" which they were said to regard as equivalent to the defeat of an army.

(The five vessels of the Queen Elizabeth class were built between 1913 and 1915.)

CAPTAIN STAYED AT WHEEL UNTIL CREW LEFT SHIP

Federal Investigators Continue Probe Into Sinking of Freighter Arlington in Storm

MEMBERS TESTIFY

Midland, Ont., May 4 (CP)—Federal investigators continued their inquiry today into the mysterious sinking of the Arlington while the Midland grain carrier lay more than 900 feet below the surface of Lake Superior, her master trapped in his cabin.

Stories of the swift tragedy which overtook the Arlington in Wednesday morning's raging gale seemed in agreement as to what occurred but even the sixteen surviving crewmen could not agree on whether Captain Fred Burke could have saved himself.

Two young hockey players, Francis Swales and Ted Brodeur, said the 52-year-old captain stayed at the wheel until the crew had taken to a lifeboat. Then he went to his cabin and went down in a few moments with his ship, while the freighter Collingwood stood by to pick up the survivors.

Sea-faring men here expressed the conviction that Captain Burke died, true to the great tradition of sea captains—on ocean or fresh water—to stay with their ships. They recalled the fact that he never lost a man in his 31 years on the lakes.

Pope Will Leave Rome For Portugal Residence If Italy Went to War

Paper Says His Holiness Would Not Hesitate to Take the Most Extreme Measures, Even Excommunication, Against All Organs of the State Responsible for Italy Becoming a Belligerent

Basel, Switzerland, May 4 (CP-Havas).—The newspaper National Zeitung of Basel reported today that if Italy went to war Pope Pius XII would leave Rome to take up residence in Portugal.

Quoting "well informed circles", the newspaper said the Pope likewise had let it be understood that he would not hesitate to take the most extreme measures, even excommunication, against all organs of the state responsible for Italy becoming a belligerent.

The National Zeitung drew the conclusion that the latest fight for the fate of Italy now has entered the active stage.

The Vatican, the report said, takes verl seriously the "campaign of hate" being waged against the Holy See by Roberto Farinacci in his newspaper Regime Fascista.

It understood that the Vatican soon would brand Farinacci publicly as a "pioneer of atheism".

The Pope was said to be entering into closer contact with the Royal House in order to strengthen patriotic Italian circles which are devoted to peace and which see a guarantee against the dangers of axis policy in the House of Savoy.

The National Zeitung added that secret opposition to the Italo-German alliance is widespread throughout Italy, extending even to the ruling classes. In addition to this "invisible" network, it concluded, the Catholic Church forms another focal point of opposition to Italian entrance into the war.

KNIFE WOUNDS CAUSE DEATH OF 2 CHINAMEN

Wounds Suffered in Melee in Rotunda of Grand Hotel at Shaunavon, Saskatchewan

INQUEST ORDERED

Shaunavon, Sask., May 4—(CP)—Charles Mah Hop, about 60, and Rudolph May Sai, about 45, both Chinese, died from knife wounds suffered in a melee in the rotunda of the Grand Hotel late last night. Two other Chinese were injured.

Police said they are seeking Jack Toy, 30-year-old Chinese for questioning.

Charles Mah Hop is the proprietor of the Grand Hotel and Rudolph Mah Sai the manager of a Shaunavon bakery.

The wounded men are Sam Mah, employed at the bakery, suffering from a serious leg wound and a cut on one arm; and Mah Yok, suffering from a minor cut on the left hand.

Policeman Shot in Same Hotel

Only eight weeks ago Sergeant A. J. Barker of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police was shot to death in the rotunda of the same hotel. Dick Greenlay, son of a rancher, is awaiting trial for Barker's murder.

Apparently the only witnesses of last night's fight in the hotel were Chinese residents of suites just off the rotunda said they heard Chinese voices arguing, but paid no particular attention.

Mah Hop and Mah Sai were witnesses at Greenlay's preliminary hearing on the murder charge. Mah Sai was playing solitaire in the rotunda when Barker was shot. Mah Hop was upstairs.

Dr. A. L. H. MacNeil, coroner, empanelled a jury which viewed the bodies, then adjourned without setting a date for the inquest into last night's fatalities.

Princess Pats Have New Song For the Regiment

Aldershot, Eng., May 4.—(CP).—The Princess Pats have a new regimental song. It is too early to tell if it will replace "The Ric-a-Dam Doo" which the original Pats sang along the byways of France as they gained undying fame in the first Great War. However, the current edition of the P.P.C.L.I. has adopted "The Empire March," changed the words to make them adaptable to the battalion and now the men sing the stirring lines as they swing along on route marches.

Corporal L. E. Grant of Winnipeg, revised the words of the old march

Here is the chorus:

"So clear the way for the men of the P.P.C.L.I.,
We're stalwart men, stout-hearted men,
And we know we can't go wrong;
We fear no foe as on we go,
In the fight for liberty;
We're all for one, one for all,
Marching on to victory."

REQUEST MAKING OF MORE CHEESE AND LESS BUTTER

Secretary-Manager of National Dairy Council Issues Bulletin to This Effect

HUGE BUTTER STORAGE

(By E. K. Carnegie, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 4—(CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner returns to the capital Sunday and, fresh from hearing troubles of Prairie farmers he will face many problems associated with mounting surpluses of farm products.

In one part of the Agricultural Department the Bacon Board this week has been struggling over handling a surplus of 30,000,000 pounds of pork which the board holds in cold storage. In another section, officials of the dairy branch are worrying over the butter surplus which was 10,000,000 pounds greater on May 1 than domestic market requirements with no apparent export channel open.

With a steady demand for Canadian cheese evident in the United Kingdom the aim of dairy officials will be to divert milk from butter to cheese production.

Allan C. Fraser, Secretary-Manager of the National Dairy Council of Canada, yesterday sent a bulletin to members urging them to make more cheese and less butter.

His appeal went out to the creamery industry (butter producers) in Ontario and Quebec because, the bulletin explained, facilities for making cheese in the Maritimes and the Western provinces are limited.

GERMAN RAIDERS GIVEN HOT TIME

For Three Hours R.A.F. Pursuit Ships and Fighters Warded Off Attacks on English Coast

London, May 4.—(CP).—German raiders off the southeastern coast of England were given a hot time for three hours during the night and early today, meeting British fighters and intense anti-aircraft fire.

Bursting shells drove the raiders off the northeast.

Heavy gunfire was heard in the distance and then the planes returned anad were met with more gunfire.

Many people flocked to the cliff tops to watch bursting shells, searchlights and the streaks of tracer bullets. Although the airplanes were clearly heard they were not seen by watchers on the coast.

An unidentified plane, believed to be German, was heard off the northeastern coast of England during the night. The drone of its engine was audible for about 20 minutes, and searchlights were active. There was no anti-aircraft firing and no air raid warning was sounded.

EARL OF ATHLONE, PRINCESS ALICE INSPECT TROOPS

New Governor-General of Canada Visits Aldershot and is Royally Received

TAKES SALUTE

Many Distinguished Canadians, Including Hon. Norman Rogers, at Saluting Base

By SAM ROBERTSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Aldershot, England, May 4 (C.P. Cable)—The Earl of Athlone, who leaves soon for Canada to take up his duties as Governor-General, and Princess Alice, Countess of Athlone, today visited the little bit of the Dominion transplanted to the Aldershot training area due to the war.

They saw nine separate units of the Canadian 1st. Division either parading on the drill square or training in the field under war-time conditions. It was the most elaborate "show" staged by the Canadian fighting men for any of their many distinguished visitors. The Governor-General-designate was impressed by what he saw.

Inspects Highlanders

After inspecting the 48th. Highlanders and taking the salute as they marched past with their pipers playing "Highland Laddies," Lord Athlone told Lieut.-Colonel E. W. Haldenby of Toronto, officer commanding the regiment, that: "Your unit is magnificent. You should be proud of it."

His comment to other units which he saw in action was equally complimentary.

The Earl, well over six feet tall, was a magnificent military figure in the uniform of a major-general. Beautiful Princess Alice wore a blue-grey dress, full length coat to match, a silver fox cape and a flowered toque.

21 KILLED IN WRECK

Paris, May 4 —(CP—Havas)—Twenty-one persons were killed and 25 injured today in a railway accident near Bourges, 144 miles south of Paris. The collapse of a bridge caused the disaster.

The bridge, weakened by a sudden flood, collapsed as the fourth car of the train passed at about 2 a.m.

SQUADRON LEADER MISSING

London, May 4 —(CP—Cable)—Squadron Leader Kenneth Doran, First Officer of the Royal Air Force to win the Distinguished Flying Cross in the war, has been reported missing, according to a telegram received by his parents today.

Doran, 26, led the raid on the German naval base at Kiel the day after war was declared and later became the first man to have a bar added to the decoration.

Newfoundlanders Organize

London, May 4 (CP)—Formation of a Newfoundland war contingent association here to look after the comfort and interests of the men who have come to Britain for military service or other war work, was announced today.

Ontario Takes Step Toward Reducing Toll of Motor Accidents in Province

Toronto, May 4 (CP)—Ontario today took a step toward reducing the toll of motor accidents by announcing a scheme of voluntary "traffic guardians" to report on erring automobile drivers. The scheme will first be tested in the counties of York, Peel and Ontario and, if successful, extended throughout the province.

The "traffic guardians," so named by Attorney-General Gordon Conant rather than "vigilantes" as nad been suggested, will be selected carefully so their reports on fellow-motorists may be actuated by a sincere desire to reduce accidents rather than by personal malice.

Mr. Conant announced the government's decision last night following a traffic conference at Queen's Park last Wednesday at which figures dealing with the accident situation were revealed. These showed the number of serious road accidents in Ontario rose from 806 in February, 1939, to 1,226 in February of this year.

Use Three Counties

Suggestion for establishment of the guardian corps came from W. G. Robertson, General Manager of the Ontario Motor League. The scheme will be developed by W. H. Stringer, Commissioner of Provincial Police, and reviewed at a conference of Police Chiefs of the three "trial" counties May 9. It will operate from June 1 to Aug. 31.

Since 1929, all Ontario motorists have been encouraged to report traffic violations and an average of 50 complaints a week are received by the highways department. If the complaint is serious, the driver may be re-examined for his driver's permit and tested for vision and hearing.

The department has examined an average of 1,200 drivers a year and has developed a file of 400,000 individual operating records from reports by private motorists.

At Wednesday's traffic conference, P. P. Bickell, registrar of motor vehicles, reported on this older scheme and said many reports were motivated by malice. Mr. Conant commended on this angle, stating careful selection of the new traffic guardians might eliminate this objection.

Norwegians Battle Nazis at Roros With Some Success

French War Ministry Says Allied Forces Have Surrounded 3,000 to 4,000 in Sector About Narvik

W. FRONT ACTIVE

"Rather Serious" Artillery Fire Between Blies River and Vosges Mountains Reported — Reconnaissance Flights Numerous

(By Elmer Peterson, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Paris, May 4—(AP)—The French War Ministry announced today that Allied forces had surrounded 3,000 or 4,000 Germans in the sector about Narvik, Norway, and that the position of the Germans there is desperate.

Meanwhile Norwegian troops still operating in the Trondheim sector after the British withdrawal are still battling the Germans with some success in the vicinity of Roros, a spokesman declared.

Fighting on the western front, according to military dispatches, was marked by "rather serious" artillery fire between the Blies River and the Vosges mountains. Sporadic firing and occasional reconnaisance flying was reported elsewhere.

The French command's morning communique on western front operations said:

"Activity of artillery on both sides east of the Moselle as well as between the Bies River and the Vosges mountains."

Stockholm, May 4—(AP)—Refugees arriving from Narvik said today that a Nazi force, greatly weakened by three weeks of fighting and lack of supplies, could not hold out indefinitely against Allied land and sea attacks despite the tenacity of the Germans' hold on hilltop positions above the shell-battered ore port.

The arrivals from the Arcite port said that after British naval guns drove the Nazis out of the town itself they dragged mountain artillery and machine guns to high-perched positions commanding the railroad from Narvik to the Swedish frontier. They can be displaced only with the greatest difficulty and were said to be hanging on grimly as Allied troops, aided by Norwegian ski patrols, closed in slowly.

The arrivals from Narvik pictured the general scene there as one of extreme desolation. Blocking the harbor are the wrecks of German destroyers and half submarged ore ships. The long ore-loading pier which stretches far out into the fjord is badly damaged and every part of the town, they said, shows the effect of British bombardment.

British Seamen in Sweden

The 123 British merchant seamen prisoners released by the Germans at Narvik when there was no food to feed them are now recovering at a Salvation Army post at Jorn, north Sweden, after a gruelling four-day trek through Arctic

Italian Writer Predicts Germany Will Invade Britain

Rome, May 4—(AP)—Giovanni Ansaldo, newspaper writer who often speaks for Foreign Minister Count Ciano, today predicted Germany eventually would invade British territory.

Writing in Ciano's newspaper, Il Telegrafo, of Leghorn, Ansaldo spoke of British precautions against a German offensive into British territory and said that what Italians knew of the German forces and of their "will to win" made them "believe ever more firmly that there will be one."

Other newspapers also speculated on the possibility.

They accused Britain of trying to spread the war to the Balkans and the Mediterranean.

"The Mediterranean," said the newspaper Il Poplo Di Roma, "touches many countries which are determined not to let themselves be drawn into the conflict to the gain of the British Empire, which does not know how to defend itself by its own means."

Plan Would Not Succeed

New York, May 4—(CP)—The New York Herald Tribune, remarking editorially that one result of the Norwegian campaign may be a German attempt to invade Great Britain, said today the "attempt might be tried, but that is not to say it would succeed."

The newspaper devoted much of a lengthy editorial to the possibility of a German invasion of Britain, saying the Germans "have long had a scientific penchant for testing out their military plans in minor theatres and Norway was an obvious test for many of the problems that would arise in a direct attack on England."

The Times also speculated on Germany's next move, saying Hitler is back where he was last winter, "still able to strike where his instinct takes him."

NATIVE OF TWEED DIES

CAPT. BOWEN BEGINS HIS 56TH SEASON ON THE GREAT LAKES

When the Hepburn Bros. freighter Glen Allan left Picton for Montreal on Tuesday morning, at her wheel was Capt. Ben Bowen, of Trenton, and he was commencing his 56th season on the lakes.

Sailing seems to be a tradition with the Bowen family. Capt. Ben Bowen's father sailed schooners in the sixties and a century ago his grandfather operated a barge from Deseronto to Bay of Quinte ports. Capt. Bowen has three sons, Walter, Archie and Gordon, all of whom are also captains.

Captain Ben Bowen was born in Deseronto and started sailing when he was sixteen years of age. He became a master in 1906 and since that time has manned every type of vessel from tug to grain carrier. It is his eighth year as captain on the Glen Allan, and he looks forward to many more. For the previous eleven years he had been in charge of the M. Sticken, well known in Bay of Quinte waters. In all his 55 years of sailing he has lost only one man.

MANY FRUIT TREES BEING PLANTED HERE

Judging from the large quantity of nursery stock which has been delivered in this district during the past two weeks, farmers in Hastings and Prince Edward counties are planting many fruit trees this season. Beside many varieties of fruit trees there are also ornamental shrubs of many kinds, giving evidence that home owners are starting a program of home beautification.

TANKER DISCHARGES GASOLINE CARGO

The oil tanker "Britamlube," of Toronto came in yesterday with a cargo of gas. Although capable of company. Well over two hundred feet in length, the big tanker towered high above the Government dock as she unloaded her cargo of gas. Although capable of taking on approximately 25,000 barrels of oil she was but partially loaded and drew only twelve feet of water as she came down the bay. The boat is in charge of Capt. Murphy.

YOUNG FISHERMEN PUT OLDSTERS TO SHAME

The unlimited optimism of youthful fishermen as compared to the restrained and hopeful attitude taken by more experienced anglers was demonstrated yesterday when various local fishermen were noticed trying their luck with the hook and line from the Government dock. Deck hands from a big oil tanker unloading in the harbor were making use of their spare hours and were also trying their luck with the line but results in all cases were exactly zero, when a trio of young lads came tripping down the dock carrying fishlines and lugging a large twenty-inch pike. Envious glances cast in their direction by the unsuccessful anglers led the query as to where they got the fish but, in their youthful exhuberance, the lads replied, "Aw, we ain't been fishing yet, we're just going now and we're taking this along for bait."

INCOME TAX RETURNS HIGHEST ON RECORD

The income tax returns for the Belleville district this year are the highest on record, according to Major Sidney Gilmore, Income Tax Inspector for the Belleville office. It was impossible at this date to say exactly how much this year's returns would exceed those of other years however, said Mr. Gilmore, as the returns came in so fast during the last few days before the deadline that it was impossible to tabulate them. When complete returns were made, the increase at the local office would compare favourably with that noted at other centres, was the opinion of Mr. Gilmore.

CHILDREN 'BORROW' ROPE FOR SKIPPING

Children will be children especially in the Spring of the year, but a Dundas Street resident apparently forgot this fact when recently he placed a long rope around his garden plot following its planting, to keep the kiddies from trampling it.

Yesterday he went to see if the Spring sprouts had started and was amazed to discover that the rope had disappeared. A search revealed nothing, and he notified the police. Constable William Evans investigated, and became suspicious when shrill whoops of childish joy, revealed a group of youngsters enjoying themselves at the time-honored Spring game of skipping. A few questions elicited the information that the children had "borrowed" the rope for their early season antics. The article was returned to its owner.

CHILDREN WARNED OF DANGER OF PLAYING BALL ON STREETS

The narrow escape from possible injury of a group of young boys playing ball on a city street last night when they barely missed being struck by a passing motorist brought forth a stern warning to parents from Chief Alex. Kidd today.

"We are anxious at all times to preserve the safety of the children of the city," he said, and while we know it is difficult especially at this time of the year, to prevent them from playing in danger zones, parents should exercise the greatest care as to where their children play and warn them of the existing danger from motor vehicles."

Children suddenly darting across travelled streets after a ball, constitute a dangerous hazard, not only to themselves but to other people, the chief added.

Dedicate 34 Bibles For New Wing Of General Hospital

When thirty-four copies of the Bible are to be presented and dedicated at Bridge Street United Church on Sunday morning as the gift of The Gideons for use in the rooms of the new wing of the Belleville General Hospital, Past President James H. Russell, Toronto, of the Gideons will make the presentation and speak. The Bibles will be received by Mr. Gordon A. Friesen, administrator of the hospital and Rev. Dr. James Semple of Bridge Street United Church will pronounce the dedication.

$4,979.50 COLLECTED IN "Y" CAMPAIGN

With the "Y" campaign for War and Home Service slightly less than two weeks old, $4,979.50 has been collected in the Belleville district according to figures given out by the "Y" Secretary, Mr. J. E. Shortt, this morning. This amount has been realized from about 540 subscriptions with about two hundred more cards to be sent out, said Mr. Shortt.

"With between two-thirds and three-quarters of the work done we are quite confident of reaching our objective of $6,950 for this district," said Mr. Shortt, "but, although the people already contacted have been very kind and generous, we must have the support of every person in the district if we are to meet our objective."

FOUR INJURED IN CRASH, IMPROVED

The condition of Stan. Christenson, driver of the Foyster's transport which crashed into a tree on No. 2 highway early Thursday morning, and the three unidentified persons who were riding in the cab with him, was reported by hospital authorities to be satisfactory. The two girls, believed to be French, and the one man who were in the truck cab with the driver, have not as yet revealed their names, although one of the girls wrote the word Guidon when questioned regarding her name. It is believed by hospital authorities that this may be the girl's name but they are awaiting the arrival of an interpreter to definitely establish their identity.

Crop Report

Practically everywhere pastures and orchards have come through the winter in satisfactory condition, winter damage on truck farms and in gardens appears to be negligible, livestock has wintered well, and as a whole Spring operations on the land, while late over large areas, now appear to be getting away to a favourable start. In the Pacific Coast area the season is about two weeks ahead of normal, while everywhere East of the Rockies it is some two weeks later than normal. As regards the Prairie Provinces, seeding, delayed for a time by wet weather is now well under way in Manitoba and parts of Saskatchewan, and has begun in Alberta. On the whole, surface moisture on the Prairies is sufficient to ensure germinating but subsoil reserves are low over most of Manitoba and Saskatchewan, and timely rains will be required throughout the growing season. In Quebec Spring has opened slowly, and land work is not yet general, a good average crop of maple sugar is indicated. In Ontario seeding, already begun, will shortly be general but vegetation has shown little growth as yet. In the Maritime Provinces work on the land has not commenced. In British Columbia transplanting of tomato plants, and seeding and planting generally, are well advanced and normal bloom in orchards is reported.

Province of Ontario

Continued cold weather during April retarded land cultivation, which is about two weeks late. Warm rains are widely needed. Seeding has commenced in Central and Southwestern sections and will shortly be general. Fall wheat and meadows benefited by heavy snow coverings and came through the Winter in good condition, but growth has been slow due to lack of rain. Fruit trees suffered no apparent frost damage.

Because earthquakes sometimes occur in groups several thousand miles apart seismologists of the United States coast and Geodetic Survey believe it may be possible for one to set off another.

OBITUARY

GEORGE ASA EGGLETON

Stirling, May 4 (Special) — The death occurred early Friday morning of George Asa Eggleton, well-known Stirling resident in his seventy-ninth year. Deceased had been in poor health for several months.

Born in Rawdon Township he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Paul Eggleton, pioneers of the district. He spent his life as a farmer until twenty-eight years ago. He retired to live in Stirling.

Surviving is one son, Mr. N. E. Eggleton, Stirling, and one brother, Thos. Eggleton, Stirling. His wife, one son and a daughter predeceased him. He was a faithful member of St. Paul's United Church and attended all social functions in the village.

The funeral will take place from his late residence on Monday at 2.30 p.m.

Rev. W. J. Scott conducting, assisted by Rev. Clarke and Rev. W. H. V. Walker. Interment will be in Stirling cemetery.

LATE MRS. JENNIE HAWKINS
(Carrying Place)

The funeral of Mrs. Jennie Hawkins took place from her residence at Carrying Place, Prince Edward County, on Friday afternoon, May 3rd., to the Anglican Church in that village where the burial office was conducted by the Rector the Rev. A. Strother, who said also the committal service at the graveside in Carrying Place cemetery.

The bearers were Messrs. J. Quackenbush H. Herrington, W. Fitzgerald, J. Hendricks, W. Corrigan and J. Dusenbury.

The late Mrs. Hawkins passed away on May 1st., in the Belleville General Hospital after a brief illness. She was born sixty-eight years ago at Big Island in Prince Edward County, being a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Peck. All her life was passed in Prince Edward County and she was held in high regard by many friends.

Surviving her are three daughters, Edna of Carrying Place, Grace of Toronto and Olive of Sudbury. She was the last of her family. Her husband died some years ago.

MRS. JOHN A. KETCHESON
(Sidney Township)

Mrs. John A. Ketcheson passed away suddenly at the family residence in Avondale, Trent Road, in Sidney Township, on Friday afternoon, May 3rd. She was apparently well during the early part of the day and in the afternoon she was taken with a heart seizure which resulted in her demise.

The late Mrs. Ketcheson was born 73 years ago in Madoc township. Prior to her marriage she was Miss Margaret Jane Caskey, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Caskey. For many years she resided in the township where she was born and for the past twenty-six years she made her home at Avondale, on the Trent Road, a few miles west of Belleville. In religion she was a member of Bridge Street United Church and was associated with the Women's Missionary Society. By all who knew her she was held in high esteem and many friends regret her sudden passing. About a year and a half ago Mr. and Mrs. Ketcheson celebrated their golden wedding.

Surviving her are her husband, Mr. John A. Ketcheson; one daughter, Mrs. Albert Kingston, Plainfield, and one sister, Mrs. Albert Reid, Belleville.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

MISS ESTHER I. MACDONALD
(Formerly of Belleville)

To many residents of Belleville the announcement of the sudden passing of Miss Esther Isabella Macdonald, which occurred Friday morning, May 3rd., at her residence in Outremont (Montreal), Quebec, will bring sincere feelings of regret.

The late Miss Macdonald was born in Belleville, being a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Macdonald, and a granddaughter of the late Hon. George Benjamin, member of parliament for this district at one time. All her life was passed in this city until about five years ago when she went to reside in Montreal. During her life in Belleville Miss Macdonald was prominent in church and charitable work. She was a faithful member of St. Thomas' Church and took an active part in the work of the Woman's Auxiliary, the Church Guild, the Sunday School, and for a considerable time she was in charge of the Children's Church Missionary Guild. By many friends she was held in high regard.

Surviving her is one sister, Miss Mary Lindsay Macdonald, Outremont, Quebec. Her only brother, James Macdonald, died a few years ago.

In Belleville Miss Macdonald leaves an aunt, Mrs. Gemmell-Shaw, and four cousins, Miss Nonnie W. Milburn, Mrs. K. W. Scott, Miss Ruby Milburn and Miss Georgia Scott.

Resting at the Pinkston Funeral Home, 268 Church Street. The funeral announcement will be found elsewhere in this paper.

MARKET PRICES GENERALLY FIRM

Mayflowers, the first of the season, added a colorful Spring touch to the Saturday market, where a much lighter than usual offering of produce was displayed. The varying shades of the flowers which were offered for sale at five cents the bunch brought a seasonal note as compared against the drab colors of winter vegetables.

Maple syrup, said to be the last of the season, noted a decline although there was very little offered. Gallons sold at $1.50 and quarts at 40 cents. Little sugar was offered and this sold at 25 cents the pound.

Egg quotations dropped slightly although extra Grade "A" selects sold at 25c the dozen generally. Other "A" grades were quoted at 23c the dozen, with mediums going at 21c.

Few Chickens

The chicken offering was lighter than usual, with choice weighty broilers selling at from 90c to $1.10 the pair. Other qualities ranged downward to as low as 45c the pair June and July birds, well-fleshed were offered at from 90c to $1.35 each. Fowl demanded anywhere from 65c. Farmer's butter quotations were steady at 55c the two-pound roll.

Winter vegetables were fairly plentiful and maintained the high levels that have characterized them for the past few months. Parsnips were quoted at $1 the bushel and beets, carrots and turnips at 80c. New lettuce, radishes and a few bunches of rhubarb were offered at 8 and 10 cents the bunch. Spring onions brought 5 and 10 cents the bunch.

Apples Plentiful

Apples appear to be plentiful in the district. Spys and Starks were quoted today at 50c the peck for choice No. 1 grades, with the domestic quality offered at $1.25 the hamper. Sweets, a few Russets and some cooking varieties were quoted at $1 and $1.25 the bushel.

Potatoes sold well at $1 the bag of 75 pounds for the table variety, while certified seed was offered at $1.50 and $1.35 according to quality. Sales were brisk especially in the seed varieties.

Fresh whitefish and lake trout caught the eyes of fish lovers, selling at 25c the pound. Stocks were depleted at an early hour and late comers, who desired fish for their Sunday dinners, had to be content with mudcats at two pounds for 25c or pike at 10 cents the pound. Panfish sold at 25c the dozen and "suckers" at 3 for 25c.

Canadian Wartime Fliers

Air-Commodore G. O. Johnson, Member of Air Council for Organization and Training

(By the Canadian Press)

Back of the organization and training schedules of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan is Air Commodore George Owen Johnson who gained the Military Cross, the Croix de Guerre and a black eye while flying against the Germans in the First Great War.

This quiet-spoken member of the Royal Canadian Air Force is a native of Woodstock, Ont., but he likes to think of himself as a westerner. He spent his early years of manhood in Alberta.

Johnson served in France on offensive aerial patrol work with the Royal Flying Corps during the First Great War and won the Military Cross in April, 1918, just a year after he went to the Western Front. In July of the same year he won the Croix de Guerre with Bronze Star.

The worst that happened to him was a black eye, suffered when he made a forced landing after the motor of his plane failed. He was five miles back of the enemy lines when his motor conked out but managed to glide homeward to land between two allied trenches.

Johnson aided in organizing the R.C.A.F. in 1920 and ever since has been associated with the training of Canada's sky warriors. Now, as Member of the Air Council for Organizing and Training he is responsible for organizing and directing the work of the schools under the air plan.

Early in this Second Great War he went to England to study the war work of the Royal Air Force and generally prepare, in consultation with British flying authorities, for the vast Empire Air Plan.

The schedule calls for the plan reaching its peak about May, 1943. By that time it is anticipated between 20,000 and 30,000 pilots, air observers and air gunners will be turned out each year from the schools in Canada.

Johnson has little to say to the reporters, particularly in regard to the air plan. But at a recent meeting with newspapermen he expressed little worry over prospects of a German air raid on Canada.

"A German air raid on Canada would be only a stunt," he told The Canadian Press. "Such a thing wouldn't be a practical operation."

Early Career

The director of organization was born in 1896 an went to western Canada after finishing public school in Woodstock. He trained at the Alberta Normal School in Calgary and then taught school in Didsbury, Alta., Olds and Edmonton, helping in establishing technical training in western High schools.

Johnson helped too in the establishment of school cadet training and became an officer of the Corps School of Cadet Instructors in Alberta.

During the First Great War he enlisted with the Royal Naval Air Service, and also served with the Royal Flying Corps and the R.A.F. When he started his aerial prowling on the Western Front in April, 1917, he had only 20 hours' flying service behind him.

June of 1919 found Johnson back in Canada where in January, 1920 the government formed the Canadian Air Board and Johnson, as station superintendent, re-opened Camp Borden for the founding of the R.C.A.F. In 1925 he commanded the R.C.A.F.'s western organization and in 1927 went to England to attend the Staff College at Andover. Two years later the Air Commodore was named Assistant Director of Civil Air Operations at Ottawa.

In those peace time years the R.C.A.F. was employed in customs preventive work, mapping and dusting forests to prevent disease and pests making headway against Canada's timber resources. During this time Johnson served as senior air officer, commanding officer at Trenton, Ont., and Winnipeg, and at the start of the war he headed the Western Air Command with headquarters at Vancouver.

Johnson married Eleanor Mackay of Pembroke, Ont., and they have two daughters.

Police Blotter

Members of the light-fingered fraternity got in their work in various parts of the city yesterday and last night. The staff of the J. B. Boyce Service Station, Front Street discovered yesterday that person or persons had removed a large circular mirror from the ladies waiting room in the station, while several articles were reported missing from automobiles parked at the rear of the station.

While fans howled their approval or disapproval at the antics of the grunt and groan artists at the Hume arena last night, someone entered the dressing rooms and engaged on a pants-pilfering expedition. They carefully searched all trousers available but it was not until they came to those owned by Referee Clifford Faux that they made a haul. Seven crinkly dollar bills nestling in the side pocket of Faux' pants changed ownership without the consent of both parties. Police are investigating.

A large number of transients spent the night in the police-station cell block.

Carleton Conservatives To Hold Convention

Westboro, Ont., May 4 (CP) — Carleton County Conservative Association will hold a nominating convention at Stittsville, Ont., on June 15 to choose a candidate for the by-election which will be held in Carleton constituency, it was decided here last night at an executive meeting.

The by-election is necessary to fill the vacancy created in the House of Commons by the death of Dr. A. B. Hyndman, Conservative member re-elected at the March 26 Dominion vote. Date of the by-election has not been set yet.

There have been reports that possibly Conservative leader Manion, defeated in the Dominion election in Fort William riding, might seek a seat in the Commons by contesting Carleton.

Madoc

Madoc—The annual meeting of Madoc Bowling Club was held in the Community Hall on Friday evening with the president, Dr. S. R. Beatty in the chair. After the reading of the minutes of the last annual meeting and the auditors report, the following officers were elected for 1940.

President, Percy Gunn.
Vice President, C. I. Ross.
Secretary, J. A. Watson.
Treasurer, A. S. Cochran.
Games Com., C. I. Ross and Geo. West.
Grounds Com., H. Keller, Dr. Wyper, Dr. S. R. Beatty.

After considerable discussion regarding fees, it was decided to leave the men's same as last year $5.00 and the ladies fees and new members increased to $2.00. The increase in fees were necessary as the club operated at a loss last year.

The caretaker J. H. Davies was re-engaged for the season.

The First Troop Boy Scouts, Madoc, held their first banquet in the school rooms of Trinity United Church on Friday evening with twenty six scouts present along with their leaders. A delightful dinner was enjoyed by all and the Dutch Patrol under the leadership of Frank Ferguson provided excellent service as waiters. The toast to the King was proposed by Eric Dafoe and expressed the importance of all Scouts being loyal to the King and Empire at all times and especially during these times of national trouble and war.

Assistant Scoutmaster Keith McCoy proposed the toast to the Chief Scout Lord Baden Powell of Gilwell, who is now serving in British South Africa. Group singing was conducted by Durwood McCaw. Scoutmaster Ted Poulter outlined some of the activities of the Scout work. The Promise was taken by twelve boys in the presence of the Troop and the following completed their Tenderfoot Tests: P. Ashe, C. Bristol, H. Brett, R. Bailey, B. Foster, P. Griffin A. Jowett, D. Maynard, B. McCoy, C. McCoy, J. Reynolds and R. Smith. Following the Scout Pledge they were presented with their badges and received into the Troop. Past Scoutmaster John Bristol complimented the boys on the way they are applying themselves to their various duties. The Troop was then entertained by Mr. C. Johnson who showed moving pictures on his trip to San Francisco and other places of note on the Pacific Coast. Ed DeMille, Wolf Patrol Leader tendered Mr. Johnson the thanks of the boys for the entertainment. The First Madoc is receiving another patrol and boys between the ages of 12 and 18 who wish to attend may apply at the High School on Friday evening at 7.15 p.m.

Mr. Robert Miller has purchased the house and property of the late Miss I. Breakall and is taking up residence today.

Mr. Robert Bristol has purchased the property on St. Lawrence St. opposite the Post Office from Mr. Will Hart and is building a store 28 feet by 36 feet. The store will be finished with stucco. Mr. Bristol plans on having it completed by the middle of June when it will be occupied by Mr. Fred Fleming.

Mr. Roy Tayler recently purchased property on St. Lawrence St. West from Mr. T. F. Blue. At present excavation work and levelling the grounds is underway. Mr. Tayler proposes erecting a modern residence, eight-room colonial type, with a recreation room, wash-room and furnace room in basement. A double brick garage will also be built.

Mr. Phillip Rivers recently purchased the property on the Queensboro corner from Mrs. Gordon Munro. Men have started dismantling the one residence on the property while Mr. Rivers intends moving the other residence back on the lot and plans to build an up to date Imperial Oil service station.

Mrs. Grant Thain had the misfortune to fall on the steps of her home and is suffering a fracture of her left arm.

Mrs. William Miller has returned home after visiting relatives at Perth.

Misses Betty Nicol, Helen Blue and Frances McCullough of Kingston, spent Wednesday afternoon with relatives in Madoc.

Well-Known Actor-Director To Direct Local Talent in "Stage Door" For Red Cross

Alexander Cann, well known Broadway and Hollywood actor-director who recently joined the Royal Canadian Air Force, coming directly to join Canada's fighting forces from New York City, has accepted the responsibility of directing the well known stage and screen play "Stage Door," to be produced and presented in Belleville on May 10th. under the auspices of the local branch of the Canadian Red Cross.

Mr. Cann, whose enthusiasm is as keenly marked in his work in the Air Force as it ever was on Broadway or as a movie actor in Hollywood, produced "Stage Door" at Gilford, Conn., last season, in conjunction with America's "little theatre movement." Mr. Cann has gained wide experience in the field of dramatics and its production throughout the United States. When recently approached by officers of the local branch of the Red Cross, Mr. Cann willingly accepted the position of directing the play "Stage Door" in aid of that worthy cause.

Alexander Cann has appeared in 52 moving picture productions, one of which is being shown in a Trenton theatre this week. He also appeared on the legitimate stage in New York City following which he was associate-director of other plays. A cast of 32 included in the play to be presented here on May 10th., twenty-eight of which are local talent. The lead is being taken by Miss Joan Maraskas, talented Belleville actress.

The production "Stage Door" was written by Edna Ferber and G. S. Kaufman and its entire action takes place in a New York rehearsal club. Mr. Kaufman also collaborated in other well known Broadway hits, such as "You Can't Take it With You", and the musical production "Of Thee I Sing.". Mr. Cann spoke highly of the local talent placed at his disposal after last nights rehearsal. A full four weeks' preparation will have been completed before the play will be presented here in aid of the Red Cross.

ANGLO-FRENCH CO-OPERATION HAS STRENGTH

Veteran Observer Finds More Cordial Feeling Than in Early Phases of First Great War

(This is one of a series of war commentaries by Sir Charles Gwynn, British soldier of many wars, commandant of Camberley Staff College for four years prior to retirement in 1931.)

Written for The Canadian Press
By Major-General Sir Charles Gwynn

London, May 4—. (CP) — After more than six months of war, it has become extremely enlightening to compare the excellence of Anglo-French co-operation with the less satisfactory state of affairs in the opening phases of the last war.

In the last war, though there was such loyal co-operation and determination to achieve a common end, it cannot be denied that there was an undercurrent of distrust and criticism, largely due to a lack of full understanding of the share each was contributing to the war effort and of each other's methods.

By general consent British relations with France have never been so cordial or so well established as they are now. Nor have they ever covered such a wide field of activities.

After the First Great War it was realized, by soldiers especially, that should Germany become a danger, France and Britain must again stand side by side, and that the causes of former rivalries had been eliminated. Steps were therefore taken to maintain contacts established during the war, and to clear up misunderstandings that had occurred in it by a frank interchange of views.

We are now gathering fruits from a well-prepared soil. War correspondents have reported the cordial relations existing between British and French troops, and in the villages where British troops are quartered.

Express Admiration

There is an eagerness to acknowledge the help given promptly and efficiently by all grades of the French Army and civil organization. There is outspoken admiration of the high morale and high standard of training in the French Forces.

No doubt, the prompt acceptance of conscription by Britain and the fact that France has not, as in the last war, had to sacrifice many lives while Britain prepared for action, have contributed to the happy conditions which exist.

Further afield the agreement just concluded for co-operation in economic and in colonial affairs is a good augury of a permanent recognition of the closeness of the common interests of the two countries.

Is it too optimistic to hope that, when the war is brought to a successful conclusion, our two countries will form the nucleus of a practical and flexible form of Federation with which democratic nations may associate themselves?

Rawdon

Rawdon—On Monday evening Burnbrae young people entertained about forty from Mount Pleasant and about twenty five from Wellmans and all enjoyed a real social evening together. The service was opened by Mr. Will Craighead who read the Bible lesson and welcomed the guests. The program was prepared by Misses Isobel Beckett and Bernice Dunham of Wellmans and Mrs. Cyrus Summer, Mount Pleasant and Rev. J. E. Beckel carried out the duties of chairman.

Miss Bernice Dunham read a selection entitled "Mother Love" telling of the mothers of Jesus and Judas Iscariot. Master Donald Spencer gave a guitar solo "The Old Rugged Cross". Mrs. John Rainie sang "Faith is the Victory".

The topic of the evening was given by Mrs. Morris Rose who based her talk on "Friendship" and read some of Edgar Guest's poems which included "The making of friends" and "Success". She said each individual must be willing to sacrifice a little to help their friends and she pointed out various ways to cultivate the art of friendship.

Miss Dorothy Hinds contributed a vocal solo on "spring". Mrs. Percy MacMullen recited "A Missionary Plea." Dr. M. E. R. Boudreau spoke briefly dealing with "The opportunities for success before the young people of today," and said it is the duty of the Christian church to help the young people.

Mrs. Frederick Beckett and Miss Mina Dracup sang "Softly and Tenderly."

Miss Ila Myers gave "Canadian Born." Miss Lois McAdam sang "Why not be a helper". Miss Esma Cole read a humorous selection entitled "The cow and the Bishop." Mrs. George Watson and Miss Ana English sang as a duet "Somewhere" Mr. John Coggins and Mrs. Percy Hubble sang as a duet "I came to Jesus." Rev. J. E. Beckel spoke briefly on "The mysteries of life." Misses Lois Weaver and Ruth Rose contributed a duet "The Blacksmith's daughter."

The accompanists for the evening were Mr. Ken Milne, Mrs. Frederick Beckett, Mrs. Merle Spencer, Miss Ana English, Mrs. Percy Hubble and Mrs. Ken Weaver. Misses Eileen MacMullen and Muriel Sine staged a game entitled "The Poorhouse". The Burnbrae folks served a tasty lunch and all in attendance enjoyed a social half hour.

Mr. John McMullen recently celebrated his birthday and a special party was held in his honor.

THE ANCIENT MEDITERRANEAN

Through the Mediterranean Sea have passed British and French warships in a readjustment of sea power found possible after the destruction of so large a share of the German navy in the Kattegat, at Narvik and other points along the coast of Sweden. The Allied warships arrived on Friday at Alexandria. Interest in the Inland Sea, about whose shores rose western civilization, has been quite intense in the past few weeks.

The Mediterranean saw the rise and fall of Phoenicia with Tyre and Sidon, Egypt at the height of its glory, the rise and fall of the Greek city states, and of the ill-fated city of Carthage. About it ancient Rome became preeminent as she spread her eagles to north Europe, into north Africa and to the East.

Italy is a small portion of what was ancient Rome for Roman dominion touched all of the coast of north Africa, Egypt as well as Asia Minor, Palestine and Greece and extended to Gaul (France), Belgium and South Britain.

COLD WINDS AND DULL SKIES IN EARLY MAY

Cold weather this May has had its effect. Grass is growing of course. So far this month has been a series of light rainfalls and chilly spells. Sunshine has been lacking, and these days will easily take second place to April days, though April is supposed to be the month of showers which will prepare for the growth of May.

In England where the spring is more advanced, the opening of the month of May was celebrated as a great festival in olden days. Few of the customs which were associated with May Day, remain to this day, except in some rural districts. The direct descendants of the ancient Roman Floralia and the Druidic feasts in honor of the god Bel, these customs added color to the life of the Middle Ages and Renaissance era. It was in Tudor England a custom to go into the woods at night, gather branches of trees and flowers and return with them at sunrise to decorate homes. There was the crowning of the May Queen, who held sway for one day over her court, consisting of morris dancers, Robin Hood, Maid Marian, Friar Tuck, Little John, and other members of the same band, as well as of the villagers and townspeople. Those who wished might dance around the maypole decorated with flowers and ribbons. The maypole was generally made of birch and was set up on April 30th, except in London, where permanent maypoles stood in the streets. It fell to the Puritans to censure the May revels and in 1644 under the Roundhead Parliament Maypoles were forbidden. At the Restoration they were again sanctioned in the Strand. It was taken down about 1717 and was used by Sir Isaac Newton as a support for the great telescope which had been presented to the Royal Society by a French astronomer.

These old time associates with early May have unfortunately passed away with much of their color. But it did not remain for the nineteenth century to do away with them, for they were slowly but steadily abandoned years before.

A PLEA TO SAVE WILD FLOWERS

A strong plea for the protection of wild flowers is made in the Hamilton Spectator, "The warm spring is carpeting our woods with color and the impulse to gather these pretty little flowers is almost irresistible in young and old, after the long trying months of frost and snow. But it is an impulse which must be sternly resisted. So serious has the annual destruction of flowers become that it has been found necessary to stage a province-wide campaign, lasting from May 1 to 15, to save Ontario's floral emblem, the trillium, from extinction. It would indeed be ironical if this lovely wild flower, which has been chosen as the special representative of our province, should disappear from Ontario because of the thoughtless conduct of its citizens."

It is to be hoped that the effort of this campaign will do much to educate the people against tearing up the wild flowers. The wild flowers of Canada are a gift of nature and have come down the long ages. It is far too easy in fact to remove them from the face of the earth by wanton plucking. In the course of time many flowers have disappeared through some natural cause. But to have them disappear in this twentieth century not because of some natural cause but through lack of understanding what the plucking of a flower means would be regrettable.

Cultivated flowers have all come from wild flowers, but the changes have been immense. Great as are the attractions of the cultivated flowers, the country cannot afford to lose those precious legacies of purest beauty, which nature has given in the wild state. They are in their way as much assets of the national life as the material wealth of the country for they speak of beauty in its native state.

These wild flowers of ours which will deck the woodlands from now on are royal in their line. Their ancestry dates from the eras following the ice age. Once they are gone, it means the fall of a royal family, which can never be restored.

People are fortunate who find in their vicinity these lovely specimens of nature. almost seeking as it were, the company of man, woman and child. They come so close to human habitations, and yet civilization has not always been favorable to the continuance of natural species in the animal world and in the floral realm. That country is blessed that preserves and guards its wild flowers. countless ages have gone into their development of line, scent and color.. No force in science can replace them once a species dies out.

When one realizes how tenaciously flowers have fought for a foothold through the long ages through which they have developed, when one realizes that in barren waste lands where little else grows, nature scatters her arctic flowers, it is easy to understand that nature is seeking expression in beauty of her own urge and inspiration and that in the flowers which have come down to us in habitable areas the same benevolent process has been at work developing flowers. These wild flowers can influence man.

Any agency that will help to educate young and old to the value of flowers deserves the support of every citizen who realizes their importance in life. Some straightforward talk and advice may be necessary to plant the idea that the wild flowers must be preserved.

When it is realized that tens upon tens of thousands of years have gone into the development of a mayflower or a trillium, it should be clear how valuable they are. They are among the most precious things in life which go to make up that threefold essential of life, the beautiful ,the true, the good.

Clark's Ferry, Penn., Apr. 30. — The spring is late in southern U.S.A. This time of the season of 1939 wheat and oats were being cut and threshed. This year these grains are just headed out in a vivid green. Peaches in Georgia are through blooming and the foliage nicely growing. Peas in the pod are not yet being shipped, the plants being in fullbloom. However the countryside is beautiful with quantities of white dogwood and red bud bloom on the hillsides.

Rabbit Mortality.

From some miles below Fayetteville, N.C., through the balance of this state and the whole of Virginia we counted sixty odd rabbits killed by passing cars. At one point we noticed upon the pavement a black animal dead and a large whitish carcass which were apparently killed together. On getting down the wind we knew one of these dead animals was a skunk. This mortality takes place at night due to the headlights of the passing traffic. Stopping at a U.S. game farm below Fayetteville, N.C., we had a nice chat with the head-keeper. At this farm they had beautiful rearing ponds for rearing large-mouth black bass. These are the bass of the fresh water lakes of Florida. The water at this point gets too hot in the summer for the small mouth black bass. We asked this gamekeeper about the dead rabbits on the highway. What kind are they? The "little old cotton tails" along with swamp hares was the answer. This keeper had been up in Ontario at Delhi as a tobacco expert.

Queer Mail Boxes.

The farmers through one section of the Virginia hills use as a support for their mail boxes an old axle and wheel off some old buggy or farm implement. They stick the end of the axle in the ground, then fasten their boxes to the old wheel. It looks screwy but it is attractive.

In the hills of old Virginia some old families bury their dead in their own yard. They pick out a nice spot at the side of the house where over the graves of the loved ones they erect heavy substantial stones. With only a glance we noticed these graves were well attended and beautified by shrubs and flowers. We understand this practice is now stopped by law. To your trailer travelling correspondent this practice is appealing.

England Still England

Stands England where it did? Is it cracking under the strain of blackouts and taxes on beer and 'baccy? Is Lord Haw-Haw undermining English faith and English folkways?

The answer to all these is "No." For proof see any Letters to the Editor column in the Times. In one recent issue readers wrote letters on the Great Grey Shrike (it's a bird), Ice Cream History and on the Hallelujah Chorus, all as quietly as if Hitler had ever been invented.

The letter on the Hallelujah Chorus was a beauty — just the kind to raise a flurry of replies and start a mild controversy— which it did. lasting for days after. The writer suggested that it was a ridiculous custom during a performance of the Messiah for the audience to rise and remain standing throughout the performance. Who started the custom anyway? he asked.

Then those experts, the Times' readers who have amazingly detailed knowledge on an astonishing array of subjects, had their innings. They told him. It was George II who started it, wrote one, by rising to his royal feet at the first performance in 1743; the rest of the audience followed suit. It was not started by George, wrote another, but it was a fact that somehow during Handel's own time audiences adopted the custom of paying the Chorus a standing tribute.

Rising for the Hallelujah Chorus or writing letters to the Times — by keeping faith to such old customs the English express the belief in the continuity of living that will outlast Hitler.—Winnipeg Tribune.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

The Allied withdrawals in southern Norway give Germany the bases desired for submarine and air attacks on British shipping and on the British Isles. Just as it was the German air force which was largely responsible for making the Andalsnes area untenable for the Allied forces so the task of preventing the Germans from using their newly conquered territory will fall to the Royal Air Force.

The German occupation of southern Norway and the cementing of firm lines of communication from Oslo to the western ports can be expected to result in an intensification of aerial warfare.

Already the Royal Air Force is enlarging the scope of its attacks on German-held airdromes and bases. That is an effective way of preventing air attacks by the Germans. While German bombers in Norway are nearer to the British Isles than at German bases their Norwegian landing fields are also more vulnerable to attack by British bombers.

The announced intention of the Allies of continuing operating in Norway must await interpretation by events. Undoubtedly it means efforts to extend and retain their control of Narvik, the far northern iron port. A German garrison still is holding out there, apparently beseiged by Allied naval and land forces and the exit from the harbor is controlled by the British fleet.

The Tragic Dilemma of Hungary

I

BUDAPEST.

Here in eastern Europe one is constantly struck with the discrepancy between the outward appearance of things and realities. No casual visitor to Budapest, for instance, could read from the aspect of things, the terrible strain under which this capital lives.

It is, to my mind, one of the most enchanting cities of Europe. This year the spring has come early. The acacia trees that line the famous course along the Danube, that flows through the very centre of the city, are leaved in the most delicate green, and the cafe tables, painted green and white, and covered with flowered cloths, are already set out under them in front of the big hotels and famous restaurants.

Girls and young men in spring clothes, with the chic, well groomed look characteristic of Budapest, are drinking coffee with whipped cream and eating white rolls and butter. But perhaps it is not coffee that we are drinking, though it tastes like it, In the shops it costs $8 a pound and is strictly rationed, and the disparity between the cost of coffee in a cup in a cafe and its cost in the bean is another of the things I have been unable to understand.

But the butter and cream are certainly real, and so are the luscious little iced cakes and the ingredients of a three-course lunch that a neighbor is having served to him under the trees.

x x x

"In Vienna," says my Hungarian companion casually, "there is no whipped cream, cake, and the butter ration for a week is just three times the size of this pat here. I was there last week. They're beginning to hate us for all the things we are able to eat here in Hungary —just as they did in the last war, in spite of the fact that we were allies then of Germany."

She gets up to go. "Now you must come out to the Margit Island and see how wonderfully it has been improved since you were here last."

x x x

We join others in a little car. "It's German. Practically all our cars are German. Some Italian, of course. The others are in exchange so we must get them through the clearing agreements."

As we spin out to the famous island park that lies like a separate summer resort with its gardens. hotels, pavilions, restaurants, tennis courts and bathing beaches right in the heart of a big city, we pass rows of new apartment houses. The palaces on the Buda hill are the same as they were, and no one could improve its handsome and dramatic aspects, but the rest of the city showed signs of recent economic activities. "It's all stopped since the war," says one of the party, "It seems to me that we were just getting out of the troubles of the last twenty years when the war began."

I've known this country for twenty years—many of them years of sheer tragedy, years in which a nation struggled up from complete frustration to the condition of relative prosperity which it is in today. No nation suffered more cruelly from the last war than Hungary. If there is any country in eastern Europe whose sympathies would naturally be with the Germans in this war it is Hungary. The Treaty of Versailles never began to do to Germany what the peace treaties did to Hungary. The fall of the Hapsburg monarchy gave place to Count Michael Karolyi's government of men of good will, who believed the Fourteen Points of Woodrow Wilson. They went to Belgrade to receive from the hands of Gen. Francet d'Esperey a Carthaginian peace that took away two-thirds of the ancient Hungarian kingdom, and as an indirect result delivered the country over, in a few months, to the unspeakable terror of Bela Kun and to the occupation of a looting Rumanian army. From this condition of affairs Hungary was freed by an admiral on horseback, Nicholas Horthy. The red terror was followed by a white terror, which, like the red one, was often indiscriminate. Within another year the attempt of the Hapsburg Emperor to regain his throne in Budapest again brought the nation to the very verge of war.

When I went first to Hungary in 1920 there were no more than 500 railroad locomotives in the entire country; there are 10,000 today. The hospitals were crowded then with children suffering from a leprous tuberculosis of the skin that comes from starvation and dirt. Children are relatively healthy children in Hungary today. Suffering does not make people pleasant. Political hatreds went to the length of beastly cruelty. But Hungary became more and more tolerant, until the Nazi example started new intolerances.

Hungary was slowly recovering. She never reached that liberalism which the West preached to her, but she manifested the chief signs of political competence, dignity and sagacity; she kept to the legitimate government and to the traditional form of the state. The position of the crown was held by Admiral Horthy, who became Regent, and kept himself above political strife. Parliamentary government was maintained. During peace, Hungary made what was, under all these circumstances, a truly remarkable comeback, politically, economically and culturally.

x x x

A new youth was coming on who read the signs of the times. They discussed land reform and the modernization of a society which entered the last war essentially feudal. They had political leaders who were men of Western culture, and who in time and thought presented the case of Hungary with a greater brilliance than that commanded by any other national spokesmen. Although they never came to terms with the peace treaties, they showed willingness to postpone the decision while rebuilding the nation.

x x x

This war gives them the chance, perhaps, to force the decision. Will they take it? Germany's victory in Czecho-Slovakia gave them back part of the old kingdom. Are they not grateful to Germany? Would not a victory of Germany against Rumania give them back that province that they most passionately want returned—Transylvania? Is it possible that this mettlesome people, who have long waited for the hour of reckoning, would not welcome the opportunity to snatch, with Germany's assistance, what they sincerely believe belong to them?

The Hungarians are a dissatisfied nation and they are not of a middle class liberal mentality like the Turks. Is it not obvious that they would welcome the unrolling of the whole question of the treaties and the chance to rewrite them with the assistance of German arms? Would they not, in the nature of things, be pro-Nazi?

These were the questions which were in my mind when I flew from Rumania to Budapest. I did not find a clear answer. I found, instead, a tragic dilemma. It is true that there is more pro-Nazi sentiment in Hungary than I have found in any eastern European nation. It is not sufficient explanation to say that Budapest is, since the conquest of Austria and Czechoslovakia, right at the very door of Germany, and that the pressure from the Third Reich is enormous. That is true and I shall write more about this later. But it is in the nature of the experience of the last twenty years that Hungary should have more sympathy for the Nazi struggle than any other Danubian nation that has won anything from it so far and that has the prospect of winning something more.

I believe that if Germany decides to move in eastern Europe and asks for a right of way across Hungary to Rumania, she will get that right of way. If Hungary capitulates, however, it will be for more complicated reasons than those which motivated the capitulation of Denmark, namely the military hopelessness of resistance. Resistance would certainly be in vain; the Hungarian frontier is wide open to Germany. Nor would the Third Reich countenance for a moment its fortification.

But that would not be the only reason why Hungary would not resist. Hungary understands why the Poles made their quixotic resistance. Leading Hungarians say categorically that the Poles were right. The Hungarian mentality is much akin to the Polish, and is not bourgeois and national. And Hungary did refuse a German request for a right of way when Germany asked for it in September during the campaign against the Poles.

But a campaign against Rumania would be a different kettle of fish. A sacrifice on Hungary's part which would, in any way, amount to a defense of Rumania would be almost impossible for any Hungarian government to ask of the nation.

Actually, the entrance of Germany into Hungary in a move against Rumania would be hailed by thousands of Hungarians. But it would not be hailed by a single responsible figure in Hungary, and I find this a most interesting fact. On the contrary, they looked upon the possibility with ruthless and pessimistic realism. One man, whose opinion is extremely important and who is accustomed to weigh his words, said to me, "I would consider it the greatest catastrophe for Hungary since the invasion and subjugation of Hungary by the Turks."

Hungary has a large German minority whose ancestors have lived on excellent terms with their Magyar neighbors for generations. But no country is in love with its German minorities at present, for no one welcomes a Trojan horse. The spirit of Kossuth is very much alive in Hungary, and that spirit resented even the German Hapsburgs, who eventually accepted Hungary as an equal in the dual monarchy. Responsible Hungarian statesmen are under no illusions that the domination of the Danubian and eastern countries by Germany would eventually work out for the benefit of Hungary, however much it might add to her domain at the outset. "We do not want to become larger in order to be enslaved," said one man crisply.

Thus Hungary looks at Norway, and with great sympathy for that northern and western country thanks heaven that the blow struck there first. Meanwhile, her leaders weigh the pros and cons of a possible German move eastward and pray that their country will regain the territory that it claims, either by their own hands or, far better, by reasonable compromise and with the consent and support of the public opinion of the world.

They are realistically distrustful of a gift that may be offered then —the hardest gift in the world to refuse. That is their tragic dilemma.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

TESTING THE STRENGTH OF YOUR HEART

It is interesting to see the difference between an older or inexperienced boxer and a beginner, not only in the ring but during the physical examination before the bout. The heart rate of the old or experienced boxer is usually slow and regular, beating perhaps just 66 to the minute which is increased after light exercise, to 84. In the beginner the heart beat may be 84 before light exercise and 96 to 108 after exercise. The heart rate of the inexperienced boxer will be back to normal in one-half to a minute after the exercise, and that of the beginner may require from one to two minutes to get back to normal.

While in many cases this slowness of heart rate and quick return to normal after exercise in the experienced boxer is due to a stronger heart, in most cases it is the nervousness of the beginner that increases his heart rate and the length of time required to return to normal. This fact is even more noticeable in taking blood pressure, the blood pressure of beginners or nervous individuals is often 10 to 20 points above normal just before the reading is made.

Notwithstanding these facts, the test of the strength of the heart in an athlete, soldier or average individual is usually estimated by this simple test.

The heart rate is taken with the individual standing easily but squarely on both feet. He is then instructed to jog (stationary run) fifty steps at the rate of two steps a second, 120 to the minute —double-mark time is is sometimes called). The heart rate is then taken and he is instructed to stand in an "easy" position for two minutes. If heart rate is back to normal at the end of the two minutes, it is considered a "good" heart, and capable of withstanding athletics or war efforts.

When the heart is rapid before exercise, it will usually be back two minutes after exercise to the rate at which it was before exercise, that is if it is just nervousness that is causing the increased rate. In fact, in many cases it will be lower two minutes after exercise than it was just before exercise. This is a good sign in that it shows that exercise is not only safe but that exercise, taken regularly, will help to "slow down" the rate of the heart beat.

You can try this simple test of your heart beat should you be wondering if your physician was right in pronouncing your heart sound despite the fact that it was beating at a fast rate.

A Sea Story

While sailing into the harbor of a well known British West Indies port, some time ago, I noticed riding at anchor a ship with quite a list. I gave no further thought of the matter until I got ashore. The story concerning the capture of the ship is most remarkable, if it is true. Anyway, I give it to our readers as it was told to me.

The vessel, I was told, was the captured German freighter-passenger ship Hanover. Sometime previous she had left a Mexican port and was endeavoring to make her way back to Germany which was a hundred to one she would not with the British Navy patrolling practically every trade route on the high seas. A British destroyer happened to sight her some few miles off and instead of making a rush for her steamed away and disappeared over the horizon (like the cat turning her back on the rat) and then got up full speed and proceeded to overtake her prey, coming alongside swiftly and making her hawsers fast to the Hanover's bits. Though the Hanover's crew managed to open the sea cocks, the British Navy had made such a lightning attack that divers were down in no time and managed to secure the sea cocks before much water had entered the Hanover, thus making possible another Nazi prize for the British Empire.

After hearing the story, the next trip south, I went aboard the captured vessel as she was along side the dock. She was a modern ship, evidently built for the South American trade, as all the instructions to passengers were written in Spanish and German. These Germans make good ships. Too bad they can't make good statesmen, then, perhaps, all the useless destruction of man's good work would not be wasted.

May I end on a note of humor? I took a stroll below and passed the store room. An odor of liquor caught me full in the face, so I went back and investigated. Behold a room full of Beck's beer and various wines. Had I not been on the water waggon, I might have been tempted to sample some.— J. Thomlinson in Montreal Star.

London Press, Like Britons, Prepared To Wait for Critical Session of House Before Passing Judgment

London, May 4—(CP-Cable)—The Allied withdrawal from Namsos in Norway was the No. 1 story in the morning papers today but reports of the Allied fleet's arrival at Alexandria drew almost as much prominence.

The Daily Express was the only morning newspaper really to spread the Namsos story and that apparently was because its reporter, Frank Muto, remained behind in Norway to describe the withdrawal.

Except for the Daily Mail and the Daily Herald, editorial reaction was restrained. The papers evidently, like many Britons, are prepared to wait until Tuesday's critical session of the House of Commons before passing judgment.

The Daily Express devoted its editorial criticism to censorship in the Norwegian campaign. The Daily Herald bitterly attacked Prime Minister Chamberlain and warned that the efforts to rescue Europe from Hitler "will not be impeded by the inertia and complacency of the present British Government."

The Daily Mail condemned the "muddle and red tape," which it blamed for the withdrawals in Norway.

On the other hand, the Times' editorial theme was the foreign reaction to the Allied move. It pointed out that in every war early successes always go to the aggressor and the final victory goes to the belligerent with the greatest "staying" power.

Nation Steeled to Great Effort.

"So far from having in any way weakened the British staying power, the partial failure in Norway certainly has steeled the nation to a great effort," said The Times.

The Daily Telegraph moralized that character is shown in truer fashion not so much by failures, as the way people face the consequences of them, and said that Britons will confirm the truth of that reflection "by their undaunted reaction to the reverse which the Allied forces sustained."

Under the title "it must not happen again," the News Chronicle emphasized the necessity for adequate preparations for activities in any future theatre of war.

Express Spreads Story.

The Daily Express spread the Muto story under a big headline: "I watched the British leave Namsos."

The newspaper said that the person who took the story from Muto over the telephone in Stockholm could hear the raiding planes over the village from which the correspondent was calling.

Ralph Hewins of the Daily Mail recounted the Nazi raid on Namsos on April 30 when a few British anti-aircraft gunners worked amid a rain of bombs until their weapons were fouled.

That attack, he said, rendered it untenable as a base. The quays and warehouses were obliterated like the rest of the town. The spring thaw turned the two roads from Namsos into quagmires.

Criticism Gaining Strength

The News Chronicle writer reported that criticism of the cabinet was gaining strength among members of the House of Commons. Among questions they will ask next week, he said, were: Why the government kept only a small force in reserve for Scandiinavia although according to the Prime Minister the cabinet knew German troops and transports were accumulating in the Baltic? Why the cabinet did not authorize a bold naval attack on Trondheim within two days of the German invasion? Why the Ministry of Information allowed misleading neutral reports to pass? Whether the intelligence service was faulty in not discovering the clandestine shipment of German troops to Norwegian key ports?

The diplomatic correspondent of the Daily Herald charged that the Allied campaign in Norway "from beginning to end was paralyzed by delays, by hesitation, by infirmity of purpose and by inability to take decision."

Punch Pulled is Claim

"If simultaneously with land attacks from Namsos and Andalsnes we had forced our way into Trondheim Fjord, if we had bombed the German garrison from the air, if we had done all this at once we should have had heavy losses but we should quite probably have won," the correspondent said. "Our punch was pulled so that it became hardly a slap."

In an editorial the Herald said "The British military failure in southern Europe may be merely temporary and the remaining neutrals may be prepared to accept it as such. But it becomes and urgently necessary to give them some far more convincing evidence of our good faith than Mr. Chamberlain provided Thursday. That warranty must be given by the British people through their representatives in parliament next week.

"For every blunder, for every foolish over-optimistic word, for every promise unfulfilled, the Chamberlain Government must answer at its trial next week."

Received Bitter Lesson

"The British people and leaders alike have received a bitter lesson," said the Daily Mail. "If it is not to be repeated we must find an answer to one question—is the war as a whole being conducted efficiently? The people have an uneasy suspicion that it is not. . .

"Remember 1916. Lloyd George appointed a real war cabinet to cut through convention and government, down to realities. The government of today must be re-fashioned on the same lines. It is time now to face facts and rid ourselves of dangerous illusions rooted in long tradition of victory.

"Even now people are saying: 'We always start a war with setbacks but we always win the last battle.' It is time this 'last battle' complex as eradicated. This is a war to the death and we have got to fight."

"Let the Allies announce now plainly and publicly that the first move by Italy against Yugoslavia will find her at war with Britain and France," the News Chronicle said. "That announcement, more than anything else would pave the way for concerted Balkan resistance. And this time let there be adequate material preparations by the Allies beforehand . . .

Must Probe Censorship

"But how long are we to make the present illogical distinction between air objectives on neutral soil and air objectives in Germany? If we could strike so effectively at an airdrome in Denmark why not strike with equal effect at an aerodrome in Germany? There could be only one good answer—that our first line bomber strength is still markedly inferior to the Germans—and if that is the case we cannot afford to spare any effort until this position is made good."

"In the inquest which follows the Norwegian campaign another matter must be investigated—censorship," the Daily Express said. "The censorship now is slowly releasing pictures of troops leaving Britain for Norway—the same troops which are now on their way out of Norway. The object of censorship is to prevent the enemy from learning about the way we are fighting the war. Its effect is to give the world the impression that we are not fighting the war at all."

Allan's Mills—Misses Edna McComb and Marjorie Brown returned home on Saturday after spending last week at Kemptville College.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Miles of Havelock called on Mr. and Mrs. D. Wellman on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Anderson of Campbellford were Sunday visitors at Mr. Fred McKeown's.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Burkitt spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Harry McAdam of Mt. Pleasant.

Over fifty friends tendered the newly weds, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wellman a rousing charivari on Monday evening when the bride and groom appeared, the friends were invited inside and a very nice lunch of cake, sandwich and coffee were served by Mrs. Wellman. The groom's treat was soft drinks and several kinds of candy, after which the friends sang "For they are jolly good fellows" and departed, leaving their musical pans as souvenirs.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wellman are taking up residence in Miss Livingston's house at Bonarlaw.

Mrs. A. H. Reid returned home on Saturday after spending some time at Fenelon Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Reid of Ompah visited Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Reid on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Haselett of Toronto spent the week end with Mrs. Haselett.

Mr. Clarence Anderson has enlisted in the air force and is in training in Halifax.

Mr. Kenneth Reid of the Toronto Air Force has been transferred to Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Jones and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brown spent Sunday with friends in Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Cameron Craige of Fenelon Falls spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Reid.

Mrs. Lindsay Mumby entertained the members and visitors of the W. I. on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. J. F. Baker, President, opened the meeting. The secretary read a letter on the preservation of wild flowers. It was decided to hold a card party in the club rooms when the lucky ticket will be drawn on the W. I. quilt. Mrs. Thos. H. McKeown gave a splendid paper on "If we buy what Canada makes." History of radium was well given in a paper prepared by Mrs. Geo. Eastwood. Mrs. A. Burkitt gave a report on district meeting held in Madoc. Community singing was enjoyed. Mrs. Ike Brown gave a splendid reading "Which am I." Mrs. Roy Brown took charge of a contest after which the meeting was closed with the National Anthem and lunch was served by the hostess..

Picton

Picton, May 4.—Mr. and Mrs. Roy Welbanks, Misses Luella and Vera Welbanks of Milford attended the funeral at Centre Ameliasburg on Wednesday afternoon of their cousin Mrs. John Townsend, who died earlier in the week in Detroit. Others who were in attendance include Mrs. L. Dickenson of Ottawa, Clifford Townsend and Howard Huff of Detroit.

The Bloomfield Mission Band held a successful tulip tea in the United Church there Friday afternoon. Mrs. J. D. Baxter was in charge of the arrangements, and a large crowd attended. The guests were received by Mrs. Fred Hubbs and Miss Elizabeth Wren. Tea was served at small tables with the assistants being Mrs. Harold Cleave, Mrs. James Cough, Mrs. Arthur Moore and Miss Ruth Stark. The home cooking table was in charge of Miss Genevieve Smith and Mrs. Frank Stone. The fees were received by Miss Ival Stark. A nice sum was realized from this affair.

The Woman's Association of Picton United Church was held in the Church hall Friday afternoon. Mrs J. L. Ashley and Mrs. Arthur Davis, leaders of Group 1 had charge of the program. Mrs. A. H. Foster of Cherry Valley gave an address and urged attendance at the district W. A. convention at Rednersville later in the month.

L. B. Calnan was guest speaker at the meeting of the Junior Board of Trade at the Globe Hotel on Thursday evening ,telling of his trip to Texas and other interesting points The board is planning several worthy projects.

Mrs. Walter S. Fraser returned to town Friday after spending the winter in California. She also visited relatives at Detroit for a few weeks

Mrs. Nick Welsh entertained the bridge club of which she is a member at her home on Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Mae Killip is spending a month in Toronto and Hamilton.

Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Shier motored to Cannington on Wednesday and returned on Friday.,

PERSONALS

At the home of Mr Leo Ryan, Holloway, friends of Private Douglas Curlette gathered last evening to honor this popular member of the community and to present him with a number of gifts An address signed on behalf of friends and neighbours by Clarence Faulkner, Arthur Carter, Leo Ryan and Emory Demill was read and a social evening enjoyed by the guests.

The condition of Mrs. Violet Henry, who underwent an operation in Toronto General Hospital, is very favourable.

Mr. James Kokesh of this city, has taken over the Peterborough Dominion Weights and Measures Office.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Smart and daughter of Brockville, arrive in town this week-end and will take up residence at 104 Dundas Street West. Mr. Smart will make Belleville his headquarters as a member of the sales staff of the Phillips Electrical Works, Limited Mr. and Mrs. Smart were popular among a wide circle of friends in Brockville and their departure is a matter of keen regret to all having the pleasure of their acquaintance

Mr. Douglas Huffman, Grove Street, who was taken seriously ill last Sunday is now progressing favourably in Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. J. A. Lindsay of Bancroft, and Miss Fay Reid, Huntsville, have been spending a week in the city guests of Mrs. R. Andrews and R. H. Burley.

Work of the Gideons To be Described At Church Services

Sunday, May 5th, is being observed as Gideon Sunday in the churches of Belleville. The following visiting Gideons from Toronto will tell the interesting story of the work of the Gideons in placing Bibles in hotels, hospitals, prisons and schools, at morning services:

Holloway St. United Church — Pres. John S. Reid; Harold Williams.

Bridge St. United—Past Pres. Jas. H. Russell; John Gregg.

Tabernacle United—Sec'y Will J. Green; F. F. Bell.

C. M. Alliance—Gordon Young. D. M. Duncan.

Evangel Temple—Robt. R. Dickason.

King St. United, Trenton—Thos. Roulston; Albert Anderson.

At the evening services:

Victoria Ave. Baptist—Sec'y Will J. Green; Robt. R. Dickason.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian— Albert Anderson; Thos. Roulston.

Regular Baptist—Gordon Young.

Bibles For New Wing of Hospital to be Dedicated

At the service in Bridge Street Church, 34 Bibles for the new wing of the Belleville General Hospital will be presented and dedicated.

The Canadian Gideons have already placed 150,000 Bibles, of which 95,000 are in hotels, 35,000 in schools, 15,000 in hospitals and 5,000 in jails.

Outside of Canada, they supply institutions in India and the hotels and hostels in the City of Jerusalem.

Unusual places receiving Bibles recently are the military training camps across Canada, the planes of the Trans-Canada Airways and the prison road camps.

There are only 250 Gideon members in Canada, but this organization of Christian business men acts as a clearing house for all denominations, doing a work which no single denomination could undertake.

30 Young Women Enroll In V.A.D.C. Course Sponsored By General Motors of Canada

First Class Held at Boyce's Garage. Friday Evening and Will Continue for Eight Weeks

VOLUNTARY SERVICE

Course Will Permit Young Women to be of More Service to Military Authorities if Need Should Arise

Should the exigencies of war ever demand that women take their places at the wheels of motor ambulances or other mechanized equipment at least thirty attractive young Belleville ladies will be ready to answer the call.

For exactly that number gathered at the J. B. Boyce Company last night for the preliminary of eight lessons which will train them in a way that will make them more acceptable to the military authorities should the need for their services arise.

Opened in Belleville under the sponsorship of General Motors, the Voluntary Auxiliary Drivers Corps as it is called, the group is confined to third members alone. The V.A.D.C. it was explained by Mr. J. N. Lister of General Motors, has courses under way in several prominent cities of the Dominion, and by the end of June over one thousand young ladies will have graduated from the course which is designed to instruct women in elementary automotive mechanics and roadside repairs and to help prepare them for voluntary service as war-time military chauffeurs and ambulance drivers.

Ladies Not Obligated.

Introduced by Mr. J. B. Boyce, Mr. Lister explained to the young ladies that the course obligated them in no way, either the General Motors or to any military organization. The purpose of the course, he said, is not to enroll recruits for the army or its allied services, but merely to give to Canadian girls and women such training as will make them more readily acceptable to the military authorities in the event that the need for women chaueuffrs or ambulance drivers ever arises.

Under the supervision of Mr. E. Scarfe, the course runs into two sections—the theoretical part, and the practical training. Once the "recruits" have mastered the fundamental principles and theories of the internal combustion engine, and the function of its various parts, they don neat and attractive overalls, which met with unanimousapproval when one of the number modelled it last night, and which become their own property and undergo instructions in dismantling, assembling and repairing those parts of a motor car or truck engine, which come under official army regulations governing "roadside emergency repairs".

Addressed By Col. Gribble.

Lieut.-Col. A. B. Gribble, Officer Commanding the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank), briefly addressed the young ladies. He assured them of the full co-operation of his unit and congratulated them on the spirit which they are showing in enrolling for the course. He explained that the new army is a highly mechanized one and should the need arise, women will take their place as chauffeurs in order to let the men go to the forward areas.

He wished the class the best of luck, and hoped they would become "good army drivers".

The course will consist of two hours' instruction each Friday night for eight weeks. Following instruction the girls will enjoy tea and sandwiches. Trained mechanics of Mr. Boyce's staff will assist in the instruction.

Response Amazing.

"The response on the part of the young women of Ontario has been amazing," Mr. Lister told The Ontario Intelligencer following the meeting last night. "We have been swamped with applications and are sorry that we cannot accept them all. The splendid spirit of earnest co-operation as exemplified in the hundreds of requests from young women to enrol for the course, has been far beyond our expectations."

The aims and objects of the sponsors and instructors will be fully realized, he said, if those taking the course become better fitted either to place their services at the disposal of the government should need arise, or to operate motor vehicles with safety and confidence under the increasingly difficult conditions which our civilization imposes.

Availability of the class was made through the co-operation of the Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Fiancee Helps Choose Engagement Ring

New days bring new ways concerning engagement rings. The modern lover, knowing the modern minded girl, usually doesn't provide himself with a diamond ring ready to be placed triumphantly on the finger of his beloved when she says "Yes."

In these practical days, it is considered more sensible for the young man to consult with his fiancee about the ring which she is to wear all her life. They know what kind of ring they want, these modern girls, and very often—surprise! —their preferences are easier on the young man's budget than he had expected.

Of course the accepted suitor may still, if he wishes, buy the ring without consulting his betrothed. He may consult her about her taste in rings and then go forth to buy the ring that is nearest her heart's desire as well as his budget. More practically, he may confer with his jeweler and have him put aside all the rings of the type that the bride-elect has indicated and that come within the price that he can afford. Then, later, he and his financee go to the jeweler's, and she chooses the one she likes best. Another procedure is to have the jeweler or his assistant bring the rings the fiance has selected to the girl's house for her selection. Or the young man may buy an unset stone and have several sketches made for the settings, the girl to choose the setting she considers most becoming to her hand.

Today a diamond solitaire is not at all a "must" as an engagement ring. A diamond, of course, is still the usual choice, but it is not by any means the only choice. Many girls prefer, in jeweler's parlance, a "colored" stone to a "white" stone. Some prefer a ruby, which is supposed to symbolize ardor, or a sapphire, for fidelity. Some even brave the unfounded superstition attached to pearls ,opals, emeralds.

Fashion of the moment, with its interest in semi-precious stones, influences some girls to prefer a large, handsome semi-precious stone (aquamarine, moonstone or carnelian, for instance) rather than a small diamond.

There is an added romantic interest, many girls think, in having their birthstone set in their engagement rings. Here are the birth stones for each month:

January—Garnet.
February—Amethyst.
March—Bloodstone, Aquamarine.
April—Diamond.
May—Emerald.
June—Moonstone, Pearl, Agate.
July—Ruby.
August—Sardonyx, Carnelian.
September—Sapphire.
October—Opal, Tourmaline.
November—Topaz.
December—Turquoise, Lapis Lazuli.

If there is a lovely heirloom ring in the fiances family, sometimes this becomes the engagement ring, very often with the stone reset, sometimes with the stone recut.

With the popularity of diamond wedding rings, some girls prefer to forego having an engagement ring, and concentrate the budget on a diamond wedding band.

Remember, girls, your engagement ring is worn for the first time—for the first time in public, that is—on the day of the announcement of your engagement

WEDDINGS

BUSHEL—BUCK

A very pretty wedding took place Thursday evening, May 2nd, at the home of the bride's parents, 323 Albert Street, when Edith Madge, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Buck became the bride of Mr. Carmen Seymour Bushel, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Bushel of Thurlow. Rev. W. J. Walker, minister of St. Andrew's Church, officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and looked very charming in a gown of Queen's blue with matching accessories and corsage of pink roses.

Miss Pearl Empy, in baby blue with matching accessories and corsage of roses acted as bridesmaid. Mr. Garfield Evans was groomsman.

Following the ceremony a buffet supper was served by the hostess assisted by Miss Jeane Buck, Miss Pauline Kerr and Miss Doris Kerr. Mrs. A. Buck of Kingston, and Mrs. Miles Buck of Bath, aunt and great-aunt of the bride, presided at the tea table which was most attractive with a dainty lace cloth and the lovely cake as a centrepiece, flanked by pink and white carnations in silver baskets. Rev. Mr. Walker proposed the toast to the bride to which the groom very suitably replied.

Mr. and Mrs. Bushel will reside at North Front Street Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were, Mrs. Ernest Buck, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Miles Buck and Mr. Wilson Buck, Bath; Mrs. H. Lowes and Mr. and Mrs. A. Buck, Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. Evans, Foxboro; Mr. and Mrs. Carter, Plainfield; Mr. and Mrs. Clarke and Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds, Corbyville.

ALLEN—McGUIRE

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. McGuire, Trent Road, was the scene of a charming wedding at four o'clock this afternoon when their daughter, Lillian Mabel, became the bride of Mr. Charles E. Allen of Leamington, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William T. Allen. Pink snapdragons and Spring flowers in pastel tones made a colorful setting for the ceremony which was performed by Rev. Dr. James Semple assisted by Rev. B. Simpson Black of Campbellford.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a lovely gown of Madonna blue chiffon with sweetheart neckline and filmy chiffon skirt sweeping to a small train. Her headdress was a blue net braided turban with finger tip veil and her bouquet was of Johanna Hill roses.

Mrs. P. C. McGuire was matron of honour and wore a gown of rose sheer with lace yoke and girdle and full flowing skirt. Her headdress was a rose garland to match her gown and she carried an old fashioned nosegay of sweetpeas in shades of pink and lavender with azalea pink ribbons. Mr. Alan F. Meiklejohn of Kingston, was groomsman.

Wedding music was played by Mr. Harold B. Potts of Detroit, assisted by Miss Alice Calow, violinist, of Amherstburg. Mrs. Allan Watson of Campbellford, sang during the signing of the register.

A reception was held following the ceremony, Mrs. McGuire receiving her guests in a gown of midnight blue English suede lace with corsage of Virginia carnations.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Allen left on a short wedding trip, the bride choosing for travelling, a Delmonte rose crepe romaine dress, English boulce coat in Britannia blue and matching accessories. Upon their return they will take up residence in Leamington.

Can't Raise Grades With Welts

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

IN ORDER to learn well at school, a child must want to learn and believe he can. To scold or punish him for poor grades or failures is absurd. It not only doesn't help him gain better grades but it also makes him hate the things he is supposed to learn. In the long run it slows up his learning.

Some coercion might be warranted in requiring him to go through certain routines, such as handing in a written assignment on time at school, or being at his place of study at home at certain regular periods. In addition to cultivating in him habits of regular application, as in doing home work at a regular time, for instance, you need most to set the stage so he will succeed as he tries to learn and enjoy satisfaction from success. As a result of his successes he acquires new hope and interest which, in turn, arouse him to expend more effort to win still more success, and so on.

Child is Dreamer

"Dear Dr. Myers," a mother writes, "my son is 11 years old and in the sixth grade. He has always just gotten through on condition but now his grades are below passing. His teacher says he can do the work but will not apply himself; he just sits anad dreams. First I tried rewards, which failed to bring results, then I deprived him of his toys, radio programs and funny magazines (of which he is extremely fond), but still to no avail. His Dad even tried spanking him, but he just takes on tha abused attitude when corrected. The teacher and I are both despairing of how to wake up his ambition so any suggestion from you would be most appreciated. There is one other child in the family."

I wrote this mother and advised her not to scold or punish that boy for his school failures since they already have discouraged him so much that he hardly has the heart to keep on trying.

"You can be sure that what he is supposed to learn at school is too hard for him. With failures always facing him how is he going to get the courage to keep striving? How could you and I do so in his place? Sit down with the teacher and try to find out exactly what the lad's learning difficulties are. Does he have trouble in arithmetic, in spelling, in reading? What is the nature of this trouble?

May Read Poorly

"The chances are that he reads very poorly. Most who fail at his age do. Nearly all of his work is based on reading, you see. If he fails in history or geography or science, he really fails in reading. Reading difficulties even can hamper his work in arithmetic. It's likely all of his textbooks are so hard for him that he can read them only very slowly, stumbling over every other word or so.

"Read aloud to him most of his hard assignments. Then encourage him to read for self-improvement for half an hour or so daily, from books or magazines several grades easier than the one he is in. Persuade him or ever hire him to read aloud to a child too young to go to school for this child's enjoyment. But be very patient; never let yourself grow angry at his errors. Walk away the moment you do. Rejoice with him over his success, however small."

Protection Needed

At this season there are far greater dangers than skating bumps to molest your child. The air is filled with germs of infectious diseases which find an easy prey in the child whose blood is thin and condition anaemic.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food affords protection to your child by helping to build up the richness of the blood, to sharpen the appetite and to restore healthful digestion.

Vitamin $B_1$, an important ingredient of the nerve food, is considered especially helpful in this connection.

Children respond quickly to this food treatment and it is a joy to parents to see them robust in health, full of vitality and keen in their school work and sports.

Private S. Calver and Mrs. Calver Feted and Honored by Friends Of Zion and Bethel Communities

A large number from Zion and Bethel communities gathered recently at Zion church to honour Private Sheldon Calver.

After a program consisting of community singing, speeches by ex-service men and friends, readings by Mrs. Hayton and music by Roslin orchestra. Private and Mrs. Calver were called forward by the chairman, Mr. Roscoe Robson.

Mr. Roy Sills read the following address, after which Mr. R. Dulmage presented Mrs. Calver with a lovely bouquet of flowers and Private Calver with a beautifully engraved wrist watch, and a flashlight:

Dear Sheldon:

Your friends have assembled this evening to convey to you their best wishes for your success in the career you have chosen.

Our gratitude and thanks go out to you and all others who volunteer to assist in upholding those principles which we believe to be right, and on which the foundations of our Democracy rest.

During your absence it will be our prayer that a kind and beneficent Providence will guide and direct you, and when this conflict is ended, return you safely to your family and friends.

To make this occasion a bright spot in your memory, and to show in a very small way our appreciation of the services you are offering to your country, we would ask you, Eva, to accept this bouquet, and you, Sheldon, this watch and flash-light."

Signed on behalf of Zion and Bethel Communities.

Private and Mrs. Calver expressed their thanks and appreciation, after which a lunch was served by the ladies.

Y. P. U. MEETINGS

STONE CHURCH Y.P.U.

The Young People of the Stone Church met at the home of Miss Leira Detlor on Friday, April 26, at 8 p.m. The president opened the meeting with hymn 562. During the business part of the meeting it was decided to assist in a project of cleaning and beautifying the church grounds.

The worship service, given by Miss Euna Foster, was opened by a call to worship. After engaging in prayer the scripture was read. "Being Faithful to a Trust" was the theme of the message which followed. Some thoughts worth remembering were "We have all been given a trust to win others," "Goodness is where you find it," "Jesus was always ready to pay the price of doing good." "Hidden away behind some sullen countenance is a real human being, waiting for the right touch." The worship service closed with the singing of hymn 356.

Mrs. Gordon Woods had charge of the program on "Fellowship." A story titled "Sharing Friendship" was read by Miss Leira Detlor. Mr. Hugh Gray read a poem carrying out the idea of friendship. A very interesting topic "What does it mean to be a Christian"? was given by Mrs. Albert Seeley. "Seeking" was the title of a poem which Mr. Gordon Woods read. Miss Leira Detlor treated the members to maple sugar.

MARSH HILL Y. P. U.

The regular meeting of the Marsh Hill Y.P.U. was held at the home of Miss Aleita Horton on Friday evening, April 26.

The worship service was conducted by the president, Jack Dafoe. Prayer was offered by Rev. E. M. Cook. The scripture lesson was read by. Margaret Vanderwater.

Alison Vanderwater, the convener, continued the meeting. Poems were read by Edythe Cook, "The Builders" and Ralph Campbell "You have today my friend." A very instructive topic on "Country Life in Norway" was given by the convener.

Following the meeting a social hour was spent in games.

HALLOWAY Y. P. U.

The closing meeting of the Halloway Young People's Union was held Wednesday evening, May 1 at the home of the president, Mrs Embury Hough. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Coleman Townsend. It was decided to return the Travelling Library to Toronto in the near future. Plans were made to attend the district picnic at Oak Lake, also to participate in the ball game. The funds are to be held for the present.

A splendid topic "Are we chasing rainbows or following stars" was ably presented by Mrs. Don Rose. There were thirteen present and the offering amounted to 50 cents. Lunch was served by the hostess at the conclusion of the meeting.

IVANHOE Y. P. U.

The regular weekly meeting was held on Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Fleming. About 35 were in attendance. A call to worship opened the worship service. The scripture was read by Arthur Reid. During the next period business was discussed.

The Culture Convener, Dorothy Fleming then took charge. A reading entitled "Fresh Courage" was given by Edna Reid. A guitar solo was given by Madeline Reid. June McCaw read a piece from "Flashes From the Living Message." A duet was given by Shirley Fleming and Eunice Thomilson.

An interesting paper was read by Miss Mutton called "War time sacrifices at Buckingham Palace." Miss Mutton, recreation convener, put on a number of games and contests. A delicuous lunch was served by the hostess during the social half hour. A vote of thanks was extended to the hostess for her hospitality.

CARMEL Y. P. U.

The regular meeting of the Carmel Y.P.U. was held on Wednesday evening, April 24th.

The vice president, Mrs. Percy Reynolds, opened the meeting.

Miss Mildred Jones, Christian Culture convener took charge of the meeting for the remaining part of the evening.

Glen Ross read the scripture lesson. Miss Jones gave the topic "The church" assisted by Misses Margeurite Hicks, Marron Waddell, Irene Haynes and Mrs. Percy Reynolds.

The remaining part of the topic was given. Mr. Jack McCabe led in prayer. Following the meeting Miss Marron Waddell conducted the recreation period that was greatly enjoyed.

BETHANY Y.P.U.

The weekly meeting of the Bethany Y. P. U. was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Walker on Tuesday evening, April 30 with the attendance of 25.

Rev. Armstrong led in prayer. Miss Hazel Walker read the Scripture lesson and business was discussed.

Miss Edith Walker then took charge. Mrs. B. Hollinger gave the topic "Canada's debt to the Indians." Mr. Roy Treverton favored with an instrumental and Mr. Stanley Pound gave a reading. Mrs. G. Sills rendered a solo. Miss Bessie Walker gave a poem. Miss Reta Clarke gave a pleasing instrumental and Mrs. E. Treverton gave an interesting reading "An English Gentleman."

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Pretended He Was Sick, But Took Another to Dance

Dear Miss Fairfax:

After going steady with a young man for almost a year, he broke a date with me. He called up a week later and said he was ill. As it was the first time he had ever done such a thing, I accepted his excuse. Then I found out through friends that he had taken another girl to the dance, to which he had intended taking me. When I asked him about it, he was indifferent.

I haven't seen him for some time but for a week now he has been trying to date me; however, I don't care to see him. Don't you think I'm right? He says he knows that he did wrong, and that he really loves me. As much as I love him, I can't forgive his lying to me. Please tell me what to do.

Alice B.

Indeed I think you're right in cutting from your list of acquaintances a young man who's not only untruthful but a cad as well. No wonder girls are treated so shabbily when they put up with bad manners and downright insults and then they wonder why young man leave them for girls more spunky. No one has any use for a doormat, except to wipe his feet on, and a nice girl is too good for that.

Bachelor Confices He's Too Comfortable to Marry

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Please don't think I'm a mama's boy from what I'm about to confide. I'm 32 years of age and everyone from my mother down to the man who runs the elevator in the office building where I'm employed suggests matrimony. But why?

I live home with my widowed mother. Our home life is ideal. She knows all my tastes, and the home runs on greased wheels. When I want friends to dinner, I know their dinner will be perfect and the service leaves nothing to be desired.

When I was young and foolish I had several love affairs and imagined I wanted to marry a couple of the girls, but we broke up, to the good fortune of all parties concerned. Please don't imagine me a monkish sort of fellow. I like girls enormously, go out two and three nights a week, dance, take them to shows, but I haven't seen anyone yet for whom I wish to give my thoroughly comfortable home.

Bachelor.

Doubtless your mother wants to see you married comfortably before she quits the scene. For you know mothers don't last forever. Ten years from now, if you should be so unfortunate as to lose this parent, you'd probably marry the first girl who suggested herself and maybe the choice would not be wise.

Again, when a man puts off marrying too long and has a family, the disparity of years makes his children regard him more as a grandfather than a father. While I hesitate to join the group consisting of everybody in your circle from your mother to the elevator boy, still I think there is wisdom in what they say.

They Realize the Difficulties of a Long Engagement

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 20 years of age and going steady with a boy of 17. I love him and am fully convinced that he loves me. We get along fine together, and his family approves of me. We will not be able to marry for five years and of course we are trying to be sensible about everything.

But the waiting is so hard and the years are so long. What can we do? I know that we should make new friends and interest ourselves in others but we've both tried that and it didn't work out. We do things with the rest of the crowd and try not to be alone with each other too much. But there are times when we do find ourselves alone and you know how sensible two people in love can be.

Please tell us what to do. Your advice will help make things easier.

Perplexed.

You realize the difficulties of your position so well that there is really very little to say. Five years is indeed a long time to wait when the lovers are 17 aand 20, and impatiently in love. There is also the grave danger that if you are imprudent you will probably cease to care for each other as devotedly as you do at the present time.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

SORE THROAT

Sore throats are always troublesome, sometimes very dangerous conditions, and they are most prevalent in the spring and in the fall when so many children suffer from attacks of the common cold.

When a child gets a bad cold, then some of the throat structures become swollen and inflamed by the infection; sometimes all the throat structures become involved, and in some cases chronic inflammation sets in. This inflammation of the throat, however, may be only secondary to a nose infection and when this is the case, we can't expect the throat to clear up until the source of the infection has been cleared up.

Influenza, such as was rife this winter and is common even now, often spreads to the windpipe and the lungs. When the inflammation is confined to the tonsils, we know it as tonsilitis. In a few of these cases little white "balls" form in the small cavities of the tonsils. As they are dislodged, they are either swallowed or expectorated. They are caused partly by particles of food clinging there and partly by discharge fibrine—a secretion given off by the tonsils at all times and in increased quantities when those organs become inflamed.

Sometimes the inflammation is confined to the pharynx, which is the cavity into which the mouth and nose lead just above the windpipe and the food gullet. This type of inflammation is known as pharyngitis. I have known highly strung, nervous people come to me complaining that they had a "relaxed" feeling at the back of the throat. Usually, they are suffering from pharyngitis.

When the larynx, or windpipe is inflamed, we call it laryngitis. In bad cases, the vocal cords are involved and may even become temporarily paralysed. That is generally what is wrong when a person "loses" his voice. Excessive shouting such as you indulge in when you see a fast hockey or football game may affect the larynx and cause laryngitis. I imagine it must be a fairly common ailment with European dictators.

This inflammation may work its way down the windpipe to the bronchial tubes and the lungs, causing bronchitis and pneumonia. In reverse, a lung infection may work itself up through the windpipe to the larynx and the throat, inflaming the throat structures as it passes along.

If laryngitis comes with the general congestion of a cold, it ordinarily subsides fairly quickly. If it results from an infection in the lungs, . may hang on until the primary source of the infection is cured.

Of course, we are all fairly familiar with the troubles the tonsils may cause children. We have discussed these recently. A chronic tonsillitis often gives rise to an abcess in the throat and this we know as quinsy.

Quinsy is particularly painful and if left to run its course may keep the victim miserable as long as ten days. However, if you go to your doctor and let him make a small surgical incision in the abcess, it should clear up in about three days.

'Eat Hay and Grow Healthy' Research Chemists Discover Valuable Vitamins in Grass

Dr. W. R. Graham, Member of Belleville Family, and Associates, Successful After Four Years of Experiments — Oat-Shoots From Six to Eight Inches in Height Are Preferred — Grass is Cut, Dried and Powdered to Retain Valuable Vitamins — George K. Graham, Trent Road Farmer, and Dr. G. H. Stobie Predict 'Tremendous Future' for New Discovery — Has Valuable Medical Properties and is Also Being Used in Cereal Foods and Animal and Chicken Feeds

"Go and eat grass" an irate young wife said to her husband the other day in a fit of temper. Hubby, who has been keeping abreast of the times, smiled and replied, "It wouldn't be a bad idea if we both did that. It would cure a lot of things."

And hubby knew whereof he spoke. He had read of the tremendous strides made by science in the development of the health-giving properties of the humble blade of grass, during the past four years.

An ancient Babylonian king, when feeling despondent went down on his knees and ate the green stuff. Yet that same king later drove the Egyptians out of Asia, conquered Syria and destroyed Jerusalem.

The family pup has often been the butt of ridicule when he crouches on the lawn and placidly chews the green shoots. Cats have been known to eat it. Down through the centuries the animals of the field, have made it their chief source of sustenance.

And now man, after thousands of years have rolled by, is beginning to learn of the marvellous health-giving properties Mother Nature has secreted in the early shoots of new spring life.

Power in Grass

Three weeks ago, Drs. W. R. Graham, George O. Kohler, and C. F. Schnabel, research chemists with the Western Dairies of Kansas City, came to the conclusion that in grass there was power. After four years of scientific research they decided to make hay for humanity. They had discovered that grain grass contains all the vitamins except "D"; has 28 times more vitamins per pound than dried fruits or vegetables. Buried in the leafy shoots, they discovered, were 23 times more Vitamin A than in carrots, nine times more Vitamin B than in leafy green vegetables; 22 more times Vitamin B2 than in lettuce and 14 times more Vitamin C than in tomatoes or citrus fruits.

But most important of all, they discovered the grass contained the new Vitamin K which has worked wonders for hemorrhages in both infants and grown-ups.

Dr. W. R. Graham, who is a son of Professor W. R. Graham now of Guelph, Ontario, and a member of the Graham family of this city, was prominent in the early experiments with the new vitamin-yielding discovery.

Retains Vitamins if Dried

According to Mr. George Graham, Trent Road, farmer and dairyman, a cousin of the research chemist, the early experiments consisted of putting the short-blade grass under heavy pressure and using the "gravy." This proved to be an expensive process and a more economical way of securing the product was sought.

Finally a drying process was decided upon, and the cut grass was placed under a rotary steam dryer. Then it was discovered that by drying the grass, it retained all its vitamins. But in order to still retain its valuable ingredients for a lengthy period it was necessary to either keep the product in cold storage or place it in hermetically sealed tins.

The grain grass best suited for the purpose is that of oats, Mr. Graham said. "This variety is more palatable, and should be cut when it is between six and eight inches in height, and before it reaches the shot-blade stage, or in other words before the shoot begins to branch." Rye is used in some cases, but not when oats are available.

Much depends on the soil on which the grain is grown. Oats raised on virgin soil are far superior to those grown on land that has been cultivated and used to raise crops. This, because many of the natural minerals of the earth, so necessary to the ingredients of the new "grass medicine", have been utilized by former crops on ground that has been previously tilled.

"Tremendous Future"

Mr. Graham has been experimenting with the new "tonic" for some time by feeding it to his extensive holdings of foxes and chickens.

"The result," he said, "is a definite increased production in breeding. Foxes have increased their litters, and hens their egg production. I predict a tremendous future for the 'grass', as in my case, the general condition of the foxes and chickens have increased by a large percentage".

Production of the new discovery is advancing by leaps and bounds, he said. Three factories in the United States and one in Canada are already producing and selling the product. One Canadian milling company alone sold nineteen carloads last year to feed interests who place a small percentage of the new vitamin-laden powder in chicken and other feeds. Cereal companies in the United States have included it in their ingredients for breakfast and other foods.

Medicinal Value

Medicinal and tonic value of the grass product is also being recognized by members of the medical profession, Dr. G. H. Stobie, of this city said yesterday. "I have been experimenting with it for two years now, and find it invaluable for the stoppage of hemorrhages".

Marvellous results had been obtained through its use in cases of jaundice, liver and other internal troubles, Dr. Stobie said. while some families are using it for its tonic benefits.

For medicinal purposes, the grass is being put up in tablet form, as that method of "taking" is more palatable than mixing the ordinary powder with water. In medical parlance the grass is known as cerophyl.

The grass whether in tablet or powder form is a greenish shade, and gives off an odor of dried hay.

So in future, if the head of the house comes home, and declares he is "feeling his oats" it may not be as bad as it seems. He may have been on a mere hay-feed with the boys.

Allied Fleet Concentrations At Alexandria Strongest Ever Assembled in Mediterranean

Alexandria, May 4 (AP)—Europe's warring powers, sparring for a new opening after a brief campaign in Norway, focussed their attention on the eastern Mediterranean today as the sounds of military preparations echoed from the Suez Canal to the Dardanelles.

Concentration of a combined Anglo-French battle fleet in this strategic harbor coincided with reports that Italy was massing armed forces in the Dodecanese Islands, some 400 miles to the northwest.

The Allied squadron at Alexandria near the entrance to the Suez Canal was described as the strongest ever assembled in the Mediterranean and was said to be only the forerunner of an even larger fleet which the British and French navies plan to base here to preserve the status quo in this area.

Both Turkey and Greece, potential allies of Britain and France, stepped up their defence preparations, while Yugoslavia, long fearful that the war may spread to the southwest, showed signs of increasing anxiety.

It was not clear here whether the Allied naval concentration was precipitated by the reported Italian operations or whether the shoe was on the other foot.

Italians Concentrate At Dodecanese.

Although Rome maintained official silence, diplomatic quarters gave general credence to reports from Rome that Italian warships, soldiers and planes were pouring into the Dodecanese.

The reports said normal Italian garrisons had been strengthened by the arrival of some 50,000 troops and that planes were being concentrated on the Island of Leros, 45 minutes from Athens by air. Fifteen Italian submarines were reported at Rhodes, largest of the island group.

The islands, which Italy obtained from the Turkish Empire in the Balkan War of 1912, are important because they straddle the entrance to the Aegean Sea, through which ships must pass to reach the Dardanelles.

They also would offer a base from which Italian planes and submarines could operate against Turkey, non-belligerent ally of France and Britain, in the event of war in the southeast.

Egypt Cancels Army Leaves.

Egypt, linked by treaty to Britain, remained in a state of preparedness. All army leaves have been cancelled, coastal and anti-aircraft defences are fully manned and military flying was reduced to a minimum to conserve gasoline supplies.

In Greece, King George II and his general staff were reported preparing for a tour of frontier fortifications, most important of which is the "Metaxas Line" which was constructed along the Albanian border, in the north, after Italy occupied Albania in April, 1939.

Turkey, fearful of a German advance into the Balkans and suspicious of Russian designs on the Dardanelles, has not forgotten Italy's imperial aspirations. She feels Italy has designs on Anatolia, a section of Turkey, and its vast, undeveloped resources.

WAR BRIEFS

Paris, May 4 (CP).—The French government today decided to send home on May 11 soldiers of the military classes of 1902 and 1903, now 47 and 48 years old.

Their return home is in keeping with the government's policy of allowing elder men, fathers of large families and agricultural workers to resume their regular civilian life.

Allies Will Now Concentrate Efforts To Build Up Naval Base at Narvik

Stockholm Reports That a Series of Outposts Will be Established Up to 100 Miles South of Narvik

SWEDEN ISOLATED

Stockholm, May 4 (AP).—Well-informed British quarters here indicated today that Allied efforts in Norway now would be concentrated in building up a powerful naval base in the Narvik region to patrol the fjord-marked Norwegian coast and thwart any Nazi attempt to use Norwegian ports for getting around the Allied blockade.

The British and French withdrew yesterday from all but the northernmost section of Norway. Following their withdrawal organized Norwegian resistance to the German invasion collapsed in that part of the country.

British sources said the Allies probably would establish a series of outposts as far south as 100 miles below Narvik, in the wild region of lakes, mountains and fjords which offer tremendous obstacles to a northward Nazi thrust.

The Allies, however, yet have to subdue German resistance in the Arctic zone where they have repeatedly bombarded Narvik from the sea attempting to gain control of the ore railway to the Swedish frontier. The British expected the Germans would destroy the railway if they are forced to retreat, and thus a long rebuilding process would be necessary.

In addition, Narvik harbor, if captured, must be cleared of a great mass of wrecked ships.

The French War Office bore out indications of Allied plans to send reinforcements north by announcing that the famous "Blue Devils", who first reached Namsos April 19, had been landed near Narvik after withdrawing from the south.

There were unsubstantiated reports that British fleet units were engaged today in a heavy bombardment of Narvik. It was reported also that the bombardment was to cover the landing of some expert French Alpine light artillery units who were charged with the task of eliminating high-perched machine-gun nests built by the Germans on the hills around Narvik.

In the territory from which the Allies withdrew the acting Norwegian central command is purported to have asked Germany for an armistice.

The Norwegian government, which alone has authority to make peace, was reported to be somewhere in the mountainous north country where British, French and Norwegian forces are trying to dislodge a German contingent from Narvik, Arctic ore port.

Whereabouts of the British expeditionary force which sailed away from Namsos Thursday was unknown. Some credence was given by military observers to reports that at least part of the troops were to be landed farther north and the Norwegian Telegraph Agency issued a terse statement that "evacuated Allied troops have landed safely at other ports."

One British officer, just before the embarkation at Namsos, said the Britons were bound for home.

Though the main Norwegian resistance in the south and centre had collapsed, there was evidence of some continuing guerrilla fighting against the invaders.

German domination of most of Norway left Sweden cut off from the western powers and apparently under joint German-Soviet influence, particularly in trade matters, since Sweden now has no other outlets.

Tass, Russian News Agency, announced last night that Germany and Russia in an exchange two weeks ago "noted that both states regard themselves as interested in the preservation of Sweden's neutrality."

AT THE BELLE

"REBECCA"

Based on the popular, best-selling Daphne du Maurier novel, David O. Selznick's production of "Rebecca," which is now having a gala premiere at the Belle Theatre through United Artists release, was filmed with a cast whose list of stars reads like a screen Blue Book.

Laurence Olivier and Joan Fontaine appear in the principal starring roles, while the featured cast includes Reginald Denny, Judith Anderson, George Sanders, C. Aubrey Smith, Gladys Cooper, Florence Bates and Nigel Bruce.

The largest set, depicting the Tudor estate known as Manderley, was built two stories high on a plot of ground which measured 100 to 125 feet. All sets were first built in miniature from the descriptions of locales and building written by Miss du Maurier herself in her novel. They were later erected in full size by three hundred studio workmen. When finally completed, Manderley was a complete home—containing a drawing room, library, dining room, foyer and two upper storey wings.

To insure further authenticity in the production, Producer Selznick had photographs of scenes and characters in the small towns of Cornwall, where the action of "Rebecca" takes place, made in England and shipped to California. Thus the action as well as the costuming, centering around Olivier and Joan Fontaine in the leading roles, is entirely accurate. As for the real thing in mystery and eerie atmosphere, they were furnished with all their full implications by Mr. Hitchcock, known all over the globe as a master of horror stories.

Foe Losses Heavy In Ships, Men, Oil

Paris, May 4 (C.P.-Havas) — German losses in ships, men, airplanes and gasoline in the Norwegian campaign were emphasized today by French newspapers.

Saying that the Nazis expected to take the Scandinavian country without opposition, Le Figaro added:

"This security was not present—far from that. Already Germany has lost a third of its fleet and the equivalent in men of one division. Already it has used up a considerable number of airplanes and consumed an enormous amount of gasoline—of which it has not a ton too much.

"Without any doubt it expected to find no serious resistance in Norway. But it found some, and will find more and more as the Allies, emerging from the period of surprise and improvisation, are able to organize and conserve the (Narvik) iron route."

"Who profits in this?" asked Le Matin. "We do, certainly."

Loss of Ships Necessary.

The War This Week

By DON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Cable Editor)

Allied forces were withdrawn from southern Norway in the 35th week of the war, leaving to the invading German army the whole of the country except the narrow coastal strip extending north beyond Namsos to the Arctic. At Narvik, the far northern ore port which is connected with Sweden by rail, a German garrison was holding out against besieging allied forces.

The decision to withdraw British troops south of the port of Trondheim was announced by Prime Minister Chamberlain in Parliament on Thursday. The following day it became known that the entire allied campaign against Trondheim had been abandoned with the departure of British and French forces holding positions north of the port.

Mr. Chamberlain did not disclose what the Allies plan to do now, but he promised that the Norwegian campaign would not be regarded as a "sideshow". On the other hand he said the government would not allow itself to be lured into scattering its strength in such a way as to give the Germans openings for blows elsewhere.

Mussolini Wants to be Sure

With the severe setback in Norway apparent, the Allied high command took precautions in regard to Italy, which is believed to be itching to join the Nazis if Premier Mussolini could feel sure that he would be going in on the winning side. An Allied battle fleet was dispatched to Alexandria in the eastern Mediterranean and British shipping was detoured from the Gibraltar-Suez route around the Cape of Good Hope.

The Italians disavowed any aggressive plans but Athens dispatches told of concentrations of troops, naval vessels and aircraft in the Dodecanese, the Italian islands (inhabited by Greeks) which are situated in the Aegean between Greece and Turkey, two countries almost certain to join the Allies if the war spreads to southeastern Europe. Another ally of Great Britain, Egypt, took defence precautions as tension heightened in the Mediterranean.

No extensive information has been given out on the events leading up to the Allied withdrawals in southern Norway. The communiques of the British War Office were understatements. They made no claims of successes, but gave little information. There was no information from any source as to the number of troops the Germans were using in the northern advance and the nature of the equipment they were able to haul over the rugged country roads.

Technically Brilliant.

It is clear that the German army, apart from the political crimes associated with the invasion, accomplished a march that was technically brilliant, but the German communiques were so full of exaggerated claims of various kinds that the actual achievements of the troops were obscured. It was apparent, however, that the possession of bases for the German Air Force—while the Allies had none—was a decisive factor.

The political consequences of the setback will not be known until next week when the British parliament holds an inquest. There were no indications that anything in the way of a substantial revolt against Mr. Chamberlain's government was afoot. The British people appeared to take the failure of the campaign stoically and with determination to do better from now on.

Glancing back 25 years: German troops launched numerous attacks on the Allied lines in the Ypres sector in the week of April 28-May 4, 1915. Poison gas was used when wind conditions were favorable. But the drive on the channel ports failed, so strong was the Allied defence after the enemy's initial success in the second battle of Ypres, April 22-24.

Morrison Suggests Chamberlain, Simon And Hoare, Resign

Southampton, May 4—(CP)—Herbert Morrison, one of the Labor party leaders in Parliament, suggested today that Prime Minister Chamberlain, Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer and Air Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare should resign.

"I have a suspicion," said Mr. Morrison in an address before the Labor Regional Conference," that those three men are primarily responsible for the relative weakness of our war effort.

Joe Maich Loses Main Bout To 'Ringer' Being Disqualified By Referee Faux For Roughing

Each Won a Fall Before Maich Literally Choked Opponent Into Helplessness

DANIELS WINS

Hamilton Boy Takes Advantage of "Speedy" Williams by Solid Punching

Joe Maich, the former amateur wrestling champion of Canada, from Brantford, literally, figuratively and forcefully choked "The Great Ringer", a bemasked gent of proportions and wrestling parts into a state of hors de combat wrestling fans at the Hume Arena last night. But in doing so Maich lost the main bout when he was disqualified for repeated roughness after each man had won a previous fall, keeping the "Great Ringer's" unblemished ring record intact. The fans cared little for the behooded gent's record or his style of wrestling and stormed the ring in protest as Maich strenuously protested the decision and subsequently attacked Referee Cliff Faux who assisted "The Ringer" to his feet and raised his hand in token of victory.

The match was just what everyone looked for whenever a bemasked grappler appears in a moderin ring, the fans clamour for his opponent to unmask him, while the behooded one usually assumes the villainous and unscrupulous role. "The Great Ringer", who claims a string of ring successes, was no exception to the rule, but fell victim to a more pugnacious attack at the hands of Maich in the third round of the main bout. Maich throttled and choked the bemasked gent until his red tongue and tonsils were dangling in full open sight and he was left to a fate worse than death while lying in apparent agony and had to be assisted to the dressing room by two policemen who stepped in to quell the uprising of fans storming their protest against the decision, the "Ringer" and Referee Faux.

Maich Wins First Fall.

After Maich had tried to satisfy the patrons in an endeavor to unmask "The Ringer", the Brantford kid, who tips the scales at 210 pounds, floored "The Ringer" with the application of three flying tackles and won the first fall in 18:31 minutes with a press. After some boxing efforts, sparring and wild fist swinging in the second round Maich again went into action with his pet system of attack, via the flying tackle route. Maich missed a third try and crashed to the canvas on the broad of his back presenting an easy target for "The Ringer", who proved an opportunist and nonchalantly sat abreast of Maich to win in 17:50 minutes. All even the boys returned for the third and final fall which never came as they both reverted to illegal tactics and after being warned by Referee Faux on several occasions, Maich was disqualified and "The Ringer" declared the winner despite the fact he lay hors de combat and helpless on the canvas. Bedlam then reigned for a short time as the patrons swarmed the ring in protest. No further injuries were reported, however.

Villainous "Tiger" Wins.

Continuing to retain his claim of being the roughest and toughest wrestling hombre to enter a local ring, "Wild Tiger" Daniels of Regina, beat "Speedy" Williams of Detroit, but it was only the result of carelessness on the part of Williams who had the unscrupulous Daniels all but pinned for a third and winning fall when the lithe Daniels whipped a quickly delivered fist into Williams' groin and then won with a press. Williams gladdened the hearts of the patrons by winning the first fall with an Irish whip and press, but Daniels returned to even matters and win the second decision with a double leglock and crotch hold and then continued to win the bout.

In the preliminary Art Dean of Kitchener easily won over Al Buttamham of Hamilton with a press in 12:30 minutes. The "Ringer" will meet the "Masked Marvel" in the main bout of next week's card at the Hume Arena.

As evidence of his extreme joy, Lippy Leo Durocher, LEFT, player-manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, almost squeezes the breath out of Pitcher Tex Carleton, 34, after the latter hurled his way into the hall of fame with a no-hit, no-run game against the Cincinnati Reds at Crosley Field Cincinnati, O., as the Dodgers won, 3-0. By winning, the Dodgers tied the modern major league record of nine straight victories at the beginning of the season. The New York Giants set this enviable mark in 1918. Peter Coscarart hit a homer in the fifth with two men on base to account for all the Brooklyn runs.

BIMELECH STILL STRONG FAVORITE TO WIN DERBY

Col. E. R. Bradley, Owner of Horse, Will Not See Race on Account of Illness

OFF AT 6.45 E.D.T.

Louisville, Ky., May 4—(AP)—Once again the nation's pulse will skip a few beats late this afternoon while the horses go pounding around the Churchill Downs oval in the 66th running of the Kentucky Derby.

At about 6:45 (Eastern daylight time) the field of eight or nine beauties will break from the starting gate and set off on the mile and one-quarter grind that brings fame and a garland of roses for the winner and more than $60,000 to the happy owner.

The thousands who have swarmed into this pleasant town to witness the three-year-old classic faced a cool, cloudy day—but the weather man said they would be spared rain.

Unless a serious mistake has been made, the winning steed in the big race will be Bimelech, the undefeated pride and joy of Col. E. R. Bradley, old and ailing owner of four previous Derby champions. The colonel himself was not expected to be among those present. He has a slight cold and will listen to a radio broadcast of the race, it is said.

Second Choice is Dit

The second choice almost surely will be Dit, the unheralded gelding that won last week's Wood Memorial, while the coast entry, Mioland, likely will close as a strong third in the wagering. A bushel of small bets is expected to go down on both these horses, but the solid money will be riding on Bimelech when the great crowd yells "They're off."

Providing there are no scratches before post time, the others trying to take Bimelech's measure are Gallahadion, Pictor, Roman, Sirocco, True Star and Royal Man. Sirocco was due to make the effort only if the track was lightning fast. True Star was believed to be in there only for his owner's amusement. Pictor has a few staunch supporters.

The brutal weather undoubtedly has cut down the crowd, which had been expected to exceed last year's 80,000.

How Money Divided

Louisville, Ky., May 4—(AP)—There's plenty of money for the owners of horses who finish at or near the top in today's Kentucky Derby, made the richest in the long history of the race by increasing the added value this year from $50,000 to $75,000.

If all nine entries go to the post, the winner will receive $60,675. Each scratch cuts $500—the starting fee—from that figure. The high winner's share to date was $55,375, won by Reigh Count in 1928.

In boosting the stake value of the Derby this year, Churchill Downs spread some of the money around second, third and fourth horses. Here's how:

$8,000 to second horse to finish, $3,000 to third and $1,000 to fourth.

$3,000 to winner's trainer, $2,000 to second and $1,000 to third.

$2,000 to breeder of winner; $1,000 to second and $500 to third.

Just Another Day

Louisville, Ont., May 4—(CP)—This may be Derby day down in Louisville, Ky., but it's just another day for getting in the crops to the people around Louisville, in Ontario's deep south.

Tractors are supplanting horses in the neighborhood and the one industry in the village of Louisville situated on King's Highway No. 2, is Gordon Merritt's trucking business. Merritt says he never has thought of a connection between Louisville, Ky., and Louisville, Ont., or worried about the Kentucky Derby.

Along about 6.30 p.m. this evening the strains of "My Old Kentucky" home will be struck at Churchill Downs in Louisville, Ky., following which the most colorful horse racing classic on this continent will get under way—the 66th running of the Kentucky Derby. Although the track is reported to be slow, Col. Bradley's Bimelech is by far the favourite to win today's classic. As a two-year-old and again this spring "Big Bim" has never been beaten in eight starts and will go to the post this afternoon with the shortest odds on favourite in the history of the classic. If Bimelech wins today he will be the fifth Bradley entry to win the Blue Grass honors. Behave Yourself won in 1921; Bubbling Over in 1926; Burgoo King in 1932 and Brokers Tip in 1933. Incidentally all of the names of the Bradley-owned horses begin with the letter "B." The longest shot ever to win the Derby was Donerail, which paid 91 to one in winning the 1913 classic and them ain't peanuts in any man's language.

In the words of Irvin S. Cobb, well known American author and actor, the Kentucky Derby glamour and color are summed up in the following descriptive article written by him some years ago:

"If you can imagine a track that's like a bracelet of molten gold encircling a greensward that's like a patch of emerald velvet—all the pretty girls in the state turning the grandstand into a brocaded terrace of beauty and color such as the hanging gardens of Babylon never equalled—all the assembled sportsmen of the nation going crazy at once down in the paddock—the entire colored population of Louisville and environs with one voice begging some entry to come and win—and just yonder in the yellow dusk the gallant kings and their queens of the kingdom, the princesses and princes of their heirs apparent to the throne figuratively—each a symphony of satin coat and sinewy legs and heart and speed—each silken clad jockey—but what's the use? Until you go to Kentucky Derby and with your own eye behold a Derby 'you ain't never been nowheres and you ain't never seen nothin.' "—Irvin Cobb.

Do you remember when Illinois Athletic Club's Johnny Weissmuller clipped two-fifths of a second from his own world free-style swimming record when he made a mark of 51 4-5 seconds in the 100-yard event 16 years ago today?

Harry Rollins, O.A.S.A. executive member, and Harry Knott, secretary of the Belleville Softball League, journeyed to Picton this week and obtained another entry for the local "mushball" set-up in the Picton "Dominions," coached by Jesse Mason, a former Belleville boy. The Picton squad boasts of a former Toronto softball pitcher, Lloyd Moniker, who hurled for the Goodyears in the T.A.S.A. last summer. Incidentally there is considerable controversey being heard locally relative to the strength of Corby's and the "Oilers" for this year. Both teams will be minus their shortstops of 1939, Cy Barriage having retired, he says and his place must be filled on the Barriage-Simpson line-up, while Nicky Sero is said to have deserted the ranks of the "Oilers" which will leave a big vacancy to fill. Both teams are angling for Art Cole, hard-hitting first baseman. Harold Bawden wants Cole to fill Frank O'Neill's slot, Frank having moved to Toronto. Corby's have Freddie Vasil and Connie Harris for pitchers, while the "Oilers" are hoping to sign Eddie Schrieder to help Johnnie Bawden this season.

Patrons at last night's wrestling show were quite peeved at Referee Cliff Faux for disqualifying Joe Maich in the main bout, but both wrestlers had been repeatedly warned by the third man in the ring regarding illegal tactics and Maich surely gave "the behooded gent" a sound throat-throttling before he lost. However, the fans felt that if Maich was deserving of being tossed out for roughness and illegal tactics, well then "Wild Tiger" Daniels should have received the same medicine in the semi-final bout. Daniels hit his opponent, "Speedy" Williams, with everything in reach, except the ring posts, and the fiery "Tiger" would have brought them into play had the suggestion been made. However, in the main bout everything went along lovely until Maich lost his head and really gave "The Ringer" the works. He had the behooded unknown lying horse-de-combat on the floor and then continued to give him the business. Next week, however, the fans will be sure of seeing one man unmasked, as "The Ringer" meets the "Masked Marvel, both wearing hoods, and the loser will have to unmask.

Senior amateur baseball will be played at the Maple Leaf Stadium this summer, six cubs being represented in the new Inter-city senior O.B.A. loop. The teams are Peterborough, Oshawa and four commercial teams from Toronto. Besides playing an interlocking double schedule with the Toronto clubs, the Petes and Oshawa will play additional games for the old Johnson trophy and perhaps the C.O.B.L. title. The acquisition of the Maple Leaf Stadium for amateur ball in Toronto will tend to greatly rejuvenate the pastime not only in Toronto, but throughout the province in general. Joe Oswin, veteran Toronto umpire, was named umpire-in-chief for the new circuit. In Oshawa and Peterboro the schedule will open on May 24.

BUDDY BAER WINS OVER N. MANN

Scores Knockout Victory in Seventh Round in Madison Square Garden Bout

New York, May 4—(AP)—The boys may stop talking about Gunnar Barlund now that Buddy (the bigger) Baer has given a fairly creditable demonstration of the ability both to take it and to hand it out.

But there was little, if anything, in Buddy's performance against Nathan Mann in Madison Square Garden last night to stamp him as a contender for Joe Louis' heavyweight crown. A crowd of only 5,154 was on hand.

Max Baer's kid brother, you'll remember, has been having a hard time trying to live down that Barlund fight two years ago, when he pulled up short after a good start and took a drubbing as a result. It was a case of win—or else—last night and Buddy won. He punched the lighter New Haven, Conn., veteran dizzy in the seventh round to gain a knockout verdict after a minute and 36 seconds.

Cronin Clouters Clamour For Attention as Squad Moves Into First Place in American

Win Stirring 10-Inning Victory on Strength of Four Home Runs

YANKEES WIN

World Champions Move Up to .500 Mark With Win Over White Sox

(By Bill White, Associated Press Sports Writer)

The unexpected early season setbacks of the Yankees, the sensational surge of Brooklyn Dodgers on the slow start of the stingless Boston Bees have all contributed in keeping anyone but the immediate family interested in the condition of Boston Red Sox.

But the Cronin clouters clamored for attention today. On the wings of the first bit of real power hitting they've displayed this season they whacked out a stirring 10-inning victory, 9-8 over St. Louis Browns yesterday.

The Sox collected 12 hits, but what was important was the fact that four of them were home runs. Jim Tabor got two, Ted Williams and Manager Joe Cronin one each.

That four-ply production was particularly effective and timely since it was one more home run than New York Yankees could manage in their 8-4 victory over Chicago White Sox.

The Red Sox slugging was good enough to put them into first place in the American league.

A total of seven pitchers toiled through the game with Joe Heving being credited with the victory and Johnny Whitehead getting a black mark for losing.

Meanwhile the Yankees managed to pull up to the .500 mark with a typical 8-4 victory over the White Sox. The Sox for six innings had visions of another southpaw, Edgar Smith, taming the champions, but all of a sudden the champs blew hot. Joe Gordon cleaned the loaded bases with a triple in the seventh and George Selkirk and Charley Keller clouted homers in the eighth for the Yanks. The victory gave Marvin Breuer his first big league victory, though he allowed 10 hits.

In the only other game played in the majors, Boston Bees won third second game of the season behind the fine hurling and timely hitting of Bill Posedel—a 4-2 victory over St. Louis Cardinals.

Rain and cold weather put a crimp in the other three National League games and in two American League contests.

Yesterday's Stars

By the Associated Press

Jim Tabor, Red Sox—Homer in the ninth tied the score and his single in 10th with bags loaded enabled Red Sox to whip Browns, 9-8.

Joe Gordon, Yankees—His batting and fielding paced Yankees to 8-4 victory over White Sox.

Bill Posedel, Bees — Allowed Cardinals seven scattered hits as Bees won 4-2.

SAMMY ANGOTT TAKES DAVEY DAY

Derby Eve Crowd Sees Angott Pile Up Big Lead in Early Rounds

Louisville, Ky., May 4—(AP) — Sammy Angott, the little, glove-throwing Louisville slugger is the new lightweight champion in 41 states and a few outlying precincts ruled by the National Boxing Association.

The one-time bootblack tired in the stretch after building up a decisive early margin but maintained enough power last night to whip Davey Day, solemn, plodding Chicagoan, in 15 rounds before a Kentucky Derby eve crowd of approximately 8,000.

In New York and other non-NBA States, Lou Ambers still is the lightweight champion. The NBA withdrew recognition of his title after charging he failed to defend it against an NBA-selected challenger and chose Day and Angott to fight it out for the right of succession.

Scaling a half pound over Day's 134, Angott built up a substantial point margin in the first six rounds and carried the fight to the Chicago puncher the rest of the way. There were no knockdowns.

We think of you often and will to the end.
Gone and forgotten by some you may be,
But dear to our memory you ever will be.

—Ever remembered by husband and family. M4-1t

WICKENS—In fond memory of a dear husband and loving father, Thomas William Wickens, who passed away May 4th, 1937; also a darling daughter and sister Audrey Jean Wickens who lost her life by falling in a well, Oct. 29th, 1935.

Our loved ones! We think not of them as gone,
Only just absent for life's little way,
And we are swiftly, closely following on;
Nearer, nearer to them each day.

—Lovingly remembered by wife and family, also Mummy, brothers and sisters. M4-1t

LEO BYRNE
(Erinsville)

After a brief illness Leo Byrne of Erinsville, Ont., passed away at Hotel Dieu, Kingston, this Saturday morning. Word of his death was received here by his sister, Mrs. Harry Flagler, 334 Bleecker Ave.

Clare Trevor and John Wayne co-stars of the giant of all action shows "Allegheny Uprising," now playing at the McCarthy Theatre.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Ma! He's Making Eyes at Me"

Presenting a parade of youth, tuneful melodies and gay comedy scenes, the new musical-comedy production "Ma! He's Making Eyes at Me" will open next at McCarthy theatre.

Highlights of the picture include zestful dance offerings, four lilting song compositions and enough new styles to warm the heart of every feminine theatre-goer.

Tom Brown romps through his role of the fast-talking press agent, Constance Moore is a treat for the eyes as the pretty model who joins forces with Tom Brown and becomes a New York celebrity overnight. Others who contribute to the entertainment are Richard Carle, Anne Nagel, Jerome Cowan, Elizabeth Risdon and Fritz Feld.

Variety of Entertainment

Vivien Fay does her spectacular toe-ballet routine and Marie Greene and her "Merry Minstrels" from radio offer a new swing version of "The Blue Danube." Mitchell and Chamberlain, former vaudeville favorites are seen in a lively comedy routine. Connie Moore introduces the new song "Unfair to Love" and sings the title song "Ma! He's Making Eyes at Me," which like Richard Carle's song "I Found a Lemon in the Garden of Love" marks the revival of another old time favorite. You'll be more than overjoyed with the tuneful and romantic entertainment which "Ma; He's Making Eyes at Me" brings to the screen. It's a tap-happy spring tonic of melody from the time the curtain rises until the grand finale. Plan your party now to attend this new musical-comedy treat .Gordon Oliver and Charley Grapewin in the timely attraction "Sabotage" and Fox Movietone News Events, will be shown in addition to the above.

"Allegheny Uprising"

Claire Trevor and John Wayne in the year's most spectacular adventure productions "Allegheny Uprising" is the present feature hit now playing at the McCarthy theatre and is highly recommended entertainment as it unfolds an interesting historical story of early pioneer days when English soldiers and American settlers were endeavoring to settle the Indian uprisings frequently taking place around the area now called Pittsburg. Edgar Kennedy in "Kennedy the Great" and a Walt Disney cartoon "Donald's Lucky Day" are two added short subjects on the same program.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Man's Castle"

Coming next to the Capitol theatre, Columbia pictures offers you the ultimate in motion picture entertainment. Frank Borzages' production of "Man's Castle," with this distinguished cast of players, Spencer Tracy, Loretta Young, Glenda Farrell, Walter Connolly, Arthur Hohl, Marjorie Rambeau and little Dickie Moore.

It will delight you with its engaging frankness. A loveable vagaband plays at love. The warmth of its beauty will enchant you. Love finds a strange and ardent defender. To those who know the meaning of love nothing else matters. It's the most glorious love story since "Seventh Heaven," setting free the girlhood love story imprisoned in every woman's heart.

On the same programme is "Come Closer Folks," a comedy riot starrying James Dunn, Mariam Marsh and Wynne Gibson. Universal News of the World completes the bill.

Loretta Young and Spencer Tracy in "Man's Castle," an eternally appealing love story coming to the Capitol next and on the same program, "Come Close Folks," a comedy riot starring James Dunn, Marion Marsh and Wynne Gibson.

The Stars Say

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, May 5

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a very promising and propitious one, with the forecast of the fulfillment of many elements of ambition and high purpose. These may lie in the direction of originality and unusual creative work, in which initiative and enterprise will gain the support and friendship of those of influence and social position.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a successful year, with a rich fruition of many phases of heart's desire. Literary or artistic talents may win the hearty support and friendship of those in high places, so develop these with ardor and confidence, and then push to advanced goals.

A child born on this day may be versatile, with talent in intellectual or cultural avenues of expression, probably excelling in the professions and attaining conspicuous positions by its noble, expansive and generous nature.

For Monday, May 6

MONDAY'S astrological forecast if for a day of many-sided developments, with business as well as personal relations much in the foreground. The mental as well as emotional incitements are strong for action, with a sound determination to put over all manner of programs. These may have the support and solid endorsement of elders or old institutions. There may be many pitfalls and loopholes for duplicity, but stability and good judgment prevail.

Those whose birthday it is have the promise of a year of splendid achievements and gratifications, both business and personal, with emotional, artistic and social aspirations attained. Elders, those in power, possibly relatives or those in public place may show signs of solid co-operation and tokens of trust and preferment. Friendship or romance for the young looms large, but beware of snares.

A child born on this day may be brilliantly talented, versatile, have notable social or artistic traits, being sauve tactful and magnetic, but also sound, wilful, popular and esteemed by its superiors.

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, May 4 (CP).—Quiet session and steady prices marked the final session of the week on the Toronto Exchange. Golds were inclined to tighten while industrials and base metals showed practically no net change and western oils were almost dormant. Volume dropped to barely 100,000 shares.

Food stocks were inclined to softness. Maple Leaf Milling Pfd. weakened a point to a new low for the year at 6. Banks, implements, textiles and senior oils held around Friday's final prices. In the steels Barlington was down a point to 12. Distillers-Seagrams lost ¼ and Walkers Common added ¼.

The note was a bit stronger in golds for Teck Hughes, Preston, Kirkland Lake, Central Patricia Little Long Lac, MacLeod-Cockshutt, Pamour and Bidgood-Kirkland.

Senior base metal shares continued heavy with Smelters and Nickel minor fractions down while the cheaper issues advanced. Falconbridge was off 15 cents to a new low for recent years at 3.30.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, May 4 (AP).—Fears of unexpected war developments over the week-end caused the trimming of speculative sales in today's stock market. Trends were indefinite until the final hour when light selling put a number of leaders down fractions to a point or so. Transfers for the two hours ran to approximately 350,000 shares.

In the Canadian department Dome Mines advanced a fraction and McIntyre lost as much while Canadian Pacific, Distillers and Lake Shore Mines held unchanged. Canada 4s, among bonds, were easy.

In arrears most of the time were General Motors, Du Pont, General Electric, Loft, International Paper Preferred, Phelps Dodge Montgomery Ward and Consolidated Edison Resistant were Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Texas Corp., Johns-Manville, Consolidated Oil, Kennecott, and American Telephone.

Canadian Breeders Rise to Occasion

During ten weeks in the fall of 1939, hog marketings averaged over 106,000 per week. These are much the heaviest marketings that have occurred over an extended period in the history of Canada. The sows which produced these pigs were bred long before war had any influence on breeding. The same is true of the breedings which have produced our present hog runs and this will continue to be true of the marketings until next July or August. The factors which brought about these increases in hog production were the cumulative effect of good grain crops in 1938 and 1939, combined with good hog prices in relation to prices of other farm products over a period of time.

The following table shows the weekly marketings since the beginning of the year together with the increase both in numbers and in per cent over the similar week in 1939:

WEEKLY HOG MARKETINGS AT YARDS AND PLANTS IN CANADA
1940

| Week ending: | 1940 No. | 1939 No. | Increase 1940 No. | Increase 1940 Per Cent. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| January 11 | 94,361 | 72,857 | 21,404 | 29.4 |
| January 18 | 82,006 | 53,697 | 28,309 | 52.7 |
| January 25 | 80,964 | 62,192 | 18,772 | 28.4 |
| February 1 | 98,332 | 67,752 | 30,580 | 45.1 |
| February 8 | 92,026 | 70,514 | 21,512 | 30.5 |
| February 15 | 92,111 | 48,825 | 43,286 | 88.6 |
| February 22 | 94,015 | 65,594 | 28,421 | 43.3 |
| February 29 | 93,866 | 70,586 | 23,280 | 33.0 |
| March 7 | 93,940 | 62,148 | 31,792 | 51.2 |
| Totals—9 weeks | 821,621 | 574,165 | 247,456 | 43.1 |

The contract quantity of 5,600,000 pounds of export bacon per week takes up 48,000 hogs per week. Hog marketings per week since the beginning of the year have averaged 91,000 hogs constituting an increase over the corresponding nine weeks of 1939 of 247,000 head equal to more than 28,405,000 pounds export product. Experience indicates that domestic absorption of commercial hog marketings is approximately 40,000 hogs per week, which leaves an excess over and above combined export and domestic needs of about 3,000 hogs per week.

Some good lots of hogs marketed out of the Belleville district during the week of May 2nd, 1940, are as follows:

1940 EDITION OF ELEVATOR OUT

The 1940 edition of the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School magazine, the "Elevator" is just off the Press and is being distributed among the pupils of the school. The issue contains a summary of the past year's activities in the school, including form work, sports, dramatics, etc. and speaks well for the editorial staff, comprised of Collegiate pupils, who assembled the material for the magazine. The handsomely-bound volume, which is the thirteenth edition of the "Elevator," was printed in the Job Department of the Ontario Intelligencer.

Butter Buyers Strengthen Market

Toronto, May 4 — The Toronto butter market regained its footing in a late buying movement this past week after more than two weeks of steady declines, although prices were unable to fully recover from the sharp losses which occurred early in the week. Eggs maintained a fairly steady tone, but cheese was quiet and easy.

Buyers returned to the butter market this week to replenish stocks. The active demand relieved the market of selling pressure that was evident early in the week and revived prices. After touching a range of 22 1-2c to 22 3-4c per pound, on Wednesday, top grade Ontario creamery solids closed yesterday at 23 1-2c. Preliminary stock figures were more favorable this month, with total for the nine cities apprixmately a year ago as of May 1. In the previous month, a surplus of 500,000 pounds was shown.

Supply and demand were about balanced on the egg market during the week. Storing operations were not as brisk as usual for this time of the year, but further exports were reported. Shipments to Northern Ontario points were again light. Locally, retail demand has been good, premium prices of 1-2 cent to 1 cent per dozen were obtained on storage packed and government inspected lots.

Montreal Produce

Montreal, May 4—(CP)—Produce market prices here as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follows:

Butter: First grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 25c to 25 1-2c; first grade solids, jobbing price, 24 1-2c to 25c.

Eggs: Graded shipments in used free cases, selling price, A-large, 24c; A-medium, 22c; A-pullets, 19c; B, 21 1-2c to 22c; C, 18c. (Government inspected lots, storage packed, 1-2 cent higher.) Receipts: 5,813 cases.

SAYS GOV'T MUST SATISFY PEOPLE

Attlee Says Government Must Show All 'Possible Done in Norway'

Ipswich, England, May 4 (CP)—Clement Attlee, leader of the Labor Party, declared today that the Chamberlain government would be called upon to "satisfy the people of this country that everything possible was done" in the Norwegian campaign.

The leader of the opposition in the House of Commons said "the fact that the government must render an account of their actions to representatives of the people marks the difference between democracy and dictatorship."

Mr. Attlee said "Hitler has lost the greater part of the German fleet and very many German lives in his unprovoked attack on a peaceful neutral country but there is no one in Germany who can call him to account."

"We have to acknowledge that we have at present been unable to prevent southern Norway from passing into the hands of Hitler," he said. "That is a setback.

Issues at Stake

"The fate of Denmark and Norway ought to bring home to everyone the issues which are at stake in this contest. We are fighting to make a world in which small, peaceful peoples will be able to live their lives in security, free from the menace of attack by predatory neighbors.

"We of the Labor party have always realised that this cannot be achieved in an anarchic world. A small state in a world of armed anarchy is like the ordinary man in capitalist society. He is powerless in isolation to protect himself from the powerful forces which surround him."

CAPTAIN STAYED

Captain Dave Burke, brother of the Arlington's master and co-owner of the vessel, said his brother was trapped in his cabin where he went to get some heavy clothes. After all the crew were in the lifeboats, the captain had left the pilot house and was caught in the sudden listing of the Arlington.

According to members of the crew, heavy seas tore the iron strong-backs loose from one or more of the hatch covers, allowing the water to pour into the hold. The shifting cargo then is believed to have caused the boat to list to port so heavily that it could not regain an even keel.

Waved with Hat

Young Brodeur, making his first voyage as deckhand, said it seemed to him Captain Burke "had time to get off, but instead he just waved to us with his hat from the wheel-house and then went down to his cabin and closed the door."

A veteran of three previous shipwrecks, Fred H. Gilbert, chief engineer, said it was a night "I'll never forget." He voiced the feelings of the other survivors when he said: "We owe a lot to the captain (Captain T. J. Carson) and crew of the Collingwood. They were wonderful to us."

Offers Reward for Hitler

Samuel Harden Church, president of Carnegie Institute, who, acting for a group of Pittsburgh residents, offered a reward of $1,000,000 for the capture of Adolf Hitler. The offer stipulates that the German Chancellor must be delivered to the league of nations during the month of May "alive, unwounded and unhurt." Hitler then would stand trial for "his crimes against the peace and dignity of God."

GERMANY CLAIMS

It was also claimed that an enemy submarine had been sunk by a German U-boat after it had been sighted and bombed by a German reconnaissance plane. The location was not disclosed.

Claim Numerous Hits

The high command claimed the battleship sinking took place yesterday but that it had withheld the news "in order to give Winston Churchill a chance to say it first."

Germans claimed numerous hits were scored on the battleship during the attack, which the communique said was carried out by dive bombers, but it was thought that one bomb must have struck the magazine. That alone, it was said, could have caused the flames which were reported to have shot up over 1,500 feet into the air.

"After the clouds of smoke disappeared," said the high command communique, "there was nothing more of the ship to be seen except debris."

Authorized sources speculated whether the commander of the British expeditionary force to Norway was aboard the warship, and were anxious for an announcement from Mr. Churchill.

General Ernardt Milnch, next in command of the Air Ministry after Marshal Goering, was sent to Norway to direct the operations personally.

Five Ships in Class

The Queen Elizabeth class comprises the Queen Elizabeth, the Warspite, the Valiant, the Barham and the Malaya. The first three are of 30,600 tons and the Barham and Malaya 31,100. (The Warspite led a flotilla of destroyers into Narvik Fjord April 13 to sink seven German destroyers.)

The claim was advanced in a brief communique:—

"On the afternoon of May 3 a British battleship on a western course west of Namsos was attacked by German dive-bombers and was hit by bombs of heavy calibre between the forward turrets.

"Half a minute after the bombs hit shooting flames flared 500 metres (more than 500 yards) high amidst great clouds of smoke."

Nothing but Debris is Report

"After the clouds of smoke disappeared there was nothing more of the ship to be seen except debris."

Germany, boasting her preparedness to meet the Allies on any front, plunged into the task of mopping up Norway with a prediction the job would be finished in two weeks except for the far northern port of Narvik.

At Narvik, Arctic port for Swedish ore, a small German force is besieged. There were intimations that Hitler might order the German forces there to attempt to withdraw by airplane. Other sources said, however, that, as soon as weather permitted, the German air force would try to relieve the besieged force.

Germans, claiming they were ready for action anywhere against the Allies, looked especially at the Mediterranean, where Britain and France have concentrated their fleets at Alexandria, but they said this was Italy's problem until a decision was made, after which the Reich would fulfill her obligations.

Comment Declined

London, May 4—(CP)—British sources declined comment today on the German high command's claim that a British battleship had been sunk by air attack off Norway.

No British capital ship has been sunk through air bombs since the war began. Chief British losses in this phase of the conflict have been the destroyer Gurkha, sunk by air bombs April 11, and the sloop Bittern, sunk this week by Nazi planes.

BRITAIN

The British troops landing there were under the command of Brigadier Charles George Phillips.

Parliamentary sources indicated that the government will face a bitter fight for its life when the House of Commons begins an inquiry Tuesday into the Norwegian reverse unless one of two things happen:

1. A success for the Allied arms is achieved during the week-end.

2. Mr. Chamberlain and Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, in their scheduled accounting of the brief campaign, show concusively that the fate of the British Expeditionary Force could not be prevented.

Critics of the government were put at a severe disadvantage by the declaration of Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, that the cabinet would put up a united front against "scalp hunters."

Chamberlain Attacked

The Manchester Guardian (Liberal) joined those forces attacking Mr. Chamberlain with a declaration that his "capacity for self-delusion is a national danger" in commenting upon the withdrawal from Norway.

Restiveness within the Prime Minister's party was evidenced last night when Richard K. Law, member of Parliament for strongly Conservative Hull, declared in a speech that the government's "attitude toward the problem must be changed before the country is in sight of victory." Mr. Law is a son of the late Andrew Bonar Law, Canadian born former Prime Minister of Great Britain.

Clement Davies, Welsh member of Parliament, a Liberal National, and thus normally a supporter of the government, announced simultaneously that he had met with a group of colleagues who had decided to oppose any vote of confidence during "the biggest crisis we have ever had to face."

Mr. Law, whose father, Bonar Law, led the Conservative party during and after the last war, warned sternly against "widespread and highly dangerous delusions that the war is going to win itself without loss or sacrifice, that time is on our side and that Hitler has missed the bus."

His reference to Hitler "missing the bus" was a slap at Mr. Chamberlain who used the phrase in a speech April 4, five days before Germany invaded Norway and Denmark.

The government will have able parliamentarians to defend its record which Sir John Simon said last night would obtain the entire support of the people when the situation is revealed.

"You may dismiss from your minds the idea that this is going to be material for some exciting political controversy or combat," he told his audience.

Must Suspend Judgment.

"Our fellow countrymen everywhere are exercising the good British virtue of suspending judgment until they know the relevant facts of a complicated story."

German warplanes again nosed over England's southeast coast last night and early today.

Crowds on the clifftops along the shore watched fighter planes of the Royal Air Force and anti-aircraft batteries battle the invaders for three hours, finally driving them out to sea.

An unidentified plane, believed to be German, was heard off the northeast coast last night, but there was no anti-aircraft firing.

The news that the British had withdrawn from Namsos, in north central Norway, as well as from Andalsnes to the south, was continued in a brief war office communique issued last night after day-long secrecy to protect the troop movement.

The gloom caused by this announcement was partly dispelled by indications that the Allies retained their hold in Arctic Norway and that the German garrison at Narvik, running short of supplies, could not hold out much longer.

There were unconfirmed reports that some of the troops removed from Namsos were enroute to Narvik and that King Haakon of Norway was accompanying them aboard a British warship.

Deny Swedish Report.

The war office denied a Swedish report that the Norwegian commander in chief, Colonel Otto Ruge, "was not informed of the Allied decision to withdraw from the Trondheim area or that he is negotiating an armistice."

The communique said Ruge, who was not mentioned by name, had been "conveyed to an undisclosed destination in Norway and that any Norwegian order of the day announcing negotiations for an armistice obviously was made without his authority."

Dispatches from Sweden had said that such an order was issued by Colonel O. B. Getz, who was described as the Norwegian commander in the Trondelag.

The most outspoken commentator on the outcome of the Norwegian campaign was the Manchester Guardian, which recalled that just before the invasion of Norway General Sir Edmund Ironside, Chief of the Imperial General Staff, had asserted that "we have now actually turned the corner."

"What makes the taste of the whole episode more bitter," the Guardian said, "is that it follows so much shallow optimism, not to say boasting."

Roosevelt Exerting Influence

The Guardian also asserted that the "complacency" displayed by Mr. Chamberlain "was on the same level as his complacency about his pact of friendship with Mussolini and his innocence about his dealings with Hitler."

"If parliament does its duty next week, perhaps even Mr. Chamberlain may be brought to understand that we cannot and will not go in this way," The Guardian concluded.

Reports that President Roosevelt was exerting his influence to prevent spread of war to the Mediterranean was front page news in London papers, which expressed belief that the power of United States opinion might be decisive in determining Mussolini's course of action.

British papers displayed irritation at Swedish criticism on the Norwegian situation, characterizing it as "a bit thick" and asking why Sweden had withheld her hand.

Fleet Concentrated

Criticism of the government, precipitated by the abandonment of central Norway to the Germans, shared with news of a great Allied naval concentration at Alexandria and reports that Italy was massing its armed forces in the eastern Mediterranean.

Tension created by these developments was reflected in an intensified campaign to stamp out subversive activities on the home front.

Scotland Yard was reported to have a list of Italian "Fifth Column" suspects in England, and police were understood to be keeping a close watch on the Italian colony for persons spreading anti-Allied propaganda.

It was expected that Sir John Anderson, Minister of Home Security, would announce next week plans for strengthening regulations against "stop the war" agitators.

EARL OF ATHLONE,

When Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton, General Officer Commanding the 1st Division, welcomed the Earl and her Royal Highness to the Canadian encampment, he was flanked by Hon. Norman Roger, Canadian Minister of National Defence, Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner in the United Kingdom, and Major-General W. H. P. Elkins, Master General of Ordnance, Department of National Defence, Ottawa.

Tour of Units

After General McNaughton had presented members of his staff and those of the 1st Infantry Brigade, the tour of the units started.

The 48th Highlanders were first on the program and they paraded with regimental colors. Behind the reviewing base chairs had been set out for the ladies, who attended. These included Mrs. Massey, Mrs. McNaughton, Mrs. Armand Smith, wife of the commander of the 1st Brigade, and a score of wives of other Canadian officers.

Only other ceremonial event on the program was an inspection of the 2nd Infantry Brigade. Colonel E. W. Sansom, the Brigade commander, had three sides of the broad parade square framed by units under his charge.

Skirled National Anthem

A long khaki line was formed by the men of the Princess Pats, the Edmonton Regiment and the Seaforth Highlanders.

As Princess Alice and Lord Athlone arrived, the Seaforth pipers skirled the National Anthem. Lord Athlone inspected the ranks and then the Seaforths staged a unique demonstration that showed a cross section of their entire training program.

The Highlanders drove Bren gun carriers noisily about the square Other sections of the battalion gave a display of signalling, charged with bayonets, performed anti-gas drill, and even demonstrated physical training routine.

Other units carried out similar training exercises. These were the Royal Montreal Regiment, the Carleton and York Regiment, the Royal 22nd Regiment and the Third-Field Regiment and the Anti-Tank Regiment.

After luncheon the Earl and Princess Alice formally opened a hostel for the Canadians at Woking, near Aldershot. They also visited the barracks of the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps.

REQUEST MAKING OF MORE CHEESE

Nothing But Domestic Market.

"You are going to have nothing more than a domestic market this year," the bulletin stated. "You each know or can easily ascertain what the market amounts to. You each know what we have in stock at the commencement of the season and you each know what your make was last season.

"If a 10 per cent decrease in make is necessary to keep you on a domestic basis, agree to restrict your make to this extent and pledge yourselves by signature to do this. Agree to a committee of arbitration if you feel that you will need it."

Departmental officials agree with Mr. Fraser there is little hope of exporting butter at a price that would give the Canadian farmer any profit. With the start of the big production of butter two weeks away, 13,622,671 pounds of butter were still in storage May 1, after the Winter consumption.

Officials explain it may be difficult for a ten per cent shift from butter to cheese in Ontario and Quebec because of lack of facilities in many parts of the province to produce cheese. They expect Great Britain will take all the cheese Canada can export during the war because of its concentrated food value.

Won't Take April-Made Cheese

Early in April the British Ministry of Food announced it would issue no import licences for April-made cheese, of which Canada last month produced almost double the normal April make. Thursday, however, the Trade Department was informed the order had been modified and the British Ministry would import April cheese.

Last year Canada produced 122,771,828 pounds of cheese of which about 80 per cent was exported, chiefly to Great Britain. This was 1,000,000 pounds greater than the year before.

More than half of Canada's entire cheese production comes from the eastern counties of Ontario, starting with the districts around Peterborough and Belleville and extending to the Quebec border. There are 800 cheese factories in that district and less than 75 in the remainder of the province.

Accordingly to make a 10 per cent shift in Ontario from butter to cheese with more than half the province equipped only to make butter may prove impossible.

Many of these seamen said they were aboard British merchantmen in Narvik harbor during the first British attack on April 10, and that after reaching shore in lifeboats they had been taken prisoners by the Germans.

When food supplies ran out their captors set them free and told them it was only a few hours' walk to Sweden, the seamen said, so they started out already half starved, some of their number wounded, without food or adequate clothing and without any idea where Sweden was.

They said several of their number died in the snow and that they had dragged others, too weak to walk, on improvized sleds.

WAR BRIEFS

Paris, May 3—(CP-Havas)—"We are at a decisive turning point in the war," Fernand Laurent said in Le Jour-Echo De Paris today in commenting on the Allied withdrawal from central Norway. "Days of trials await us and days also, we hope, of resolution and coolness." Laurent said France had sent the best of our young men to Norway. "A country which finds on demand volunteers of this stamp is capable of any recovery.

Wellington, N.Z., May 3—(CP-Reuters)—A resolution calling for compulsory national war service was passed today at the New Zealand Returned Soldiers' conference. It favored the banning of subversive propaganda, an embargo on the entry of foreigners into New Zealand for the duration of the war and for at least two years afterwards, and the cancellation of the papers of naturalized subjects found to be "disloyal."

Afridi is Bombed While Convoying Withdrawn Troops

Despite Rain of Nazi Bombs None of the Transports in the Convoy Struck, Admiralty Declares

COMPLEMENT 219 MEN

Afridi, Craft of 1,870 Tons, Completed in May, 1938, and Her Armament Included Eight 4.7 Inch Guns, Seven of Smaller Calibre and Four 21-Inch Submarine Tubes

London, May 6—(CP)—The Admiralty today announced loss of the destroyer Afridi, the victim of German bombs while convoying troops being withdrawn from Namsos, Norway.

Despite a rain of Nazi bombs which sent the Afridi to the bottom, none of the transports in the convoy were struck, the Admiralty declared.

Two of the attacking bombers were shot down by British warships.

The Afridi, a craft of 1,870 tons, was completed in May, 1938, and normally carried a complement of 219 men. The ship was fitted as a squadron leader, although not classed as such.

Her armament included eight 4.7 inch guns, seven of smaller calibre and four 21-inch torpedo tubes.

Climate of Oslo! This ancient city was founded 1048, but was named Christiana after King Christian in 1624. In 1925 it again assumed the old name of Oslo. It lies at the head of Oslofjord 80 miles from the Skagerrak. Its harbor is ice-bound for three cold winters and warm summers. Its harbor is ice-bound for three or four months, when ice-breakers are used, or ships dock at Drobak lower down the fjord. Oslo's average annual temperature is 42 degrees. January and February are the coldest months, 24 degrees, and July the warmest, 63 degrees. Precipitation averages only 23 inches for the year most of which occurs in summer, but in the mountains not far away 100 inches a year is reported.

Wing Commander, George R. Howsam Named Senior Officer

Ottawa, May 6 (CP)—The National Defence Department announced today that Wing Commander George Roberts Howsam, who has been director of training in the Royal Canadian Air Force for the past two years, has been appointed Senior Air Staff Officer for No. 4 Air Training Command of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

Headquarters for the command are in Regina and it will organize and administer training schools and depots in southwestern Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia.

The department last night announced that Group Captain L. F. Stevenson, a native of Richibucto, N.B., and veteran R.C.A.F. officer had been appointed to the command of No. 4 Training Command.

Air Commodore Robert Leckie will succeed Wing Commander Howsam as director of training at air force headquarters here.

Wing Commander Howsam saw service in France during the last war, and has to his credit 13 enemy aircraft actually destroyed and five driven down to forced landings. He destroyed four hostile aircraft in one day in January, 1918, and was awarded the Military Cross.

NEGRA DEFENDERS WITHHOLD FIRE UNTIL ASSAULT

Swedish Accounts Tell of Norwegians Inflicting Heavy Loss on Nazis

FOOD, BULLETS SHORT

By WES GALLAGHER

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Ostersund, Sweden, May 6 (AP).—Norwegian refugees flocking across the border into Sweden said today that German capture of the Hegra fortress had given the Nazis possession of an air base at Varnes.

This base is 30 miles from the Norwegian-Swedish frontier and 375 miles airline from the northern ore port of Narvik, where a German garrison is standing off an Allied attack.

The refugees said the big guns of the Hegra fortress kept the Germans from establishing a base at Varnes through three weeks of fighting, until the defenders were left "on the verge of starvation and without ammunition."

These accounts said the Germans pushed east from Trondheim deep up the Stjordal, between ice and snow-cloaked mountains, in the early days of the war.

COUNTER ATTACK CRUMPLES THREAT OF NAZI DRIVE

French Casualties Reported as "Slight" but Fighting Still Continues

HEAVY RIFLE FIRE

Paris, May 6 (AP).—A new German thrust on the western front crumpled before a sharp counter attack by advance French units during fighting for the third successive night in the Saar sector, the French high command announced today.

Both sides suffered losses, a War Ministry spokesman said. He described French casualties as "slight" but said details were lacking as the fighting was still going on.

French military spokesmen said about 300 Germans moved to the attack through the rugged no-man's-land after sharp exchanges of fire between artillery.

They said that the attackers did not succeed in penetrating between the French outposts east of the Maginot Line as they had the night before and were forced to withdraw after suffering losses.

The fighting in the Saar sector in the centre of the 100-mile front between the Moselle and Rhine rivers began just before dawn Saturday when two German companies attacked advanced French positions under cover of an artillery barrage.

Repulsed, the Germans came over in greater numbers on Sunday to encircle three French outposts only to be beaten back by French reserve units summoned from the rear.

New Zealand's Centennial Marked, Though Shorn of Much Pageantry

By J. C. GRAHAM

Canadian Press Correspondent

Auckland, N.Z., May 6 (CP) — New Zealand has celebrated its centenary under circumstances which robbed it of much of the planned pageantry. The Dominion is proud of the progress made in its first 100 years and it had planned to mark the occasion with impressive ceremonial.

The war caused abandonment of many plans. Money collected for the celebrations was diverted to patriotic funds in many cases to provide comforts for the troops.

New Zealanders have decided that celebrating the achievements of British institutions during the last 100 years in New Zealand is less important than keeping them alive for the future.

Historic Dates

Nevertheless amid grim preparations for war some centenary celebrations have been held on historic dates, and others will be held in the next few months.

Several towns and cities have erected memorials to the pioneers who founded the country. The Centennial Exhibition in Wellington, the finest exhibition ever held in New Zealand, has drawn visitors from many parts of the Dominion and from overseas. It displays in striking fashion the great advance the Dominion has made in its short history. The Canadian court, while smaller than the independent pavilions of Britain and Australia, is well laid and has drawn its full share of attention.

Gathering of Maoris

To mark the centenary of the signing of the Treaty of Waitangi on February 6, 1840, whereby the Maoris acknowledged British sovereignty, a great gathering of the Maori race was held on the original site in the far north. The signing of the treaty was re-enacted in faithful detail, including a recital of the pledges then made of protection of native rights.

As proof of Maori willingness to honor its side of the bargain was the presence of the flower of the race in uniform—the Maori battalion which will fight alongside its white kinsmen in the New Zealand Expeditionary Force.

Roosevelt Urges Pact Of Nations to Refrain From Bombing Civilians

Washington, May 6 (AP).—President Roosevelt, who has asked warring nations to refrain from bombing non-combatants, pledged his support today for any international agreement endorsing that principle.

"The bombing of helpless and unprotected civilians is a tragedy which has aroused the horror of all mankind," he wrote the annual convention of the American Red Cross.

"I recall with pride that the United States consistently has taken the lead in urging that this inhuman practice be prohibited."

Recalling that the International Red Cross had urged nations in 1938 to take joint steps "to prevent such outrages in the future," Mr. Roosevelt expressed regret that this never had been done.

"As for the United States government," he said, "I can assure you of my strongest recommendation for adherence to any international convention which will give this protection to civilian and non-combatant populations."

FOUR ARE KILLED IN CAR CRASHES DURING WEEKEND

Warmest Weekend of Spring Brings Violent Death to Eight in Province

ONE STRUCK BY ROCK

By the Canadian Press

The warmest week-end of Spring brought violent death to eight persons throughout the Province, four of them through automobile accidents. Two persons died from falls and the accidental discharge of a hunting rifle and a mine accident accounted for the others.

At Gore Bay, Mrs. Joseph Wismer, aged resident, died last night several hours after an automobile driven by her husband plunged over a 20-foot embankment. The 78-year-old husband is in serious condition. The car rolled over during its plunge and was wrecked against a tree.

Orley Myers, 23, St. George, was killed ten miles north of Brantford Saturday night when a car in which he was riding collided with a truck. Four other persons escaped with minor injuries. A youth later identified as Clifford Harris, of Sudbury, was killed Saturday when a car in which he was a passenger struck a tree near Paris. Harris had been given a ride at Woodstock by the car owner, Oscar Perry of Ferndale, Mich., who was held on a charge of vagrancy.

Fell from Moving Car

Margaret Herbert, 21, Lanark, suffered fatal injuries when she fell from a moving automobile at South March, near Ottawa. The auto ran into a ditch when the driver, Errol Anderson, 22, of Arnprior, lost control of the machine.

A driller in the Creighton Mine at Sudbury, Karl Kenttala, 23, was killed Sunday when a three-ton rock struck him a glancing blow as he worked on the 5,200-foot level. The rock fell from a wall of a hoist room excavation.

John Goodwin, 65, former Welland magistrate, died of a fractured skull Saturday at Horning Mills. He suffered the injury in an eight-foot fall down a river bank while visiting at a fishing resort fifty miles north of Toronto.

Miss Ann Swanson of Peterboro, died on the way to hospital Saturday from a heart attack and injuries suffered when she collapsed on a bridge at Peterboro and struck her head. Several years ago her brother collapsed and died on the same bridge.

At Ottawa, Daniel Howard Kennedy, 57, died Sunday when his hunting rifle discharged as he was cleaning the weapon in his home.

Toronto police congratulated themselves on what they believed to be the success of their drive against careless motorists since Saturday and Sunday passed with only three persons injured in the city and 17 minor accidents reported. This was just half the average of 20 accidents a day that had been registered in Toronto since Jan. 1.

During the past week police have cracked down on careless driving and speeding. Almost 850 erring drivers were summoned for week-end infractions.

CELEBRATES 105TH BIRTHDAY

Cornwall, Ont., May 6 (CP).—Mrs. Morris Tinkess, affectionately known to hundreds of district residents as "Aunt Jane" celebrated her 105th birthday at her home in Avonmore twenty miles north of here, Sunday. Smart and active despite her great age, Mrs. Tinkess showed no signs of fatigue after greeting scores of relatives and friends who called to extend their felicitations.

PRIMATE DETAILS PERSECUTIONS OF CATHOLIC POLES

630 Out of 650 Priests Deported or Imprisoned by Nazis

ERADICATION AIM

Vatican City, May 6 (AP)—German persecution of Polish Catholics was charged anew today by the Polish Embassy to the Vatican in a summary of a report to Pope Pius by August Cardinal Hlond, primate of Poland.

The embassy's statement alleged Germany is trying to eradicate Catholicism in the Nazi-held parts of Poland and attempting to destroy the Polish people by deportation, shooting and financial ruin, particularly among the leading classes.

The statement said that German-speaking families from the Italian Tyrol are being sent to Poland in a plan to Germanize it.

39 Priests Die in Prison

The embassy quoted Cardinal Hlond as reporting the death of 39 priests in six dioceses by shooting or torture in prison. In Chelmo diocese, it said, he reported that the Cathedral had been converted into a garage, the Bishop's Palace into a hotel and its chapel into a ballroom.

All but 20 of 650 priests have been deported or imprisoned, while nine have been shot and two died in prison, it added. Most churches have been reported closed, "Catholic life almost entirely extinguished" and Catholic societies disbanded.

Ten Priests Tortured

The embassy said the Cardinal had reported half the priests of Lodz diocese deported or imprisoned and ten, including a Bishop, tortured in a concentration camp. It also mentioned other dioceses where, it said, the Cardinal reported similar conditions. This was the second of such reports to be issued.

GERMANY CLAIMS DISPATCH OF 200 ALPINE TROOPS

Strong Attempt Made to Aid Besieged Garrison at Narvik

OTHER CLAIMS MADE

(By Louis Lochner, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Berlin, May 6—(AP)—Germany claimed today to have dispatched Alpine troops on a 200-mile trek through the mountains in an attempt to aid the besieged garrison at Narvik, which the Nazi propaganda department is now boosting as Norway's "Alcazar."

"(Spanish Nationalists withstood a 71-day siege in the Alcazar fortress at Toledo during the Spanish Civil War and were relieved when Nationalist troops captured the city.)"

The mountain troops are said to have begun their march from the Norwegian town of Mo, north of Namsos, and the terminal both of railway and normal automobile highways. Between Mo and Narvik there is only a narrow country road, sometimes only a path.

The German high command reported that British artillery forces in the Narvik region had been strengthened but that no more intense fighting had occurred in that sector.

NAZIS TO ATTEMPT OCCUPATION OF NORTH NORWAY

100 German Planes Observed Flying in Direction of Narvik Says Stockholm Report

DROP TROOPS, SUPPLIES

Allies Have Geographic Advantage at Narvik and Are Well Established

By ELMER PETERSON

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Stockholm, May 6 (AP).—German aircraft today flew over northern Norway in such numbers as to indicate Nazi plans to attempt occupation of the northern half of the country as well as the south.

Dispatches to Swedish newspapers said more than 100 German planes were observed yesterday flying in the direction of that area where the Allies have surrounded Narvik.

Observers here believe that the Germans not only will attack the Allied forces around Narvik without delay—matching aircraft against the British fleet—but also try to force capitulation of such far northern points as Hammerfest and Kirkenes.

Without the long narrow stretch of Norway still unoccupied by the Germany, Nazi communications with Soviet Russia through Arctic waters are interrupted.

The flow northward of heavy transport planes indicates Germany has started to drop troops and supplies. The chief obstacle to Nazi plans is the difficulty of bringing up heavy equipment.

IMMEDIATE FALL OF NARVIK NOT TO BE EXPECTED

British Official Circles Say Snowstorms and Resistance of German Garrison Impede Progress

BOMBARD TOWN

By J. F. SANDERSON

London, May 6—(CP)—The War Office said today there was nothing to report from Narvik, Norwegian ore port where British and French troops are besieging a German force. Its communique:—

"There is nothing to report from the Narvik area."

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London May 6 (CP).)—The British public was warned today from official sources not to expect the immediate fall of Narvik.

British forces are gradually closing in on the northern ore port but snowstorms are impeding progress. This, plus the resistance of the German garrison, has brought the campaign to the stage of trench warfare.

The German garrison, which is estimated at 3,000 in the town and 1,000 along the mineral railway leading to the Kiruna ore mines in Sweden, have dug themselves into fortified positions.

The British force, of unknown strength, apparently is having great difficulty in dislodging them.

Bombardment of Narvik is confined to duels between British naval vessels and single guns on shore.

Troops in the Narvik area are within range of German bombers, it was declared.

Survey of Grimsthorpe Township Planned by Ontario Mines Dep't

Toronto, May 6 (CP)—Mines Minister Paul Leduc announced today that geological investigations will be carried out by his department this summer. These investigations will include surveys of new prospecting fields, examination of deposits of strategic minerals and detailed study in some of the mining camps.

Appointment of party assistants have been made and include 27 students from the departments of Geology and Mining Engineering at Ontario universities.

The parties include:

Grimsthorpe Township, southeastern Ontario—Dr. V. B. Meen will extend the work of the previous summer to include this unmapped portion of Hastings County.

Moscow, May 6—(AP)—Authoritative Soviet Russian quarters today denied reports circulating in the Balkans that Russia had massed divisions opposite Ruthenia.

Budapest, May 6—(AP)—Extension of the war to southeastern Europe seemed more imminent today than at any time since the first days of the conflict.

Contributing to the belief of many diplomats that a crisis may be reached this week were the following developments, officially unconfirmed in some cases but given general credence:

1. Turkish troops were reported massing along the Greek and Bulgarian frontiers.
2. German troop concentrations were noted near the Yugoslav and Hungarian frontiers, as well as the shipment of Nazi tanks and war materials in eastern Slovakia, a Reich protectorate.
3. Italian military activity near the Yugoslav frontier and the Dodecanese Islands.

LONGSHOREMEN'S WAGE INCREASE RECOMMENDED

Conciliation Board Favors Increase to Men as 'War Bonus'

NEW WAGE RATES

Ottawa, May 6 CP)—A conciliation board appointed to investigate a dispute between shipping companies and longshoremen in Montreal today recommended to Labor Minister McLarty that the longshoremen's wages be increased as a "war bonus."

The board rejected the wage increases asked by the men but suggested a compromise through their representative, the Shipping Federation of Canada Inc.

"The board wishes to make it clear that, in recommending an increase, it is actuated primarily and principally by consideration of the peculiar situation which now exists in ocean shipping and which may be expected to continue, or even to become accentuated, during the continuance of the current hostilities," said the report.

Retroactive to April 24, 1940

The new wage rates recommended in the draft agreement attached to the report should be retroactive to April 24, 1940, which could be considered the opening of the navigation season at Montreal, the board suggested.

Ansaldo Repeats Claim Germany Will Invade Great Britain

Rome, May 6 (AP). — Giovanni Ansaldo, editor of Il Telegrafo, the newspaper of the Italian foreign minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano, repeated his claim yesterday that Germany would invade Britain.

Ansaldo made the claim in his weekly broadcast to the Italian armed forces. He had made a similar "prediction" in Il Telegrafo Saturday.

"Everything causes one to presume that this war very soon will see a great effort on the part of Germany to invade England in force," Ansaldo said.

"Never were conditions in which the present war is being conducted more favorable to the attackers, never were technical resources available to the enemy on the continent so favorable.

"The blow planned by Napoleon certainly will be attempted again."

In his speech Ansaldo made no reference to future Italian policy other than the statement that "Italy must emerge from this great crisis with a settlement of its age-old problems of independence and greatness."

The Fascist press continued to chorus a warning to Britain and France against attempting to exert pressure on Italy through their naval reinforcements in the Mediterranean.

Industrial Plants Fit Into War Effort

Ottawa, May 6—(CP)—The work of surveying industry to determine where various plants best will fit in to the Canadian war effort is going on apace and today the plant survey division of the Department of Munitions and Supply completed its 1900th plant survey.

To date these surveys have involved some 2,300 visits to individual firms by the technical assistants of the division as they investigated the potential capacity of the Dominion to provide any given material from ship propellers to tin cans.

The survey of each individual plant covers its present facilities and capacities and also the potential production to which its equipment could be diverted.

SHORT CIRCUIT SETS FIRE TO CAR

Presumably starting as the result of a short circuit in the ignition system, flames shot out from under the hood of a motor owned by Airforce men at a late hour Saturday evening which required the assistance of the fire brigade to overcome the trouble. Prompt work by the firemen, however, extinguished the flames without any material damage resulting to the automobile.

PACKET FREIGHTER MAKES FIRST CALL

Making her first trip of the season up the Bay of Quinte, the steamer Glen Allan docked at the Belleville harbour about six o'clock Sunday evening and took on a number of empties. The boat was on her way to Trenton from which port she started the return trip to Montreal this morning.

OIL COMPANY RELAYS SUPPLY PIPE ON SURFACE OF GROUND

Fearing that the acid condition existing in the cinders along the railway track would eventually eat holes into their gasoline supply pipe leading from the wharf to their large storage tanks, the British American Oil Company had a number of men digging up their pipe-line this morning. The pipe will be taken out of the ground and relaid above the surface in order to get away from the trouble of the cinders eroding the pipe. This same trouble was experienced by other oil companies a few years ago and resulted in both the Shell and Imperial Oil Companies lifting their pipe and relaying it above the surface of the ground.

FISHING PARTY HAS GOOD CATCH OF FINE LAKE TROUT

Although other Izaak Waltons of the city who travelled the northern routes of the county over the week end in search of the elusive lake trout, bemoaned the fates that caused the fish to cast wary eyes at their bait, at least one trio came home Sunday night with some good luck.

Pitching their camp on the shores of beautiful Lake L'Amable, Ralph Shaw, Stephen Flintoff and Ray Lockyer, dipped their lures into water that had been ice-free for a few days only and persuaded approximately fourteen finny beauties to leave their watery domicile.

The fish averaged approximately from two to three pounds in weight, according to one member of the party, and seemed quite willing, if not anxious to partake of the first bait dropped their way this season.

ALBERT HOPSTERS DEFEAT LONDON

In an exhibition basketball game played at the Albert College gymnasium on Saturday night the home quintette defeated a team of hoopsters from London, Ont., by the score of 42 to 27. The game was arranged through Mr. N. A. Beach, a native of London and physical director at Albert College. The final score was no indication of the play, which was speedy throughout and interesting despite the long lay-off of both squads. Hayman and Ardiel were the chief scorers for London, while "Knobby" Carter and Ted Powell led the Alberts on the attack with ten and nine points respectively.

IMPROVED COOLING FACILITIES SHOULD RAISE CHEESE QUALITY

With approximately twenty-nine cheese factories in the Central Ontario district having taken advantage of the Cheese Factory Improvement Act, and installed improved refrigeration systems, prospects for improved quality of cheese manufactured in this district during the coming season, look exceedingly bright, according to Central Ontario Cheese Makers Association officials.

The quality of the cheese already manufactured in the district this season is exceptionally good, Chief Grader J. L. Irwin said today. Practically all factories will be in operation by the end of the week, he added, including the fifty-five that are expected to operate in Hastings County.

Boys Receive Ducking When Boat Overturns

Harold Clarke and Max Green, both of North Front St., were the unhappy victims of the season's first boating accident yesterday afternoon when during a fishing expedition they received a ducking in the Moira river as their boat upset.

Fortunately Wilfred Laporte, superintendent at the Corbyville plant, was on hand and noticed the plight of the lads and immediately phoned the Provincial Police. Inspector Gardner and one other officer answered the call and arrived on the scene in time to toss the lads a rope with which to pull them ashore.

According to the boys' story they were out on the river fishing from a boat just a short distance above the Corbyville dam, when in turning the boat around it in some manner got tipped and the two were thrown into the river. Fortunately, however, they were able to grab the gunwales as they went into the river and hung on until succour arrived.

POLICE COURT

At the opening of today's session of city police court, held before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., informed the court of the sudden death of Robert Macaulay, Vancouver barrister and former resident of this city. His Worship and attending solicitors expressed regret to hear of Mr. Macaulay's sudden passing. Mr. Macaulay was well known in Belleville, being the son of His Honor Judge Macaulay of Dawson City in the Yukon Territory, who was also a former resident of this city.

When Joseph Charbaleau, native of Quebec, who intimated in last Friday's court he was unable to understand the English language appeared today, Mr. Donnan stated he was not offering any evidence against the accused, who was charged with vagrancy. His Worship then turned to Charbaleau and stated: "You can go now."

Strangely enough the man readily understood His Worship's statement as he left the court without further instructions.

Edward Graves, Belleville, appeared charged with assaulting his wife and causing her actual bodily harm. The matter was enlarged until Friday and Graves admitted to bail with instructions to "stay away from his family residence until after the trial."

Charles A. Payne, K.C. and Jacob Goodman were present on behalf of clients in a family matter, that saw a husband charged with desertion. "My client did not leave his family, he was told to get out of his mother-in-law's home, where he had been living," held Mr. Goodman.

Three inebriates pleaded guilty to charges of intoxication to conclude the court.

Police Blotter

Sneak thieves were again active in the city over the week end. Mrs. John Lenton, 190 Ann St, reported the loss of a valuable kodak, which was stolen from the family garage. The kodak which was encased in a suitable leather holder, had been left in the family automobile, which was parked in the garage on the premises. No undue disturbances were heard to suggest that burglars were about, the police were informed.

Kingston police authorities reported the theft of a 1934 Plymouth coupe yesterday. The vehicle was bearing Ontario licence plates number 39-E-9 when stolen.

While patrolling his beat Saturday night P.C. Arnott saw a man emerge from a parked automobile on Front Street and punch another man in the face. Later Alvin Morris was taken to the police station and held on a charge of intoxication. Morris, so stated Constable Arnott, struck Thos. Ashman in the mouth with his fist, inflicting a cut lip. Morris contended that Ashman had thrown a missile, which had struck the motor car he was sitting in. The missile turned out to be a lemon.

Today Morris appeared in police court on a charge of intoxication. "I plead not guilty to being intoxicated," Morris replied and his case was remanded until Friday at the request of Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C. "We have to bring in witnesses," explained Mr. Donnan.

John Hanna, local wood vendor residing at 13 Baldwin Street, complained to police that sneak thieves were stealing slab wood from his yard. "This practice is becoming much too frequent and I would like to have police protection before they steal the whole woodyard," Mr. Hanna added while making his complaint.

City police investigated the reported damage to young trees and stop signs on Catherine Street over the week end. Delinquent juveniles are said to have been responsible for the damage inflicted.

ROBERT MACAULAY

(Nelson, B.C.)

Robert Macaulay, barrister, a former popular resident of Belleville, passed away after a brief illness at Nelson, B.C., on Saturday, May 4th. To many friends in this city the announcement of his death will be received with sincere regret.

The late Mr. Macaulay, who was a son of Mr. Justice Charles D. Macaulay and Mrs. Macaulay, now of Vancouver, B.C., practiced his profession for a short time in Belleville some years ago and later went to reside in British Columbia. While in this city he was a member of St. Michael's Church.

Surviving him is his wife, formerly Miss Doris Vermilyea of Belleville, and a son, Charles Edward Macaulay.

Mrs. P. H. Wills, Northport, and Mrs. C. F. Lyall of Belleville, are sisters-in-law of the late Mr. Macaulay.

FLARE BOMB INJURES TWO TRENTON BOYS

Lads Find Metal Object While Playing Near Home and Throw it Against Rock

BURNED IN FACE

Two Trenton boys suffered severe burns on Sunday afternoon as the result of the explosion of a flare bomb which they had found north of the Royal Canadian Air Force station at Trenton.

The two boys, Earl and Carl Howard, aged eight and ten respectively, sons of Mr. and Mrs. W. Howard of Sidney Township, had found the metal object while playing near their home and threw it against a nearby rock with the resultant explosion burning the lads about the face.

The boys were rushed to the office of Dr. W. J. Johnson of Trenton, and later allowed to return home.

The object found by the boys is thought to have been a flare bomb dropped by an R.C.A.F. aeroplane during night flying to light the landing field.

RICHARD SNELL DIES, AGED 78

Was Well Known Retired Engineer and Member of Belleville Parks Commission

Richard Snell, residence 330 Charles Street, passed away in the Belleville General Hospital on Saturday afternoon, May 4th., after a brief illness.

In the passing of Richard Snell the city of Belleville has lost a good citizen and one who gave freely of his time and ability in furthering the advancement of the city. The beautifying of Belleville was of special interest to him and for many years he was a valued member of the City Parks Board. In the city he was well known, highly esteemed and popular with many friends, to whom his death has brought sincere feelings of regret.

For forty-seven years Mr. Snell was engaged in railroading, being in the service of the old Grand Trunk Railway and later with the Canadian National Railways as a locomotive engineer. By the officials of the Belleville Division and by his fellow employees he was well liked and highly esteemed. Thirteen years ago he left the service and since that time he lived retired. In religion Mr. Snell was a member of the Church of England and an active worker in Christ Church Parish. Fraternally he was a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and a trustee of the local lodge.

The late Mr. Snell celebrated his 78th. birthday on Friday, May 3rd. He was born at Cornwall, England, being a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Snell.

Surviving him are his wife, who prior to her marriage was Miss Dorothy McKnight; one son, Mr. Wallace W. Snell, Belleville; one daughter, Mrs. John Fairman, of Belleville; one sister, Mrs. J E. Walmsley, Belleville, and the following grandchildren, Richard E. Doxsee, Mary Fairman, Neale Fairman, Cameron Snell, Barbara Snell and Warren Snell.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

The flag on the tower of the city hall is flying at half staff today as a token of respect to the late Mr. Snell.

Albert College Students Conduct Church Service

Students at Albert College who are candidates for the clergy and who will grace the pulpits of the United Church in Canada in the future, conducted an impressive service at Bridge Street United Church Sunday night.

Messrs. Robert Craig, Albert Watson and Lorne Brown were present on the pulpit with the Rev Dr. James Semple, minister of the church, while Mr. Harry Atkinson conducted the College choir which replaced the regular church organization for the occasion, in an admirable manner.

Selecting his text from Job 23: 10 Mr. Craig delivered an impressive address in which he stressed faith as being the prime necessity of life. "We must cling to the faith of our forefathers," he said, "and stand steadfast, especially in view of the fact that the entire world is in an unsettled condition."

Mr. Brown conducted the service proper, with Mr. Ronald Mercer giving vocal selections in splendid voice.

The service was conducted along the same lines as those which feature the regular Sunday services held in the College chapel During the first Sunday of every month the student body of the College have worshipped at the various United Churches in the city. Recently the school choir has visited Campbellford and Picton, where they assisted in special services.

Ontario Dairy Queen To be Selected For Annual Cheese Exhibit

An "Ontario Dairy Queen" will be crowned at the 1940 edition of the British Empire Dairy Show and Cheese Exhibition, sponsored by the Central Ontario Cheese Makers' Association, Chief Grader J. L. Irwin announced today.

The fortunate young lady, who will wear the laurels of the regal majesty of the cheese industry in this province will be selected by photograph. She must be the wife or daughter of a cheese patron or cheesemaker in the province.

The winner will be given an all-expense trip to Belleville at the time of the British Empire Dairy show, and will be officially crowned at the formal banquet which culminates the exhibition. In addition her photograph in all her regal garb, will be placed on calendars issued by the Association for the year 1941.

A competent trio of judges will be selected in the near future, Mr. Irwin said, who will adjudge the respective merits of the large number of entries that are expected to flow into the headquarters of the association.

Exemplification of Major Degrees Takes Place at K. of C. Clubrooms

Ceremony Carried Out in Impressive Manner — Fifty-One Candidates Presented for Degrees by Grand Knight Geo. Lee

BANQUET HELD

The most outstanding event in the history of Belleville Council, 1008 Knights of Columbus took place Sunday the occasion being the exemplification of the major degrees. About three hundred and fifty members attended representing Montreal, Brockville, Cornwall, Kingston, Peterborough, St. Catharines, Cobourg, Trenton and Lindsay. Fifty-one candidates were presented for the degrees by Grand Knight George Lee of Belleville Council.

The Knights attended eight-thirty Mass in St. Michael's Church in a body, then assembled in the Knights of Columbus rooms for the exemplification of the first degree by Belleville Council at ten-thirty a.m. Past State Deputy A. B. Collins acted as Grand Knight for this degree. The second degree was exemplified at two-thirty by Peterborough Council, with J. J. Dorris, Grand Knight, and his staff taking part. Immediately afterwards the major degree was exemplified by Montreal Council, Brother A. A. Gardiner, State Deputy of the Province of Quebec, acting as Grand Knight. The exemplification of the three degrees was carried out in a most impressive manner, a splendid demonstration of the work of the Order.

At the conclusion of the degrees all the members were entertained at a banquet held at eight o'clock in St. Michael's Academy where an excellent meal was served by the Catholic Women's League.

Compliment Work of Grand Knight Lee

Rt. Rev. J. F. Nicholson, V.G. acted as chairman for the interesting program. He welcomed the visitors on behalf of Belleville Council and complimented Grand Knight Lee for his splendid work in connection with this successful event and spoke of the fine contribution that Belleville Knights made to the life of the parish.

Brother Phil Phelan, State Deputy, congratulated Grand Knight Lee for his very fine work during his term of office and commended him on the splendid group of candidates he presented for degrees. The State Deputy discussed the program of the Canadian Army Huts. Already much has been accomplished for the Canadian soldiers. Fourteen army huts are operating from Vancouver to Halifax, providing articles for soldiers regardless of race, creed, or color. So far twenty thousand prayer books and fifty thousand rosaries have been distributed to Catholic soldiers. Mr. Phelan and Dr. Claude Brown are in charge of the organization and all work is contributed voluntarily.

Other Speakers

Other speakers included Frank G. Carter, District Deputy of District No. 6, Niagara Falls, Grand Knight J. J. Dorris, Peterborough, Charles Dolan, Belleville, Rev. J. V. McAuley, Campbellford, Rev. Father Brady, Maynooth, Rev. J. McCabe, Chaplain of Military District No. 1, A. B. Collins, Past State Deputy, Grand Knight George Lee, T. V. Scanlan, District Deputy of this district Frank Domenico Lecturer Belleville, Brother Trudeau, Montreal, P.Q., A. A. Gardiner, State Deputy of the Province of Quebec.

A letter was head from His Grace, Archbishop O'Brien, Kingston, regretting the fact that he would be unable to attend the function and wishing Grand Knight Lee every success.

Varied Program

The guests were entertained by St. Michael's Band which gave several selections and won the sincere acclaim of the gathering. Sister Mary Mercedes was congratulated on the success of her careful training. Other numbers on the program included a dance by Miss Mary Grant, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Grant, song by Joseph Barrett, tap dance, Barbara Donavon, musical dialogue by Robert Moher and Edward Barrett, a splendid demonstration of gymnastics by the boys of St. Michael's under the direction of Mr. J. J. Doran and a xylophone solo by Miss Helen Grant.

Awarded Croix de Guerre

The first American to win a French decoration in the present war is Arthur Stratton, of Clinton, Massachusetts, a volunteer driver with No. 1 section of the American Volunteers Ambulance Corps. He has been awarded the Croix de Guerre with palm for gallantry in action "somewhere - in - France." General Requin, commanding general of the French army to which this section of the "volunteers ambulance" is attached, presented the decoration to Stratton.

VESSEL GROUNDS IN PEA-SOUP FOG

Crew Safe But British Freighter is Probably Total Loss Near Halifax

Halifax, May 6—(CP)—A pea-soup fog which blanketed the Nova Scotia coast was blamed today for the grounding late Saturday night of the 2,280-ton British freighter Craig on Flint Ledge, about 25 miles east of Halifax harbor.

Fishing boats reported only the Craig's bow remained above water. Her crew was safe on Egg Island, nearby, but one man was injured.

Authorities said an attempt would be made during the day to land a doctor on the island, probably by dory. An airplane also would attempt to drop rations on the tiny rock.

First distress calls from the freighter came a few minutes after 11 p.m. A.S.T. Saturday. She reported herself aground but was unable to give her position. Six minutes later her operator reported the crew was abandoning ship immediately.

Salvage Ships to Scene

As soon as shore wireless stations were able to work out the location, naval and salvage ships hurried from Halifax but the fog and heavy swell prevented them from drawing close in shore. It was yesterday before fishing vessels reached her.

They said there was no sign of life aboard and that she likely would be a total loss. By today all but her bow had disappeared and her crew's whereabout were established.

The Craig, registered at Cardiff and built in 1924 by R. Duncan and Company, Limited, Port Glasgow, is 365 feet long. She was owned by the Craig Shipping Company, Limited.

ACCEPTS DELIVERY OF YACHT

Ottawa, May 6 —(CP)— The Royal Canadian Navy has sent a crew to Waubaushene, Ont., on Georgian Bay, to accept delivery of a private yacht, the Ambler, which has been turned over to the navy for wartime duty, it was announced at naval headquarters today.

The 28 seamen and their officers reached Midland, Ont., during the week-end, the navy was advised and shortly will bring the large yacht down the lakes.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

War interest shifted from the north to the south of Europe during the weekend following precautions taken by Great Britain and France against a possible change in the status of Italy.

The moving of heavy British and French naval forces to Alexandria probably is assigned to set a watch over the Suez Canal and the Mediterranean approaches to it.

In the last war a drive towards the canal was attempted overland. This time that is impossible but the Italian navy and air force, should Italy enter hostilities, might attempt to strike a lightning blow which would close off both approaches to the Mediterranean, at Gibraltar and Suez.

Such blows might well fit in with a grand strategic plan worked out between Hitler and Mussolini at their recent meeting. The time, now that Germany has obtained a firm grip on southern Norway, may have arrived for the execution of bolder measures of aggression by the enemy.

In one respect the invasion of Norway must have proved a disappointment if it was intended to be a prelude to an Italian move in the Mediterranean. It gave the British a chance to destroy such a substantial portion of the German navy that more ships now can be released from northern waters for service in the Mediterranean.

JAPANESE GOLD RESERVES SMALL

Are Believed to Have Shrunk to Less Than $100,000,000

Washington, May 6—(AP)—A survey of Japan's financial structure after the drain of nearly three years' war in China indicates that its gold reserves have shrunk to less than $100,000,000.

Officials here make that estimate of Japanese-held gold, despite the fact that the Central Bank of Japan still lists its gold reserves at $164,000,000, a figure which has remained unchanged since December, 1938.

Japan paid — largely in gold—$200,000,000 for goods purchased in the United States during 1939, and gold shipments are continuing to pay for purchases here.

American officials, who long have maintained that Japan is reaching the bottom of her gold barrel, are frankly puzzled as to where the Japanese are getting the precious metal.

Little Foreign Exchange

One explanation is that Japan long ago began hoarding gold in a secret "war chest" against any trouble with Russia and has been dipping into this fund to pay the war bill in China.

Japan's gold production amounts to about $26,000,000 a year. The country has made efforts recently to develop every possible gold-bearing property, especially on the Island of Formosa.

Japan's ability to obtain gold is considered here to be decreasing. Shipping services to other nations can bring in very little foreign exchange, the experts declare, because most of Japan's maritime fleet is needed in far eastern waters.

Favorable foreign exchange balances from trade with other countries have decreased steadily because of war conditions, especially since Germany's invasion of Denmark and Norway. Japan obtains no foreign exchange from trade with China, Manchoukuo and other yen-blocked countries.

JOINT CHAIRMEN OF COMMITTEE ARE APPOINTED

W. H. Somervillle, Waterloo, and de Gaspe Beaubien of Montreal, Will Handle Sale of War Savings Certificates

SALE TO START SOON

Ottawa, May 6 (CP)—Government financial experts worked today on organization of provincial divisions of the National War Savings Committee which will launch the sale of war savings certificates.

Finance Minister Ralston last night announced the appointment of W. H. Somerville of Waterloo, Ont, and de Gaspe Beaubien of Montreal, as joint chairmen of the committee. He said a further announcement will be made later concerning the provincial divisions.

It is anticipated it will take two weeks or so to get the certificates plan organized and then it likely will be launched. The certificates will be in multiples of $5 but it has not been decided definitely yet what the top figure will be or what form of capital appreciation will be adopted.

In making his announcement of the new appointments, Col Ralston said "the time has come to extend the government's war-time financial measures to mobilizing the savings of the Canadian people through the sale of war savings certificates. "We have been fortunate in securing the services of two distinguished Canadians to take the helm of this important movement.

Committee on Voluntary Basis

Under Mr. Sommerville and Mr. Beaubien a national committee will be organized on a voluntary basis to make the sale of certificates "a whole-hearted Canadian effort by a forceful campaign throughout Canada," the Finance Minister stated.

The program to promote thrift and regular savings among Canadians will include even school children.

It is designed to supplement war financing but it also will provide purchasers of certificates with a reserve of purchasing power.

"Widespread acceptance of the war savings certificates will be of material assistance in Canada's war effort on the economic front," Col. Ralston said.

Mr. Sommerille is general managed and director of the Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada and associated with many other large business organizations.

Mr. Beaubien is a consulting engineer and treasurer of the Engineering Institute of Canada.

14 NEW SENATORS TO TAKE SEATS

Possibility of Appointment of Another to Replace George Lynch-Staunton Will be Made Before Opening

Ottawa, May 6 (CP)—Fourteen, and perhaps fifteen, new Senators will be introduced to the Upper Chamber before Sir Lyman P. Duff, administrator of government, formally opens Parliament May 16.

There have been 14 vacancies filled since the last parliament was dissolved January 25, but a new vacancy was created when Hon. George Lynch-Staunton, Conservative Senator from Hamilton, Ont., died last March 19. The vacancy may be filled before parliament meets, it is understood.

Of the new Senators, six are from Quebec, four from Ontario, and one each from Nova Scotia, Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba.

Parliament will meet at noon, instead of the usual 3 p.m., on opening day for the ceremony associated with the election of a new Speaker of the Commons.

The Senate Speaker is appointed by the government, however. So before the ceremony with the Commons, the Senate Speaker takes his chair and new Senators are brought forward one by one to take the oath of allegiance and sign their commission on the table on the floor of the Upper House. They are presented formally to the Speaker, and may then take their seats.

Tweed Hort. Society Announces Winners Of Bird Box Contest

Tweed — The annual Bird Box Contest sponsored by Tweed Horticultural Society was held on Friday May 3rd, with an entry list of forty nesting boxes. There was a wide variety of boxes both as to type and design. Boxes for wrens and shelters for robins predominated while entries for tree swallows and martins were few in number.

Mr. C. H. Kerr, Reeve of Tweed, who is a strong supporter of the Horticultural Society and keenly interested in any of its activities, and Mr. G. A. Meiklejohn, ex-school teacher and past president of the Horticultural Society acted as judges, assisted by Mrs H. M. Countryman, president of the Society, as Secretary.

The following is the list of prize winners:—

OBITUARY

MRS. WILLIAM CROSS (Madoc)

Madoc (Special)—The funeral of the late Mrs. William Cross was held in Trinity United Church, Madoc, on Friday afternoon on arrival by motor from Toronto. Many friends and neighbors attended the service which was conducted by her pastor, Rev. A. Poulter, assisted by Rev. W. A. Hunter of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church at Madoc. Comforting words of sympathy and respect were given by Rev. Mr. Hunter to her sons and their families. Rev. A. Poulter chose his text from the 11th. chapter of St. John, and 25th. verse, the words of Jesus to Martha, "I am the resurrection and the life."

A profusion of beautiful Spring flowers were the evidence of the respect and sympathy of many friends. The pall bearers were Messrs. Frank Dafoe, C. I. Ross, Percy Nayler, Robert Bristol. Tom Rupert, Leslie Ashley. Interment took place in Lakeview cemetery.

Out of town friends who attended the funeral were Mrs. Ed. Cross, Mrs. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. R. Casement, Rev. H. S. Graham of Belleville; Dr. Gerald Graham of Kingston; Mrs. Kent, Toronto; Hon. Gordon Conant, Attorney General of the Provincial Government, Toronto.

MRS. SARAH E. BARBER (Mountain View)

After an illness of about one month's duration Mrs. Sarah Emily Barber, widow of John W. Barber, passed away at the residence of her grandson, Mr. J. S. Barber, at Mountain View, Prince Edward County, on Sunday, May 5th.

The late Mrs. Barber had reached an advanced age, being in her 92nd. year. She was born at Hillier in Prince Edward County, her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. William W. Sprung. All her life was passed in the district where she was born and throughout her long and useful life she was held in high regard by many friends. In religion she was a member of the United Church.

Surviving her are four grandsons, Mr. Stanley Barber, Mountain View; Mr. Leonard Giles of Chesterville, Ont.; Mr. Reginald W. R. Barber, Northport, Ont., and Mr. Clifford Barber of Ameliasburg Township. Ex-Warden of Prince Edward County, Mr James S. Barber, is a nephew of the late Mrs. Barber.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

BODY WITH ROPE AROUND NECK FOUND IN WOODS

Gananoque, Ont., May 6 (CP) — The decomposed body of a man, a rope about the neck, was found in woods near here Sunday by three Seeley's Bay girls who were out picking wild flowers. The unidentified man, believed to be a transient, evidently had hanged himself several months ago.

The girls were Cora, Nellie and Margaret Vallentgoed. The body was lying at the foot of a tree. A piece of twine, matching that found about the man's neck, was found on a limb of the tree. The body, clad in two pairs of trousers, two shirts and a suit coat, bore no identification marks.

Quotes Exodus On Egypt's Blackout

Saint John, N.B., May 6 (CP) — A man who had heard a radio report about Egypt's "first" blackout Sunday night called a newspaper office.

"Look up Exodus, chapter 10, verse 22," he said.

The verse reads:

"And Moses stretched forth his hand toward heaven; and there was a thick darkness in all the land of Egypt three days."

Tom Brown and Constance Moore Principals in the new musical comedy "Ma! He's Making Eyes at Me," now showing at the McCarthy Theatre.

"Hi, Slim, you're that!"

"I always get a kick out of meeting Ben. He may be fields away; but he's sure to yell, 'Hi, Slim, you're that!' Folks kid us, not knowing what it means . . . Back in '18, Ben's wife was pretty sick. I stuck around and did his chores. One sun-up he came into the barn staring oddly at the package of tobacco in his hand. I said, casual like, 'There's no other tobacco just like Old Chum.' But he was pointing to the name, Old Chum. 'You're just that!' he said . . . I always wave back my package meaning, 'You too, and happy days!'"

Available in packages, pocket pouches and ½ lb. tins.

BRITISH RESOLVE IS STRENGTHENED

A London newspaper remarked after hearing the announcement of the withdrawal of British troops south of Trondheim that the British public was shocked but that British resolve was stronger than ever. That is the situation as far as determination goes. The situation in Norway with the withdrawals from Andalsnes and Namsos may have seemed disheartening but it has proven that Britishers can rise above their obstacles and will do so.

An unscrupulous enemy, who tries to conquer by any means, fair or foul, seized upon unoffending Denmark and violated the neutrality of Norway. Long planned, the Nazi plot against Norway had the initial advantage in the seizure of air bases and so on. Britain and France, observing the rules of honor and justice, were at a disadvantage. It is, of course, one of the enemy's weapons against the democracies, that the outlaw Nazis will gain advantages by the gangster method of putting a gun to the neutral's head.

It must not be forgotten that neutrals are in danger if they allow invasion to get ahead of help as Herbert Morrison has expressed it.

It has been a test for the British Prime Minister to face such an enemy but nothing in the world will change Germans until they are taught by an Allied victory over Hitler and the Germans. But in spite of such an event as the violation of the Scandinavian lands Mr. Chamberlain carries on confidently in the democratic manner. What a picture of calmness, free from the wild vaporings of a Hitler and the mad lust of the Nazi chiefs for power is the British stability and confidence as shown in Mr. Chamberlain!

Last week the Prime Minister held back information for the purpose of the withdrawal in safety of the forces south of Trondheim. He succeeded in keeping the veil down until the operation was complete. To do that he had to endure criticism from many of his own people, but the withdrawal was effected in safety.

As had been pointed out the very fact that a government may be called to account in democratic countries is the strength of British democracy. A British Government may be criticized, that is democracy. Hitler can lose many warships, but no one dare call him to account, that is dictatorship.

Who knows what is known to the chiefs of staff and the inner cabinet? There are times when what may look disappointing is good strategy and provides a more effective contribution to the total result of a war. Who knows everything that was in the minds of the British inner council?

There is no reason to feel pessimistic. Every war has its ebb and flow. Britain holds the key to the Swedish exports of iron ore from the mines in the north of Sweden on which Germany has been depending so much since she lost the iron area in the west to France. Britain is opposite the German-controlled air bases of Norway, her fleet is on watch, her airmen are ready. She has a powerful concentration of warships in the Mediterranean and there are the ships of her French ally and also the fleet of Turkey, which is not to be ignored as one of great power. On the west front is the solid Maginot Line. The loss of a third of the Nazi navy may yet prove to have been the greatest error Hitler ever made.

This war has been moving slowly in its peculiar way, for Hitler has been saving himself, except for the lightning stab at Poland and the violation of Denmark and Norway. But the Norway adventure may have used up much of his oil supply. It cost him a third of his navy. The Norwegian incident does not give a full picture of the stride that the Allies will attain or exert in the grip with the Germans.

The Allies are fighting a war which may possibly have more fronts than the West and Northwest Fronts. The war of the Great Powers will take a course no one can predict in detail, but the strength of the British resolve is expressed in these words of the poet—"Come the four corners of the world in arms and we shall meet them."

WARNING SIGNS TO BE POSTED

Canadians are to be warned by signs that they should not discuss matters of a military, naval, or air nature. These signs are to be posted throughout the Dominion.

In the British Isles there are such signs which serve as a constant check on persons who may possess some facts of value to the enemy from talking of these.

Newspapers are constantly on the watch to prevent publication of anything that would be of help to the enemy.

Brockville Recorder and Times suggests that "there ought to be others cautioning people not to believe everything they hear, particularly the ridiculous stories which in some incredible manner gain circulation and credence from time to time."

Captain's Mascot

Even at the cost of being jostled by a London crowd, it is worth while watching outside Buckingham Palace to see the recipients of gallantry awards emerge after having their decorations pinned on by King George. Their alert, stalwart figures and clean-cut features show up the meagre pale-faced Cockney civilians, and how proudly their relatives—especially their womenfolk and small kiddies—step by their side!

Amongst the last batch of award-recipients was Captain W. H. Harland, of the merchant service O.B.E. He is the very picture of the hard-bitten seaman — spare, vigorous and tough, with the crowfooted eyes of the bridgedeck watcher, and a real North Country set of the chin. He was torpedoed in the last war, and in this one has fought off a U-boat, subsequently sunk by the R.N., in a 75-minute duel with his 4-inch gun.

He took to the sea after serving in the last war as an infantryman in the front trenches, and being severely wounded by shrapnel. While he was recovering on the front at Radcar a young woman presented him with a white feather. Captain Harland now carries that souvenir to sea as a mascot.—London Exchange.

German Leader Warns Hitler

Among the arresting documents of the war, ranking in interest with Nevile Henderson's "Failure of a Mission," are Fritz Thyssen's letters to Hitler and Goering, published in last week's Life. For sheer human dramatic interest, apart altogether from what they tell of the degradation and terror of Germany, they are memorable things.

Fritz Thyssen, living in self-imposed exile, his vast empire of steel confiscated by the Nazis, was one of the creators of modern Germany. A son of the great August Thyssen, an industrial giant of the Wilhelmian period, whose holding in coal, steel and oil was valued at somewhere between 600 and 800 million gold marks, Fritz Thyssen stood at the cradle of National Socialism. He it was who when Hitler's Nazi party seemed doomed to extinction, restored it to life and power by the support of his name and his money. He was the friend of Hindenburg Ludendorf and Von Papen; he had defied France in the Ruhr; and his record of fairness toward labor helped to win for Hitler the support of German workers.

But Thyssen was a German patriot—of the Bismarck school—before he was a Nazi. He had watched with alarm the growing destruction of freedom under Hitler; watched with even greater alarm the preparedness for war; and he had protested, as a Catholic, the persecution of priests, and spoken out against the attacks upon Jews.

When Hitler decreed war upon Poland, Thyssen pleaded against it. On a trip outside Germany, he wired Goering urging negotiations, demanding, as a member of the Reichstag, that there be peace. When his message went unanswered, he renewed it again and again, finally appealed—and in vain— to Hitler himself.

Hitler's only answer, made in the Reichstag, was that all who opposed him would be treated mercilessly as traitors. Within a few months Thyssen, now a fugitive in Switzerland, found his vast properties confiscated, his wife and himself denaturalized by Nazi decree, and a Hitler demand for his arrest. The man who had helped create National Socialism found himself an outcast; robbed of his fortune; proclaimed traitor; thwarted with arrest.

It was then that Thyssen wrote to Hitler the letters now made public. Writing in December he pleaded with his former Fuehrer to "turn back while it is still possible," told him that "your policy will terminate in a finis Germania." And he added:

"Think of the oath you swore at Potsdam to uphold the German constitution. Give back to the Reich a free Parliament, give back to the German nation freedom of conscience, freedom of thought and freedom of speech.

"Create anew the foundations which are necessary to restore law and justice, which will make it possible to trust a German treaty again. Stop the useless bloodshed and Germany will obtain peace with honor and will preserve her unity."

And again:

"I feel free of guilt. My sole error was that I believed in you, Adolf Hitler, the fuehrer, and in the movement you led. I believed in you with all the ardor of one passionately German."

And again:

"Your present policy (an agreement with Soviet Russia) amounts to suicide. Its beneficiary will be your arch-enemy of yesterday (Stalin) who is your "friend of today"...Your new policy is driving Germany into an abyss and the German nation into perdition."

Thyssen concluded:

"Listen to me and you will hear the voice of a tormented German nation that is crying out to you: "Turn back, let freedom, right and humaneness rise again in the German Reich."

Thus the voice of one of the greatest of living Germans. It is the voice of one of the old liberals of Germany; but, most of all, it is the voice of a mighty industrialist who, knowing Germany's economic weakness better than any man living, believes that Germany must inescapably lose the war.—Ottawa Journal.

WHY MORE FOOD MAY NOT INCREASE WEIGHT

When an overweight consults his physician for advice as to a safe method of reducing weight, a thorough examination is given to make sure that the heart is sound, or sound enough to withstand a reduced diet with the addition of a little more exercise daily. This enables the patient to reduce weight gradually without danger of shock or collapse which might discourage him (or her) from continuing on the reducing diet.

Unfortunately, when an adult underweight consults his physician and asks him for a diet to increase weight, the physician may simply name the principal fat and starch foods and advise that they be eaten in abundance. No physical or dental examination is made.

It may happen that the reason for being below normal weight is that some infection is present — infected teeth, tonsils, sinuses — which pulls down body tissue, preventing normal gain in weight. If underweights would consult their physician and dentists for examination for defects before going on an upbuilding diet, there would be fewer disappointments.

However, infection is only one cause of underweight. Not getting enough rest or sleep is a greater factor in preventing gain in weight than is not eating enough food.

The individual who does not rest or sleep enough is usually the same individual who eats hurriedly and "has something on his mind" when he does eat. This is particularly true about breakfast when a very light breakfast is hurriedly eaten and a dash made for street car, bus or motor to get down to work on time. This light breakfast and hurry to work means that there is no time to go to stool after breakfast and constipation is very often the result. Constipation prevents gain in weight.

Another habit or mistake of underweights, in addition to hurry at meal time, is the irregularity of their meals, to which is added the fact that a light meal may be eaten leisurely and a heavy meal hurriedly. Hurry can prevent proper digestion and absorption of the food into the blood. As underweights are usually of the small-boned, slendor type, their small intestine is not as long as in the normal or heavy type and food eaten may get to the end of the small intestine's absorbing surface without being absorbed.

I have not outlined any diet to increase weight as I am only trying to point out a few reasons why some underweights do not increase in weight despite their increased intake of starch and fat foods.

Canadian Girl In Nazi Spy Nest

When I was in Norway last Fall, German spies were everywhere. My friends always spoke of them, of how they were appearing in greater and greater numbers. All recognized the danger. Yet, they asked, what could Norway do, striving as it was to stay out of war and preserve itself from Nazi wrath which surely would have fallen on it if it had attempted to clean out the spies.

Two spy stories, one concerning a relative of mine and the other a friend, illustrate the incredible manner in which Nazi agents, as far back as last Fall, had wormed their way into every part of the country's life. They are not spectacular, story-book spy accounts. They are, perhaps, very matter of fact. But they do show the extent of Nazi espionage in Norway. They show how, even then, no Norwegian seemed able to speak his own mind in his own country without the long ears of the German Gestapo overhearing him. Throughout Norway such cases could have been multiplied by the thousands. They give a partial key to the tragedy of this month.

Three young men, among them my relative, were lunching together in a downtown Oslo restaurant last Fall. Naturally their talk turned to the war. This was against a government warning not to discuss such things in public places, but these three were alone and they were friends. No one else was near. They thought they were safe to voice their views, which they did quietly. (Imagine, if you can, sitting in a Winnipeg restaurant and looking all around for U. S. agents before you guardedly expressed criticism of President Roosevelt!)

The day after the lunch in Oslo, my relative received an anonymous letter saying: "Hitler does not stand for criticism. You have been overheard speaking not in his favor and we warn you, be careful of what you say."

He thought it was a joke. But his companions denied all knowledge of it. The boys decided not to let the incident pass. Knowing no one except the waitress could possibly have heard them, they decided she must be responsible.

That evening they waited outside the restaurant until she came out and then followed her. She went straight to the German consulate. Reporting the affair to the authorities, they learned, later, that sure enough she was a German spy.

The other illustration: One evening a school principal friend of ours, with his wife and their friends, were attending a supper dance. Again the whys and wherefores and who's faults of the war came up for discussion.

A week or so later the principal received a letter saying: "You have been in Germany. Never again. You will be remembered when the time comes. Hitler stands for no criticism."

The letter had a return address in Germany. The principal wrote a hot answer, saying, among other things: "I am a free man in a free country. I can say whatever I please and I am not afraid."

Later he received another envelope containing a photograph of himself, his wife and their friends, taken at the supper dance. An enclosed note said: "See, we know what we are doing. You will be remembered."

Such are the methods of the German secret police as they prepare the way for an onslaught on a peaceful neighbor.—Anne Bratwold in Winnipeg Tribune.

A Letter From Denmark

Sir,—At this time your readers might be interested in the enclosed excerpt from a letter received by my wife from an aunt in Denmark, a former Canadian. This was posted on February 20th and delivered in Montreal on March 26th, and apparently had not been subjected to any censorship.

It would appear from this that even before the German occupation the Dane's lot was not exactly a bed of roses in war time.

Miles O'Reilly.

The letter referred to by Mr. O'Reilly read in part as follows:

"Conditions round about us are so dreadful that anything can happen; what we dread most is to come under Russia, but we don't think that is likely to happen. The next worst thing is to come under Germany, and that is something that can happen. One can't believe that Germany can come out on top. England has so many resources to fall back on, but Germany is strong and has absolutely no regard for human life or for other people's lives. They say over here that in the last war Germany won all the battles but lost the war and we hope it will be the same this time. According to German reports, they inflict dreadful losses on the others and suffer hardly anything themselves; when we listen to the wireless we say when the English reports come — 'Now we will hear the truth.' It is the same with the Russians — such lies as they send out —nobody believes a word of what they say except their own poor people who don't have a chance to hear anything else. How one's heart aches for the people in Finland, yesterday over forty killed by Russian bombs. I read yesterday that out in the country, the people, when they hear the machines in the distance, go out to the churchyard and put on a long white cloak with a hood made of sheets or anything they have that is white( so as to resemble snow) and cast themselves on the ground there where their dear ones are buried, as though they found a little comfort in dying as close to their dear ones as possible. They say that when there is no underground room to take shelter in, then the best thing to do is to lie flat down in an open field. It is marvellous to see how all the world is helping Finland, but they need men and flying machines above all. One is inclined to think that Sweden and Norway should go to Finland's help and if it were only Russia they had to fight it would be another thing but it would likely mean that the rest of Europe would be embroiled and that is an awful thing to contemplate. There are already 30 children from Finland here in Denmark and this week there are around 300 coming, quartered in private houses but in the same neighborhood for they have their own teachers. The Finnish language is very difficult to learn but it won't be long before the children are speaking Danish.

"We are having a very cold winter —snow, and deep snow, has lain on the ground since Christmas and we have had weather around zero for quite a time. Yesterday the thermometer stood just around freezing and today it is down to 18. We are absolutely surrounded by ice, so that one island has no connection with the others except by ice transport or by flying machines..the worst of all is that there is a shortage of fuel, partly on account of the war, but the boats can't get through the ice and have to wait for help from ice breakers. The schools here are closed for two weeks or perhaps longer; only those who are writing their exams have to attend. The church is also closed for a month; services are held in a hall used for meetings. But we feel the pinch also in private houses. We are not allowed to have it warmer than about 65 F. and no warming up of hot water is allowed. Over here nobody gets hot water from their kitchen stoves but from the furnace, and in almost all cases that can be shut off without interfering with the water to the radiators. One misses the hot water tremendously. It makes the work so much easier, and it also makes the gas bill so much higher. Gas costs just a third more than in August and we give nearly three times as much for coke. There is nothing to say to that though, for everything that comes by way of the sea costs a tremendous amount. As yet we don't feel the pinch of war very much; practically everything in the way of food costs a great deal more and all woollen goods are up in price; but those who have motors are rather badly off, for they get so little gas and there is no guarantee that the future will be better or even as good. The Germans are so ruthless and they sink everything without warning. Denmark has lost nearly 300 men at sea, thanks to Germany's brutality. One wonders if the Powers of Darkness are about to be let loose."—Montreal Star.

Pigeons Play Heroic Role

Half a million homing pigeons are being used by the Royal Air Force. Of this number, 2,000 birds are on duty daily with Coastal Command, ready to carry messages from reconnaissance aircraft to their bases when circumstances demand that the radio shall remain silent.

The pigeons often show remarkable tenacity in fighting their way home. One bird released from an aircraft at 13,000 feet in clear weather above a blizzard off the Scandinavian coast, found the altitude uncomfortable.

The pigeon dropped like a plummet to 1,500 feet, at which height it is accustomed to fly. When the bird disappeared into the blizzard below, the pilot of the aircraft gave it up for lost. But three days later the pigeon returned to its base. It had fought its way across the North sea in blinding snow and a roaring northwesterly gale.

Recently another pigeon struggled back to its loft at a Royal Air Force station wounded in the head and wing. It died soon after reaching home.

Unfortunately, this was only one of a number of similar casualties among service pigeons. During the wood-pigeon shooting season, as many as 100 homing pigeons are destroyed every week by inexperienced sportsmen.—London Exchange.

Save the Wild Flowers

It is the season to speak a word for the wild flowers — the flowers that bloom in the Spring.

A patch of trilliums in the woods is a thing of beauty, and for many Springs. A bunch of trilliums pulled by a party of motorists soon becomes wilted and bedraggled, probably never reaches home—and the plants from which they were torn, so we are told, will not bloom the following year.

Wild flowers are better left in their own habitat where all who come may enjoy them. Few of them are well adapttd for cutting as table flowers—they are loveliest in the environment which produces and shelters them, and the lovelier because one must search them out. They lure us off the paved roads in the Spring, into the quiet rural settings where beauty still has a chance to thrive. — St. Catharine Standard.

A Traitor Trapped

It is reported from Stockholm that the Nazis intend to punish Major Vidkun Quizling because he misled them into believing that their invasion of Norway would be "as pleasant and peaceful as a military promenade." The Norwegians and the Allies have dissillusioned the Germans and, if the report be true,—and it would be in keeping with German character if it were,—Quisling is to be quickly taught the lesson of history that treachery is a quicksand which it is easier to enter than to escape.

He may take what consolation he can from the knowledge that he will survive in the English language, for The Times of London has welcomed his name as an addition to the Catalines, Jack Cades and Benedict Arnolds whose treachery has at least served to enrich the English tongue. "To quisle" will be an apt way to characterize the actions of those who betray their oath, as Quisling, an officer, did. "Quisling," as The Times points out, grates on the ear, like most of the "Q" words. He will enjoy the doubtful distinction of being onomatopoeic, like "pushover," the German equivalent of which he undoubtedly used to convince the Nazis that their path in Norway would be flower-strewn. — N. Y. Times.

Ghost Towns of California

(By Temple Manning)

If you want to see the stories of Bret Harte and Mark Twain come to life, then visit the Mother Lode country in California.

The area from Mariposa in the south to Placerville in the north possesses a charm and an interest all its own. We have made the trip many times, but each time, instead of becoming more commonplace, the whole area glows in charm and romance. Here stalked wealth, overnight riches, poverty, despair, tragedy and romance. In this region towns sprouted seemingly overnight, only to crumble into decay as news came of strikes further along.

There comes to mind Hornitos, one of the most interesting and best preserved of California's ghost towns. Having had a population of about 15,000 in the days of '49, it is picturesque in its decay and dilapidation, in its crumbling witnesses of a hectic past. In one of the old saloons facing the "plaza" there is still a clouded mirror over the mahogany bar, dulled since the barkeeper's polishing cloth is no more in use. Faded lithographs remain in place.

Old Dance Hall

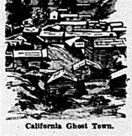
Farther down, on the opposite side of the street, is the Fandango Hall, where joy reigned when the miners came in flush from the "diggins." In the ruins of a dance hall opposite the post office is the opening of a tunnel used by the notorious Joaquin Murieto when escaping from the sheriff's posse. Then there is a two-storey building, the second floor of which housed a church, with a store below. There is an old hotel, the lumber for which was brought by sailing ship around the Horn, then transferred by the river boat to Sacramento and hauled by ox-carts to the site.

At Second Garotte is the cabin of Chafee and Chamberlain, scene of one of Bret Harte's most pathetic stories, "Tennessee's Partner." The town gets its name from the huge misshapen "Hangman Tree" on which, it is said, 60 men were hung. Which gives an idea of what life was like in the hectic days following the rush of '49! Chinese Camp, once inhabited chiefly by Chinese, is now a sleepy little village.



California Ghost Town.

A short distance west of Chinese Camp is a broad plain which was the scene of the ridiculous but quite exciting Chinese War fought between members of opposing tongs. Nearby is Table Mountain, mentioned so frequently in Harte's stories. There's the group of ruined buildings said to be the site of "Poker Flat."

Columbia Interesting

Columbia is a mighty interesting ghost town, so well preserved that the imagination doesn't have to work overtime to people it once more with all the exciting characters of pioneer days. It was already on its way to becoming the second city of California when one of its residents dug up a large nugget in his back yard. Within six weeks its population was doubled, then quadrupled. In 1853 Columbia lost to Sacramento by only two votes for the honor of becoming the state capital. In those days there were faro banks, express offices, stores, bakeries, a printing shop, a stadium for bear and bull fights, and a theatre. St. Anne's Church, built by the miners in 1856 still stands in fine condition on an eminence overlooking the town. On another hill is a little red brick schoolhouse which is said to be the first public school in California.

Explosion, Fires Keep Firemen of London Busy

London, May 6—(CP)—An explosion and two fires early Sunday brought out the combined London fire department and wartime auxiliary fire service in full force.

The blast damaged an underground gas main in Queen Street, endangering nearby buildings. Firemen stood guard for five hours until gas was shut off.

Scores of families were forced from their homes at Stoke Newington, Southeast London, when flames damaged a dance hall. The blaze was extinguished after three hours.

A second fire apparently burned for many hours before it was discovered in a carbon paper factory in southeast London. An adjacent garage housing auxiliary ambulances and a paint works were imperilled by the flames which heavily damaged the factory and drove dozens of families from their homes.

NAZIS MACHINE-GUN BRITISH TRAWLER

London, May 6—(CP)—Twenty-seven men from an unidentified British trawler reported upon being landed by rescuers at a Scottish port Saturday that German planes machine-gunned them for three days before finally sinking their vessel.

The survivors said a Nazi bomber came to the aid of the machine-gunning planes to get in the blow which sunk their craft. The trawler had been working in the vicinity of Andalsnes, Norwegian port abandoned Thursday by the Allies.

ROBBER ATTACKS CHIEF TURNKEY

Sherwood Parsons, Sentenced to Penitentiary, Attacks Bert Donaldson Trying to Break Jail

St. Thomas Ont., May 6 (CP).—Sheriff I. D. Cameron of Elgin County jail will confer here today with Crown Attorney E. W. Haines regarding charges to be laid against Sherwood Parsons, 22, Glanworth, bank robber who attacked the chief turnkey at the jail last night in an alleged escape attempt.

The turnkey, Bert Donaldson, is in hospital with a serious throat injury and multiple bruises.

In a statement, Sheriff Cameron said that while the prisoners were being locked up for the night, Parsons, sentenced last Friday to six years in penitentiary for the armed robbery of a bank branch at Shedden last February, attacked Donaldson.

"Parsons struck the turnkey a heavy blow with his fist and then grabbed him by the throat and endeavored to throttle him," the statement said in part.

Donaldson cried out and Turnkey C. F. Fawcett and Donaldson's wife, who is jail matron, came to his assistance.

"Owing to the fact the necessary keys were in the possession of a second turnkey who remained outside the corridor until assistance had been obtained, there was no opportunity for Parsons accomplishing his purpose and escaping from the jail," Sheriff Cameron said.

The robbery, to which Parsons pleaded guilty, netted him $850, most of which was recovered.

CANADIAN LISTED AMONG MISSING

Sergt. Perry Believed Killed —Flying Officer Templeman Dies of Wounds

London, May 6 — (CP-Cable)—One Canadian, Sergt. G. C. Perry, born at St. Francis, B.C., whose father lives at Revelstoke, was listed Sunday as missing, believed killed, in the Royal Air Force's largest casualty list of this war.

Flying officer P. P. Templeman, of St. John's, Nfld., badly injured when his plane was shot down over a German coastal town last March was listed with those who died of wounds received in action.

The casualty list named 20 killed in action, 26 killed on active service, 12 who died while on active service and 52 who are missing.

The new list brought the totals since the outbreak of war to 238 killed in action, 28 dead of wounds suffered in action, 118 missing and believed killed, 436 killed on active service, 212 who died on active service and 71 who were wounded on active service.

Other totals so far are 39 wounded in action, nine missing and believed to be prisoners, eight known captured and 208 others missing.

TRENTON and DISTRICT

Trenton, May 6 (Special) — All was quiet in Trenton over the week end and the police department hadn't any reports of persons running foul of the law. The rise in temperature on Sunday coupled with the brightness of the day brought the civilian population out into the open and the streets in the afternoon were crowded with young and old alike, enjoying the first real taste of Spring. There was more than the usual amount of activity along the waterfront during the day as boating enthusiasts cleaned up their craft for the summer season. Jimmy Kerr, Jr., and others, who have already launched their boats enjoyed a spin around the harbour and out into the bay.

Laurence Olivier and Joan Fontaine, the romantic duo of David O. Selznick's production of "Rebecca," now at the Belle Theatre, share many strange and melodramatic experiences at Manderley, the scene of this mystery-thriller.

Softball Notes

Six softball teams are patiently awaiting the opening of the Trenton League. The executive has made plans for the forthcoming season and everything is in order for the loop to start off with a great big bang. Two teams are expected from the Air Force, while the Bata Shoe and Wooler will be strongly represented in competition that promises to be even stronger than in past seasons. Graham's and Glen Miller are two of the other outfits the local executive expect to fight for Trenton honors this year. The new president, Jesse Baker, better known as Fire Engineer Baker, predicts a very successful season for the league.

Personals

Mr. James P. Day, recently attached to the International Nickel Police at Sudbury, is visiting with his family, Mrs. Day and daughter June of Trenton.

Mr. Farley Hendricks of Trenton, and William Scarlett of Hamilton, left for Hamilton to work for the summer months after spending a few days here with Mr. Hendricks' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hendricks, York Road. The boys have been attending Knox College, at Toronto.

For the second time within a week the Henry C. Daryaw arrived at the Power's docks on the east side of Trenton carrying a load of United States coal for delivery here. The Daryaw unlike the self-unloaders Coalfax and Coalhaven unloads her cargo with a steam operated scoop.

Trenton golfers took to the Bay View course yesterday when the sun shone warmly here for the first time in several days. The most ardent enthusiasts were among the early birds who found the links in excellent condition for the time of season.

4 AIRMEN HURT AS CAR HITS POLE

R.C.A.F. Members Returning to Trenton, in Accident at Brockville

Brockville, Ont., May 6 (CP)—A car containing five members of the Royal Canadian Air Force returning to Trenton from Montreal struck a pole here Saturday, and four of the airmen were injured. They had been on leave of absence for the weekend.

Harvey Easton, driver of the car, was most seriously injured, but his condition is not considered dangerous. Howard Bourque, Norman Jeffries and Frank Acheston were cut and bruised, while Marsh escaped injury.

CHURCHILL

dence."

Informed sources reported ministerial changes are in the offing. The Times said "the conclusion everywhere has been that there is abundant room for improvement" and declared "the war cabinet is still too large and its meetings attended by too many experts and advisers."

Churchill Overworked

The more important ministers, such as Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, are being overworked, the Times said, adding that the brunt of the attack was falling on Mr. Chamberlain whose "weakness has always been his devotion to colleagues who are either failures or need a rest."

The Manchester Guardian said that by comparison with Germany's "assiduous care" in prosecuting the war "our easy nonchalant methods look like a nursery game of hide-and-seek."

Far-sighted Planning Needed

Praising British bravery under fire, the Guardian declared that "unhappily more than courage is needed in this sophisticated and mechanized world."

"All that courage may be wasted if the nation's policy is ill-directed, imperfectly considered, inspired by small minds, and guided by day-to-day reckoning," it said. "What is needed is a government that can organize the nation's strength, touch its imagination, command its spirit of self-sacrifice, impose burdens fearlessly on all classes, put the war ahead of everything else, and look ahead with cool deliberate courage. Nobody can pretend the government answers to these needs."

The Times editorial said: —

"Deeply disappointing as the withdrawal from southern landings have been to them, and all the more disappointing for certain over-optimistic speeches, of which the ministers themselves were not entirely guiltless, the main permanent effect on the public has been to stiffen their determination to make greater efforts than ever before and to turn them afresh to examing methods by which their determination can best be directed.

"But it is by no means irrelevant to the project of a larger and more important reform growing more and more insistent in the public mind during these last few days which would broaden the whole bases of the government by making it representative of the full strength of parliament and the country.

"If they have doubts about serving with any of the present leaders, then it would be well that they be stated frankly. That labor will be found in the ranks of the government before the war is over is as certain as anything can possibly be. It may be so, as some of them are saying already, that the time has not yet come for so radical a change, but time waits for no man in such a struggle as that to which we have to set our hand. The setback in Norway is happily not a national disaster, but it is a warning and an opportunity.

Norwegian Ministers to Colloborate

"The Norwegian Foreign Minister (Halvdan Koht) and Defence Minister, Col. (Birger) Ljunberg, will now be able to talk over the present situation fully with the British government and arrange with them the general line of future collaboration. The Germans will now presumably try to overrun northern Norway. They can and must be stopped, just as Wellington, with forces far smaller than those opposed to him, stopped Massena from overrunning Portugal in the early stages of the peninsular campaign.

"With seasoned British and French troops is now assembled a contingent of the Norwegian regular army and all may be trusted to give an extremely good account of themselves. There are now in London a number of Norwegian naval and military officers whose advice of terrain and tactics would be invaluable and will no doubt be enlisted."

The Daily Mail said: "The enemy within is not merely the so-called fifth column of Nazi agents, Pacifists and Communists. The dangerous complacency of 'muddle through' minds, flabby traditionalism of the old school tie brigade, the slothful satisfaction of those who say that Germany will crack under the strain—these are the forces that are really undermining our war effort.

"The only sure way to defeat the enemy is to face him with a real war directory, alert to take instant decisions, to organize strokes and counter-strokes, and to accelerate every supply of men and material."

The Daily Telegraph said: "It is clear that the government now owe a duty to a bewildered but tolerant public to give the fullest possible explanation of the circumstances which have led to the present pass in Norway.

"The country has shown there is no desire or intention to condemn the government unheard. . . .

"One thing it does understand clearly is that the failure of the expedition to central Norway was due primarily to the enemy's local superiority in the air.

"It understands further that this superiority is due entirely to the enemy's initial capture of all the available air bases by treachery and subterfuge. But what, then, was the reason for the optimistic speeches by various members of the government during the earlier stages of the campaign?

"It may well be the government have a complete answer to all these and similar questions. It may be that what Mr. Chamberlain has called the enemy's 'long planned, carefully elaborated treachery against an unsuspecting and almost unarmed people' put him at an initial advantage which in the most favorable circumstances it would have been impossible to retrieve. If that is proved to be so, the government will be entitled to escape censure and to enjoy the continued confidence of the public in their conduct of the war."

Says Government Is Weak.

The Manchester Guardian's editorial follows, in part:

"Mr. Chamberlain spoke (in the House last week) as if it (the Norwegian campaign) had only to be considered as a profit and loss account between the Allies and Germany—as if the fate of Norway and our prestige in the neutral world mattered little.

"If we look back over those eight months, with problem after problem mismanaged or neglected, with speech after speech revealing the same lack of grasp and imagination, we are driven to the conclusion that we are facing the greatest crisis in our history with the government weaker than any government that has made war since Addington (Henry Addington, Viscount Sidmouth, Prime Minister from 1801 to 1804) faced Napoleon.

"The comparison of the government's trivial handling of such questions as munitions, unemployment, taxation, nutrition, agriculture and evacuation with the scale of the stupendous task on our hands is enough to show that there is something wrong with the government's view of its duty."

Describing the German threat, the Guardian said: "Never in the history of the world was so much time, energy, intelligence and will concentrated on one subject—that of establishing the power of a system by ruthless force and universal intrigue.

"That is the leviathan against which we are struggling. Would anybody looking at our manner of life and work and comparing it with France, our ally, or Germany, our enemy, imagine that we were engaged in such a life and death struggle

Courage May Be Wasted.

"All our courage may be wasted if the nation's policy is ill-directed, imperfectly considered, inspired by small minds, guided by a narrow day-to-day reckoning.

"What is needed is a government that can organize the nation's strength, touch its spirit of imagination, its spirit of self sacrifice, impose burdens fearlessly on all classes, put the war before everything else, look ahead with cool and deliberate courage. Nobody can pretend that the government answers to these needs. Nor is that all.

"We want a government that can convince the neutral world that its aims are generous and that it lacks neither the will nor the courage to assume with tenacity and resolution its task of defeating this tyranny. Every neutral knows now that the promise of friendship from Germany is one of the sure signs of early invasion by German armies. We are in danger of making the neutral world conclude that when we promise our protection it is half a promise that will be withdrawn if the circumstances are too difficult. The government has never shaken itself free of the atmosphere of prudence and timidity in which it lived before the war—its level of thinking and planning is still the level of the small, unimaginative mind."

Complacency Dangerous

The News Chronicle said: "We France and Great Britain reject Hitler's extravagant optimism. We are only justified in doing so if we frankly recognize the tremendous efficiency of Germany's war machine, if we make sure of active and enterprising leadership, and if we set out forthwith to mobilize our full war potential. This underestimation of the enemy and the complacency to which it has given rise is the only error which could lead us to eventual defeat. Parliament has a very responsible task this week of exercising the spirit of complacency and demanding a radical overhaul of our war direction."

In London diplomatic circles it was said that Nazi propaganda is capitalizing on Germany's Norwegian successes and making increasingly difficult Britain's task of organizing neutral nations to resist Nazi intrigue.

These sources declare two points are being driven home to neutrals by German propagandists. One is that Britain and France allegedly lack planes capable of overcoming the Nazi air force and have found imports from the United States insufficient for their immediate needs. Second is the alleged inability of Britain's leaders to deal speedily and effectively with Nazi strokes on either the military or diplomatic fronts.

Recognition of this tendency is reflected abundantly in the British Press which, according to the Sunday Times, is looking to the House of Commons tomorrow as a "grand inquest of the nation," with hope that the House will "prove equal to its responsibilities."

Neutrals in Doubt

Diplomatic observers and members of parliament declared the government would defend the Norwegian campaign on the basis that speedy Nazi seizure of Norwegian airdromes left the Allies without air bases and with a marked inferiority in the air, even before a bomb was dropped.

"This may satisfy the British," said one diplomat whose nation borders on Germany, "but will it satisfy my country or Holland? If a neutral is to line up with the Allies it must have some guarantee that the supreme war council can act with foresight and imagination."

Norway's foreign minister, Dr. Halvdan Koht, advised his invaded nation to have faith in the Allies, however, and said in a broadcast that the Allies are honor-bound to give Norway the "full aid" promised her.

Koht, with Defence Minister Birger Ljungberg, came to London after landing at a Scottish port from a warship. In his broadcast, addressed to Norway, Koht declared he would go to Paris for further consultations and then back to Norway where King Haakon and his government are in refuge.

Observers believed Britain's task in southeastern Europe would be increasingly difficult. The Balkans were understood to be uneasy over the slow start of "Enco," the newly organized British trading corporation. Sources close to the foreign office continued to remind these nations that "Enco" is based on a long-term policy.

Britain's trade with Sweden has disappeared, although foreign office circles say Britain is eager and ready to continue but Sweden has no free outlet, since Swedish ports are on German-controlled waters.

Feeling Hardens Over Week

In evening newspaper comment, the Evening News said "feeling hardened over the week" and the "man in the street is asking who will be the next Prime Minister."

"Blind optimism" and "miscalculation of German aims, daring and efficiency have cost Norway her liberty, damaged Britain's reputation throughout the world and inflicted on this country one of the worst humiliations in its history," the News declared.

"Can we ever trust this government again? On the evidence before us at present the answer is an emphatic 'no.'

"It is not after the German invasion but before that we failed," said the Evening Standard, owned by Lord Beaverbrook. "We can only recapture neutral opinion if we make it evident that the same shall never happen again."

The Star, London's third evening paper, said "three or four alternative cabinets could be drawn up."

"Bitter experience in the last war taught us that an inner cabinet is necessary for making swift decisions and securing unity of direction and flexibility of method", it added.

HER MAJESTY AND A TRAYFUL OF DEATH

Queen Elizabeth leans across a table loaded with tracer shells to chat with a girl munition worker, while King George, in military uniform, takes a closer look at one of the death-dealing projectiles during their visit to a factory where the sinews of war are manufactured for Britain. Tracer shells are so called because their flight may be traced at night by a burning device that leaves a plain trail.

WHITE LEAD Lasts!

Why not make this year your "Big Moment"?

Business is Good, Thanks— so you'll get plenty for your old car and more in your new one at your Buick dealer's

Above is the McLaughlin-Buick SPECIAL 4-door touring sedan

WE'RE talking here to those thousands who have not yet achieved a lifetime ambition. That is to say, they don't yet own a McLaughlin-Buick.

We want to point out a few facts about the Buick SPECIAL pictured here—show how it opens the door on a golden opportunity.

Step into this sleek sweetheart. Your treadle foot touches off a trigger-quick Dynaflash straight-eight engine that's just about the smoothest thing that runs, thanks to micro-poised-balancing after assembly.

Swing through the gear changes and you find the same easy, finger-flick shifting as in the most costly Buick. And the same recoil-mounted Knee-Action soaking up bumps before they reach your hand on the steering wheel. Take a rough road in stride. You'll find that stout BuiCoil Springs muffle out the bumps—and they never need lubrication.

Look out through the easy-vision Safety Glass in every window. Check up on the equipment: Two-Way Direction Signal with automatic cut-off, built-in automatic choke, high-capacity water pump—they're all there.

And, when you count in the included equipment, the SPECIAL costs little more than some sixes with lower advertised prices.

So look into the Buick SPECIAL and "step up" to the car you've always wanted.

You can take a trial drive any time just by asking your Buick dealer.

"Best buy's Buick!"

The Stars Say

For Tuesday, May 7

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

PROGRESS, prosperity and generally propitious circumstances may be looked for on this day, judging by the lunar and mutual aspects. It is a time for promoting projects of a novel, revolutionary and unhackneyed character, which will attract the attention of superiors, especially in large corporations, or where the influence of political, diplomatic or secret organizations is desired. Strategy or intrigue may be factors in connection with group action. Professional advancement in many directions is under excellent auspices, as are social aims.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of great promise, with progress and advancement in many new directions. Fresh or novel ideas, even though radically different from old methods, will attract the attention of superiors, progressive organizations and forward-looking groups. Political or fraternal influence is assured, and the professions are in line for outstanding recognition and preferment. Likewise, social innovations will prove attractive and lucrative. Push to high goals of originality and independent creations or plans.

A child born on this day may have outstanding constructive ability in new, fresh and untried fields, especially in all concerning professional skill or originality. Progress is assured through superiors and high influence.

WATCH PRESENTED TO SERGT. WM. LINDSAY

Tangible tribute to a popular soldier, comrade and friend was paid on Saturday night by members of the 34th Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery, and a group of friends when they presented Sergeant "Bill" Lindsay, now with an anti-tank unit in Kingston, with a handsome watch in the mess-room of the battery headquarters on Church Street.

Sergeant Lindsay, who was formerly the popular battery sergeant-major of the famous "34th" was taken completely by surprise, but thanked his friends with an appropriate reply. Apparently chafing at the delay in the mobilization of his unit, Sergeant Lindsay, together with other members of the battery, enlisted in active units for service overseas. He expects to leave for England within the near future.

Fitting Hat to Your Hair

LUPE VELEZ . . . her new bonnet suits her well-groomed coiffure.

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHICH comes first, hat or coiffure? They go hand and hand, are jolly good pals, if Pity Sing is to appear adorable. One may find a heavenly lid, have to wreck the hair dress and build a new one, so as to have it conform. Again, if the hair-do is the only one that suits the individual, then a-hat-hunting she must go, with grim purpose in her eye to get the bonnet that makes her tops in her own social circle.

That hats have never been so demented as during the last year we all know. Men have had a swell time growling about them. But they have recovered their senses somewhat. We have hats with brims which are more flattering than the tabloid pancake or the monkey pill box—something for which to be thankful.

Coiffures are whimsical, but they are also piquant and youthufl. What more can any heart desire? As for millinery, sailors are a boon to the tall girl, poke bonnets are romantic on the pint-size baby. Flower chapeaux provide an air of gayety. There isn't so much displaying of rear tresses, and that's a help. They got scrambled in the wind and looked untidy.

If your spring hat is a side-tiler, be sure to fill in with rolls or ringlets. Nice to sport hirsute decorations that give softness to the complexion.

Pale gums should have the attention of the dentist. It is possible that tartar has formed beneath them and is causing trouble. Poor circulation is another cause. After brushing the teeth, put some dentifrice on the fingers, give the gums a two-minute massage. Using salt on a soft-bristled toothbrush brings a favorable reaction. The tiny crystals rouse the blood vessels.

Harsh treatment with the brush of heavy bristles will cause the gums to recede. They do that anyway with advancing years. Why help along the ghastly business? Sweep the bristles away from the flesh, never toward it.

American Mothers Committee Stresses Wholesome Sentiment In Choice of 1940's "Ideal Mother"

When the American Mothers Committee of the Golden Rule Foundation awarded the title of "American Mother for 1940" to Mrs. Charles H. Mayo of Rochester, Minnesota, widow of Doctor Mayo, co-founder of the famous Mayo Clinic, there were hosanas throughout the land. Mrs. Mayo is indeed an "American mother who is representative of the best there is in womanhood, the voice of inarticulate millions of mothers throughout the nation."

Mrs. Mayo will be invested with her title on Mothers' Day, Sunday, May 12, in connection with the Foundation's program, "The Golden Rule Way To Observe Mothers' Day."

Not only should we sing a hymn of praise to the Golden Rule Foundation for its ideal choice of Mrs. Mayo as an ideal mother, but we should, I think, congratulate this discriminating committee for its achievement in emphasizing the real sentiment rather than the maudlin sentimentality of Motherhood and Mothers' Day.

Dignity and nobility are in every word of the requirements set forth by the committee for its award of the title "American Mother for 1940." There is expressed the ideal of what a mother should be in order to be the perfect standard-bearer for her children and for "the millions of mothers throughout the nation."

A grand and abiding ideal of Motherhood shines forth in the mature and thoughtful words of these requirements on which the choice of "American mother" is based. No appeal to or catering to sentimentality in the words, no twaddle, nothing gushing or affected, nothing namby-pamby.

The phrases that set forth this ideal should be the theme-song of every Mothers' Day observance:

"First: 'The American Mother for 1940" must be a successful mother, as evidenced by the character and achievement of her individual children;

Second: She must embody those traits most highly regarded in mothers: courage, moral strength, patience, affection, kindness, understanding, and homemaking ability;

Third: She must have a sense of social and world relationships, and must have found time outside her home in work for her own comcommunity betterment or in some other service for public benefit;

Fourth: She should be equipped by nature to make friends readily and to meet people easily in connection with her duties as the American mother."

Mrs. Mayo measures up magnificiently to all of these requirements. She and her husband had eight children and adopted two children. That she is a "successful mother" is "evidenced by the character and achievement" of her five living children and her two adopted children. Before she was married she served as a nurse, and after she was married to the famous surgeon, she always shared his interest in his great work. This indeed was a "service for public betterment."

As a devoted wife, as an ideal mother, as an ideal citizen of her community and of the world, Mrs. Mayo richly deserves the honor of being chosen "American Mother of 1940."

LOST OVERBOARD CROSSING ATLANTIC

Montreal, May 6—(CP) — The Canadian Pacific steamships reported today David Butchart of Glasgow, 68-year-old former master mechanic with the International Nickel Company at Sudbury, Ont., was lost overboard during an Atlantic crossing.

Butchart, who had given his destination as Copper Cliff, Ont., was seen last during the evening of May 1, when he was treated for a swollen upper lip by the ship's surgeon, under whose care he had been for a couple of days.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

He Can't Make Up His Mind About Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

After the date of our marriage had been put off time and time again and my fiance had been laid off from his job, I became very discouraged. Still he said we should keep on planning, though our marriage date has passed.

We had planned to go West and I want to tell my friends, but he will not consent to have me talk about it.

The other night I could stand this uncertainty no longer, and I asked him if he really wanted to get married, or was I rushing him too much? He said he'd like to marry me, but if I didn't urge him he would probably just keep putting it off. I don't know what to think. Is it natural for anyone to be so undecided about a thing as important as marriage? We love each other, but I don't know what to do. Shall I keep on planning?

Confused

Very often women marry men of the type you describe and find themselves up against conditions in which they have to take the initiative. For a purposeful independent woman (the type is sometimes called bossy) it might not be a bad arrangement, particularly if the woman has money or the ability to make it. But for the average woman to marry a man who just lets things drift, and is spineless, the arrangement does not promise happiness.

"A.D. 1700" Type of Mother Wants Advice

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My children say I'm about 1700 A.D. in my point of view. Is it correct for a nice girl to ride with her boy friend on a motorcycle, which has no side-car? Neither of them drink or smoke.

Old-Fashioned Mother

To my way of thinking, it's a question of safety rather than of propriety, which you ask. In reading over the list of accidents, which overtake young people, one connot help but wish that there were more of these 1700 A.D. mothers, who would at least warn their youngsters, in advance, of danger.

Is it O.K. for Classmates to Exchange Gifts at Commencement?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a high school senior, and would like to know if it is good form for classmates in graduating to exchange gifts at commencement time.

L. B.

So many inquiries have come in about this question that it might be a good idea to expand the inquiry a little. It's not only good form but a very nice thing to remember classmates, who have become warm friends, at commencement with some inexpensive gift. If you happen to be a boy and the student you wish to favor is a girl, please don't give presents like expensive jewelry, especially if you're paying for them on time. Complications are likely to result. You may have even some idea of an engagement, in the back of your mind. Please remember, in all likelihood, it will be some time before you can afford to marry. You may like someone better after class days are over and you do not see your inamorata every day.

Under these circumstances, it's a pretty dreary experience to keep on paying for a diamond ring for instance. This question has come up so often in letters to this column that I think a word to the wise, and also the young, is in order.

Books are safe to give, leather appointments for desks, photograph frames, compacts, handkerchiefs, manicure sets. But please lay off diamonds.

More About Sore Throat

There are many so-called "cures" for sore throat, but I haven't much faith in them.

Some doctors recommend painting the affected part of the throat with argyrol or some other solution. I know this often makes the patient feel better for a while, but I am not so sure that it does much directly to clear up the trouble.

Gargling with aspirin has long been regarded as a great help in cases of sore throat. Yet there are many medical men who oppose gargling a sore throat at all. They claim that it is better in the end to let the throat rest.

Sometimes honey, or soothing syrups will make a throat feel better especially if there is a cough accompanying the sore throat, but it cannot be claimed these have a curative value.

I have long thought that the best way to treat a sore throat was from the outside. Cold compresses are good, so are hot ones. Often a mild mustard plaster will relieve the congestion in the throat. Actually the best "cure" of all is of course, prevention—plenty of fresh air, proper food, lots of rest, and, of course, cod liver oil during fall and winter.

Usually, sore throats are not so dangerous, but every now and then we hear of someone dying of streptococcal throat. This is when the infection is caused by the very virulent organism known as streptococcus. It can result in tonsillitis, laryngitis, or pharyngitis—or in all three of them together.

The Dionne Quintuplets once suffered from this dangerous infection, and caused us all to lose plenty of sleep. The infection was centred in their tonsils which were bad. The obvious thing to do was take the tonsils out, but we had to wait until the girls' health was good enough to let us operate. We would just build them up to a point where we felt they were nearly ready, and they would take sick with colds and sore throats again, and we would lose all the ground we had gained.

Finally in August 1938 there came a real crisis. The Quints, every one, had serious attacks of "strep" throats. Some of them were so ill, they were unconscious. Emilie was almost gone. We knew we couldn't wait much longer, so in November we operated and took out those tonsils. The five of them haven't had a bad cold since. Before that they had three or four bad attacks a year.

While on the subject of tonsils there are two or three interesting facts you might like to know. In each tonsil there are sixteen to eighteen crypts or cavities. If small particles of food get lodged in these crypts, poisoning may set in. This can lead to rheumatism, neuritis, arthritis, and a host of other diseases. Enlarged tonsils aren't always a sign of this trouble. Quite often small tonsils cause more trouble than big ones because the trouble is harder to locate.

In these crypts too, some people carry germs of disease. I have known persons to carry diphtheria in this way. They don't get down with the disease themselves, but they spread from person to person as they go.

In recent years some men have practised "burning" tonsils out. I can't say that I am in favor of it. I think the proper way to have tonsils removed—if they are diseased, is to have them cut out.

“Lover Come Back”

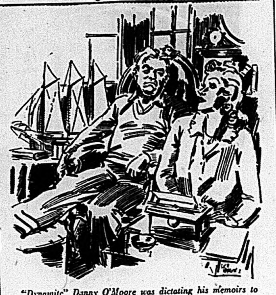
by BARRETT WILLOUGHBY



“Dynamite” Danny O'Moore was dictating his memoirs to Sondra, his granddaughter.

CHAPTER ONE

“Four bells struck. The black squall lifted. And divil split me if there, upwind to port, isn't that gunboat, Falcon, again. And she bearin' down to cut us off, with her crew boilin' out to her for'ard guns.”

The disembodied brogue rolled out from an open window of Echo House. The old log mansion, built when Alaska was called “Russian America”, perched high on an islet off one end of Sitka's waterfront; and on the quiet air of the Sabbath morning the words carried distinctly to the sunny docks below.

“Wham! A shot skips across our bows. Wham! Another rips the belly of our upper main-tops'l. Old Ramps Reynall was hell-bent to get me this time. Me only chance was to square away and high-tail it for one of me secret hide-outs among the Aleutian Islands.

“'All hands — stand by to wear ship!' I sings out. Not one of me crew stirs a foot. I whirls on me mate—a black a-vised Ulsterman he was, with a bloody orange streak where his spine should have been. 'Get your men movin', mister.'

“He hunches his bull shoulders and growls, 'The men have no mind to be blown to Davy Jones, Cap'n. And neither have I. Order 'em to lay-to and they'll obey fast enough.'

“'Lay-to?' I roars. 'And let a U.S. gunboat board the Glory of the West—with five thousand fresh seal pelts in our hold? Lose trip and ship and face a federal prison for takin' seals that's as much ours as any man's?'

“Faith, they swarmed to their stations like monkeys up a tree. The Falcon misses us with a third shot. 'Look alive, ye white-livered sculpins! Starboard braces—slack away! Hard-a-port, ye lubbers! Hard o-v-e-r!'

“The Glory tosses her head to loo-'ard, spins on her heel, and, light as a butterfly skimmin' a rose, goes flyin' before the wind.”

On the waterfront below strangers listened, open-mouthed, to the strong hued phrases permitted on what they took to be a radio program. But fishermen of the O'Moore herring fleet—anchored almost under the promontory on which Echo House stood—glanced up, grinning. They knew it was the boss up there in the big bay window—old Captain “Dynamite” Danny O'Moore, housebound by a broken leg sustained during his last spree. He was dictating his memoirs to Sondra, his spirited, redheaded granddaughter, recently returned from Stanford University.

Newcomers declared it scandalous that lovely Sondra Karmanova O'-Moore, descendent of one of Sitka's illustrious founders, should have to listen to the old Irish sea buzzard's language, much less take it down on a typewriter. But residents of pioneer ancestry held other views. O'-Moore might not be a gentleman in the same way all the aristocratic Karmanovas had been gentlemen, they conceded, but as an adventurer and a successful businessman, he was worthy of admiration and respect.

Moreover, he had proved his loyalty to Sitka less than two years ago when he had retired from an executive desk in the Seattle office of a coastwise steamship company. With money enough to end his days in luxurious idleness in any pleasure spot of the world, he had chosen to return to the ancestral home of his Russian wife and found a new business—O'Moore Seiners, Ltd., which had already revolutionized herring fishing in Alaska.

Last, and most important of all, he had, some fifty years ago, married Sondra's grandmother. The ceremony made him one of them; and as such he could do no wrong.

Oldsters still told with relish how young Dynamite Danny O'Moore had wooed the panniered, wasp-waisted heiress of Echo House. Twenty-five years old then, and the daredevil master of the pelagic sealer Triton, he had been sailing in across the bay when his binoculars brought close the golden beauty of Tanya Karmanova. She, just returned home from a southern convent school, was leaning from an open arch in the cupola that topped the wide roof of Echo House, her opera glasses trained on his incoming ship. He had tossed her an impudent kiss. When she promptly retired from sight giving no sign, he, as promptly, had brought his vessel to anchor below her windows. And there he had stayed until, with the fine-colored words and beguiling ways that were his, he had won and married her.

It had taken him five days.

The romance lived in Sitka's memory, not because of its swift culmination, but because of the previous love affair that had flamed for O'Moore before he ever laid eyes on Tanya Karmanova. It was when he was still master of the Glory of the West and making his first raids on Alaska seal herds that he had found frequent excuses for bringing his notorious vessel to anchor in Sitka Bay. He made no secret of the fact that the magnet which drew him was dashing, dark-eyed Jacqueline Reynall.

The headlong love affair that developed between the daughter of Captain Ramps Reynall, terror of seal poachers, and Danny O'Moore, king of pelagic sealers, had set the whole coast talking.

Then, just as a wedding seemed imminent, something had happened. What it was no one had ever yet found out. But O'Moore ceased to visit Sitka. A year passed.

When O'Moore again dropped anchor at Sitka, he was master of a new fast schooner, the Triton. He tarried only long enough to win and marry blonde young Tanya, of Echo House. Immediately after the wedding, Miss Jacqueline set off alone on the first of those cruises which had so often since taken her around the world.

x x

“. . . So, with the Falcon on me tail, I lays me a course for a blind-mouthed harbor where no white man but meself would dare take anything bigger than a ship's gig.”

The deep-rolling bells of St. Michael's, announcing the end of the Sunday Liturgy, blended suddenly with the disembodied voice. It was a brief duet which seemed to be expressing the very entities of Echo House and the old log cathedral, both bits of nineteenth-century Russia transplanted to the western world when Alaska was the domain of a Tsar.

Echo Islet, no greater in area than a city block, was linked to one end of the waterfront by a short stone causeway. On its high flat top the old house squatted, massive and square and weather-silvered amid mountain-ash trees that had been shaped by wild sea winds. The windows commanded a four-way sweep—forested mountains, the little gray village, and the island-dotted bay that led to the open Pacific.

The hewn-log house, with its fine old furnishings, was a monument to those golden days when the town was this continent's most important port for trading vessels in the Pacific Ocean. Sondra O'Moore's great-great-grandfather had built it—the “Very Honorable” Michael Andreevich Karmanova, one-time Commander in the Imperial Navy of his Russian Majesty, Nicholai I.

“. . . Came a grindin' bump as the Glory's keep scraped barnacles off the reef. 'Climb that wheel, ye gum-booted, bean-bellied son of a sea bass—'”

The break in dictation made a sudden calm in the upstairs sitting room where Captain O'Moore sat beside a table on which stood a beautiful little model of the Glory of the West. Chair and table were placed in a spacious bay window facing west, so that a turn of the captain's head to right and left brought under his eyes not only the waterfront, but the bay and the ocean beyond. The veteran shipmaster, medium-sized, sturdy, and immaculate in gray flannels, had a sound, clean look. Even with his leg in a cast resting on a hassock straight before him, he wore the air of one born to command. His clean shaven face was lined but not wrinkled, under a swept-back thatch of silver hair. His fine nose had a quirk in it—memento of some youthful battle. His mouth was quizzically humorous. Only in his penetrating blue eyes lay a hint of the indomitable will and shrewdness which had made him a power in the shipping circles of the west.

“Son of a sea bass,” prompted Sondra's low, vibrant voice. She glanced up from her typewriter. Her small head, held proudly, was covered with short silky curls that glinted golden-auburn in the sun. Her eyes were the kind Russians call “mermaid eyes” — clear gray-green under dark lashes that turned up a little at the ends. “Go on, lamb.”

The captain, who had turned to look at something out of the window, suddenly reached back for his marine glasses and focused them on the waterfront.

Sondra rose and looked out. There, on the wharf, a group of workingmen stood listening to a tall woman whose high-headed air and commanding gestures brought a cry of surprise from Sondra.

“Surely, that can't be . . .”

She caught up her own glasses and brought the woman's figure close. White hair; dark arrogant face; rakish felt hat and tweeds in the latest mode. “But it is! Dynamite, it's old Miss Jacqueline Reynall. She must have come in by plane last night. What in the world do you suppose brought her home without a word of warning, after two years in Florida?”

The captain snapped “No concern of ours!” and shoved the binoculars back on the table. “Come, let's have a look at what you've been writin'. Step lively, confound it! Step lively!”

CHAPTER TWO

Dynamite had a way of turning crusty at the mention of Miss Jacqueline's name that made Sondra lose patience with him. But by the time she returned to the window with the manuscript her temper was gone. She felt again that wondering anticipation of the unknown which the advent of Miss Jacqueline never failed to arouse in her. Something was going to happen. Something always did happen when that proud and arrogant spinster returned from her wanderings to her big white house on Tea Garden Hill.

Sondra realized, obscurely, that what really stirred her was Miss Jacqueline's connection with Jean Reynall, a slim, dark boy who had been the hero of her childhood. His father was Miss Jacqueline's foster son, adopted in an era when maiden ladies did not go in for that sort of thing. But with her customary disdain of public opinion, Miss Jacqueline had come back from one of her very early cruises carrying the infant in her arms. She had reared him successfully, put him through Annapolis, and when he, a lieutenant commander, died soon after the world war, she had brought home his orphaned son, Jean, eleven years old.

Sondra was only five at the time, yet she remembered vividly everything that had to do with Jean Reynall. Their first meeting occurred one morning on the snowy street in front of the old log Cathedral of St. Michael. She was on her way to kindergarten, with the fat Creole housekeeper Polena, going ahead to sweep snow from her path, when the new boy had overtaken them, dragging a red sled. “Hello, little girl!” He had a friendly, eager voice. Won't you let me haul you to school?”

Polena, whirling on him with broom upraised, shouted: “Get away from us, you Reynall rascal! How dare you speak to an O'Moore?”

“Jean!” a crisp voice cut in. And there stood Miss Jacqueline, tall, silver-haired, wrapped in mink furs; her Japanese cook behind her with a market basket. “Come with me, Jean. Let this child proceed.”

The boy raised his mittened hand saluting authority, but stood his ground. Sondra flung herself flat on the sled clutching its edges. “I won't proceed!” she yelled. “I want to ride with this boy.” Indians and whites gathered in a grinning circle about them. With each attempt Polena made to drag her off, Sondra yelled and kicked more vigorously. Finally Miss Jacqueline snapped, “Stubborn brat. Just like her old grandfather.” And turning, she swept arrogantly through the spectators, who respectfully made way for her.

Sondra stopped in the middle of a howl to look up and smile at the waiting boy. He grinned back at her. Then, with a triumphant shout, he pranced forward between the ropes of the sled. Polena waddled behind, shaking her broom and cursing in Russian.

Sondra had never forgotten Jean's eyes, as he kept looking back at her. They were dark blue, brilliant, and slightly tilted at the outer corners; and even at the age of five she was aware that they regarded her with complete approval.

“Dynamite, honey,” she said aloud. “Do you remember Jean Reynall?”

A violent rustling of manuscript was the only answer.

“Last spring I came near meeting him again, after all these years. A bunch of us from Stanford had gone up to a Yacht Club affair in San Francisco. The Mermaid was in—that swanky big yacht Doran, the tobacco king, plays around in. Just back from a world cruise, she was, with Jean Reynall as sailing master. The papers were full of the story—how the engines had gone haywire in a typhoon, or whatever they have in the China Sea; and how 'Lucky' Jean Reynall, with engines dead, had sailed her clear across the Pacific and in to the Yacht Harbor at San Francisco. Made a passage that compared favorably with the best records of old-time clippers, too. A wonderful achievement for a master so young and . . .”

“'Master,' me eye! exploded the captain. “'Tis a yachtsman, ye mean. Varnish and gingerbread-work and stinkin' oil-burners to shove him along on his course with as little deviation as a trolley car. Reynall's but a rich man's cabin boy with gold braid on his sleeves—and the divil's own luck. What can the likes of such know about real sail?”

Sondra shrugged. “Search me. I didn't meet the salty lad. We waited for him to show up until the very last, but . . .”

“What's that? Ye, an O'Moore, waited to meet a Reynall? Take shame on ye, girl! I'll have no more of that, mind. No more, d'ye hear? . . . Humph! . . . Sent him to school to make a sea captain of him, did she? Meself, I came up to the bridge through the hawsepipes, and usin' me two fists all the way. At his age, young woman, I'd had me master's papers eight years, and command of the Glory for two of 'em; and she a pelagic sealer in the Bering competin' with the toughest . . .”

“Stop shouting at me!” Sondra faced him. “I think it's perfectly silly—the way you blow up whenever a Reynall is mentioned. Furthermore, Dynamite, I won't be dictated to in my personal affairs.”

They glared at each other, looking oddly alike for a moment. Then Sondra, with her gift for putting herself in another's place, all at once felt the pathos of him sitting there beside the still, miniature Glory, and he crippled, with the years upon him. No more would he know the rare, wild taste of salt spray on his lips. No more know the splendor of being young and the master of a swift, tall ship.

With a repentant little cry she ran to him and, dropping to her knees, threw her arms about him. “Oh, lamb, I'm sorry! I'm brutal to you. I deserve to be put in irons.” She burrowed her bright head against his chest, holding him to her in a passion of protective love and contrition.

The captain tightened his arm about her and cleared his throat. “There, there, darlin.” Sure, 'twas meself that was too short with ye. I didn't mean it, Sondy. Not altogether, ye understand.”

A moment later, with their arms about each other, they were rocking back and forth, laughing uproariously.

Presently she said, “Now that it's fair weather again, skipper, how's about splicing the main brace? A hot snifter of buttered rum, maybe?”

“Hop to it, baby. Hop to it.”

Sondra came to her feet and crossed to a high Javanese chest near the door, where the captain kept his finest liquors.

She called down an old-fashioned speaking tube and ordered a jug of boiling water. While she waited, her hands busy with bottles and a toddy mug, her mind returned to Jean Reynall. During the years of his absence their brief childhood friendship had lived vividly in her memory. Without being really conscious of it, his was the figure on which she had modeled all her dreams of romance and adventure.

It was only since her return from Stanford that she had become sophisticated enough to tell herself. “Forget your dreams, Sondra O'Moore. You'd better say 'yes' to Kemp Starbuck the next time he asks you to marry him. He's young and kind. He's devoted. You like the same things. You have fun together.”

Yet, she never could quite bring herself to say “yes” to Kemp.

CHAPTER THREE

Sondra liked to remember the period which followed her first ride on the little red sled—how Jean, despite Polena's dire threats, had persisted in seeking her. He had discovered her favorite playground in the garden back of Echo House and, each afternoon, he had beached his canoe on the shingle below and climbed the slope to join her.

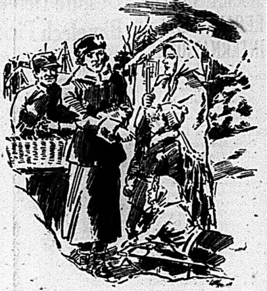
When, eventually, Polena discovered them and ordered Jean off, the two had met on the beach near the Echo Islet end of the causeway. There Jean told her real stories of strange lands his naval officer father had visited—lands which, he declared, he and she would see together when he grew up and became a sea captain.

Often their best grown-up friend joined them—John Winthrop, the Forest Man from the Place of Trees: the Forest Man, tall and serene, with golden hair and a golden beard. He was a young man, despite his beard, and, in his quiet way, a merry companion full of fascinating information about everything—especially about animals and birds and creatures that live in the sea.

It was on the last afternoon the three ever spent together that the Forest Man told them of the strange acoustic properties of the cupola, which had given Echo House its name.

He had pointed out a pair of islets more than a mile across the bay. In the channel between those two, he said, anyone in a boat might speak in an ordinary tone, and the words could be heard distinctly in the cupola, but nowhere else. The Forest Man was in the middle of this when Polena charged down on them with fists shaking and wide skirts billowing in the wind. “Away with you, you Reynall pest!” she shouted.

Jean, turning from the approaching wrath, had shaken her small hand with quaint, unhurried formality. “Good-bye, Sunny. We can't play together any more. But—I can talk to you. Tonight, at eight, you be in the cupola. The Forest Man will show me where to find the talking spot. I'll speak to you then across the water. It will be fun. I'll speak to you every night when the weather is fair.”



Miss Jacqueline snapped, “Stubborn brat. Just like her old grandfather.”

There was magic in that evening, and in all the evenings thereafter, when she stood in the cupola, her feet on a box to make her tall enough to look out over the sill of the open arch. Magis, too, in the sound of that boyish voice coming over the water, telling her of adventures and youthful plans. And he had a secret way of informing her when other boats came so close to the “talking spot” that he dared not speak at all. He sang a verse of a Thlinget song he had learned from native fishermen; selected not because the words held any meaning for either of them, but because the air was beautiful and wild and haunting.

Sondra hummed, as she measured a pony of rum:

Wild geese cry, flying high,
Where silver spruce and hemlock sigh.
The campfire's glow lifts high,
drops low.
My heart goes out to you.

What innocents they were, she and Jean, not to know that it was a love song! But, of course, she was only seven when he went south to school. Miss Jacqueline had shipped him off so suddenly one day that he hadn't even a chance to tell her good-bye. She had never seen him or heard from him since. He had forgotten her long ago; but—

“Sondy!” bellowed the captain. “Have ye gone to sleep on your feet?”

“Why, no, lamb. I have to wait for hot water to—oh, here it comes.”

Fat, white-haired Polena waddled in through the opening door. Behind her came Kemp Starbuck, a tawny-haired young man who held his well-proportioned figure in a way that made him seem much taller than he was. He had a package under his arm, and in one hand the steaming jug he was carrying for the old housekeeper.

“Hi, Kemp!” Sondra advanced to take the jug. “I thought you were off up the coast on business.”

“Got back not an hour ago.” His words were casual but his brown eyes rested on her face, warm and eager and approving. Then he turned to the captain with a half-salute. “How are you today, sir?”

O'Moore cocked an eye toward the rum bottle. “Dry, but hopeful, me boy. Sit down and join me in a drop o' the dew.”

“Thank you, I will. That reminds me—” Kemp stripped the wrapping from his package and set before the captain a squat stone jug sealed with stamped wax.

“Saki, of the Imperial Seal!” breather O'Moore reverently. “Heaven bless ye, lad! I haven't laid an eye on any of that since 1905, when Admiral Togo sent me a gallon with his compliments—and he just after confiscatin' the cargo of cotton I was tryin' to get through the blockade at Vladivostok.”

Kemp listened with quiet attention to the recital of that episode. Sondra had often said, laughingly, that he was the most inspiring listener in the world. In his contacts with everyone, from waterfront roustabouts to the president of the Sitka bank, his air of sincere interest stimulated men to talk volubly and frequently with brilliance on many subjects. Yet, once or twice Sondra had felt it wasn't the urbane, courteous Kemp she knew who listened; but a secret self he kept hidden from the world. It was a silly idea, she knew, but it was the guarded self of this young president of the American Packers that most often piqued her interest.

“Need any help, Sondra?” Kemp had made his way to her side.

“Could use. Pop a lump of butter into each of those mugs, Kemp.”

He stood shoulder-to-shoulder with her and said in a low tone: “This week I've been away from you has seemed like a year. You're lovelier than ever, Sondra. That cream-colored wool thing you have on; your red-gold hair; those funny carved ivory bracelets on your little wrists. You're — adorable.” There was something in the deep, smooth masculine quality of his voice that all women found oddly stirring. Sondra, knowing she was not in love with him, found herself almost yielding to its charm each time he asked her to marry him.

“Those are my good-luck bracelets,” she said, to ward off further sentiment. “See the little snarling fox-heads on the clasps? Here's your rum, sir. . . . Yes, Dynamite. I'm coming.”

Kemp followed her to the Captain's side. As she bent to examine the jug of saki, he said, “When my dispatch boat gets back this evening I'll have something for you, too, Sondra.”

“Is it moldy with age?” inquired the captain. “She never warms up to anything unless it's a century old.”

“This will qualify, sir. It's a bronze square embossed with the Russian coat of arms. One of those buried at strategic points along the coast of Alaska in the late seventeen-hundreds to claim possession for Russia.”

Sondra's face lighted up. “Marvelous! But where in the world did you get such a priceless relic?”

“The CCC boys excavating on the site of the old settlement at Katlean Bay dug it up just as one of my boats happened in there. I've sent the senior new captain of my fishing fleet around to bring it home this evening.”

“But—it's such an important historical find, Kemp! Do you really think he'll be able to get it for me?”

He smiled at her eagerness. “Just leave that to Ikeda. He always gets what he goes after.”

Wooler

Wooler — Miss Nina Meyers who has been visiting in Ottawa returned home on Sunday.

Master Harold Whaley who has been ill is gaining.

At the banquet for the Masonic Order which was held in Frankford on Wednesday evening, Mrs. Wm. Delve who was a guest speaker gave a very interesting address.

Mr. Raymond Richards who manages the Howard Rowe farm has finished the making of maple syrup.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Gooding spent an evening in Belleville recently.

Mrs. Ken. Gotsell and children were guests for a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Sharpe.

Mr. S. L. Terrill has hired Mr. R. Juby of Trenton, to help with work on the farm. He with his wife and children moved into the tenant house on Monday.

Mr. Lorne Terrill spent the week end in Rochester, N. Y.

Mrs. Lloyd Dorland was in Toronto over the week end.

Miss Neta Ellis and Clinton of Toronto were home for the week-end and were busy on Saturday preparing their flower beds for the spring blooms.

Mr. Samuel Whaley has been fortunate in capturing a couple of fine catches of speckled trout in the local creeks.

A dance sponsored by St. Alphonsus Church was held at the home of Messrs. Hugh and Fred McAuley on Tuesday night. There was a very large crowd and Mrs. Eddie Finlan and Mrs. Houlihan were hostesses. Mrs. J. P. McAuley made the coffee. Other refreshments were brought by the ladies.

During a game of football, Mr. Jack May was unfortunate in spraining his ankle on Wednesday. He is confined to his bed.

Those who attended the formal dance at Marmora, sponsored by the Badminton Club Wednesday, were, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Austin, Miss Lois May, Mr. Claude Ruttan, Mr. Douglas Steenburg, Miss Kathleen Haggarty, Miss Roma Austin and Mr. Everett Bryant.

Miss B. Green, Miss Erwin and Mr. Cooke were dinner guests of Mr. Charlie Lawson and Ruby of Orland on Thursday and also spent the tea rour with Mr. and Mrs. Fred McClavey of Codrington.

In the neighborhood, about forty people serenaded the newly-weds, Mr. and Mrs. Noble Crosby on Monday night. They were welcomed heartily and were given treats by the groom at the pool room consisting of chocolate bars, soft-drinks and ice cream.

The house on the Callahan Farm is being remodelled and decorated.

At a meeting of the Agricultural Society Mr. Elgin McMaster resigned the office of president as the duties were too heavy for his farm activities. His staunch efforts for the past several years in making Wooler Fair a success is worthy of praise. He was made a director, as the society felt they could not do without his services entirely. Mr. Charles Brown who lives and works on the farm belonging to Mr. Charlie Leach has accepted the presidency. Mr. Roy Putnam, who acted in the capacity of secretary-treasurer in the past has accepted the office for another year. Mr. John Callahan, K. C., Toronto, remains as honorary president and the other officers are unchanged.

Miss Margaret R. Allore, Trenton, had the honor of winning a $5 gold piece in a drawing at the dance given by McAuley Brothers on Tuesday evening.

Bronx Bombers Unable to Hit Winning Stride Being Beaten Twice Through Inability to Hit

Yankees Have Left 69 Stranded on Bases in Last Nine Games

FELLER WINS AGAIN

Cleveland Moves Back Into Leadership of League by This Victory

By JUDSON BAILEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

Break up the Yankees! There was a time when that chant was as familiar as "take me out to the ball game" and the folks wondered how many players the world champions could give up without being weakened.

A popular pastime was speculating as to whether Bill Dickey or Joe Dimaggio or someone else was the key performer in the New York club's cast.

Young Joseph will have to be regarded—in absentia—as the player most vital to the Yankee cause.

They were beaten again yesterday by Detroit Tigers 6-4 in a game they seldom if ever would have lost last year.

Three times New York loaded the bases and only on one of these occasions did they score—an ineffectual run in the ninth. Thirteen runners were left stranded on the bases. In the last nine games, of which the Yanks have lost six, they have left 69 men on the bases.

Imagine that from the slugging Yanks—the Bronx Bombers — who used to break up any and every game with their big innings. Only twice this year have they batted more than three runs in any one inning. They haven't a single batter anywhere near the .300 mark, and Frankie Crosetti, for instance, got his first hit yesterday in seventeen times at bat.

Indians Again on Top

The plight of the champions might be worse if there was one strong team in the American League capable of taking full advantage of their misfortune. But Boston Red Sox and Cleveland Indians are battling each other to a standoff.

Bob Feller came up with one of his better pitching shows yesterday to beat the Sox 6-1. He allowed seven hits, struck out eight and yielded only one base on balls. Ken Keltner gave noble aid, including a three-run homer, a single and a double.

This boosted the Tribe back into the league lead.

Chicago White Sox, a first division club last year and a tail-ender so far this term, just managed to edge out Philadelphia Athletics 6-5 and St. Louis Browns came from behind in the late innings to top Washington Senators 7-3.

Brooklyn Dodgers took up where they left off before the rains came by trimming St. Louis Cardinals 9 to 6 in a wild game in which 39 players, a record total, took part. The Dodgers were outhit, but not outnumbered, using 22 players, and succeeded in producing two four-run rallies that carried the day.

Giants' Errors Defeat Them

Two errors by First Baseman Norman Young and Catcher Harry Danning of the Giants, helped Cincinnati Reds to a 3-2 decision over New York and Bucky Walters to his fourth victory without defeat.

The Phillies put down a four-run ninth-inning uprising by Chicago Cubs to win 7-5 and Boston Bees finally scored another triumph —their third—by a 5-1 margin over the faltering Pittsburgh Pirates.

The White Sox crushed the Yankees Saturday with a 15-hit attack, 8-2; the Athletics collected 17 hits and beat the Tigers 14-5; Boston trimmed St. Louis Browns 4-1 and the Indians walloped the Senators 12-4. In the National League, the Cubs won from the Giants 3-2; St. Louis won 3-1 over the Bees and the Reds downed the Phillies 3-2. The scheduled Brooklyn-Pittsburgh game was postponed.

Mrs. Ethel V. Mars Had a Good Bet On Gallahadion

Chicago, May 6—(AP)—It didn't take long for Mrs. Ethel V. Mars and her Milky Way stables to get the Kentucky Derby range.

To win the Blue Grass classic has been the chief goal of the wealthy Chicago sportswoman since she bought a string of horses and began racing in 1934.

Mrs. Mars made her first bid in 1935 with Whiskolo, a likely looking horse which finished third.

But she couldn't attend Saturday when her Gallahadion surprised and stunned the turf world by popping across the line first by a length and a half. Mrs. Mars heard the race by radio propped up in bed where she is recovering from a severe cold.

Mrs. Alan Steeney, her daughter, said Mrs. Mars "almost fainted" when the winner was announced, but the turfwoman insisted it wasn't from surprise.

She said she had expected great things of Gallahadion ever since she bought him along with several other horses at the Saratoga yearling sales two years ago.

"I always have been very confident of Gallahadion," she declared. "I liked him when I bought him. I liked him as a two-year-old and I liked him in the Derby.

"She liked him so well that she bet on him to win the Derby. Her daughter explained Mrs. Mars was not a heavy gambler on the races, but that the amount she risked on Gallahadion was a "heavy bet for her."

Gallahadion paid $72.40 on a $2 mutuel ticket.

JERSEY GIANTS REGAIN LEAD IN INTERNATIONAL

Defeat Toronto Leafs in Twin Bill After Losing to Royals on Saturday

BEARS CLIMBING

Newark Scores Double Win Over Montreal to Tie for Third Place

(By The Associated Press)

The power New York Yankees have lost this spring seems to have been distributed among their International Baseball League farmhands, Newark Bears. It has been especially noticeable in the last two days, when Newark won four games to climb into a tie for third place in the standing.

In 15 games this season, the Bears have belted out 142 hits to make up for their defensive deficiencies. They hit the high spots at Montreal yesterday to take a doubleheader from the Royals before 21,483 fans, the largest crowd ever to see a ball game in the Canadian city. In the two games, Newark poled out 30 hits including five home runs and four doubles, to win 11-4 and 10-6.

Art Metheny, who was charged with two of the Bears' seven errors, poled the only homer of the first game, which was won with eight runs in the last two frames, George Washburn pitched shutout ball for seven innings and gave only seven hits. The second game was just a continuation of the finish of the opener with Newark blasting Ira Hutchinson and Steve Rachunck for nine runs in the first three frames. Young Ziggy Sears contributed two four-ply wallops and Jim Shilling and Jack Graham one apiece.

Wings Beat Orioles Twice

Rochester Red Wings, tied with Newark, enabled the Bears to cash in on this victory. The Wings won a doubleheader from Baltimore Orioles, 7-4 and 3-1, and knocked them down to second place with only a one-game margin. Jersey City regained the lead with a double victory over Toronto Leafs, 10-6 and 4-2, while Buffalo Bisons climbed from the cellar into a sixth-place tie with Toronto by whipping Syracuse Chiefs 5-3 and 3-1.

Rochester also applied power against the Orioles. Harry Davis broke up the opener in the 10th inning by socking a homer with two aboard. He repeated with the bases empty in the second tilt and Estel Crabtree did the same thing to give Mike Ryba a decision over Orlin Collier.

The Jersey Giants, making a quick jump home to play before 13,811 fans, piled up 15 blows in the first game to give Manny Salvo his third straight mound victory. Then they took the afterpiece by bunching three of their nine hits with two passes for four runs in the sixth inning.

Good Hurling at Buffalo

Buffalo got the day's best hurling. Floyd Giebell pitched seven-hit ball to get the better of Ted Kleinhans when catcher Clyde McCullough hit for the circuit in the ninth. Then Earl Cook came through with a four-hitter against a combination two-hit job by Jack Tising and Lester Hinckle. A boner by Juelich at third and catcher Bottarini's error gave the Bisons their first tally and the second came in on Tising's wild pitch.

Only three games were played Saturday. Newark downed Toronto in a twin bill 9-1 and 5-2 while the Royals with Robert Porter allowing only six hits, trimmed Jersey City 4-2.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz, Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, May 6—(AP)—The Yanks can be bought, but who wants 'em the way they're going? . . . The law of averages catches up with everybody. . . . That's why we took the field against Bimelech and did all right. . . . We still think the Bradley colt was the best hoss in the Derby, but you can't go on winning forever—and that goes for the Yankees, too. . . . Long distance prediction: Next heavyweight boxing champ.—Bob Pastor.

Rue de sockerue.

This will break Seattle's heart, but Mike Jacobs has all but closed with Al Hostak to meet the Ceferino Garcia-Ken Overlin winner in New York. . . . Sammy Angott, (he's the new N.B.A. lightweight champ.) may be matched with Dave Castilloux, the Canadian and this department wouldn't be surprised if Sammy gets his ears pinned back.

Sports cocktail — Add Jimmy Dykes to the list of those who doubt if the Yanks will repeat. . . One of the Cleveland Indians with a sense of humor posted a clipping in the clubhouse showing that Manager Oscar Vitt hit .190 one season. . . . Recent press releases mentioning the name of Elenora Sears carry the following note:—"Please spell Miss Sears' name as given above—E. R. Sears." . . . The gal is tired of having her front name misspelled.

Despite Defeat in the Derby, Bimelech Picked in Preakness

Gallahadion, Rank Outsider in Betting, Wins Derby in Last Sixteenth

BIMELECH BEARS OUT

Louisville, Ky., May 6—(AP) — Though the legend of Bimelech's invincibility was punctured by his defeat in the Kentucky Derby, the handsome colt from Idle Hour Farm almost certainly will be the favorite again in next Saturday's running of the Preakness at Pimlico.

It will require more than one licking to convince most of the horse players that Bimelech is not the best of an unimpressive lot of three-year-olds. Not that the underrated Gallahadion didn't take Bim's measure fairly and squarely in the Derby Saturday and run right past him in the stretch, but just that the Bradley colt still is the solid choice on his record of eight first and one second.

Bimelech is not the super-horse he had been made out. Gallahadion's winning time of 2:05—more than three seconds off the Churchill Downs track record for the mile and one quarter—made it all too obvious that there were no equine immortals in Saturday's gathering.

Still, Bimelech proved himself a real good horse by the fact that he was able to move into the lead as they entered the stretch, and his supporters always will feel he could have done with a little better riding in the final furlong, when Gallahadion went streaking past on the rail.

Let Favorite Bear Out

Freddie Smith let the favorite bear out on the track and probably lost close to the 1 1-2 lengths by which Gallahadion led him at the wire.

Carroll Bierman gave Gallahadion a beautiful ride. All the way around he kept him up close to the leaders, rating his mount carefully and saving him for the big effort. When Bimelech swerved out and left the rail clear, Bierman shot into the opening quickly. It was obvious in that instant that Gallahadion had the race won. Bimelech, tiring badly in the last 16th, likely would have lost the place to Dit if they had gone another 10 yards.

Saturday night around Louisville it was next to impossible to locate any of the lucky few who had cashed in on Gallahadion. He was about the one horse that hadn't been bandied around as a "hot tip," as was obvious by his near-record payoff of $72.40 on each $2 mutuel ticket.

THREATENED RAID ON JR. HOCKEY TALENT BLOCKED

Manitoba President Says He Will Not Grant Transfers to Another Branch

A WISE MOVE

Understood Eastern Clubs After Best Boys in West for Hockey Next Year

Winnipeg, May 6 (CP)—A threatened raid on Manitoba's junior hockey talent was blocked here last night with an announcement by E. V. Johnson, President of the Manitoba Amateur Hockey Association, that his organization will not sanction any transfers for junior hockey players leaving the province.

Johnson made his announcement following a meeting of the Manitoba south division junior hockey league at which complaints were made that certain Ontario Hockey Associations Clubs were approaching outstanding Manitoba-registered junior players.

Two of them, Ernie Dickens and Bill Sutherland, both of Winnipeg Monarchs, have left for Toronto and the meeting was told that other players still with a year in junior ranks had been offered inducements to move east.

Johnston said that Manitoba's senior hockey was ruined several years ago through "wholesale migration" to Moncton, N.B., and England and added:

"If the other branches start moving in our juniors then we might as well fold up as a Canadian Amateur Hockey Association Branch."

"No boy has ever prejudiced his future by finishing his junior hockey in Manitoba," Johnson continued, "and for that reason, whether applications come from the east or from the west, no hockey players still if junior age will be granted a transfer to another branch by the M.A.H.A. registration commttee."

Vancouver Leafs Experienced, Fast

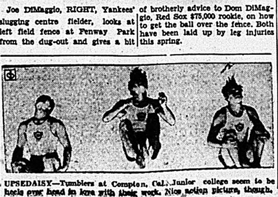
Vancouver, May 6 (CP)—Experience, speed and a bag full of fast-breaking plays go into the make-up of Vancouver Maple Leafs, who battle Montreal Y.M.H.A. Wednesday in the second bid for the Canadian senior men's basketball crown in 1938 and toured Japan last year. The team now has a new name and a new sponsor—the Vancouver Exhibition Board—but the "big guns" are still the six-foot-two center, Joe Ross, and his first-line forwards, Jimmy Bardsley and Art Willoughby.

Bardsley and Willoughby are known as the "Gold Dust Twins"—a name they acquired while helping University of British Columbia Thunderbirds to the Dominion crown in 1937. Ralph Henderson and Rann Matthison also were with Thunderbirds that year.

Leafs average 24.75 years of age and their average weight is 170.6 pounds.

Joe DiMaggio, RIGHT, Yankees' slugging centre fielder, looks at left field fence at Fenway Park from the dug-out and gives a bit of brotherly advice to Dom DiMaggio, Red Sox $75,000 rookie, on how to get the ball over the fence. Both have been laid up by leg injuries this spring.



UPSEDAISY—Tumblers at Compton, Cal. Junior college seem to be heels over head in love with their work. Nice action picture, though.

Toronto Y. M. H. A. Wins Junior Crown

Montreal, May 6—(CP) — The thrill that goes to a first-year coach having his team win a national title belonged today to Ben Sniderman as Toronto Y.M.H.A. won recognition as Canadian Junior basketball champions.

A player for twelve seasons, Sniderman took over in a coaching role this year. His charges took the Dominion title here yesterday by defeating Montreal Y.M.H.A. 41-39 in overtime, winning the two-game total-points series 69-66. Toronto won the first game Saturday night 28-27.

High point-maker for the Torontonians was Ab Nisker, who scored eight points in the first game and 14 in the second contest. Others prominent in the Toronto attack were Bob Sterling, Fred Taggart and Saul Bergstein.

Girls' softball seems headed toward a definite comeback in Belleville. The game once enjoyed a prominent place in the sporting circles of this community and no doubt will be received with open arms by the sport-loving fans once again, but we have been wondering in what category the pastime is being planned by its sponsors. The sports pages of any modern newspaper will co-operate to the zenith degree in the matter of information and a certain amount of publicity towards the boosting of sports, but there is one angle of publicity that definitely is OUT — names of firms sponsoring teams will not be used in describing the teams' activities. This is no sudden bright idea of this corner, but is the result of a decision by the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association. The abuse of sport pages with commercial names for teams resulted in a decision that in future such teams would only be mentioned by "pet" names if they have any, and numbers if they lack a suitable "handle." Newspapers are run on advertising, not on the pennies received for the daily issues. If sponsors of sporting ventures can obtain free advertising through their placing of teams in sport, it might lead to less advertising space, which eventually would prove embarrassing to the newspaper providing such said free advertising.

This rule does not apply to softball alone, but to any form of sports where the mercantile or business firm seeks such free publicity for their firm or product. In Oshawa, Peterborough, Kingston and other centres in Ontario trade names or the names of business firms are not used by the press in connection with sports sponsorship and such is to be the practice employed by the Ontario-Intelligencer without favour in the future. The Canadian Dailies do not draw too strict or stern a line, however, as ample pre-game announcements and post-game comments are given, but what the Association will not tolerate, is the employment of trade or firm names, which are being used solely for the purpose of obtaining free advertising, which after all is the life and substance of a newspaper. Maybe local sponsors do not come under the category of seeking publicity gratis and we are not directing undue criticism in their general direction, but merely pointing out the policies as laid down by the Canadian Dailies.

Donie Bush, who managed Pewee Reese at Louisville, told Leo Durocher, when the Dodgers started training, that it wasn't necessary to show Pewee any of the tricks about playing shortstop, it is reported by Jimmy Powers sports editor of the New York Daily News.

"You just watch him," said Donie. "He knows them all."

Leo watched Reese throughout the early weeks and, sure enough, there wasn't anything he could show him. Then one day, Reese awkwardly approached his new manager.

"Leo," he murmured, "I wonder if you'd please tell me something."

Durocher beamed. Here was something, at last, on which he could help the kid. "Sure," he replied. "What is it you want to know?"

In complete seriousness, Reese answered. "Where do you buy your clothes?"

Benny McCoy, the $45,000 infield beauty whom Connie Mack signed last winter, blasted a 331-foot home run over a 34-foot barrier against his old team mates in Detroit and helped the Philadelphia A's beat the Tigers 3-2 Saturday.

Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' horse Gallahadion, practically a rank outsider, won the 66th running of the Kentucky Derby before a record crowd of 95,000 thrilled racing fans at Churchill Downs on Saturday. Trailing Roman and the favourite, Bimelech, Jockey Carroll Bierman drove Gallahadion hard coming into the stretch and won by a length and a half, with Bimelech second and Dit third. It was Roman that set the pace and forced Bimelech to drive hard early in the race the "Big Bim" ran so hard, that he couldn't match the driving Gallahadion, when the latter came down the stretch to make his bid and win. Gallahadion paid $72.40 at the mutuels, proving he was a rank outsider. The race was run in exceptionally slow time, contrary to beliefs, that perhaps Bimelech might establish a track record as the favourite. The race seemed all over when "Big Bim" took the lead as he turned into the stretch, but Jockey Bierman had nursed Gallahadion along craftily and when the time came, Gallahadion responded and the rest is history.

A disappointed man was Col. Bradley, owner of Bimelech as he had hoped to saddle a fifth Kentucky Derby winner in his old age. The same bunch of horses will race again Saturday in the Preakness at Pimlico, but even if Bimelech wins this classic, such a victory would not give Col Bradley much consolation. Prior to Saturday's Blue Grass classic there had been 659 starters in the previous 65 races, strangely the first two figures of the total number of starters being identical with the total number of winners. Just why the odds were so big on Gallahadion is hard to actually understand, as he had finished second to Bimelech in the Derby trial last Tuesday, but such is the sport of kings. Although 77 three-year-olds are eligible for the 50th running of the Preakness it is doubtful if the Maryland track will see any more, if as many starters, as did the 66th running of the Kentucky Derby.

SPORT SPICE: Roy Waldron, trainer of Gallahadion, didn't have so much as a plugged dime on his nag . . . Waldron says he was so busy and excited preparing Gallahadion for "the big shot" that he forgot to get some of that $72.40 to two odds . . . Thirty-nine players appeared in the Brooklyn-St. Louis game line-up yesterday, "Lippy Leo" Durocher using 22 players to subdue the Cardinals 9-6 . . . 39 players injected into one game is a major league record, topping the 37 used in the Phillies-Cardinal game of 1928 . . . Rapid Bob Feller chalked up another win as the Indians beat the Red Sox 6-1 yesterday . . . The Toronto Maple Leafs ran into grief over the week-end losing two to Newark Saturday and two to Jersey City yesterday . . . Western Canada hockey heads have hit upon a plan to stop the exodus of junior pucksters to the east . . . They are going to refuse transfers to the minor pucksters, claiming the west has just as good opportunities as has the east.

SIT DOWN RECORD

Galax, Va. — (CP) — Robert Wadlow, 21, is 8 3-4 feet tall, weighs 491 pounds, and so that he can sit down comfortably a local plant is making him a chair 6 1-4 feet high with three feet beam.

Morrison Charges Hoare, Chamberlain And Simon Responsible

London, May 6 (CP)—Reiterating criticisms of Prime Minister Chamberlain made in a speech Saturday, Herbert Morrison, Labor member of the House of Commons, said last night the British government is going to be called to account for its handling of the situation in Norway.

"I do not approve of Neville Chamberlain," he said, "and I would sooner not have him as Prime Minister, but I prefer him to Hitler."

He charged the Prime Minister, Sir John Simon, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Sir Samuel Hoare, Air Secretary, were responsible "for the muddle in which we are now."

"Hitlerism has been helped by our government, but we still have hopes of a better world," Morrison added.

"We had to make this fight and we must go on because Hitler and his associates are dangerous men to have around."

TENDERS FOR COAL AND COKE

Sealed Tenders addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Coal", will be received until 12 o'clock noon (daylight saving), Wednesday, May 29, 1940, for the supply of coal and coke for the Dominion Buildings throughout the Province of Ontario.

Forms of tender with specifications and conditions attached can be obtained from the Purchasing Agent, Department of Public Works, Ottawa; and the Supervising Architect, 36 Adelaide St. East, Toronto, Ont.

Tenders should be made on the forms supplied by the Department and in accordance with departmental specifications and conditions attached thereto.

When the amount of a tender exceeds the sum of $5,000.00—whether it be for one building only or more —the tenderers must attach to their tender a certified cheque on a chartered bank in Canada, made payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to 10 per cent of the amount of the tender, or Bearer bonds of the Dominion of Canada or of the Canadian National Railway Company and its constituent companies, unconditionally guaranteed as to principal and interest by the Dominion of Canada, or the aforementioned bonds and a certified cheque, if required to make up an odd amount.

The Department also reserves the right to demand from any successful tenderer a security deposit, in the form of a certified cheque or bond as above, equal to 10 per cent of the amount of his bid, to guarantee the proper fulfilment of the contract.

By order,
J. M. SOMERVILLE,
Secretary.
Department of Public Works,
Ottawa, April 30, 1940. M6

HOW TO GET A CASH LOAN
WITHOUT ENDORSERS OR GUARANTORS
Payments to fit your budget—Quick, private service

Now you can apply for a Household Finance loan without coming to our office. You need no endorsers, no bankable security to borrow $20 to $500. You may repay your loan on the schedule which best fits your own monthly budget.

Choose your own payments
Suppose that you need $100. You find this amount in the first column of the table below. Then read across, picking out the monthly payment which you wish to make. You will see that monthly payments of $7.78, for instance, will repay your loan in full in fifteen months. Or twelve monthly payments of $9.46 each will also repay a $100 loan if you pay on schedule. There is nothing more to pay. You may wish to borrow an amount not in the table. If so, just tell us how much you need and for how long.

You can borrow $20 to $500 if you can make these convenient monthly payments

Canadian Soldier, British Veteran Meet After 25 Years

London, May 6 (CP).—A Canadian soldier and a British veteran of the first Great War who had not seen each other since they were prisoners together in Germany 25 years ago met again yesterday as 1,800 "Old Contemptibles" assembled to march to St. Paul's Cathedral for their annual memorial service.

They were J. A. J. Leslie, a former sergeant of the King's Own Scottish Borderers who recently enlisted in Canada for service in the present war, and Frank Godley, formerly of the Royal Fusiliers.

While the "Old Contemptibles" were assembling at Finsbury, Godley caught sight of the Canadian. They recognized each other simultaneously and met with outstretched hands.

"We last saw each other as prisoners of war at Doebritz in Germany 25 years ago," Leslie said. "Frank Godley was taken at Mons and I was captured at Le Cateau."

Leslie is a native of Aberdeen but he went to Canada 15 years ago.

"I had to come back when the trouble began," he said, "so I enlisted in Canada, and when I heard of the parade today I came along, hoping I might see some old friends, and I have, too."

Godley, a school caretaker, is not in the armed forces this time because, he said, "they tell us we are more use at home."

The "Old Contemptibles" formed two columns and marched first to Mansion House, where they saluted the Lord Mayor and the Sheriffs. A party of French veterans of the last war headed the second column.

AT THE McCARTHY

"MA! HE'S MAKING EYES AT ME"

Frank Mitchell and Peggy Chamberlain, both members of famous vaudeville teams which have played leading theatres throughout the country, were united as a new comedy-dance combination in the new tap-happiest screen hit "Ma! He's Making Eyes at Me", now playing at the McCarthy Theatre.

Along with Tom Brown, Connie Moore, Richard Carle, Anne Nagel and Jerome Cowan, the pair appear in colorful musical numbers created for the picture by Larry Ceballos, dance director. Other specialty acts which are seen in the zestful screenplay include Vivien Fay, in a toe-ballet presentation, Marie Green and the "Merry Minstrels" from radio in a stylized arrangement of "The Blue Danube" and Richard Carle singing his own early comedy composition, "I Found A Lemon In The Garden Of Love."

Connie Moore, who shares romantic honors in the film with Tom Brown, introduces the new song, "Unfair To Love." She also sings the title song, "Ma, He's Making Eyes At Me."

All the entertainment qualities of a swell movie have been lavished on "Ma! He's Making Eyes At Me", and we urge you to make it date now, come and enjoy the season's new all fun, loaded with songs and music, romance and star studded offering that is playing at the McCarthy Theatre.

Latest "Fox Movietone News" and an exciting dramatic offering entitled "Sabotage" featuring the grand old man of the movies Charley Grapewin, Gordon Oliver and Arlen Whelan, completes the balance of the program, presented at each performance, of "Ma, He's Making Eyes at Me."

AT THE BELLE

"REBECCA"

With Laurence Olivier and Joan Fontaine heading a cast of outstanding players and with a story filled with drama, suspense and mystery, David O. Selznick's latest production, "Rebecca", Saturday had its first showing at the Belle Theatre where it was released by United Artists. The film was brilliantly directed by Alfred Hitchcock, known internationally as a master of intrigue, crime and mystery on the screen.

"Rebecca" is the film version of the best-selling novel of the same name by Daphne du Maurier. It was prepared for the screen by Robert E. Sherwood and Joan Harrison and retains all the gripping drama of the original book.

Laurence Olivier, who last year made a tremendous hit as the hero of "Wuthering Heights", plays the role of Maxim de Winter, the socially prominent owner of Manderley, the vast Tudor estate where most of the action unwinds. Joan Fontaine is cast as the second Mrs. de Winter, Rebecca's successor, who is subjected to the tyrannical and sadistic cruelty of Mrs. Danvers, played by Judith Anderson. Other important roles are excellently performed by such well knowns as Gladys Cooper, George Sanders, Reginald Denny, C. Aubrey Smith.

Too many words of praise cannot be said of the exciting and suspenseful manner in which Hitchcock has directed "Rebecca." He has turned it into one of the most brilliantly conceived and executed melodramas ever to reach the screen. His actors have reacted to his well known "touch" and the story moves with tremendous impact to a climax which leaves the spectator breathless. Olivier and Miss Fontaine in the top starring roles furnish performances which haven't been equalled on the screen in many a moon, while Miss Anderson, as the malevolent Mrs. Danvers, turns in a piece of acting that is unsurpassed. Mr. Selznick's "Rebecca" proves again that Mr. Hitchcock is the top man in the field of screen thrillers.

A new Donald Duck cartoon "Donald Duck's Laundry" and an interesting newsreel precede the feature attraction.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Man's Castle"

Now showing at the Capitol Theatre, Columbia pictures offers you the ultimate in motion picture entertainment, Frank Borzages' production of "Man's Castle," with this distinguished cast of players, Spencer Tracy, Loretta Young, Glenda Farrell, Walter Connolly, Arthur Hohl, Marjorie Rambeau, and little Dickie Moore.

It will delight you with its engaging frankness. A loveable vagaband plays at love. The warmth of its beauty will enchant you. Love finds a strange and ardent defender. To those who know the meaning of love nothing else matters. It's the most glorious love story since "Seventh Heaven," setting free the girlhood love story imprisoned in every woman's heart.

On the same programme is "Come Closer Folks", a comedy riot starring James Dunn, Mariam Marsh and Wynne Gibson. Universal News of the World completes the bill.

Two Flying Boats Are Damaged by Machine-Gun Fire

Little Benny's Note Book

I got up exter early this morning on account of having a important engagement with Puds Simkins and Leroy Shooster in the empty lot for a meeting of the Mystick 3, and pop was eating his breakfist exter early too on account of ma having woke him up so he could start reducing his stummick by walking to his office every morning, and I said, How do you feel, pop?

I feel chipper, that's the only word for it, pop said. Now I know how a lark feels, a lark feels chipper. By gollies this is the only reasonable logical way for a healthy man to start the day, he said, and I said, Well jimminy, pop, your eyes still look kind of sleepy.

That's an optical illusion because you're still dopey yourself and cant see straight, pop said. A child needs his sleep and proberly has no business up at this unearthly hour, he said, and ma said, Now Willyum there's nothing unearthly about it, it's 20 minutes to 8 and you'll proberly find that everybody elts in the block is up, and my lands Willyum there's no use drinking even more coffee than usual unless you're trying to undo all the good before you even do it, and you should of started 10 minutes ago instead of using the exter time to linger longer over your paper.

Well the truth is, I believe it's going to rain, pop said, and ma said, The truth is nothing of the kind, unless you mean perhaps this afternoon for land sakes. That's about the time you're going to get started, judging by present appearances, and pop said, Well the real truth is, I neglected to get my heels straightened, and the doctors say there's nothing worse than walking on run down heels. That was discovered by a famous Viennese foot man named Schuhenheiser, I believe, he said.

The result being ma had to fold his paper and get his hat and put him out.

TO PAVE HIGHWAY

Toronto, May 6 (CP)—Contracts for some $3,000,000 worth of pavement which will almost complete the dual highway known as Queen Elizabeth Way, from Toronto to Niagara Falls, were announced today by the Ontario Department of Highways. Each of eight contracts call for about five miles of pavement.

Hog Quotations

Toronto, May 6 (CP)—Bacon-hog markets reporting early today showed no price changes from last week.

Liveweight: Brantford $7.75.

Dressedweight: Hull $10.40;- Brantford $10.50; Stratford $10.40 plus transportation.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 6 (CP). — Stocks registered moderate strength on the Toronto Exchange today. Trading was light and only 123,000 shares changed hands.

Preston, O'Brien, Macassa and Malartic Gold Fields were soft spots. Lower prices ruled for Steep Rock and Ventures. Losses showed for Home, Calgary and Edmonton and Davies in western oils.

Senior oils were about the only strong group of the industrials. Gains of ¼ to ⅜ were posted. Utilities, foods and steels were weak.

WALL STREET

New York, May 6 (AP)—A few steels, aircrafts, coppers and specialties attracted buyers in today's stock market, but many leaders were neglected. Gains of fractions to a point or so were fairly well distributed near the fourth hour.

Among favored stocks were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Douglas Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Kennecott, Phelps Dodge, General Motors, Loft, Baldwin Locomotive, Worthington Pump, Du Pont, Great Northern and Eastern Kodak.

Canadian issues slanting lower included Dome Mines and McIntyre. Hiram Walker and Lake Shore Mines were steady while Distillers rested unchanged. Canada 4s, among bonds, dipped slightly.

LIVESTOCK

Montreal, May 6 (CP)—The Dominion Department of Agriculture reported cattle were steady to a shade higher in early trading on Montreal Livestock Markets today. Calves were steady, quality considered and there were no early sales of hogs.

Receipts: Cattle 841; calves 1,062; sheep 92; hogs 1,420.

Good steers were $7.25-$7.75, medium $6.25-$7 and common $5.50-$6. A few fed calves and top yearlings sold around $7.50-$8. Heifers were from $4-$7. Good cows were $5.50-$6, medium $4.50-$5.25. Bulls $4.25-$6.

Calves were about steady, quality considered. Good veals made $7-$7.50 with an odd top at $8. Medium kinds sold around $6.50. The bulk of calves were common to just plain quality.

A few spring lambs of just fair to medium quality were sold at $6-$8 each. Sheep were from $4-$6.50 with the bulk between $5 and $6 per cwt.

Hogs were unsettled, and there were no early morning sales.

Toronto, May 6 (CP). — Cattle trade was dull with prices about steady up to mid-session on the livestock market today. Veal calves, western lambs and sheep, were steady. No price was established for hogs. The holdover was 400 head of cattle.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 2,930, calves 1,580, hogs 1,930 sheep and lambs 930.

Weighty steers sold at $6.50-$7.50. Butcher steers and heifers ranged mostly from $6.50-$7. A few light steers sold at $7.25. Butcher cows sold at $4.25-$5.50. A few bulls sold at $5-$5.50 and stockers sold at $5.50-$6.65.

Veal calves sold at $10-$10.50 for choice with common selling downward to $5.

Western lambs sold at $11.25. Spring lambs ranged from $8-$10 each.

Sheep sold at $3.50-$7.

Hogs closed previously at $8.25 off-trucks for bacons and $11 for dressedweight.

Negotiations Resumed Between Gen. Motors And Their Employees

Oshawa, Ont., May 6—(CP) — Negotiations between General Motors of Canada Corporation officials and the Oshawa Local of the United Automobile Workers of America were resumed today under the chairmanship of Louis Fine, chief conciliation officer of the Ontario Labor Department.

The conference is designed to smooth differences between the company and the Union which were climaxed two weeks ago by a strike vote. A walkout was averted when the company agreed to negotiate. About 3,500 workers are involved.

It is understood the main points of difference include wages for day workers, re-adjustment of seniority rules and other difficulties between the company and the Union grievance Committee.

J. L. Cohen, K. C., Toronto, legal adviser to the Union, an affiliate of the Congress of Industrial Organizations; Harry J. Carmichael, Vice-President and General Manager and J. B. Highfield, General Plant Manager; and members of the bargaining committee attended the conference.

Produce Unchanged

Toronto, May 6 — Unchanged prices ruled in all lines traded on the Toronto open produce market Saturday.

Buying interest waned on the butter market, but prices held about steady. A few odd sales of the first grade Ontario product were recorded at 23 1-2c per pound. The Western make attracted no attention in the range of 23 3-4 to 24c. Prints moved through retail channels at previous levels.

The fair volume of fresh receipts cleared well on the egg market. Former prices prevailed in both sections. Storage packed and Government inspected shipments continued to command premium prices of 1-2 cent to 1 cent per dozen.

Montreal Produce

Montreal, May 6—Produce market prices here Saturday, as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Butter: First grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 25c to 25 1-2c; first grade solids, jobbing price, 24 1-2c to 25c. Receipts for the week, 6,377 boxes, compared with 13,610 a year ago.

GIRL IS WITNESS AGAINST ACCUSED

Raymond L. Martin Committed for Trial on Charge of Attempted Murder by Drowning

Peterborough, Ont., May 6—(CP) —Raymond L. Martin, 26, was committed for trial by Magistrate Langley in police court here today on a charge of attempting to murder Audrey Clayton, 19, by trying to drown her in the Hydro reach at Lakefield on Sunday April 28.

The girl was the principal witness against the accused and swore that on one occasion three month ago he had said they would be better off at the bottom of the river and a month ago had threatened to shoot her and himself if the engagement between the two was broken off.

Miss Clayton said that Martin was always jealous of her and there were frequent quarrels on that account.

Before the car went into the canal she said Martin had asked her twice to close the window on her side of the car. The handle of the door on that side was broken off and it could not be opened from the inside.

She said that after the car went into the water Martin had not assisted her to get out. She escaped through the window and swam ashore and saw Martin holding on to an inflated inner tube which had been in the back of his car for a week before. Two other witnesses swore that the car suddenly turned almost at right angles and plunged into the canal without changing speed.

AFRIDI IS BOMBED

tained by the anti-aircraft guns of the escort was so effective that the troop transports were untouched.

"It was in the course of this action that H.M.S. Afridi was struck by a bomb and subsequently sunk.

"Two enemy aircraft were shot down.

"The next of kin of all casualties have been informed."

The Afridi was the 11th British destroyer sunk since the beginning of the war. One of 16 vessels of the tribal class, she was a sister ship of the Gurkha, which was sunk by air bombs April 11, and the Mohawk, which was damaged in a German air raid on the Firth of Forth last Oct. 16.

Captain Vian, was in charge of the destroyer Cossack when she entered Norwegian territorial waters Feb. 17 to rescue 300 British seamen from the German prison ship Altmark in Josing Fjord in southern Norway.

Captain in Command of Flotilla

Captain Vian was in command of the flotilla including the destroyer Cossack and went aboard the latter ship to take personal command when it pursued the German prison ship into Josing Fjord.

The Distinguished Service Order was later granted him "for outstanding ability, determination and resource in preliminary dispositions which led to the rescue of 300 English prisoners from the German armed auxiliary Altmark."

Official tribute was also paid to his "daring leadership and masterly handling of his ship in narrow waters so as to bring her alongside and board the enemy, who tried to ram him and drive him ashore."

In the last war he served aboard the cruiser Argonaut and on various destroyers and after 1918 specialized in gunnery. He graduated from Osborne College in May, 1907, in the same class as the Duke of Windsor. In 1937 he was appointed to H.M.S. Arethusa as Flag Captain and chief staff officer to the Rear Admiral commanding the third cruiser squadron Mediterranean Fleet.

NAZIS TO ATTEMPT

Allied Forces South of Narvik.

Rumors persisted that some of the Allied forces withdrawn from Namsos have been landed south of Narvik, but these had no confirmation.

The setting for this anticipated new German offensive is unusual both in terrain and foreseen difficulties. By land they must push northward along a narrow strip of territory passable only along a deep valley road which is blocked by exposure to sea attack below Narvik and which curves eastward into a maze of mountains, fjords and forests above Narvik.

Being established both in the Narvik and Tromso areas with numerous fjords accessible to their fleets, the Allies have a geographic advantage.

The crew of a Swedish ship reaching Goteborg claimed to have watched a German destroyer capture a British submarine Sunday morning close to the three-mile limit of Swedish waters. They said the destroyer was observed dropping depth charges and that a moment later the submarine broke the surface and surrendered.

A correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Tidningen reported that Norway's gold reserve of 600,000,000 krona ($132,000,000) had been sent to England for safekeeping after being transported from place to place by the fleeing Norwegian government.

(The Stockholm radio quoted the Norwegian news bureau as reporting the capture of Roros, in the Osterdal 50 miles south of Storen, by the Germans. Last week the Germans were said to have penetrated beyond Roros but had been forced to fall back.

(German airplanes appeared over Roros during the morning and dropped six or seven bombs on the main street but no casualties were reported as most of the civilian population had fled. The troops occupied the town during the afternoon.

DIPLOMATS

4. Appearance of Russian reinforcements in former Poland near the borders of Ruthenia, which Hungary obtained in the dismemberment of Czecho-Slovakia.

5. Publication of German reports that the Allies are about to land troops at Salonika, Greece.

6. The presence in the Aegean Sea of units of a battle fleet, now based at Alexandria.

200 Arrested in Hungary

7. A new spy scare in Hungary, resulting in the arrest of 200 persons suspected of working for both France and Russia.

Uneasiness was manifest throughout the southeastern Capitals, in a state of high tension for weeks past, and many diplomats sent pessimistic reports to their governments.

Belgrade verged on a panic for a short time yesterday following a radio announcement that removal of civilians from the city had been recommended by the government. Fears were allayed, however, when it was explained that the announcement was a misleading rebroadcast of a lecture on air raid precautions.

Germany and Britain, meanwhile, were reported engaged in a diplomatic struggle to obtain assurances of Bulgarian support in the event of trouble in the southeast.

Both Dr. Karl Clodius German economic expert, and Sir Hughe Knatchbull-Hugessen, British Ambassador to Turkey, were known to have conferred with government officials in Sofia.

The nature of Clodius' proposals was unknown, but Sir Hughe was understood to have made Bulgaria a promise of a large British loan and a corridor to the Aegean Sea, a thing she long has wanted.

The British plan was reported to include a deal involving Greece and Turkey, already on close terms, whereby the former would cede Bulgaria the Aegean corridor in return for certain concessions.

Want to Ensure Land Route

Britain's purpose in wooing Bulgaria, Sofia sources said, was to ensure a land route for troops to Rumania should the necessity arise.

The reports of Turkish troop concentrations along the Greek and Bulgarian frontiers received official notice in Sofia, where the opinion was expressed that action was "in accordance with British desires and connected with England's aims in the Mediterranean."

The presence of Turkish forces near the Bulgarian border was alleged to be in disregard of a mutual agreement between the two countries. Bulgarian officials said they had given Turkey no cause for such action.

The circulation of reports, attributed to German sources, that the Allies were planning to land troops at Salonika coincided with the official opening of a strategic, new railway line running northward from that Aegean port through the Struma River valley.

Salonika offers the most direct gateway for the entrance of Allied troops in the event war comes to the Balkans and the new railway would prove a valuable aid in their movement.

The Greeks deny reports of a secret agreement to let Britain and France, both of whom have guaranteed her independence, to use the port, but foreign observers doubt that Greece would offer any objections if war comes.

No Signs Seen

There was no indication that the Greek government believed that an Allied landing at Salonika was imminent, and fishermen returning to the port said they had seen no signs of any preparations for such a move. The fishermen, however, reported the presence of additional Allied naval units in the Aegean Sea, where British vessels have been on patrol since the start of the war.

Reports of the appearance of Russian reinforcements along the Ruthenian frontier were regarded as a hopeful sign by some quarters in Budapest, which interpreted this development as a sign of Moscow's determination to forestall any German-Italian plan to divide the Balkans.

The Russian troops massed opposite Ruthenia were said to consist of six to eight motorized divisions—an aggregate of 100,000 to 150,000 men, including many recently returned from the Finnish campaign.

Information furnished by the German Gestapo was said to have led to the spy round-up in Hungary, which government circles said had smashed a huge organization engaged in espionage and propaganda activities.

Most of the arrests took place at Kassa, Ungvar and Munkacs in the former Czecho-Slovak regions annexed by Hungary. Some of those arrested were said to have possessed plans of the Arpad defence line, which Hungary recently built along her Ruthenian frontier facing Russian-occupied Poland.

Indication of Mutual Distrust

Some observers saw the arrests as an indication of mutual distrust between Moscow and Berlin.

The spy hunt was accompanied by new expressions of ill-feeling between Hungary and Slovakia. In a radio broadcast, the Hungarian Foreign Minister, Count Stephen Csaky, reiterated a warning that his government's patience over the alleged mistreatment of the Hungarian minority in Slovakia was nearing an end.

He hinted again that should Hungary act against Slovakia, German friendship for Hungary would prove stronger than her concern for her protectorate.

Meantime Slovak planes dropped pamphlets over Ruthenia reading: "Slovaks! The day of liberation is near! Get ready. Hitler is with us. The glorious Slovak army will deliver you from the Magyar (Hungarian) yoke."

In Belgrade, the Yugoslav government rejected a German request for permission to send 10,000 "convalescents" into the country, but offered to take as many sick children under 15 years of age.

Political circles recalled that during the last war, when the Hungarians were inclined to give up the struggle in 1916, the Germans quartered there thousands of "convalescent" troops who proved to be healthy enough to convince Hungary she should carry on.

NEGRA DEFENDERS

Say Alpine Troops Used.

Hurled back by the big guns, the Nazis called upon their Alpine troops to encircle the fortress and the adjoining village of Negra, on the Trondheim-Storen railway twenty miles east of Trondheim and launched an attack supported by light field artillery, machine guns and planes.

The refugees said that within a few days the fire from the German guns left most of the village in ruins and the fortress itself pock-marked. The German fire was almost continuous, the refugees declared.

They said the Negra defenders, forced to conserve their scanty stores of food and munitions, held their fire until the Germans tried a direct assault and then inflicted heavy losses on the attackers.

Food Shortage.

"Our troops could have held out indefinitely," said one refugee proudly, "but they ran short of food and munitions."

With the food apparently completely gone and only a few rounds of ammunition left, the 15 officers and 160 men finally capitulated.

Farther to the north, many tired and bedraggled Norwegian volunteers and civilians continue to pour into Sweden across mountain passes. The Germans now have pushed their occupation east directly to the Swedish border after occupying Grong and Namsos.

"Everyone Looked Alike."

A young British Red Cross ambulance driver, William Miall, one of the last Britons to escape from the Grong sector, declared:

"You couldn't tell the Norwegian soldiers from the civilians except that they carried guns, for they were not wearing uniforms for the most part. After they had trudged a few miles through the snow, slush and mud, everyone looked alike."

Miall said German bombers had reduced villages in the area from Grong to the Swedish frontier to "just little flat heaps of wreckage".

GERMANY CLAIMS

Claiming further blows against the British navy, the high command said that "one enemy battleship" was hit by a heavy bomb off the Narvik front and that two German airplanes had captured a British submarine which was damaged by a mine April 15 in the Kattegat.

Claim Not Confirmed

(The battleship claim was not confirmed in London, Swedish dispatches seemed to bear out the report that a British submarine had been captured.)

The claimed bomb hit on a British battleship followed upon Britain's official denial of Germany's claim Saturday that Nazi bombers had sunk a 30,000-ton British battleship and a heavy cruiser off Namsos on Friday.

Hitler's reported orders to attempt a relief of the Narvik detachments, which have been under siege since shortly after the Germans went into Norway April 9, upset all theories thus far aired in informed circles. For weeks, the German Press in dealing with Narvik wrote of it as unimportant in the Norwegian developments.

Hitler apparently has now decided he must try to remain in possession of Narvik as the western outlet port for ore from the Swedish Kiruna mines.

Seeking Aerial Supremacy.

The Nazi Air Force, which received credit for making Allied positions in central and southern Norway untenable, appeared to be seeking extension of aerial supremacy to the far north before the Allies can close in on Narvik.

(A Norwegian news agency dispatch said that German bombers had passed Narvik early Saturday to attack Kirkenes, on the Arctic coast near the Finnish Petsamo district. Little damage was reported from four bombs dropped at Kirkenes, but nearby communities also were raided.)

The German high command claimed yesterday that the Narvik garrison had, with the aid of the air force, repulsed repeated attacks of "strong enemy forces supported by fliers."

The German forces of occupation in central Norway have pushed to the railheads of Namsos and Grong, north of Trondheim, while continuing to mop up Norwegian die-hards still showing fight—chiefly in the Trysil area east of Lillehammer and around Roros, southeast of Trondheim.

Surrender of 160 men and 15 officers who had fought off German attacks from the rocky fastness of Hegra fortress, 20 miles east of Trondheim, was claimed.

The Communique

Today's German high command communique:

"No bigger fighting occurred in the Narvik region yesterday but the enemy sent additional artillery there from the north. German fighting planes supporting the German group in Narvik succeeded in hitting one enemy battleship with a heavy bomb, raiding troop concentration and exploding a munitions dump.

(These claims could not be confirmed in London.)

"Our troops started to advance northward from Grong, eastward of Namsos. Pacification action in central and southern Norway is generally concluded.

"The mountain stronghold of Hegra capitulated. German vanguards now are standing east of Roros near the Swedish border.

"Two British Sunderland flying-boats, anchored on the north Norwegian coastal region, were machine-gunned and damaged.

"One British submarine, which on April 15 was damaged by a mine was captured by two German airplanes in the Kattegat. They (the planes) determinedly descended at sea near the submarine. The commander of the submarine and one non-commissioned officer were taken prisoner and brought aboard the planes.

"Patrol boats of the German navy then towed the British submarine to a German port.

"Two British Bristol Blenheims were shot down near Terschelling (The Netherlands.)

"No special events on the west front."

Belleville Branch of Red Cross Makes Large Contribution To War Work Being Done in Canada

Since the outbreak of the war Belleville Branch of the Red Cross Society has made a remarkable contribution to the war work which this organization has undertaken throughout Canada, having already sent a total of 3068 articles of hospital supplies, 2906 knitted articles and 470 garments for refugees to headquarters. Of the knitted articles there were 2010 pairs of sox, while the contributions for refugees included thirty-nine quilts. Nine new auxiliaries have been added, since January 1st, to the list of working societies and auxiliaries which are identified with the Belleville Red Cross Society. This makes a total of thirty-nine groups working together in the interests of Canada's soldiers, and of refugees. Thirteen of these societies are from the outlying districts and represent an outstanding contribution made by the rural women in money, supplies and work, for Red Cross. This interesting information was received at a meeting on Friday of the officers and executive of the Belleville branch held in the Y.M.C.A., when reports were read of the work to date.

A shipment of five cartons just made to Headquarters contained knitted supplies of 228 pairs of sox, 60 scarves, 40 sweaters, 60 pairs of wristlets, 12 pairs of gloves and mitts, one helmet; hospital supplies of 63 pairs of pajamas, 9 hot water bag covers, 12 ice bag covers, 12 khaki handkerchiefs, and 12 pillow cases; refugee clothing of 4 quilts, 20 children's dresses, 20 pairs of bloomers, 8 parkas, 4 helmets, 1 pair of sox, 5 pairs of mittens, 2 pairs of wristlets, 1 sweater, three infants' shirts.

Donations Acknowledged

The Women's War Work Committee are very grateful for the following donations of money and finished articles: Melrose W. I. and United Church W.M.S. Red Cross Unit, Point Anne Red Cross Auxiliary, Centenary Church Red Cross Unit, Bethany Red Cross Auxiliary, Presbyterian Ladies' Guild Red Cross Auxiliary, Avondale Neighbours' Aid, Mrs. McAllister, Foxboro Red Cross Unit, W.C.T.U., Aikens Red Cross Unit, Bridge Street United Church Red Cross Unit, Presbyterian Y. ## GORDON GRAVES GIVEN 15 MONTHS

Appears Before Judge Cameron and Pleads Guilty to Charge of Theft

Gordon Graves, Belleville, was sentenced to serve 15 months in the Ontario Reformatory by His Honour Judge C. A. Cameron when Graves appeared in County Court today charged with the theft of 80 pounds of yellow bronze. Graves had elected trial by Judge and jury and was committed for trial by Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C. in last week's police court. At his own request today Graves was taken before Judge Cameron, where he waved trial by Judge and jury and elected trial before His Honour, pleading guilty without reservation.

Graves was arrested, along with an alleged accomplice, Raymond Woods, by Detective Fred Isard after James Finn, local electrician, had complained that thieves had stolen 80 pounds of yellow bronze from him. In police court a local junk dealer testified that Graves had sold a quantity of bronze, which, was later identified by Mr. Finn. Woods will appear on a similar charge on Friday.

LONGSHOREMEN'S

The companies and units are each to post a $2,000 bond as a guaranteed and standard pay shall be 85 cents an hour for a working day of from 7 a.m. to 12 noon, and from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m., work from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. shall be at the rate of 95 cents an hour and between midmight and 5 a.m., the rate should be $1.05 per hour.

Double Time Sundays

Double time shall be paid Sundays, at St. Jean Baptiste Day (June 24) and Dominion Day (July 1.) If required to work during meal hours, the rates shall be double and remain so until the men are released for meals.

Wage rates recommended vary with the nature of the cargo to be handled. Work on bulk ore, potash, refrigerated cargo, nitrate, bulk sulphur, China clay, and fertilizer, calls for regular pay of $1 an hour, $1.10 between 7 p.m. and 11 p.m. and $1.20 an hour from midnight until 5 a.m.

Similar rates shall be paid for bunkering coal, trimming and bagging grain, and working between decks when there is grain running into a hatch connected with the deck.

CORNWALL RESIDENT SENT HOME BY POLICE

Said to be suffering from hallucinations, as the result of mental strain, a man who police say is Leo Savage, of Cornwall, walked into the home of Raymond Zufelt, Octavia St., and attempted to "pull electric switches" early last evening.

Mr. Zufelt notified police and Mr. Savage was quietly taken to the police station. His relatives in Cornwall were notified through the Cornwall authorities. Later it was learned that the man had recently lost his position and had been noticeably affected since. Mr. Zufelt assured police the man was in no way boisterous, but merely insisted he had to "pull electric switches." Mr. Savage was released today by Chief Kidd and sent home to Cornwall.

PRINCE UMBERTO VISITS PONTIFF

Bond of Friendship of Vatican and Italian Royal Family Strengthened

Vatican City, May 6 (CP-Havas). —The bond of friendship between the Vatican and Italian Royal House was further strengthened today when Crown Prince Umberta and his wife paid a formal visit to Pope Pius.

It was Prince Umberto's second visit to the Pope. Acting as representative for his father, he had called on the Pontiff shortly after the latter's coronation to extend the Royal Family's formal congratulations.

The Crown Princess, as head of the Italian Red Cross, of which Saint Catherine of Siena is patron saint, attended ceremonies yesterday at which the Pope prayed that Christ give all nations "that peace which Thine heart hath given to Italy".

King's Visit Recalled.

Today's call added to the cycle of visits started last Dec. 21 when the Italian King and Queen — making the first such call on a Pope in 69 years—went to the Vatican. The Pontiff subsequently paid a return visit to the quirinal.

Crown Prince Umberto and his wife were welcomed by Mgr. Arborio Mella Di Sant'elia, master of the Pope's chamber, and were escorted by Papal guards to the audience chamber, where, after their private audience, they presented the members of their suite to the Holy Father.

Responsible Vatican sources had predicted that the Pope would take advantage of today's visit by the Crown Prince to press his drive to keep Italy at peace. Particular significance was attached to the Pontiff's renewed peace plea yesterday, since it was made during ceremonies in honor of Italy's two patron saints, St. Catherine of Siena and St. Francis of Assisi.

Italy and Catholicism.

In connection with the Italian press campaign against the Vatican, the Pope was expected to remind the Crown Prince that Catholicism has been the religion of the Italian people for a thousand years.

The Papal organ L'Osservatore Romano Saturday reminded its readers that Italy's ruling house has shown unswerving fidelity to the church, and said the Crown Prince's call would confirm and widen "the beneficient civic and spiritual effects" produced last December by the exchange of visits between the Pope and King Victor Emmanuel.

The Pope received the French Ambassador to Holy See, Francois Charles-Rtux, in a private audience after Crown Prince Umberto and Princess Marie Jose had left.

NAZI AIR RAIDERS BELIEVED BEATEN OFF

London, May 6 (CP).—A German air raid near the southeast coast of England was believed beaten off by Royal Air Force fighters today.

Coastal residents heard the drone of engines above low-hanging clouds with bursts of machine-gun fire and a number of explosions.

A similar incident in the same vicinity was reported earlier in the day, when a German raider off the coast of Essex drew intense anti-aircraft fire for 10 minutes. R.A.F. planes quickly took to the air to pursue the invader.

MAN AND WOMAN DEAD IN CAR

Police Believe Pair Ended Lives by Gas After Protracted Drinking Bout

Sudbury, Ont., May 6—(CP)—The bodies of a man and woman were found in a parked automobile on the Long Lake road early today and police theorized they ended their lives by carbon monoxide poisoning after a protracted drinking bout.

They were identified as Archibald R. Johnston and Mrs. Clarence Hooey, formerly of Owen Sound and Tobermory.

The gas was piped into the enclosed car through flexible tubing and the bodies were huddled in the front seat. The motor was still running.

Johnston had operated a rooming house in Sudbury.

Access to Airfield At Fornebu Denied Between Certain Hours

Oslo, May 6—(AP)—Joseph Terboven, Nazi commissioner for the German-occupied areas of Norway today issued an order forbidding approach within 1 1-4 miles of Fornebu airfield between 10 p.m. and 2.30 a.m.

At other hours, approach to the field will be permitted only in the most urgent cases.

(Fornebu airfield, about three miles outside Oslo, has been the target of six British air raids.)

Such employees as still are needed in the Norwegian foreign office have been transferred to offices in the Royal palace. The foreign office building now is being used as headquarters for the German police.

Norwegian authorities are planning a special spring holiday in the schools so that the children can be employed in potato planting on farms. The war has brought about a great scarcity on farm labor.

The entire town of Lillehammer in the Gudbrandsdal has been converted into a camp for prisoners of war.

Espionage Charged Against Swiss Citizen

Berne, May 6—(CP—Havas) — The Swiss Army High Command tonight charged the German Intelligence Service with a new attempt to obtain information on border fortifications through Swiss spies.

The general staff announced the arrest of a Swiss citizen accused of seeking to obtain military information from officers and soldiers.

Its announcement follows:—

"Late last November the army counter-espionage service discovered that an adjutant non-commissioned officer had been hired by a German agent to furnish information on our fortifications in the Northeastern region.

"This non-commissioned officer was sentenced to five years" imprisonment at hard labor by a military court and was expelled from the army.

"The army counter-espionage service has just discovered another case. A Swiss acting for a German agent attempted to gather information from officers and soldiers on various military questions concerning the army.

"He was arrested and turned over to the military judiciary."

District Rotarians Meet in Hamilton

Hamilton, May 6 (CP)—Dan Lincoln of Jamestown, N.Y., and Alex Ross, Toronto, were elected by acclamation as Governors of Districts 169 and 168 of Rotary International at a joint session of the two districts today. They will be installed tomorrow before the 1,500 delegates attending the sessions. Mr. Lincoln succeeds Gerry Moes of Hamilton and Mr. Ross succeeds J. Owen Hersty of Belleville.

Richard C. Hedke of Detroit, representative of Rotary International, told the delegates that Rotary is not only financially sound—it has a surplus of $700,000—but has assets of goodwill and brotherly love that make it an enduring force for good.

Fleeing Burglar Lands in Bed With Sleeping Couple

Montreal, May 6 (CP)—A fleeing burglar, chased by three charwomen, leaped from the roof of a theatre early today and landed—of all places—in bed with Mr. and Mrs. Paul Valade.

The intruder, surprised with two companions by the charwomen in downtown Imperial theatre, fled to the roof and jumped through the bedroom window of the Valade home.

In record time, police were told later by the abruptly-awakened couple, the man rushed out of the front door.

One of his companions, however, was not so lucky. He fell three flights down a fire escape and was found by police suffering from back injuries and a probable skull fracture. The man was taken to hospital. The third man escaped.

HON. N. ROGERS HEARD ON AIR

Defence Minister Says Objective Will Only be Attained When Freedom Victorious Over Forces of Hatred, Cruelty and Oppression

By SAM ROBERTSON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 6 —(CP—Cable)—Hon. Norman Rogers, Canadian Minister of National Defence, said today in a speech that the Allies' objective will only be attained when "freedom stand victorious over the forces of hatred, cruelty and opression which have challenged us today."

The speech, made in an International broadcast, was concerned with impressions that the Defence Minister gained during his visit to the United Kingdom, Paris and the area held by the British forces in France.

"One cannot stay in either of these Allied lands more than a few hours without gaining a tremendous sense of the quiet courage, the indomitable spirit, of the men and women who inhabit them," he said.

TWO LOSE LIVES AS CAR PLUNGES

Gore Bay, Ont., May 6—(CP)—Two of Gore Bay's oldest residents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wismer, are dead as a result of an accident in which their automobile plunged over a 20-foot embankment as they were driving to church.

Mrs. Wismer, 75, died in hospital last night from multiple injuries, including fractures of both legs, while her 78-year-old husband driver of the car, died early today from fractures of an arm and leg and internal injuries.

Two passengers, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Cummings, escaped with bruises and shock. In attempting to slow down for a curve at the bottom of a hill, the aged driver is believed to have stepped on the accelerator instead of the brake and the car hurtled over an embankment. Survivors include a son, Dr. Harold Wismer, London, Ont.

POLICE WORKING "ON HOT TIP"

Bellefonte, Pa., May 6 (AP)—Convinced the same sex maniac killed pretty Fay Gates and co-ed Rachel Taylor, Coroner Charles Sheckler said today police had uncovered "valuable evidence" in the Gates slaying and expressed belief "we'll get the killer this time."

"District Attorney Musser Gettig also reported police were "working on a hot tip" which he described as the "best yet." He said the tip "involves a person."

The bludgeoned body of the Gates girl, 25-year-old match factory employee, was found yesterday on a muddy lane some 12 miles from the spot where the slaying of Miss Taylor, 17-year-old freshman at the Pennsylvania State College, occurred five weeks ago.

Defence Against Modern War Hits A Higher Pace

British Officials Hint That a Future Change in Italy's Status as Non-Belligerent Ally of Germany Could be Expected Within Seven Days

BLACKOUT ORDERED

Allied Sources Stated They Were Prepared for Immediate Action "in Whatever Field Hostilities Might Come"

(By Larry Allen, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Alexandria, Egypt, May 7—AP—Feverish preparations for defence against modern war hit a higher pace today in the land of the Pharaohs. The entire Mediterranean area was fast becoming an armed camp.

British official circles hinted broadly that any future change in Italy's status as a non-belligerent ally of Germany could be expected within seven days.

A 20th century blackout was ordered for this ancient land. The government posted police and troops to enforce compliance with practice air raid warning starting at noon tomorrow.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Cloudiness and rainfall! It is a curious fact that the amount of cloudiness and of rainfall do not vary together in all cases as one might reasonably expect. In general they do, but there are exceptions. In parts of the regions of the westerly winds, as in the interior of North America, cloudiness does not diminish as rapidly as rainfall. The winters are cloudier than the summers, yet precipitation is greater in summer. This is because the rain in summer comes in short, heavy showers and the remainder of the day may be clear, while in winter the precipitation is light and spread over long periods of cloudiness.

Soviets Accuse Finland of Blowing Up Power Stations

Moscow, May 7 — (AP) — The newspaper Pravda, organ of the Communist Party, today accused the Finns of blowing up power stations and industrial plants in territory ceded to Soviet Russia after the treaty ending hostilities between the two countries had gone into effect.

The paper did not indicate what official steps might be taken.

Detectives Wounded In Machine-Gun Battle

Dublin, May 7—(AP)—Two detectives were wounded today in a machine gun battle with a gang which authorities believed to be members of the outlawed Irish Republican army.

One of the gang also was wounded.

A half-dozen men, armed with two submachine guns attempted to hold up the two detectives who were taking mail by motorcycle to the office of Sir John Maffey, British special representative of the Eire government.

The clash occurred in the heart of Dublin.

The attack occurred near Merrion Square. It was the second recent outbreak. The Dublin Castle Detective Branch Headquarters was bombed April 25 and five detectives were injured.

The two detectives flung themselves from the motorcycle and sidecar, opening fire with pistols.

Passersby scrambled for cover as the machine guns and pistols spattered bullets across the square.

Detective O'Shanaghan, whose pistol was shot out of his hand, suffered a spinal wound also. Detective McSweeney fell wounded in the roadway. Both were taken to a hospital in dangerous condition.

The battle ended when one of the gang was felled and his companions picked him up and fled in their automobile without the mails.

Sweden Serves Notice on Russia, Germany She Will Not be Intimidated

Stockholm, May 7—(CP-Havas)—Sweden served fresh notice on her German and Russian neighbors today that she would not be intimidated into surrendering her independence and rights by the punishment dealt out to Norway and Finland.

Social-Demokraten organ of the powerful People's Party, bluntly protested any Soviet move to play the role of big brother and place Sweden under the "protection of bayonets". The pointed denial of Russian denomination followed the emphasis placed on Swedish independence by Foreign Minister Kristian E. Guenther's statement confirming Berlin's announcement of an exchange of letters between King Gustaf and Adolf Hitler.

The Swedish Sovereign's reassertion of his country's determination to remain neutral was reinforced last night by a radio speech in which General Arvid Erisson, commander-in-chief of the Swedish armies, stressed Sweden's unrelenting grip on its independence. As disclosed here, Hitler's letter to King Gustaf offered assurance that Swedish neutrality would be respected.

Today's article in the Social-Demokraten was described in authoritative Swedish quarters as aptly reflecting Stockholm's stand in the present crisis.

Social-Demokraten took exception to what it termed Moscow's patronizing air as regards the newly-launched Swedish-Soviet trade negotiations. The talks, the newspaper insisted, are as much to Moscow's interest as to Stockholm's.

Swedish newspapers avoided comment on the exchange of letters between King Gustaf and Hitler. It is an open secret in Berlin, the Tidningen's correspondent reported, however, that Marshal Hermann Goering was largely responsible for the move.

NO NAZI WARSHIPS NORTH OF NARVIK

Admiralty Announces Also That Germany Has Lost Over 600,000 Gross Tons Mercantile Shipping Since War Began

London, May 7—(CP) — British naval sources indicated today that there are no German warships remaining in Narvik Fjord or in waters to the north. Germans holding the Norwegian ore port of Narvik are under Allied siege.

The Admiralty announced at the same time that Germany had lost 300,000 tons of merchant shipping, including transport and supply ships, since April 1, most of it in the Norwegian campaign.

Since the start of the war, a British source estimated, Germany has lost "over 600,000 gross tons," of mercantile shipping.

The Admiralty announcement said that seven British, Allied and neutral merchant ships totalling 8,445 tons were sunk by enemy action in the week ended April 28.

27,288-Ton Nazi Cruise Ship Sunk, Rotterdam Reports

London, May 7—(CP)—A British naval source quoted Rotterdam reports today that the 27,288-ton German "strength through joy" cruise ship Robert Ley had been sunk in the Skagerrak on the night of April 12.

The Robert Ley, named for the leader of the German Labor front is one of the prides of the Nazi merchant marine. Adolf Hitler gave her "the name of my co-worker, Robert Ley," at her launching at Hamburg, March 29, 1938.

British Tommies Fight Wave After Wave of German Air Bombers

By FRED BACKHOUSE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A Northern British Port, May 7 (C. P. Cable)—Battle-weary boys of the Allies' ill-starred campaign in snowbound central Norway told today of a nightmare but heroic withdrawal in which "Jerry had everything in his favor" and the Tommies fought wave after wave of German bombers with nothing but machine guns.

This correspondent watched long lines of the men come ashore. Many of them were downy-faced youths come from their first experience in battle and others were bemedalled veterans of 1914-18. Accents of Yorkshire and Lancashire mingled with the Cockney whine as thousands of the troops massed in a huge shed at the dockside to meet General Sir Edmund Ironside, chief of the imperial general staff.

We did not see any battle-stained warriors. Every man had been re-equipped from the skin out. They had been fed and rested, and the only sign of their fearful adventure was in their faces whipped red by Norway's winds and in their unsmiling lips.

Song Faded Out

One or two tried to strike up "Roll Out the Barrell" but it faded out. They were cheerful enough but still a bit mystified about the fight that ended before it began.

One Cockney said: "Us blokes didn't know we were getting out of Norway until we saw the transports at Andalsnes. We were full of bloody fight but it was no use, it would have been massacre."

A 25-year-old London corporal disclosed that the Norwegians "did not often take prisoners." Ten miles up the country from Molde he saw the bodies of ten German parachutist troops. Each man carried an amazing amount of equipment on his back, he said. Between them the ten Germans had all the parts for a machine gun, several collapsible bicycles, rifles and ammunition.

GOV'T'S POLICY UNDER ATTACK BY LABOR MINISTER

Hugh Dalton Says "There Has Been Too Much Complacency, Indecision and Misinformation in Downing Street"

CRITICISM DEPLORED

London, May 7—(CP) — Hugh Dalton, Labor member of the House of Commons, said last night in a bitter attack on the government's war policy that "there has been too much complacency, indecision and misinformation in Downing Street."

"If our prestige abroad is to be restored and public confidence at home re-established, there must be drastic changes both in persons and policy," he said.

"(Prime Minister) Chamberlain and Sir John Simon (Chancellor of the Exchequer) are our two greatest liabilities both at home and abroad. They would best serve the country by resigning now. Then an encouraging notice board could be put up in Downing street—'War against Hitler, Under New Management.'"

Mr. Dalton said the government leaders "have been outwitted and outpaced by our adversaries."

"We have no assurance whatev-

LITTLE ACTION ON WEST FRONT

Paris Reports Small Enemy Patrol Repulsed — Many Observation Flights Are Made

By AXEL DE HOLSTEIN
(Havas Staff Writer)

Paris, May 7 (CP-Havas).—East of the Moselle River a French and a German patrol creeping through No-Man's-Land during the night clashed in a miniature battle which ended when the Germans retreated, leaving one of their number dead and another wounded in the hands of the French, military sources reported today.

The official French communique this morning said :"Calm night on the whole. A patrol skirmish in the region east of the Moselle ended to our advantage."

The Germans apparently gave up hope of capturing advanced French positions in the Saar after large raiding parties suffered three successive rebuffs in three days. Strong German patrols which advanced on the posts early yesterday morning retired as soon as they found the positions were still occupied by the French.

French planes dominated the air yesterday, making many observation flights over the North Sea, and a single plane penetrated over central France. Anti-aircraft guns went into action near Paris during the night when two German planes were believed to have been observed.

Premier Reynaud this morning received Marshal Henri Petain, Ambassador to Spain.

INTERNAL DEFENCE PLAN IS WORKED OUT BY RUMANIA

Government Ready to Stamp Out Immediately Any "Fifth Column" Activities Such as Those Which Contributed to Downfall of Norway

"VISITORS" WATCHED

Bucharest, May 7—(CP) — Determined not to be caught napping Rumania put the finishing touches to a far-reaching internal defence plan today as the growing threat of war in southeastern Europe kept Balkan capitals on the alert.

As the result of swift but carefully executed preparations, the government was reported ready to stamp out immediately any "fifth column" activities such as those which contributed to the downfall of Norway.

At instant notice, a high official indicated, police and military authorities will be able to put a finger on the thousands of foreigners now residing in the country and round them up before an attack from within can materialize.

Among the foreigners facing the prospect of being herded into concentration camps at the first hint of trouble are approximately 60,000 Germans, including many "tourists" whose presence in the country in recent months has been an increasing headache to the government.

Although fearful lest she become the victim of a "trojan horse" manoeuvre, Rumania—posed shakily on the fence of neutrality—has refrained from taking any drastic action against foreign "visitors" for obvious reasons.

LEAVE SUSPENDED IN DUTCH ARMY

Official Announcement of the Move Issued by Dutch Press Association

Amsterdam, May 7 (CP-Havas).—Netherlands army leaves were suspended today.

Official announcement of the move was issued by the Dutch Press Association.

Leaves were cancelled during the first days of the German invasion of Norway, but were restored Apr. 27.

The entire country has been under martial law since April 19.

Last night the National Defence Ministry named garrison commanders with civil and military powers for the cities of Amsterdam, The Hague, and Rotterdam.

The announcement came unexpectedly. No reason was given. Cancellation of navy leaves also was ordered.

Vacations for certain categories of workers in war industries were cancelled.

DIPLOMATIC ACTIVITY

Il Duce Receives Prince Umberto, Who is Commander of Half the Italian Army

Rome, May 7. — (AP)—Premier Mussolini's answer to the riddle of Italy's position was widely expected today to be given Thursday when he is to review troops of the Rome garrison.

Vatican authorities indicated meanwhile that Pope Pius still sees little chance of an early peace.

It was considered almost certain that Mussolini would speak briefly when he reviews the Rome troops at Thursday's celebration of Army Day.

Renewed diplomatic activity was also forecast with the return to Rome of Sir Percy Loraine British Ambassador to Italy after talks in London with his government. Sir Percy was expected to see Foreign Minister Galezzo Ciano today, but both British and Italian authorities withheld comment.

Mussolini was believed to have heard anew from Crown Prince Umberto regarding the Pope's reported hopes that Italy would be spared from entering the war. Il Duce received the Crown Prince ostensibly for a talk on military affairs shortly after Umberto had visited the Pontiff yesterday. The Crown Prince is commander of half the Italian army.

Nazi Planes Bomb Hospital Ship and Refugee Ship, Report

London, May 7—(CP)—German airplanes have recently bombed a hospital ship, a passenger vessel and a ship loaded with refugees, well informed sources here reported today. The hospital ship, the Bronning Maud, was said to have been hit by two high explosive bombs which killed or wounded 27 patients and nurses.

The 921-ton Norwegian ship Tordenskjold was reported bombed while loaded with women and children fleeing from the Scandinavian war zone. Two bombs hit the Tordenskjold, killing two persons. Finnish refugees were among the passengers.

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Writer.

London, May 7 (CP Cable)—Wide powers of supervising the day-to-day military operations have been placed on the shoulders of Winston Churchill, who becomes in effect Britain's First Lord of Warfare.

Prime Minister Chamberlain made the announcement to the House of Commons today when answering criticism of the government's direction of the Norwegian campaign. He gave a long recital of the difficulties on the northern front and appealed to the nation to stand united in this hour of trial.

Warns of Other Possible Fronts

Mr. Chamberlain declared that "the campaign is not yet finished" in Norway, but warned the nation to remember: "There are other fronts which may at any moment blaze into a conflagration."

"This is not the time for quarrels among us," said the 71-year-old Prime Minister, but for closing of ranks and setting of teeth for the long, hard road ahead.

The Prime Minister faced a noisy opposition. At one time the speaker of the House had to ask for silence.

Admits Southern Campaign Failed

With frankness, Mr. Chamberlain admitted that the southern Norwegian campaign was a failure and the Allies had lost prestige. But is was nothing comparable to the reverse at Gallipoli in 1915, he said, and in view of German air superiority and availability of reinforcements and supplies, the only sensible thing to do was to withdraw the British force which was not much more than a division.

The primary reason troops were sent to southern Norway was that an urgent appeal was made by the Norwegian Commander in Chief for an attempted attack on Trondheim.

When it was found to be impossible to capture the ancient Norwegian city, the troops were withdrawn.

"Is there anyone here who would have done otherwise?" he asked, searching the faces of members in all parts of the House.

Attlee Not Satisfied

Clement Attlee, delivering the first blow for the Opposition in the two-day debate, said he was not satisfied that the present war cabinet was an efficient instrument for carrying on the war. However, the Prime Minister again turned down suggestions that a small war cabinet be formed, composed of men without departmental responsibilities.

"Young boys without training were sent to Norway," charged Mr. Attlee who is parliamentary leader of the Labor Party. He contended experienced, older men should have formed the Northern Expeditionary Force.

Not Major Military Disaster

For the Opposition Liberals, Sir Archibald Sinclair said he did not regard what had happened in Norway as a major military disaster. He believed that at the root of the reverse was the fact Britain's war effort was not being sustained and thrust forward with ruthless, war-minded energy in every government department and every field of policy.

Mr. Chamberlain's speech was not the fighting one he had been expected to make in the face of a concerted attack against his administration. He spoke hesitatingly many times and was interrupted continually from the Labor benches.

Premier Warns Against Hasty Opinions

The Prime Minister warned the nation not to reach hasty opinions on the results of the Norwegian campaign. It was too early to strike a balance because the campaign was not concluded.

At all times the Allies must be prepared to resist a German attack at any one of several points and could not afford to disperse their forces to the advantage of Germany.

He pledged the government to do its utmost to promote the war effort, particularly the production of planes and war materials so that "we can deliver our blows where and when we will."

Allied Strategy Must Anticipate Rather Than Follow Nazi Blitzkriegs

London, May 7 (CP)—"Unless the democratic peoples can rise to the occasion in the mental and spiritual sphere, they can scarcely hope to overcome the adversary in the material," said The Times today. The paper declared this to be the major lesson of the Norwegian campaign.

"The most urgent deduction from the events of last month in Norway which are to be debated in the House of Commons this afternoon concerns the nature of the foe with whom we are at war," The Times said.

"It was not fully realized that the Nazi party and the general staffs of the armed forces are one. The general staff of the army has always been based on its whole doctrine upon surprise in combination with boldness. But surprise, strategic and tactical, is the aim of every commander and staff officer. To strike a tremendous blow from behind a dense smoke screen of deception, feints, sabotage and propaganda was ever an ideal of the general staff. But it required the aid of Nazi doctrine and philosophy to perfect the process.

"But we can prevent our own minds from running in ruts and reanimate our intellects to meet the conditions of total war. Unless the democratic peoples can rise to the occasion in the mental and spiritual sphere, they can scarcely hope to overcome the adversary in the material. By comparison with that lesson, all others emerging from the Norwegian campaign, interesting as they are, will be found to be of secondary importance.

The Daily Sketch said: "Allied strategy will have to anticipate rather than follow any new German 'blitzkrieg', wherever it may fall.

CONGOLEUM RUG WON BY MRS. W. E. WICKETT

At Thompson's House Furnishings, 296 Front Street, the prize Congoleum rug in the Congoleum contest was won by Mrs. W. E. Wickett, Foxboro.

BUSINESS FIRMS TO MOVE TO NEW FRONT ST. LOCATIONS

With the discontinuance of business by the Wallbridge & Clarke grocery store at 220 Front Street, the premises will be occupied by the Reward Shoe Store now located three doors north. The premises vacated by the Reward Store will be taken over by the Georgia Salon, which will be removed from 48 Bridge Street east. The changes will be made about the first of June.

TWO CHIMNEY FIRES CAUSE NO DAMAGE

Two alarms occurring almost simultaneously, sent the firemen out shortly after eight o'clock this morning with all three of the fire trucks. The two large trucks were called to a chimney fire on Fahey Street at the residence of Mr. Asselstine and a few minutes later a call was received from 88 Dufferin Street, also for a chimney blaze. No damage was reported in either case. A bonfire on the Coleman Flats shortly before midnight Monday required the presence of the brigade to extinguish the flames.

TO GIVE DANCE AT PICTON ARMOURIES

Members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regimental Depot will be hosts to their friends at an informal dance and party to be held in the Picton Armouries on Wednesday night.

The sergeants of the regiment, under whose auspices the function is being held, are sparing no efforts to make the affair an outstanding one. The orchestra will be an "all-soldier" one, and composed of returned soldiers. A luncheon will be served and the "boys of the regiment" plan to give their friends a gala evening.

Proceeds of the dance will be used exclusively for the purchase of athletic equipment, and other comforts for the men in training with the unit.

ARGYLL JUNIOR OFFICERS TO ATTEND TACTICAL SCHEME

Approximately fifteen junior officers of the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) will attend an outside tactical scheme to be held in Cobourg over the weekend.

The scheme said to be one of the first of an outside nature held since the officers became associated with the regiment, will be attended, it is expected by some sixty-five junior officers of the various units of the district.

Theory and explanatory information will be given the subalterns on Saturday evening while the practical scheme will be given, starting at an early hour, on Sunday morning.

LOSS OF GIRDERS RUINED POWER LINE

"This seems to be a deliberate case of sabotage, as the loss of these girders ruined the power line," held Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., when Frank Yzeleef of Marmora Township, appeared before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in Marmora police court yesterday charged with the theft of steel girders, taken from the Hydro Power Company lines. Yzeleef was convicted on the evidence adduced and sentenced to four months determinate and two months indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory.

Yzeleef was alleged to have taken the steel girders and used them in the manufacture of a portable sawmill, which he operated north of Marmora. A quantity of nuts, bolts and angle iron was also reported stolen. Yzeleef was arrested, following an investigation, by Provincial Constable Arthur Dymond, of Madoc. Several other minor cases were also disposed of in yesterday's county police court held at Marmora.

POLICE COURT

Residents of the city have been complaining to police regarding the alleged racing of motorcycles along city streets recently. Citizens complain that riders of motorcycles are riding their machines at excessive rates of speed and causing unnecessary noises and disturbances by permitting the cutouts of their 'bikes' to make loud reports, thus disturbing the peace and tranquility of the community. Chief Kidd announced today that the city motorcycle patrol would soon be in operation and such practices curbed.

A lad entered the police station this morning complaining he had been robbed of the sum of $10.00. The young man said he believed a transient had picked his pocket. Police investigations revealed that the money perhaps had been lost, rather than stolen.

No arrests were necessary in Belleville yesterday leaving the cell block available for 16 transients, who sought shelter there last night.

GEO. KINGSBERRY, BRIGHTON, DROWNS IN BRIGHTON BAY

Out for Sail With Two Companions When Heavy Squall Capsizes Craft

BODY NOT RECOVERED

The district's first drowning fatality took the life of 17-year-old George Kingsberry in Brighton Bay last night, when the sailing craft, in which he and two companions were cruising, capsized as the result of heavy winds and heavy seas early last evening. Despite dragging and grappling efforts on the part of a posse the body had not been recovered at an early hour this afternoon, the Ontario Intelligencer learned from Constable Atkinson, of Brighton, by telephone shortly after noon today.

Young Kingsberry, accompanied by two friends, Jack Sherwin and Joseph Caldwell, all of Brighton, inaugurated the boating season on Brighton Bay by launching a sail boat and hoisting the sails to take a trip on the bay early last evening. After sailing across the bay to Stoney Point a stiff breeze commenced to blow as the sun went down. The trio of youthful sailors attempted to recross the bay and return home. When the wind caused a heavy sea their light sailing craft capsized in the centre of Brighton Bay. Sherwin and Caldwell managed to cling to the overturned craft, but Kingsberry, who was not a proficient swimmer, was unable to gain the boat and sank. The fatality occurred in the darkness about 9.30 p.m. giving the other two occupants no chance to see where their companion went down.

Sherwin and Caldwell clung to the capsized boat until it was a few hundred feet off the Brighton shore and later they swam ashore to raise the alarm. All night and again today a posse of men, under Constable Atkinson, searched for the body of the missing man. "There was such a high wind and rolling sea last night, that it is possible the body might have drifted some distance east of the point where the boat capsized," Constable Atkinson told the Ontario Intelligencer this afternoon.

C. W. L. Holds Monthly Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Catholic Women's League held last evening in the K. of C. Council rooms was attended by a very large number of members. Mrs. E. J. Butler, the president, presided. Conveners for the year were appointed as follows: Citizenship—Mrs. F. Fitzpatrick, Travellers' Aid—Miss K. Dolan; Red Cross—Mrs. J. Legault; Assistant Convener—Mrs. Dan Donoghue; Press—Miss Agnes Gallagher.

The report of the Red Cross workers who hold a sewing meeting every two weeks, was presented. So far the following articles have been completed and forwarded to the Belleville Branch of the Red Cross—40 pairs of pajamas, 12 hospital gowns, 21 abdominal binders, 28 arm slings, 12 sheets, 8 sweaters, 6 scarves, 16 pairs of sox.

An interesting event at last evening's meeting was the presentation by Mrs. Butler, on behalf of the League, to Mrs. A. B. Collins, retiring president, of silver rose bowl as a token of appreciation for her splendid work during her term of office. Mrs. Collins made a gracious reply thanking the members for the lovely gift and for the way in which they had co-operated to make the League undertakings so successful.

The door prize of a basket of groceries was won by Miss K. Dolan.

No Advantage Taken Of Mullet Run at Milford This Season

South Bay, May 7 (Special) — Milford is famed for the annual mullet run that occurs there early each spring. Mullets in countless numbers find their way up shallow, rushing waters, to spawn in close proximity of the village proper, but the annual harvest of these fish was not garnered by local fishermen, for there is no ready sale for them.

Last spring, hundreds of pounds of these fish, which are usually sought by buyers, were disposed of readily, but fishermen were able to sell only a very small quantity this month, and thousands of these mullets returned to lake waters, although next season can expect the sure arrival of these fish, and fishermen are hoping for brighter prospects to dispose of them.

OBITUARY

JOHN S. WHITTAKER
(Stayner, Ont.)

John Strickland Whittaker died on Monday, May 6th., at Wasaga Beach, Stayner, Ont. He was born in York, England, being a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Whittaker. In religion he was a member of the Presbyterian Church.

The late Mr. Whittaker is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Emma Harold, of Belleville; two daughters, Mrs. J. E. Burns, Toronto, and Mrs. W. D. Morris, London, Ont.; one son, Mr. H. S. Whittaker, Toronto.

Miss Addie Harold, John Street, is a sister-in-law, and Mr. Harold Sanders of this city, is a nephew of the late Mr. Whittaker.

Interment was made in Belleville cemetery this afternoon; the service at the graveside was conducted by the Rev. E. Farnsworth.

LATE MRS. MARTHA CHISHOLM
Sidney Township

The funeral of Mrs. Martha Chisholm took place on Saturday afternoon, May 4th., from her residence in the 5th. concession of Sidney Township. The service in the house and at the graveside in Belleville Cemetery, was conducted by the Rev. L. W. Scott, pastor of Wallbridge United Church.

The bearers were Messrs. James Hinchcliffe, Clem H. Ketcheson, Joseph Mulvihill, James Sine, S. M. Nicholson and Fred Phillips, all of whom were neighbors of the deceased.

The late Mrs. Chisholm was the widow of Charles F. Chisholm, who died nineteen years ago. She was in her 81st. year and was born in Thurlow Township, being a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Sills. For the past sixty-three years she lived in Thurlow township and was held in high regard in the community. In religion she was a member of United Church at Wallbridge, and when age and health permitted she took an active part in church work, being a member of the Women's Missionary Society.

Surviving her are two sons, Mr. Samuel Clayton Chisholm, Winnipeg, Manitoba, and Mr. John Nelson Chisholm of Sidney Township; one brother, Mr. Everett Sills; two granddaughters, Mrs. George Wallace, Belleville, and Mrs. J. H. Hendrick, Sidney township; two grandsons, Mr. Samuel S. Chisholm, and Mr. Charles O. Chisholm.

MRS. MARGARET F. RAY
(Sidney Township)

News of the death at her home, 3rd concession of Sidney, of Mrs. Margaret F. Ray, who passed away this (Tuesday) morning after an illness of only one day, came as a distinct shock to the members of the community in which she has been a popular resident for over fifty years. Mrs. Ray, who resided with her son, Mr. James Ray, on the homestead to which she came fifty-three years ago, was highly esteemed by a large circle of friends.

Born in Rawdon Township eighty-five years ago she was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McGowan and was the last surviving member of her family. She lived for a time in Huntingdon Township before moving to Sidney. Her husband predeceased her many years ago. The late Mrs. Ray was a faithful member of Centenary United Church.

She leaves to mourn her passing, one son, Mr. James Ray, and one daughter, Mrs. Arnold Squires of Lima, Ohio.

LATE MRS. JOHN A. KETCHESON
(Avondale)

The funeral of Mrs. John A. Ketcheson took place Monday afternoon, May 6th., from the family residence at Avondale, Trent Road, and many friends were present. A short service was conducted in the home by the Rev. Dr. James Semple, pastor of Bridge Street United Church, assisted by the Rev. R. E. Newman, pastor of Holloway Street United Church. At the close of the service in the home the cortege proceeded by motor cars to the United Church in Madoc where an impressive service was conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Alfred Poulter, and the address was given by the Rev. Dr. Semple.

Interment was made in Lakeview Cemetery, Madoc. The bearers were Messrs. A. Blackburn, Stewart Lough, Clarence Holmes, Clayton Tucker, John Chambers and Herbert Chalmers.

NEW MASONIC TEMPLE MOOTED

Committees Have Been Appointed to Report on Ways and Means of Financing Project

The erection of a new Masonic Temple in Belleville again is under consideration. Committees have been appointed by the various Masonic bodies. These committees are to meet jointly this week. They will discuss ways and means of financing the project and then have plans drawn up. The committee's report will be placed before the Masonic bodies and voted upon.

For some time the Masonic order has owned the lot at the northeast corner of Pinnacle Street and Victoria Avenue, which has been held with a view to the erection of a new Temple. It will be the duty of the joint committees to consider whether they think the site suitable.

The present Masonic Temple, opposite the upper bridge on Front Street, has been in use for some sixty years. It is under the direction of the Masonic Temple Corporation formed jointly from the various Masonic bodies. The equipment is antiquated and the accommodation at times inadequate.

A previous committee appointed by the Masonic lodges ceased to function upon the death of the chairman, the late Eugene Fairfield.

75 Head of Young Cattle Transferred To Lumb's Island

A touch of the Old West greeted residents of the Picton-Wellington highway over the week-end, as 75 head of young cattle in the first "round-up" in many years milled and "bawled" their way from the farms of Mr. Murney Howe, Picton, and those along the line of route, to the rich pasture lands on what is now known as Lumb's Island, situated a few hundred yards off Huyck's Point in Lake Ontario.

But the "punchers" wore no large colorful sombreros; no snapping lariats cracked through the air; six-shooters were conspicuous by their absence, as were the dashing ponies of the gauchos.

The cowmen rode in modern automobiles, while the younger men of the party occasionally alighted from their gasoline steeds to chase a wandering maverick back into the herd.

The "cook-shack" was a restaurant in Wellington, and the corrals were any convenient barnyard which opened possibilities to a tired herd of cattle. No difficulty along the main route was experienced, although traffic through villages and communities was temporarily disrupted as a few playful young Hereford steers, the first time away from home, attempted to discover what made this strange outside world tick.

The stock was loaded on flat barges at Huyck's Point, and conveyed to the island without incident. The cattle will remain in their new home until early Autumn when they will be returned to their owners and eventually find their way to the market.

SEEDING IN WEST MOVES RAPIDLY

Favorable Weather and Good Moisture Assist in Seeding Operations

Winnipeg, May 7.—(CP)—Favorable working weather allied itself with prairie farmers today in the drive to complete seeding of Western Canada's 1940 wheat crop.

Throughout the West, temperatures held at levels which brought more and more farmers onto the land for Spring planting operations. Although murky clouds blotted out the sun in sections of Manitoba, fair and mild weather prevailed over most of Saskatchewan and sped drying of Alberta's rain-soaked grainlands.

Manitoba farmers are leading the Prairie seeding race, with five to 90 per cent of wheat seeding completed. Most of the drilling has taken place in the Northern Manitoba areas where moisture has been deficient, allowing growers to take seeding equipment onto the fields.

Seeding is reported about ten days behind average in some sections of Saskatchewan which since last fall has benefited less from moisture than the other two Prairie provinces.

Southern district farmers have completed about 30 per cent of their seeding and sub-soil moisture is said to be sufficient to permit normal germination in most areas.

Central Saskatchewan producers have been aided by improved weather conditions and it is anticipated seeding will be general by the end of this week. In the north, however, work on the land has been slow due to cool weather.

AVIATION AWARD TO MAJ. SEYMOUR

President of Canadian Flying Clubs Association Given McKee Trophy

Ottawa, May 7.—(CP)—Major M. A. Seymour of St. Catharines, president of the Canadian Flying Clubs Association, has been awarded the McKee Trophy for 1939, Canada's highest aviation award, the National Defence Department announced today.

The Department said the award was made to Major Seymour "in recognition of the outstanding leadership he gave to the flying clubs of Canada in 1939. He elevated the flying clubs to a position where they could render a great service to Canada".

Representatives of the Royal Canadian Air Force, the Transport Department and the Flying Clubs Association made the selection from a list of individuals who had been submitted as possible candidates.

Major Seymour and other representatives of the Association have been in frequent consultation with the chief of air staff, Air Vice-Marshal G. M. Croil, and R.C.A.F. officers since war broke out in connection with the contribution of the Flying Clubs to promotion of the British Commonwealth Air Training plan.

Elementary training has been provided for R.C.A.F. pilot officers at the 22 flying clubs throughout the country. This preliminary flying instruction will be continued by agreement between the R.C.A.F. and individual clubs, subject to certain conditions.

Belleville People Are Not Lax In Looking After "Boys" Overseas Writes Sergt-Major A. S. Hobbs

Member of H. & P. E. Regt. in Britain Protests Against Complaint Made by Another Member of Regiment

NO ONE SUFFERING

"The people of Belleville have been and are as generous to their boys overseas as any other community which has representatives in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment," Company Sergeant-Major Arthur S. Hobbs, formerly a sergeant with the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) and now with the H. and P. E. Regiment overseas, writes a member of the editorial staff of the Ontario Intelligencer.

Sergt.-Major Hobbs encloses a protest against a letter purporting to have come from a member of his regiment complaining of the laxity of the residents of this city in looking after their "boys" overseas.

"I'll admit the parcels aren't rolling in like they did in the last war but we haven't done bad. The A. and N. V. gave us socks, a dollar and cigarettes before we left and we've received packages of cigarettes since from them. I mean packages of 300. Then, I forget their names but the two lads who run a pool room, sent us all cigarettes. The city of Belleville gave us all a pound just after we landed.

"I don't think any of the other districts have done any more for their chaps and I'm not complaining. We are getting good rations and comfortable quarters. Working like the devil with a good bunch of officers and we take our hats off to no other unit in the division as far as smartness and training are concerned. Our mail is starting to come in more regular and altogether I don't think anyone is suffering at all as yet.

"You can quote me as saying the people of Belleville are as generous as any of the other communities which comprise the H. and P. E. regiment. How's the 34th. Battery making out? I understand quite a few of the boys got tired of waiting and joined other units. If you heard of anyone wanting to send some one a 40-ounce crock of Corby's old rye, you could give them my address. Can't buy it over here.

"If you'd like to read parts of this letter that would interest them at the A. and N. V. Club, why go ahead. Give my regards to the gang. I'll say cheerio for now. Well so long for now and if you find time drop me a line.

ARTHUR S. HOBBS.

GOV'T'S POLICY UNDER ATTACK

er," he said, "in the light of this Norwegian experience, where our intelligence service either broke down completely or was ignored by Downing Street and where no plans were ready and no sufficient forces assembled for a swift and smashing attack by land, sea and air at Trondheim, that the same thing may not happen again next week in any one of a half-dozen other countries in Europe."

Criticism Deplored

Opposition criticism of the government for its conduct of the war in Norway was deplored by speakers at the annual meeting of the Conservative Association of the City of London.

Herbert Morrison, Labor member of parliament, Sir Archibald Sinclair, Parliamentary Liberal leader, and former Prime Minister David Lloyd George all were taken to task for their attacks on the war cabinet.

"Freedom to criticize is part of our heritage," said Lord Bicester, who presided at the meeting, "but it can be overdone and it is not a contribution to victory to suggest that Britain is nearly always wrong. Criticism should not be levelled at the ministers unless the critics are in possession of all the facts and make due allowance for them."

Sir Harold Webbe, an official of the munitions industry during the last war and a director of numerous companies, denounced Mr. Morrison's attacks on the government and said:

"Those of us who know him, know that he can never resist the bait of possible party political advantage, but I think it ill behoves a man who has the record of Herbert Morrison to criticize as he does."

Sir George Broadbridge, former Lord Mayor of London, said the attacks of Mr. Morrison, Mr. Lloyd George and Sir Archibald were regrettable and added:

"I think it shows a profound want of statesmanship and it certainly does not make for unity."

CANADIAN PILOTS GET PREFERENCE

Several Hundred Civilian Pilots Needed as Instructors in 26 Flying Schools

Ottawa, May 7.—(CP)—Canadian Pilots will be given preference in selection of the several hundred civilian pilots needed as instructors for the 26 elementary flying schools to be established under the British Commonwealth Air Training plan, the Canadian Flying Clubs Association announced here today.

The Association, with which are affiliated Canada's 22 Amateur Flying Clubs, has opened a registry for qualified flying instructors. Instructors for the various schools will be drawn from the registry here as required.

No. 1 elementary flying training school is now under organization at Malton Airport, Toronto, under direction of the Toronto Flying club. A staff of 13 instructors for the Malton School already has been filled, but three other clubs are expected to set up elementary flying training schools shortly and others are to follow.

Retain Civilian Status

All instructor pilots in the elementary school will retain their civilian status. The positions opened offer a chance of service on the "home front" for bush flyers, for veterans who need only a refresher course to regain their flying skill, and for scores of youths fresh from flying school.

First preference will go to civilian pilots already holding transport department licences as instructors. Second choice will be made from pilots of at least 100 hours' flying experience who are prepared to take the special 25-hour course necessary to qualify for an instructor's rating, and third choice from younger pilots who have not quite 100 hours of solo flying to their credit but are still in training.

The transport department recently lowered the instructors' minimum flying time from 250 to 100 hours.

Women pilots also may qualify as instructors, the Association announcement said, though at present only one woman holds an instructor's licence.

BRITAIN AGAINST "FIFTH COLUMN"

New and Stringent Check-up of Aliens in England Now Under Way

(By Pat Usher)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 7.—(CP)—There will be no "fifth column" in Great Britain, if official vigilance can prevent it. Following revelation of the role played by fifth columns in the German coup in Norway and Denmark, a new and stringent check-up of aliens here is under way.

Britain traditionally is friendly to the alien within her gates. Even after the outbreak of war the official attitude to the enemy alien was surprisingly tolerant. Only a small percentage of the total of some 75,000 was interned and the onus was on the crown to produce evidence why they should be interned.

The dragnet, however, included a number of key men living in Britain. Their activities during the pre-war months had been closely observed by Scotland Yard and the Home Office. All were suspected of conducting pro-Nazi propaganda and organizing espionage and sabotage.

But many sympathizers were left at large. Foreshadowing a more drastic check on their movements came warnings that a campaign of sabotage in government factories was planned. Special investigations were made at explosives plants and a census of enemy aliens employed in British factories was begun. It is estimated there are about 20,000 of them.

Picton

Picton, May 7.—(Special) — The tag day for the blind, held in Picton and Bloomfield, on Saturday realized $251.47, it was announced yesterday by E. L. Bronskill, treasurer of the local organization. This amount exceeds collections of past years despite the fact there have been quite a number of appeals of late. A large group of canvassers called at the homes as well as tagging on the streets.

Major Gerald Ferguson headed a group of twelve men of Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment which arrived home from Aldershot last week end. They had been found unfit for medical service overseas.

Mr. E. L. Wiseman spent a few days last week in Toronto.

P. J. Webster, Agricultural representative for Prince Edward County addressed the Home and School Club of Young's School and Carrying Place at Carrying Place last week. He told of the work being carried on among junior farmers. Mrs. Webster sang and told of the work of the Picton Club.

Madoc

Madoc—The May meeting of St. Peter's Presbyterian Chuch, Madoc W.M.S. was held at the home of Mr. John McKenzie on Thursday, May 2nd with an unusually large attendance of members and visitors The President was in the chair. Mrs. Curry took the Bible reading. Prayer was offered by Mrs. Sharpe. Arrangements were made for delegates to the Presbyterial meeting in Belleville, also for a missionary tea to be held in the country at the home of Mrs. McCaffrey.

There were 22 calls on shut-ins. Mrs. Hunter then took up the study period and gave a wonderful resume of what our women are doing in different branches of the work, this comprised our work in Indian schools and spoke of the musical talent found in the Cecelia Jeffrey School in Kenora, whose band had the honor of playing for the King and Queen. She cited the excellent work being done in the library department also by deaconesses. Then glimpses were given of the work in Manchuria, Japan, India and Formosa. She gave instances of outstanding work being done by the Home Helpers Department. All were delighted with the clear comprehensive report by Mrs. Hunter. The president closed a beautiful meeting with prayer. The hostess Mrs. E. Watson was assisted in serving lunch by Mrs. K. Nicol and Mrs. W. Whytock.

Campbell Hunter of the R.C.A.F. is spending the week end at "The Manse" with his parents Rev. W. A. and Mrs. Hunter.

Mrs. J. McCaffrey, Miss Jennie Wright, Miss Mary Finch, Rev. W. A. and Mrs. Hunter and Miss Mary Mackintosh attended the W. M. S. Presbyterial of Presbyterian Church in Canada being held in St. Andrew's Church, Belleville on Friday afternoon and evening.

Mrs. Kent and daughter of Toronto are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Bristol.

Pte. Jack Danford of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment is spending the week end with his family in Madoc.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Ma! He's Making Eyes at Me"

Based on the popular song hit, "Ma! He's Making Eyes at Me", the season's most riotous romance—set to the tunes of yesterday and today, the new musical hit, "Ma! He's Making Eyes at Me" is now playing at the McCarthy Theatre.

Constance Moore, who plays the romantic lead opposite Tom Brown in the story, introduces the new song, "Unfair to Love." She also sings the title song, "Ma! He's Making Eyes at Me", latest of the old time melodies to be revived to popularity on the screen.

Marie Greene and the "Merry Minstrels" offer a streamlined arrangement of the Strauss masterpiece, "The Blue Danube."

Richard Carle, former musical comedy idol of Broadway and London, sings his own composition. "I Found a Lemon in the Garden of Love," which he wrote many years ago in collaboration with M. E. Rourke.

Said to be one of the most zestful musical films to come out of Hollywood in recent months, the picture features a colorful revue of latest feminine styles displayed on dozens of shapely models. Its supporting cast includes Anne Nagel, Jerome Cowan, Elisabeth Risdon, and Fritz Feld.

Latest "Fox News"

In addition to the above feature presentation, the program also includes "Fox News" events and an exciting dramatic co-feature attraction "Sabotage," featuring Gordon Oliver, Charley Grapewin, Arleen Whalen and Lucien Littlefield.

AT THE BELLE

"Rebecca"

An exciting event in the history of motion pictures is now on the Belle Theatre Screeen where David O. Selznick's production of "Rebecca", based on the best selling Daphne du Maurier novel, is presented in all its moving brilliance and dramatic impact. Directed by the brilliant and gifted Alfred Hitchcock, "Rebecca" is one of the most exciting and suspenseful pictures to reach the screen this season. It is not only excellently and thrillingly staged, it is acted by a cast of top-notch actors who were chosen carefully for their special talents.

Heading this line-up are Laurence Olivier and Joan Fontaine, who play the starring roles, while in their support are Judith Anderson, C. Aubrey Smith, George Sanders, Nigel Bruce, Florence Bates and Gladys Cooper. Olivier is cast as Maxim de Winter, a prominent society man who is famous for his vast Tudor estate called Manderley. To this house he brings his second wife, played by Miss Fontaine, a shy and unsophisticated person who can hardly be compared to the glittering and brilliant former mistress of Manderley, Rebecca now dead. But though Rebecca is dead, her forceful personality and dramatic beauty still continue to dominate Manderley and to haunt the lives of those who wander through its immense rooms.

Judith Anderson, as the sadistically cruel Mrs. Danvers, turns in a screen portrait which is unforgettably brilliant, and the performance of Olivier and Miss Fontaine must be rated as being unsurpassed on the screen this season.

Alfred Hitchcock, the director who brought a new status to screen intrigue and melodrama, has directed "Rebecca" with startling impact, with amazing subtlety as to character delineation and with rich dramatic overtones. The picture moves with telling and engrossing swiftness from its initial scene to the final fadeout. Add to this brilliant pictorial backgrounds, and excellent musical score and unusually fine lighting effects, and you get a pretty neat idea of why David O. Selznick's newest picture, "Rebecca" is not to be missed by all those who seek real entertainment.

A new Donald Duck Cartoon, "Donald Duck's Dog Laundry" and an interesting newsreel precede the feature attraction.

Laurence Olivier and Joan Fontaine live through many unusual experiences before they settle down to a peaceful romance in David O. Selznick's, "Rebecca," now on the Belle Theatre screen.

Letters From the Troops

That the home-town paper is appreciated by Oshawa soldiers serving with the Canadian army is proved by a letter received by The Oshawa Times today from Cpl. M. N. Hamblin, who is serving with the Lorne Scots. Cpl. Hamblin writes as follows:

Aldershot, Eng.,
April 10, 1940

Oshawa Daily Times,

Dear Sirs.—I just want to take time out to tell you of a very pleasant surprise I had this evening. I was coming back to barracks and stopped at the Methodist canteen, where I met Joe Fluery, an Oshawa boy with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. I was very pleased to see him as I did not know he was over here. He asked me over to their barracks where I met several old friends from home.

They gave me several copies of The Times so I came back and read them through and through. I felt as if I was part of the activities in the old home town for a few hours again. I get several letters every mail from my mother, family and friends there, but the home sheet sure makes good reading over here.

I expect the whole world knows of Germany's latest coup at this time. People here are very calm, but looking forward to early move on our part. We all expect an early move to help show the world Canada can still make history with her sons. I intend to try and keep in touch with Oshawa boys in the different units as I am the only one from anywhere near home in my unit.

I have lived in Oshawa since 1927 so you can understand how news from there cheers one up so far away. Wishing your paper and all those in Oshawa every success, I remain,

Sincerely yours,

25 YEARS AGO LUSITANIA WAS SUNK

Twenty-five years ago German torpedoes sank the giant liner Lusitania, carrying 1198 passengers to death and inflaming the neutral world against the Germans.

Events have shown in the past two years that the Nazi Government of Germany still possesses the spirit of those who sent the Lusitania to the bottom on the claim that she was armed, though this was denied by British and by American authorities.

It was German ruthlessness. The world had been shocked in the August of 1914 when Germany drove her cruel hordes through Belgium in an effort to deal Great Britain and France a sudden blow. Belgium threw herself in the way.

Today there is a great list of victims of Germany, numbered not by the hundreds but by the many thousands of non-combatants, people of Czecho-Slovakia, Poland, Norway and Austria as well as soldiers of these nations. There is the story of German attacks on unarmed trawlers with planes machine-gunning the crews and the Nazi bombers rushing down for the kill.

The Nazi is the logical sequence of German aims revealed to Europe in 1914.

TENSION IN MEDITERRANEAN

Tension remains keen in the Mediterranean area as concentrations of forces grow.

Should the area of war be expanded observers see the possibility that a good part of the nations may become sooner or later engaged and that the war which has been proceeding for over eight months will be intensified. If the trend should be in that direction then something like a finality of lineup of the powers may take place.

What will Hitler's next move be is asked. Germany has been surrounded by neutrals whom he will not scrupple to invade if necessary or when the time comes, while the Allies are held back from violating neutrality by their adherence to international law. Some see a possible drive by Hitler to the Balkans for oil, others see a possible temptation to attack through Holland and Belgium, and others see a waiting policy such as Hitler preserved during the seven months of the war.

Meanwhile the blockade of the Allies continues.

IS HUMAN RACE LOSING STATURE?

There has been a vague opinion that the stature of man has been increasing but studies on 65,000 college freshmen of North Carolina, Kansas, Kentucky and Wisconsin during the past eleven years reveal a tendency toward a decrease in stature as compared with past generations, according to a report placed before the American Association of Physical Anthropologists. It is pointed out that temperature has an influence on stature, a rise in temperature being associated with a decrease in height. The studies indicate a reversal of the tendency of former generations to grow taller and to mature at an earlier age. The tendency for young men and women of recent generations has been attributed to diet yet the present generation of students has been as well fed as their taller immediate forbears. Dr. J. W. Colvin of the University of Cincinnati in his tests has come to believe that diet is not the controlling factor. Animals kept in cooler temperature weighed more but ate more.

Dr. C. A. Mills, of the University of Cincinnati, showed charts indicating a recurring temperature cycle every 1000 years, the temperature rising to a maximum during the millenium, then falling to a minimum and then rising again. He showed a high temperature maximum existed through the Dark Ages, when man's stature recessed four inches from the days of Greece and Rome. Suits of armor in the Tower of London would not fit the average boy of thirteen today, Dr. Mills said.

About ninety years ago, he added, a new 1000-year cycle was entered and since then the temperature has been rising again. If this explanation is correct, Dr. Mills declares we are about to begin the same recession in stature that manifested itself with the rise in temperature during the Dark Ages.

Dr. Mills went on to say that "it seems likely that a profound racial change is taking place in humanity, physically as well as socially. It would be highly desirable to know whether a similar physical reversal is taking place in those foreign lands where the upward surge of the last half century has been most marked.

The fact was brought to the attention of Dr. Mills by one of the anthropoligists present that 15.5 per cent of Harvard freshmen are more than six feet tall, a greater percentage than ever before. Dr. Mills said that he believed that this was because they came largely from the New England states where the temperature is lower than in Kansas and the other states where the studies have been made.

That there are many young men and women who are tall and proportionately built is to be noted all over Ontario. Until reading this report of the anthropoligists many would have thought the race was growing in stature, giving the cause as the more open and fresh-air life that the young lead today and the greater variety of food. Dr. Mills' report is rather baffling to those who believed that the race was increasing in stature. Local conditions of course may be after all merely casual impressions which could not be substantiated by surveys. The range of study required to reach a finding would be wide.

Those Funny Norse Names

The "dal," "vand," "sund," "sand," "skoeg" and other suffixes of place names which the German invasion of Norway have added to the war glossary are descriptive of the physical features of the localities, J. M. Finne-Gronn, Norwegian vice consul in New York, explained yesterday. They enable one familiar with the language to envisage the topography of a town even though he may never have been there.

"Dal," for instance, means "valley" in Norwegian, so that Oesterdal and Gudbrandsdal, up which the Germans have been making their moves against the British landing expeditions, can be translated into English as Oester valley and Gudbrands valley.

Two similar names which have caused much confusion are Kristiansund and Kristiansand. The suffix "sund," Mr. Finne-Gronne said, means "narrow" while "sand" means the same in both Norwegian and English, tnat is, and Kristiansund is on a narrow fjord near Trondheim. The other lies at the southwesternmost tip of Norway and indicates, obviously, a sandy beach.

To make matters more confusing for the English reader, different spellings are used for the same place in different areas of Norway. In some sections, for instance, the Glommen River may be spelled Glomma. The "a" endings of Norwegian words are a corruption of the old copy-book spellings, Mr. Finne-Gronn said, but so many of them have received wide acceptance that an official orthography issued on Jan. 1 recognized the "a" in many cases over the "en."

Some of the more widely used place-name suffixes and their English equivalents are:

bekk—brook
ely—river fjell—mountain
foss—waterfall
havn—harbor
nord—north oest—east
skoeg—forest
soey—island
stroem—stream
syd—south
vand—lake or water

Norwegian is one of the Teutonic or Germanic groups of the Indo-European languages, others of which are German, Dutch, Danish, Swedish and English. Like all languages, however, it has its own peculiarities and has contributions from other offshoots. The word "fjord," meaning "bay" or "inlet," came down from the Vikings, to whom the North Sea and even the North Atlantic were only Viking Vands.—New York Times.

Painter at Prayer

"Avoid small taverns and bad company. Keep out of brawls. Get up betimes and set to work. Above all, be on your guard against light-hearted women." Such was the counsel of that Polonius of art, Karel van Mander, who wrote down his fatherly precepts for the benefit of his "boys", the roistering apprentices at his studio, Frans Hals especially.

Hals was quite reverent at heart. "Oh Lord, take me up into Thy house," he would regularly mutter in prayer after the boys had brought him home, undressed him and tucked him comfortably into bed to sleep off the evening's carouse. And they were noble fellows, too, those chaps, bent on pleasing everyone.

In this situation they felt obliged to do their utmost and so one evening they shifted some planks in the ceiling of Hals' room. That night, as usual, after Frans was assisted home and into bed, they piously tiptoed out of the room, only this time they paused to secure four dangling ropes to the bedposts.

Hals waited until he was certain they were all gone and then began muttering his customary prayers, ending with "Oh Lord, take me up into Thy house." Whereupon the bed suddenly began to rise toward the ceiling and Hals, finding his prayers for once granted, roared, "Not so fast, Oh Lord! Not so soon!" And the bed being lowered, he fell to snoring soundly. The ropes were quietly removed, so that for some years Hals was not altogether sure that his visitation had not been real. In any case he altered the form of his prayers.—London Exchange.

The Tragic Dilemma of Hungary

II

BUDAPEST-BELGRADE ZAGREB (Croatia), May 1,

In Hungary hope is not altogether abandoned either that the Germans will not move into southeastern Europe in the immediate future or that, if they do, they will avoid passing through Hungary. Responsible persons fear that neither of these hopes is well founded, but they advance some reasonable arguments in support of them, chiefly, of course, that for the time being Germany is getting the bulk of the exportable produce from southeastern Europe and that the military occupation of these countries might not assist her economically, except for a very short time.

On the other hand, they pose five possibilities, any one of which would almost certainly start the German move. These five possibilities are as follows:

1. That the Germans may not be able to win a quick victory in Norway and therefore will seek a cheap victory immediately somewhere else.
2. That the British may put screws on the Balkan countries to the extent of seriously impeding shipments of essential materials or that they may undertake some adventure in the Danube that might precipitate German action.
3. That Russia may make a move of her own, in Rumania, Hungary or Bulgaria.
4. That Turkey may open the Dardanelles to Britain.
5. That Germany may go after Rumanian oil in the belief that by occupying the oil fields she could, by a new process, greatly increase the oil production.

x x x

All these possibilities are discounted. It is almost universally believed in southeastern Europe that Russia will make no move except to accompany and offset the actions of Germany. The Balkans, above all, are anxious to avoid having war carried to their territory, will not yield to British pressure, or to British financial or economic aid beyond the point where they continue to satisfy Germany.

Within the last fortnight, all sorts of measures have been taken by all the countries along the Danube to safeguard against adventures in these countries. Much more rigid control has been established over all foreigners entering them. In Rumania, foreign residents or visitors are required to have special police permits to be able to move from one town to another. This, I understand, was done because the secret police discovered that uniforms and arms were being smuggled into the country by persons posing as commercial agents. Foreigners are now compelled to turn over to the police all arms, war material, and even cameras which they possess on pain of instant expulsion.

The decision of Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia jointly to police the Danube was published a fortnight ago, immediately after the Thermonde incident. The Thermonde, a former Belgian ship sailing under the British flag, was caught at Giurgiu, the Rumanian Danube port directly opposite the Bulgarian port of Ruschuk. Since the incident is being kept very quiet by everybody, it is not clear why the Rumanian authorities became suspicious of this ship, whose papers were apparently in order. Some say it was because the personnel bore no resemblance to the usual Danubian bargees, and this is very likely because the crew of fifty-two men were commanded by a British major of artillery and a British army captain, the latter disguised as a cook. The ship carried explosives, pneumatic drills and an immense amount of canned food. Apparently the idea was either to blow up the banks and block the river at the Iron Gate—the narrows shortly above the point where the river ceases to be a Yugoslav boundary—and thus blockade an important German trade channel, or to establish a base on Ada-Kalad Island, which is in the river near this point. The island belongs to Rumania but is inhabited exclusively by Turks, who have a cigarette monopoly there. Austrians and Turks moved there during the Napoleonic Wars. The proposed adventure may have been preventive, but the presence of such vast amounts of canned food seems to have indicated that the little company intended to occupy the island and prepare for action in case the Germans moved in the Balkans. The cargo had several field guns.

At any rate, the adventure came to an inglorious end, and immediately afterward the Danube police control was created which forbids any transit traffic of arms without permission of the government of the state through which such transit takes place and which provides for the control of the crews of all ships plying the Danube. This action was also an answer to Germany, which had threatened to police the Danube herself.

In Hungary they state that the Dardanelles question depends on the situation in the Mediterranean and that, pending any action of Italy, this question must still be left open.

It is known that German geological experts have visited Rumania and have reported that the production of oil is inefficient and could be vastly augmented by new methods.

Finally, a delayed victory in Norway might precipitate action in southeastern Europe, especially if the Norwegian campaign makes increasing demands on Germany for materials.

x x x

But there are other aspects of the situation not included in this Hungarian summary.

German journalists, travelling in southeastern Europe, where they often encounter old friends and sometimes speak with apparent candor, have been amazingly outspoken within the last ten days concerning the situation in Germany itself. They say that Germany cannot survive another winter of war and that the war must be won this summer. They say that the German strategy was to take Norway without the resistance of the Norwegians themselves, whom they expected to capitulate immediately, and from Norwegian airdromes to launch a tremendous aerial attack upon British ports, in the hope of effecting such disorganization of British shipping as would amount to a blockade. In the panic that they expected or still expect to follow, even if it lasted only for three weeks, they would offer a separate peace to France and a new deal in southeastern Europe in which they would be backed up by Italy. I pass this on for what it is worth.

German dispatches published in Hungary have been emphasizing that "the Norwegian terrain will be merely a secondary battlefield in this war. The decision will unquestionably fall in another place."

This would seem to indicate that Germany may follow up successes in Norway with direct attempts by air against Britain.

x x x

If, however, the Nazis move eastward, which way will they go? The question concerns every country southeast of Germany. Each has been assured that Germany would respect its neutrality. Not one of them believes it.

But no one pretends to know what the German, Italian or Russian plans are or whether any triple action or dual action might take place.

Hungary counts on the good will of Italy, with whom her relations are intimate, and wishful thinkers speculate that rather than march across Hungary against Rumania the Germans may move through Yugoslavia, across the narrow strip between Italy and Hungary and north of the Sava River. This seems to military experts a very round-about way to get to Rumania. There are irrepressible reports, however, of the passage of German troops through the Yugoslav countryside. It is interesting that these reports were denied to me by officials in Belgrade, whereas responsible persons in Budapest verified them.

x x x

Military experts think that if Germany invades Rumania she will do so through Hungary and through northeastern Yugoslavia. The best line of march for the Germans would be through central Hungary and the wide valley east of the Tisa River in Yugoslavia. This was the line of march of Attila the Hun, and he is actually buried at Senta, which is now part of Yugoslavia. Through this valley also runs the only long stretch of road in Yugoslavia. It would be very difficult for the Germans to march into Rumania directly from Hungary because of the mountain ranges.

Nor would the Germans, in all probability, encounter the Yugoslav Army in this quarter, for it would be an impossible terrain to defend for more than a few hours. Military experts think that the Yugoslav army would retreat and make a stand on the Sava River at the outlets of the Bosna, Drav and Drina Rivers, using the natural river defenses which are at the same time the defenses of old Serbia.

This, of course, would lay the Yugoslav provinces of Croatia and Slovenia open to the kind of revolutionary occupation of which the Nazis are past masters. And the Croatians, it must be remembered, have had frequent conflicts with the Serbians inside the Yugoslav state. The process of conciliation began only last August, when Prince Paul, with real statesmanship, agreed to wide autonomy for the enlarged Croat province.

However, Frankist activities in Croatia have never ceased. The Frankist movement—which was responsible for the murder of King Alexander in 1934—has become the Ustacha organization. Ustacha has for its leader Ante Pavelich, who the Nazis expect, in case of an invasion, might conceivably play a Quisling role or the role that Henlein and Hacha must have played in the break-up of Czecho-Slovakia. The Ustacha is for complete independence for Croatia. The group has a negligible influence at present, but no one can tell how much it might gain in an occupation.

x x x

In case of a German attack on Rumania that would involve Yugoslavia, Italy would certainly play an active role, if for no other reason than to prevent the Germans themselves from coming into sole occupation of Yugoslavia. During the last fourteen months Italy has hastily fortified the whole sector around Tarvisio. It has cost millions, and the parole went out that it had to be finished by the first of May. These fortifications can hardly be considered a bulwark against Yugoslavia, which certainly has no mind to invade Italy. They are on the German-Italian-Yugoslav frontier.

Should Yugoslavia become an arena of the war, Italy would of course take the Dalmatian coast and might work inward across southern Yugoslavia to Bulgaria. Under such circumstances it is certain that Russia would occupy Bessarabia, and Rumania would be closed in upon from all directions. Incidentally, Bulgaria, with a German, an Italian and a Russo-phile population, is the single friendly meeting point of Rome-Berlin-Moscow.

The outlook for Germany in southeastern Europe is unquestionably more favorable than it was before the retreat of the British in Norway. The ground has already been thoroughly prepared by methods that I will outline in my next column.

None of the countries is prepared to assist any other and the likelihood of their defending themselves depends to an immeasurable extent upon the degree of their confidence that the Allies will eventually win the war. Until a fortnight ago that confidence was strong in all southeastern governments, including Hungary, despite the overwhelming nature of the German influence and the great immediate fear of Germany.

But if Germany has a free hand in Scandinavia, the defeatism will grow over night.

Billie Burke Sells Estate; Ziegfeld Mementoes

Hastings-On-Hudson, N. Y.—The real property and personal possessions here of Billie Burke, star of the stage and screen and widow of Florenz Ziegfeld, theatrical producer, went under the auctioneer's hammer recently at her estate, Burkely Crest, and brought $42,000 from 400 persons, most of them were looking for Ziegfield mementoes.

The 206 objects in the house, said to have cost $35,000, brought $6,000, while the real estate, representing an investment by Miss Burke of $250,000 and currently assessed at $148,000, brought $36,000. The property consists of twenty-two acres on Broadway overlooking the Hudson River, a gray stone mansion of nineteen rooms that Miss Burke and Ziegfeld had occupied, a ten-room house Miss Burke had built for her mother, a swimming pool designed by Joseph Urban and several outbuildings.

The sale had been ordered by Miss Burke, who, with her daughter, Patricia, now Mrs. William R. Stephenson, has lived in Hollywood since Mr. Ziegfeld's death on July 22, 1932. The real estate has a $30,750 past-due mortgage held by the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank, and the sale to Edward Rosemanan, Brooklyn real estate operator, was made subject to approval by the bank. Mr. Rosemanan said he was buying for a client whose identity he withheld.

Although ready to pay three or four prices for small objects reminiscent of Ziegfeld, the buyers were reluctant to bid high on costly objects. Two early talking motion picture machines, installed by Mr. Ziegfeld at a cost of $15,000, brought only $225. The buyer was Fred. Porrett, a New York dealer, who said they would be sold to some theatre "out in the sticks." Included in the deal were the films of Ziegfeld's unreleased picture, "East is West." A grand piano also went to a dealer, bringing $156.

The largest price for furniture was $475 for a $6,500 Hepplewhite dining room suite of nineteen pieces. The buyer was Russell F. Stuart of Newark, N.J., who said he was furnishing a house in anticipation of marriage.

Lew Brown, producer of several Ziegfeld shows, bought two monkey cages and other objects "just for sentimental reasons." Herman Kramer, appraiser for the auctioneer, suddenly felt the urge and paid $7 for a plaster bust of Miss Burke. An ornate walnut bed made specially for Mr. Ziegfeld, beside which he kept three telephones, brought $31.

Four gaudy Chinese wall hangings, for which Mr. Ziegfeld had reputedly spent $4,000, brought an average price of $50 each. Two Italian paintings from Marie Corelli's home brought a total of $50.

Bidding was liveliest for objects such as cribs and toys of Patricia, small antiques that Miss Burke had collected through the world and knickknacks used by Mr. Ziegfeld. One of the busiest persons at the sale was Miss Goldie Stanton, secretary to Mr. Ziegfeld for ten years. She had often signed his name by proxy on checks and contracts and at the sale gave posthumous Ziegfeld "autographs" to the visitors.

The auction, under the management of the Concord Galleries of New York, was conducted by J. A. Fleischer and Arthur Ross. Max Reibeisen of New York was present as Eastern manager for Miss Burke.—New York Times.

Growing Old Pleasantly

Advice from a doctor on how to live long is like his other prescriptions: If his orders are palatable we will submit to any sacrifice to obey them. Now comes Dr. Jean Besancon of Paris, who deserves attention because he has honorably reached the age of 80 in a cheerful frame of mind, and has in addition written a book dealing with longevity.

Don't drink water; take as little exercise as possible, and have an afternoon highball instead of tea, is his formula for long life as reported from Paris by The United Press. It is painful, when so much depends on Allied like-mindedness, to see a Frenchman attacking a secred British institution. But it has long been suspected that the French did not feel the same reverence for tea as did the British. Now at least the rift is out in the open, and it only remains to be seen whether a strongly anti-British sentiment on this delicate issue will develop among the neutrals.

After 40 take no exercise. "Make no effort at all, otherwise you will strain your heart." Many an oldster who is comfortably adding to his life span in the leathery depths of a club chair will nod sagely at this injunction and follow it as scripture. But there will be as many more to snort indignantly and start for the golf course. Some of our healthiest old-timers have been refusing for years to take things easy. An athletic scholar named Phelps of Yale, who is still lively at 75, gave up baseball at 45 because it was getting a bit strenuous. He tapered off by playing tennis, which he continued until he was 70. His friend Henry Ford, whose line is automobiles, long persisted in the unhealthful habit of dog-trotting for a mile at 6 a.m. to start off his busy days. He is still around and about at 76. Probably they have shortened their lives from a possible 150 years to 125. But they seem to have had an excellent time doing it.—New York Times.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

The massing of British and French naval forces in the eastern Mediterranean is a precaution against a warlike move on the part of Fascist Italy and also a slight clue to what Prime Minister Chamberlain meant when he spoke of the "long-term strategy which will win the war."

Mr. Chamberlain and his advisers undoubtedly know more than they are willing to say about the long-term strategy of the Germans and they say nothing at all about their own long-term strategy.

Recent events, including statements by political leaders and well-informed writers in Italy make it fairly clear that Italy figures in the long-term strategy of both sides.

One principle in the Allied strategy appears to be the avoidances of a dangerous disposal of forces. The Germans are fighting outwards from a compact, more or less-sufficient country.

They move to the east into Poland, to the north into Denmark and Norway and they may move to the west or to the southeast. Such moves all will tend to disperse their forces. The Allies necessarily start off with a considerable dispersal. Apart from their world-wide empires they must be ready to defend in force their interests in the Mediterranean and the Near East. They must be ready to stop any move into France or Holland or Belgium.

From the long-range point of view it may well be more to the advantage of the Allies that the Germans should remain in Norway where they will have to keep considerable forces with long lines of communication than that the Allies should weaken their defences in other quarters by attempting to wage a major campaign when their own communications with Norway are more difficult than those of the Germans.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

FIRST TRANSPLANTING OF TOMATOES BEGINS

For the past few days hundreds of women and girls have been making little holes in the earth in tomato flats, and inserting sturdy tomato plants in preparation for the forthcoming planting season.

The transplanting season will reach its peak this week, in the greenhouses of this part of Central Ontario. It is estimated that in Prince Edward County alone upwards of ten million plants will be raised for the farmers of that district. Four millions of this total is being produced in the village of Wellington alone. The aggregate total is well in advance of that of 1939 due to increased acreage contracted by company and private canning concerns.

SPRING FLOWERS START TO BLOOM IN GARDENS OF CITY

Tulips and daffodils, bursting out into the full glory of colorful bloom, are giving city lawns and gardens a true Spring touch.

The sheen of lush new grass, that has been brought out by the warm weather of the past few days, provides a perfect setting for the floral splashes of color that show in distinct contrast to the drab colors of winter, still in evidence in parts of the city.

Shrubbery and bushes are also bursting into bud, with the popular lilac leading the way. Trees are losing the "dead" appearance of winter, and are showing signs of life as branches and twigs begin to swell with the promise of budding leafage.

FOXBORO ORANGEMEN ENTERTAIN LODGE OF PLAINFIELD

Foxboro L.O.L. No. 3 entertained Plainfield L.O.L. at their regular meeting on Thursday, May 2nd.

There were present, two Past Grand Masters of the Grand Lodge of Ontario East, Rt. W. Bro. W. E. Tummon, Ex.-M.P., and Rt. W. Bro. H. B. Fetterley; also Rt. W. Bro. M. C. Reynolds, G.M., Rt. W. Bro. G. F. Reid, Grand Treasurer, and Rt. W. Bro. Arthur Hall, Gr. Standard Bearer of the Grand Black Chapter of Ontario East; Bro. C. Townsend, Co. M. of Centre Hastings, Bro. J. M. Carl, Co. M.; Bros. Geo. Reid and Erle Denyes, Past Co. Masters of South Hastings, and Bro. Robt. Rollins, District Master of No. 3 District of S. Hastings, and many other visitors.

After the regular lodge business was transacted, a splendid program was put on, with Bro. Geo. Reid of Belleville, P. Co. M. in the chair.

The program consisted of community singing, music, readings, with helpful and instructive addresses by Rt. W. Bro. Fetterley, Rt. W. Bro. Tummon, Bro. C. Townsend, Bro. E. Denyes and Bro. M. C. Reynolds.

The meeting was brought to a close with the singing of the National Anthem, after which a bountiful supper was served, and all went home, well pleased with the evening's entertainment.

YOUNGSTERS HAVE FUN PLAYING SEA WARFARE

Amateur war tactics were indulged in by a hilarious group of youngsters near the Canadian Pacific Railway bridge early today, when the youthful "gunners of the shore batteries" more or less successfully bombarded a flotilla of "enemy submarines" that bobbed their way down the Moira River.

The "submarines" in reality several large tin containers, were subjected to a heavy barrage of "stone" fire as they floated on the surface of the water. A few were driven ashore where they became stranded and eventually captured. Several "direct hits" were made by the shore brigade, but none of the "enemy" was sunk. No casualties were reported in the defending forces, although the "commanding officer" narrowly escaped a ducking when his anxiety to torpedo one of the enemy, nearly catapulted him into the river.

Humbercrest Bible Class of Toronto Guests of Madoc Young Men's Club

Madoc village was the scene of intense activity over the week-end as far as the young men of the town were concerned. At five o'clock Saturday afternoon, the spectacle of several cars filled with young men accompanied by blaring horns announced the arrival of the members of Humbercrest Bible Class of Toronto.

Arriving at the residence of Mr. C. W. Foster, "Hawthornden", on Durham street south the class was received by members of the Madoc Young Men's Club. Introductions completed, all got in cars and drove to the Canada Talc Co mine and mill. Here they were conducted by the mill superintendent through the property and saw the different stages in the milling of the talc rock. Both shafts were visited and great interest was shown by the guests in this type of mining unfamiliar to them.

Banquet Held.

Seven o'clock found the boys gathered at Blue's Hotel where the club had as its guests not only the Humbercrest class, but the business and professional men of the town. An atmosphere of unity was realized by all as they sang familiar songs led by Tom Hawthorne of Madoc, and later by Mr. George Watt [illegible].

Gordon Moon, president of the Madoc Y.M.C. proposed a toast to the King which was fittingly responded to by all. The president then gave a warming address of welcome to the visitors. This was followed by a motion that the Madoc club should carry out its reforestation project to improve the unkept lots in Madoc.

The president of the Humbercrest class, Mr. Graham Card, fittingly expressed the appreciation of their class for the privilege of spending the week-end with the Madoc young men.

The chairman then asked Mr. C. W. Foster, the highly esteemed leader of Madoc Y.M.C. and former leader of the Humbercrest Class, to speak. Having been given a very hearty hand from the boys, he proceeded to speak on the motion previously proposed by the president and upon vowing his sincere approval of the project asked Mr. George S. Corsan, famed naturalist, his opinion on the project.

Address By Geo. S. Corsan.

Mr. Corsan gave a marked comparison of the appreciable value of wood in Germany and other European lands as to the apparent indifference to the value of our Canadian wood.

This well-informed gentleman expressed appreciation of the natural beauties of Madoc and its surrounding country and he encouraged the boys to proceed with their program of making Madoc a town unique for its beauty. He pointed out that this would encourage tourists and consequently be of economic value to the town. Valuable information was presented to aid the club in its proposed undertaking. The president immediately took a vote on the motion and the unanimous approval of the club expressed the vigour and forwardness of its members.

"Courageous Thinking" Theme of Address by W. E. Gordon

Mr. Foster then introduced the guest speaker, Mr. W. E. Gordon, vice-president of Purity Baking Co. which controls bakeries across the Dominion of Canada. He mentioned the fact that Mr. Gordon was a speaker in very great demand and voiced appreciation to him for his willingness in coming to Madoc. Mr. Gordon immediately won his audience by a skilful humorous introduction. Having expressed his congratulations to Mr. Foster for his fine work among boys wherever he is, Mr. Gordon proceeded to speak on the subject "Courageous Thinking." He stated that the young men are the great hope of the future. They have the "fire of life" which will rule the future generation. The address emphasized the power in thought, the lack in Canada's population, the dignity of physical labour, orderly life and the re-establishment of home life. In filling out these headings, many startling facts were presented, for example, in a survey of a Western town in 1930 there were 98 young men out of work, 61 of whom had no church or club connections and this average holds for most small towns in Canada. In challenging youth to dignify physical labour he pointed out the incapability of a young man who has never had an introduction to physical labour but merely has a university education.

The young men were encouraged to read and this develops their thinking abilities and also to command individual self-discipline. His address was closed by two very stirring and challenging poems.

Both men and youth present were given matters which would merit considerable concentrated thought. A vote of appreciation was extended to Mr. Gordon by Ted Poulter. The gathering dispersed to meet again at the Orange Hall, the scene of an informal dance provided by the Madoc Club for the Humbercrest guests. With the appreciated co-operation of the young ladies of Madoc, two hours were spent in a gay, friendly manner. The club with their guests of the dance took lunch at Caverly's Restaurant. In the space of a few hours, a pleasant, mutual friendship was established between the boys from Humbercrest and those of Madoc Young Men's Club.

The next morning many cars found their way to Actinolite, then turning north they went as far as the large re-forestation grounds belonging to Mr. C. W. Foster. Here all the Toronto and Madoc young men went on a hike witnessing some very beautiful scenery.

M.Y.M.C. Holds Regular Meeting

An open air lunch was prepared and appetites being appeased all returned to Madoc where at Trinity United Church the regular meeting of the M.Y.M.C. was held with the guests and men of the town.

Mr. Graham Card president of Humbercrest B. Class took charge. Following the singing of a hymn, Mr. Foster led in prayer. Tom Hawthorne read a few verses from the Book of Timothy. The chairman then presented the M.Y.M.C. with a Bible as a token of their friendship.

The Hawthorne quartette sang, "Breathe On Me, Breath of God." Mr. Foster introduced the speaker, Mr. George S. Corsan, an olympic swimming instructor and naturalist. Many interesting experiences of this widely experienced gentleman were related. Detailed advice was given in maintaining good health. The meeting closed with a hymn and the repeating of the Lord's Prayer.

The last event of the visit was then at hand. All found their way to Hawthornden where they were graciously received by Mrs. Foster, who, assisted by eight charming young ladies of Madoc's younger set, served a welcome luncheon. A hearty sing-song in the drawing room announced the close of the week end and with heart-felt hand shakes they bid Madoc "Au revoir" until another opportunity is given them to enjoy the friendly hospitality of the town.

Kinsmen Discuss Possibility of Holding Bicycle Racing Event

Discussion of the pros and cons of the possibility of Belleville being the locale this summer of the Canadian Bicycle Association championship events, featured the regular fortnightly meeting of the Kinsmen Club at the Queen's Hotel Monday night.

The clubmen were addressed briefly by Mr. Andy Houting, president of the C. B. A. who explained in detail the various phases and activities which necessarily preclude such an event. Considerable discussion regarding the advisability of holding such an event here resulted in various opinions, and the matter was referred back to a special committee for further investigation and possible action.

With upwards of forty members in attendance, incidentally one of the largest turnouts of the current year, the Kinsmen further discussed their now famous summer sports classic, the Soap-Box Derby, which will be held on Derby Hill sometime in late July. No definite date was set, however, as the committee did not wish to conflict with dates of other organizations which might or might not fall upon the tentative date already suggested.

Various phases of the Derby were discussed and committee chairmen heard from. Present indications point to one of the most successful derbies ever held since the inception of the novel sports event by the local club four years ago.

Final plans were laid for the club's mixed bridge and euchre which will be held this week in the Liberal Club Rooms. Bingo, games and dancing will also be featured at this first social activity of this nature in the club's history. Members will bring other couples as guests. A luncheon will be served.

President Marvell was in the chair and cordially welcomed three new members, Kinsmen William Dunlop, Bernard Lovis and Newton Wilbur. Kinsmen Bill Holway acted as sergeant-at-arms with Kinsmen Don Roe leading the singing.

DANGER POINTS IN SOUTHEASTERN EUROPE

Extension of the war to the Mediterranean appeared more imminent as Allied and Italian naval forces gathered at strategic points prepared for instant action. The above map shows the danger points in Europe's uneasy southeast corner. Turkish troops are reported to be massing on the Greek and Bulgarian frontiers (1) while Nazi forces are reported marching near Yugoslavia and Hungary (2), and shipping tanks into Slovakia. Italian troops are also on the move (3) and have their fleet stationed off the Dodecanese Islands (4). Russian troops are reported near Hungary (5). Allied fleets have taken up stations in the Aegean (6). Hungary has been rounding up spies (7).

Wichita, Kas., May 7 (AP).—Mrs. W. H. Pattison never had killed a chicken. Neither had she ever used a hatchet. Holding the fowl she wanted for dinner in her left hand she swung the blade with her right. Mrs. Pattison went to a hospital with a lacerated artery. The chicken escaped.

WHITEFISH FRY PLANTED

South Bay, May 7—Several hundred thousand of whitefish fry, were deposited in Point Traverse waters this week. The fry is placed by the Provincial fish hatchery at Glenora, and trout fingerlings will also be emptied into lake waters at a later date.

INTERNAL DEFENCE

Compulsory Registration

The Internal Defence Plan was outlined by officials as follows: Under a compulsory registration law, a list of all foreigners has been compiled and is revised from day to day. The law forbids aliens to travel without special permits, and the government thus will know their exact whereabouts at any given moment.

To make sure that these persons do not travel without authorization government agents keep a close tab on their movements.

Special military intelligence officers in each district are supplied with lists of foreigners in their territory, supplemented by daily reports on arrivals and departures.

These officers also have been given complete instructions for rounding up all aliens within their districts and placing them in concentration camps. A command flashed to all parts of the country would launch the roundup at a moment's notice.

Restrictions on foreigners were increased last night when the government imposed censorship on all newspaper correspondents, with penalties ranging up to seven-year terms for sending information which authorities deem inexact.

Air Raid Exercises

At the same time the nation's entire military and civilian defence organization was mobilized for air raid exercises.

The action followed ominous reports of troop movements throughout southeastern Europe and in the eastern Mediterranean.

Balkan capitals speculated on the significance of the latest developments in Rome, where Premier Mussolini was said to have conferred on military matters with Crown Prince Umberto, who commands half of the Italian army.

There was no official confirmation of reported Italian troop concentrations along the Yugoslav border, though Virginio Gayda, editor of Mussolini's newspaper Il Giornale D'Italia, said that "precautionary measures" had been taken because of "French and British intrigues" in the Balkans.

In Hungary, Premier Count Paul Teleki and Foreign Minister Count Istvan Csaky completed an inspection of the Lispe oilfields near the Yugoslav frontier which are being developed by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

Observers linked the inspection with reports that Germany had requested an increase in Hungarian oil production for German use.

Hungary produced 318,000 barrels of oil in 1938, about three-fourths of her domestic needs, but the Germans were said to hold that the production could be boosted to far higher levels.

NAZIS COMMANDEER FOOD IN OSLO AS CIVILIANS RATIONED

Smuggled across the Swedish border, this photo is one of the few to evade German censorship in Nazi-held Oslo, Norwegian capital. It shows Norse civilians, mostly women and children, lined up to receive a food ration. It is evidence that food stocks were commandeered immediately by the invading forces.

BRITISH TOMMIES

The story of the weirdest personal adventure was told to The Canadian Press by a 34-year-old staff captain.

"I went forward with the first advance party from Andalsnes to Tretten," he said. "After five days of fighting a few of us were cut off. I lost contact with the others and started the trek back alone."

Trekked 160 Miles

He said that altogether he trekked 160 miles in eight days through mountainous country and past the enemy lines.

"Once I broke into a house and stole Norwegian clothes and some food. Just as well, because later I encountered a German patrol and managed to fool them into believing I was a local peasant."

The rank and file apparently did not know the withdrawal from Norway was on until they were almost ready to pile out of trains and into homeward bound ships at Andalsnes:

"We thought we were just luring the Germans into range of the navy's guns," said one trooper.

One soldier said he saw six German bombers shot down with rifles at Dombas. Sometimes the bombers, which did most of their work by day, swooped down to within 20 feet of the ground, he declared.

Nearly Every House Bombed

A gangling youth of 21 said that only seven or eight houses out of a total of 300 at Andalsnes had been bombed before he arrived there.

"When we came back through the town only seven or eight had not been bombed," he added.

One British newspaperman, watching the hobnailed procession, remarked that "quite a lot of them seem young and undersized," but not one of the men would admit he had been frightened during the twelve days in which they were harassed by the German air force.

"They bombed anything that moved," said one old "Contemptible" of the first Great War. "They were poor shots, but the place was full of spies. The Germans always seemed to know where we were and where our anti-aircraft guns were. If it had been man-to-man fighting the British would have wiped them out."

Used Depth Charges

A London corporal, one of a crew assigned to demolition of bridges as the Allies backtracked up the Gudbrandsdal toward Andalsnes said:

"We were short of explosives we used depth charges from the ships to bomb the bridges, and they really blew them up!"

Major-General B. C. T. Paget, whose direction of the embarkation at Andalsnes was praised by Prime Minister Chamberlain last Thursday, credited the Norwegians with great aid in the withdrawal. He said they drove trains practically up to the front lines twice to retrieve Allied forces.

Hardly a house was left standing along the 30 miles from Kvam to Dombas, one of General Paget's men related, as the German air force bombed the line of retreat.

When the navy brought down four Nazi planes, "you should have seen the heart it put into the boys," he added.

PERSONALS

Mrs. F. W. Balcanquel who underwent an operation at Belleville General Hospital on Saturday, is progressing favorably.

Miss Catherine Scanlan who has been visiting her sister, Miss Florence Scanlan, Holloway Street, during her holidays has returned to Ottawa.

Mrs. Ernest Martin, 314 Church Street, who has been confined to her bed with illness for the past few days, is progressing satisfactorily.

MEN OF FIFTY TAKE IT EASY

By McKEOWN'S DRUG STORE

Youth and optimism last through four or five decades. It is simple to burn the candle at both ends when one is bursting with energy and is full of vigorous drive.

At fifty, take a word of warning. Slow down a little. Regulate your life to more leisure. You are not old, but you are not young either. Life will be longer, sweeter, more productive, if you take it easy now.

Have a regular consultation with your doctor. Let him check heart and kidneys, blood pressure, arteries. Follow his advice to the letter.

If medication is required, take the prescription to a druggist as carefully selected as you picked the doctor. They work together for your health.

PINE GROVE W. I.

The members of the Pine Grove W. I. held a euchre in the Marsh Hill School Tuesday evening, April 30th. A good number were present with visitors from Scotts and Wallbridge.

Ten tables of progressive euchre were in progress throughout the evening. The prizes going to the following: Ladies first, Miss E. Laughlin; gents first, Mr. C. Hamilton; Ladies low, Miss M. Parks; gents low, Mr. C. C. Smith; Door prize, Mrs. A. Hamblin.

The proceeds of the evening amounted to $11.40.

A delicious lunch brought the evening to a close.

The members especially thanked those from Scotts and Wallbridge for their loyalty to the newly organized branch.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

It's an inspiring comment on American idealism that, throughout the nation, May 12 is celebrated as Mother's Day. This second Sunday in May is, as the resolution reads, "dedicated to the memory of the best mother in the world, your mother." It urges that "through some distinct act of kindness, visit, letter, gift, or tribute" all may "show remembrance of the mother to whom it is designed to perpetuate all family ties."

If your tribute to your mother is to be a gift or a letter or a telegram, make that tribute as personal as you can make it. Make it express your own spirit and devotion. Mother's hearts want that personal touch, and inevitably they recognize it.

Send a ready-made Mothers' Day card, if you feel you must; but write a letter too, a letter in your own words. After all, the words on the ready-made cards are the printer's—not yours.

As an inspiration for what I am sure you will agree is a perfect letter from a son to his mother, I'd like to quote an excerpt from a letter from Thomas Carlyle to his mother, written in May, 1822:

My dear Mother,

You will find here a bonnet of Imperial chip, or simple chip, or real chip, or whatever it is, which I hope will arrive safely and be found to suit you. I think it looks as if it would fit you. I wish that it were fifty times better for your sake; it would still be the most feeble testimony of what I owe to your kind affection, which has followed me unweariedly through good and evil fortune, soothening and sweetening all the days of my existence, and which I trust Providence will long, long continue for a blessing to us both.

Tell me honestly, do you get tea and other things comfortably? I should be very sorry if you restricted yourself for any reason other but from choice. It would be a fine thing surely if you that have toiled for almost half a century in nourishing stalwart sons, should not now by this means have a little ease and comfort, when it lies in their power to gain it for you! I again entreat you, if you wish anything in the reach of my ability, to let me hear of it.

I entrust you with my affectionate remembrances to my father, and all the family, every one. They owe me letters now, which they cannot repay a minute too soon.

Farewell, my dear mother! May all Good be with you always.

Your affectionate
Your affectionate son,
Th. Carlyle

"May all Good be with you always." Amen to that great prayer, for all mothers.

Mother's Day . . . MAY 12th
A TRIBUTE TO YOUR MOTHER

It's our sincere belief that Mothers are truly the greatest people in the world. We know too that this is a very busy and disconcerting world . . . and that sometimes we forget how much Mother really means to us. However, next Sunday is your chance to really express your devotion . . the day Mother expects you to be with her. Don't let her down . . she's depending on you just as you've depended on her for years in the past.

WEDDINGS

THOMPSON—CHAPLIN

A pretty wedding was quietly solemnized at Trinity Anglican Church, Merrickville, Saturday morning when Marjorie Irene Chaplin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Chaplin, Belleville, was united in marriage with Burton Latchford Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Thompson, of Tweed. Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne officiated and the ceremony was followed by the celebration of Holy Communion.

The bride was becomingly costumed in a pearl grey worsted suit, with navy and white accessories and wore a corsage of white carnations and fern. The bridesmaid, Miss Phyllis Wright of Ottawa, wore a navy blue crepe dress, street length, with navy and white accessories and wore a corsage of white carnations and fern.

Mr. Charles Elliott of Smiths Falls, was best man. Following the ceremony a wedding luncheon was served at the rectory to the wedding party.

Travelling, the bride wore a navy blue candy stripe dress with red coat and navy and white accessories.

The young couple left by motor for Ottawa and other points and will later reside at Tweed.

DAVIS—MOORE

A quiet wedding was solemnized on Saturday, April 27th., at 4 p.m., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. A. Moore, Springbrook, when Margaret Lila, youngest daughter of Mrs. Moore, and the late Mr. John N. Moore was united in marriage to Mr. Frederick F. Davis of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. V. Davis, Belleville. The Rev. A. W. Harding officiated.

The bride wore a most becoming gown of dusky rose sheer with matching accessories. She was attended by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Jack Moore who wore a gown of pale blue sheer with matching accessories. The groom was attended by Mr. Jack Moore, brother of the bride.

After the ceremony a dainty buffet luncheon was served after which the happy couple left on a short honeymoon. For travelling the bride wore a sand coat with navy accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis will reside in Belleville.

AIKEN'S W. M. S.

The May meeting of Aiken's Women's Missionary Society was held on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Harleigh Hamilton.

The theme for the month was "Christian Stewardship" and the call to worship was given by the President, Mrs. Thos. Irwin. Scriptures were read by Mrs. S. Westover, Miss Jennie Moon, Mrs. T. Irwin, Mrs. Wm. Wheeler, Mrs. H. Hamilton and Mrs. C. Grills.

"God's ownership and our stewardship" was the subject of a devotional talk given by Mrs. Wm. Bush.

Stewardship is a trust, the speaker stated, including talents, time, energy, personality as well as money. Money is the energy of the body and brain transformed into currency and has a spiritual value second only to the giving of self to the Kingdom of God.

The importance of money to the mind of Jesus, Mrs. Bush continued is shown by His frequent reference to the subject. Sixteen of Jesus' thirty-eight parables are concerned with the right and wrong use of money. The great safeguard in relation to money, she said, is to recognize God's ownership and our stewardship, for that will lead to both faithfulness and liberality.

A reading "Mother's Day" was given by Mrs. Murney Jeffrey and "Meditation" by Mrs. Fred Westover. A piano solo was given by Mrs. Harleigh Hamilton and Mrs. Earl Bush contributed a solo "An evening prayer." "Beginning at Jerusalem" was read by Mrs. Millard and "They came from Sunny Italy" by Miss Jennie Moon.

Plans were made for a tea to be held in June, in honor of Miss Elsie Hunt.

In her closing remarks the President said that 100 years ago there were no foreign missionaries and now they are stationed in every nation of the world. The meeting was closed with prayer by Mrs. Irwin.

FRONT ROAD WAR WORKERS

A pancake supper was held in Front Road Church Hall by the War Workers on Wednesday evening. Proceeds at the door were 13.85 which will be turned over to Salvation Army.

A good program was provided by Band Master Green and his little class. Much credit is due to the juniors. Major H. S. Alderman gave a splendid talk on their overseas work and how the money was spent. He also said that the war would not be ended by money alone, it would require earnest prayer as well.

Mrs. T. J. Brown moved a vote of thanks to the Army putting on program. The program closed with God Save The King.

ROMANCE FROM WRECK

Colchester, England — (CP) — When his ship was mined off the coast last November, Seaman John Ferguson was brought to hospital here. He was nursed by Joan Doreen Weller and married her because he "loved her at first sight."

My Johnnie Will Reach the Top!

"Johnnie had me worried," admits his mother. "His system was so sluggish it was like a ball and chain dragging him down."

In young or old this "ball and chain" feeling is not uncommon. Yet often it only results from a lack of bulk in the diet.

Post's Bran Flakes help to prevent it. They provide just enough natural bulk in the form of bran to keep the food wastes moving promptly.

"I feel as keen as mustard now mother gives me Post's Bran Flakes regularly," says Johnnie, "and they taste scrumptious."

HELP keep your family free from the effects of faulty elimination by serving Post's Bran Flakes daily. They are so appetizing and convenient. If this does not readily relieve constipation due to lack of bulk, consult a physician.

Diagnosing Pregnancy

When, some time ago, I discussed the modern diagnosis of pregnancy, I only outlined one chapter in a lengthy story. Once a doctor has diagnosed pregnancy in a woman, his diagnosis of the case is just beginning.

There are a dozen other facts he must or should find out about his patient and her condition. The importance of making a series of visits to your doctor once you know you are pregnant is to give him the opportunity of noting every symptom. In this way he can be sure of knowing if there are any unusual features about the pregnancy.

For instance, most people still think that when twins are born, it is a surprise to everyone. Well, if twins come along unexpectedly like this, it is usually because no doctor has had a chance to make a diagnosis, for today almost every multiple birth is diagnosed ahead of time.

This is done in many, simple ways—excessive size of the abdomen, large weight increases, greater than normal movement in the womb during pregnancy. These all suggest to a doctor that his patient is carrying more than one child. Even more reliable evidence will come from a closer examination of the abdomen.

Sometimes a hand passed carefully over the abdomen will feel the presence of two figures. This method of determination is of little use until the latter part of the pregnancy, however.

Another reliable test is the detection of two distinct fetal heart beats in the patient's abdomen. When there is more than one baby in the womb, the heart beats will usually differ so that when the examining physician puts his stethoscope on one place he will hear a heart rate of say, 130 beats a minute; then over on another part of the abdomen, he will hear another heart with a beat of 140 to the minute. When this happens, he is quite sure there are twins going to be born to the woman.

This method is only reliable if there is a difference of ten beats. If not there is danger that the doctor is hearing the heart rate of the same baby from two parts of the abdomen. However, one baby's heart will scarcely vary beyond a few beats in an examination, so a difference of ten is safe. Of course, there might be two babies present whose heart beats were very close together. Then the physician will make sure there are two by other means.

CHAPTER FOUR

"You're my one comfort, Kemp. No one else appreciates my efforts to preserve what is left of the old Russian days. Dynamite thinks I'm touched in the head . . ."

"Touched is right!" the captain grinned indulgently. Take the banya, for instance. I had illigant bathrooms put in here before Sondy was born, but it was five years before anyone could get Polena into a tub. She steamed herself in the banya. Even after she quit usin' it, my women folks wouldn't let me team it down. It's out there in the back yard now stickin' up like a roothouse among the bushes. But I put my foot down on one thing—I made 'em let me nail up the long, drafty passage that leads out to it."

"Passage?"

"Aye. When old Mike Karmanova built this place the Indian varmints were always tryin' their best to wipe Sitka off the map. So he has this tunnel made from the house to a room under the banya. At the first sign of an Indian uprising, he made ready for siege by stocking the room with grub and water."

"Sondra has shown me over the house, captain; but she must have forgotten to show me the door to the passage."

"Oh, that was nailed-up before she was born. Ye wouldn't know it if ye looked at it, Starbuck. It's one of the carved panels under the stairway to the reception room downstairs."

"What a house!" Kemp said appreciatively. "It wouldn't be surprising if these paneled walls and log partitions concealed hiding places for such things as old records. Diaries, letters, that sort of thing."

"Not these walls. I've had every inch of 'em sounded for dry rot, and they're as solid as ivory. As for diaries, a man's a fool for keeping such. I haven't logged a line since—since I lost the Glory."

"I wish to heaven you had," remarked Sondra. "Right now it would help me with the memoirs."

"How are you coming on with the book?" casually asked Kemp.

"Fine!" Dynamite's telling about his poaching days in Bering Sea, when he had to run from revenue cutters and hide among the Aleutians."

Kemp looked politely incredulous. "How was it, captain, that you, in a sailing ship, could outdistance a steam-powered cutter?"

"'Twas the Glory, Starbuck. Her speed. She gave me sixteen knots an hour in a fair breeze, while the patrol gunboats of that time could grind out but nine knots at best."

Kemp nodded. "I see. We of this engine-minded generation don't quite appreciate sail, captain. But those hide-outs, now. How could you find them, when you had nothing to go by but the incomplete Russian charts of that time?"

"Ah, that was knowledge, Starbuck. We intimate local knowledge of bays and passages that never appeared at all on any chart. Before ever I clubbed a seal in the Bering, I'd spent a year checkin' soundin's and ranges meself, whilst an Aleut sea-otter hunter eased the Glory in and out among that bloody mess of islands. Furthermore, I'd plotted me courses on five-point bearin's that would see me through on the darkest night. Aye, me private charts showed many a dog-hole along the Aleutians in which I could hide me ship. Could hide a squadron of battleships, for the matter of that, after showin' 'em plenty of water to enter."

Kemp laughed. "You certainly made thorough preparations to outwit Uncle Sam, sir! Old maps—they used to be a hobby of mine. Perhaps you'd let me look at your homemade charts one of these days. That is, if you have them handy."

"I've only one set — and they're copies on tracin' linen, Starbuck. Ramps Reynall once bribed me own cabin boy to steal the originals; but I caught the sculpin in the act and traced copies to put in me Seattle safe-deposit box. Lucky I did; for in the end I had to burn the originals under the very muzzles of Reynall's four-inch guns when he caught me nappin'. Indade, 'twas those charts and the treachery of. . . . But no matter. There are some who would pay high for those charts just now."

"You are—er—negotiating a sale, captain?"

"Sale!" ejaculated O'Moore indignantly. "Look ye here, I'm a businessman, Starbuck, but I'm no traitor. When those tracin's go out of me hands they'll go to Uncle Sam and none other."

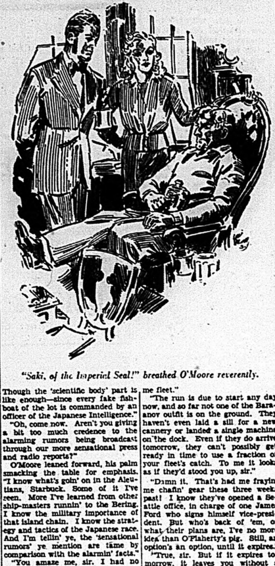
"Of course; of course," Kemp said apologetically. "The government no doubt is eager to get them."

"Faith, then, they've concealed it so far. Months ago, when the first war cloud boiled up over China, I wrote to Washington. Offered me charts and pointed out the vital aid they'd be to any naval concentration in Aleutian waters. Me only response is from some third assistant deputy clerk sayin' 'the matter will be submitted to the Secretary for consideration in due course.' In due course!

"It gets my dander up to see Washington make no move whilst a foreign power edges in on our territorial waters. D'ye know there's a hundred so-called fishin' vessels out of Japan swarmin' through the Aleutians this minute?"

"Indeed, sir? I suppose the government sees no menace in those boats. From the little I've heard I gather they're only doing a little crab fishing, combined with some scientific study of the salmon migration."

"Crabs and salmon be hanged! Though the 'scientific body' part is like enough—since every fake fishboat of the lot is commanded by an officer of the Japanese Intelligence."



"Saki, of the Imperial Seal!" breathed O'Moore reverently.

"Oh, come now. Aren't you giving a bit too much credence to the alarming rumors being broadcast through our more sensational press and radio reports?"

O'Moore leaned forward, his palm smacking the table for emphasis. "I know what's goin' on in the Aleutians, Starbuck. Some of it I've seen. More I've learned from other ship-masters runnin' to the Bering. I know the military importance of that island chain. I know the strategy and tactics of the Japanese race. And I'm tellin' ye, the 'sensational rumors' ye mention are tame by comparison with the alarmin' facts."

"You amaze me, sir. I had no idea . . ."

"Nor has Washington, by the look av it. By the horn-billed jeez-wax . . ."

"Dynamite, honey! You're roaring," interposed Sondra. "Why not get on a new subject, while I stir up another issue of rum?"

"Yes, captain," Kemp agreed hastily. "And let that subject be herring. I really came to see you today about the catch of your fleet

CHAPTER FIVE

"And now, what about me catch, lad?" asked the captain, after sampling his drink. His voice was friendly, but a certain wariness had come into his eyes.

Sondra settled herself to listen.

The O'Moore fleet was really her property. On her grandfather's retirement from his own business two years ago, he had invested the legacy left her by her parents in six herring seiners, which would remain under his management until she was twenty-five. She felt it was time that she learned something of the business.

Kemp was saying, "Briefly, sir, I want all the herring you can catch this season."

"Ye mean all me surplus, don't ye?"

"No. I want to contract for your entire season's catch. The same sort of contract you had with John Bates last year. Bates is dead. Is there any reason why you can't let me—that is, my firm—have it?"

"There's one reason, though there may be none by this time tomorrow, Starbuck. A new outfit—the Baranov Packers—have taken over the Bates holdings. They have until eleven tomorrow mornin' to exercise an optional contract for the catch of me fleet."

"The run is due to start any day now, and so far not one of the Baranov outfit is on the ground. They haven't even laid a sill for a new cannery or landed a single machine on the dock. Even if they do arrive tomorrow, they can't possibly get ready in time to use a fraction of your fleet's catch. To me it looks as if they'd stood you up, sir."

"Damn it. That's had me frayin' me chafin' gear these three weeks past! I know they've opened a Seattle office, in charge of one James Ford who signs himself vice-president. But who's back of 'em, or what their plans are, I've no more idea than O'Flaherty's pig. Still, an option's an option, until it expires."

"True, sir. But if it expires tomorrow, it leaves you without a buyer on the eve of the herring run. I'm the only other packer in this district who can handle a catch as large as yours. But if I make a contract with someone else, won't you find it—er—let us say, embarrassing to go outside this district to market your herring?"

"Embarrassin'?" The captain jerked himself erect. "What d'ye mean by that?"

"Well, sir, during the past week I've been to both Thomas and Swanson trying to contract for their surplus. A couple of years ago they would have jumped at the chance to sell me that surplus. This season, while they didn't exactly refuse outright, they stalled. They wouldn't promise anything or fix a price. I somehow got the idea that they wouldn't sell to me at any price.

"I think you and Thomas and Swanson have made a 'gentlemen's agreement'. You've divided these coastal waters into three parts, each to stick close to his own district, neither fishing nor selling outside it. In a working alliance with your seagoing fleets, the three of you control the herring industry. You have the rest of us at your mercy. We can either buy your surplus at a fancy price, or watch our plants stand idle. But supposing this Baranov outfit folds up on you tomorrow, leaving you to look for another market? Suppose, meantime, that I, the only large packer in this district of yours, should have made other arrangements for my fish? Wouldn't that 'gentlemen's agreement', binding you not to sell outside your district, prove rather embarrassing to your operations? Of course, I'm only guessing, but . . ." A lift of his eyebrows completed the sentence.

"Starbuck, I admit nothin', ye understand, but I'll say this—ye are a good guesser. Ye've put your cards on the table, and so will I. I've agreed to furnish Baranov Packers with all the herring they can handle provided they fork over an advance of thirty thousand dollars. To bind the bargain, they must have a representative here on or before tomorrow morning at eleven o'clock, with cash or a certified cheque for that amount. So, until then . . ."

"But, confound it, sir, they haven't built their plant yet. They . . ."

"I know. But I phoned Jarvis at the bank this mornin' and finangled around till I learned Baranov Packers have a husky deposit in his bank. They can produce that advance—if one of 'em gets here by tomorrow."

"But if they fail to arrive, you have no reason for refusing to let me take up that contract for my company, have you, sir?"

"I have. Though 'tis more a personal prejudice than a business reason, Starbuck. 'Tis this: Ye employ too many Orientals to suit me."

"Oh, be fair, now sir! I'm not the only one. Every packer in Alaska brings in Orientals. Always has. If he didn't, he'd go broke. You know the reason for that as well as I do. Most of the natives belong to the Russian Church, with its hundred and eighty-two holidays a year. A man can't put up a pack with cannery hands who will lay off in the midst of the biggest run to celebrate a holiday."

"There's some truth in that," admitted the captain. "However, things have changed since the Japs began invadin' Bering Sea, stealin' American fish under our very noses, and cannin' 'em in Japanese floatin' canneries anchored in American waters. This year every Alaskan packer has cut down on his Oriental crew, except yourself. Ye haven't a single white man or an Indian on any of your seine boats, now have ye?"

Starbuck flushed. "No. But I have in my cannery. I—I took that very matter up with my board of directors, but . . . well, here's the situation, captain: Although I'm president of my concern, my position here is more that of a salaried superintendent. I'm a long way from having the final voice in many matters of company policy, you understand."

"Um-m-m. I see. Well, by next season, ye'd better see to it that some of those little brown men are weeded out of your fishing fleet, Starbuck. I don't like 'em. However, I do like the way ye've been above-board with me. When a man shoots square with me, I do the same with him. Otherwise . . ." He paused significantly.

"Yes, sir. But what about the fish?" persisted Kemp.

"A single-minded divil, ye are, Starbuck." The captain grinned. "Well, if I'm hooked with the Baranov contract, I can promise ye no more than me surplus; but I'll turn ye every barrel of that. And if that lackadaisy Baranov outfit is late with that advance by so much as five minutes, I'll . . ." He broke off as a loud, labored wheezing came through the door from the hall. "What the —oh, it's that old fool, Polena. Been running up the stairs again. What's wrong now, Polena?"

CHAPTER SIX

The scowling housekeeper panted into the room. "Captain — Miss Sondra — that — that —"

"Oh, scram, Polena," drawled a deep, feminine voice. "I'll announce myself. Hello, everybody!"

She sauntered through the doorway, a tall, dark girl, full-bosomed, yet slim. A cluster of crushed, brown edged gardenias wilted on the shoulder of her black caracul coat. Her smart hat adhered to one side of her long, turned-under bob at such an extreme angle that the beholder instinctively looked for its moorings. Her red mouth was petulant, and her brown eyes swept the room with an alertness curiously at variance with her heavy, long-lashed lids.

"Liane!" cried Sondra. "What a surprise! I thought you were in San Francisco." After a moment's hesitation, she advanced with outstretched hand.

"I got in on the mail plane last night." The dark girl kissed Sondra's cheek. "Ah, there, captain! How are you, darling? She flung her arm around O'Moore's neck.

The captain emerged from her furry embrace, his eyes twinkling, and turned to Kemp. "Starbuck, I'd like to make ye known to Mrs.—Mrs.—bless me soul, Liane, I don't believe I know the name of your current husband."

"I'm using my maiden name again, cap." In one swift glance the girl had appraised Kemp's trim, athletic build; his tawny hair, the line of his mouth. She smiled at him, a slow smile accompanied by a fanning of her long lashes. "I'm Liane Bootrin."

Divested of hat and coat she sank into a soft chair and crossed her knees in a way that revealed one beautifully modeled leg.

"Well, well!" jovially boomed the captain. "Seems like old times to have ye back again, Dark-and-Devilish! What brought ye home this time? 'Twas only last week your mother told me ye were packin' 'em in at the Lotus Club with that torch dance of yours."

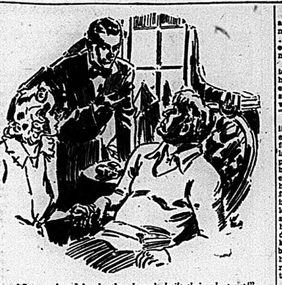
"I was. But the only dance being done there now is a dance of rage by the birds who wrote the fire insurance on the dump. The place went up in flames."

"Oh, Liane! I'm so sorry. You do have the worst luck." Sondra was sympathetic.

"I'll say." Liane adjusted her hair and ran her fingers over her pencilled brows. "How am I standing up under the strain, captain?"

O'Moore surveyed her with humorous and critical interest. "'Tis like a lovely, dark red rose ye are, me gurl. A rose that's growin' a bit too near the dusty highway."

Liane laughed and made a face at him.



"But, confound it, sir, they haven't built their plant yet!" said Starbuck.

Sondra asked, "How long will you stay home this time?"

"That depends on you, darling. I'm tossing myself on the well-known O'Moore hospitality again."

"Of course, Liane, we'll be happy to have you visit us. Your luggage . . ."

"Oh, I happened to meet Alexander on my way over, and I told him to get my bags and put them in your Lady Franklin room. But if you'd rather put me somewhere else . . ."

"Miss Sondra!" Polena's acid voice cut in. "I'm cleaning the Lady Franklin room this week. And the other guest rooms also."

Sondra, aware that Polena had just finished cleaning the entire upper storey, said diplomatically, "But you manage such things so smoothly, dear, I'm sure you can arrange it. Come along with me now, and we'll see about the bedding. I'll see you later, folks."

As Sondra and the old housekeeper entered the small blue-and-gold suite down the hall, Polena jerked to a stop. "Humph!" She pointed a fat finger at the battered luggage on the floor—an incongruous note amid the exquisite old French furniture. "Last time she stayed three months, and you away at the University. My legs, they had knots from running around waiting on her. I tell you, Miss Sondra, I won't do it this time."

"Now, now, Polena!"

"She with her airs. Everyone knows her great-great-great-grandfather was the murdering Thlinget chief who led the massacre of old Sitka. And Alexander — if that grandson of mine lets her bamboozle him, by the hornwax jeez-bill, I'll . . ."

"Polena!" Sondra laughed. "When you begin misusing the captain's swearwords it's time to calm down, or you'll bring on another attack of your asthma. Come, now. See that the bed is made up, like a dear, and then unpack Liane's bags."

Sondra tried to be serious, but the old woman's look of malignant servility was too much for her gravity. "Look here, Polena!" She was laughing again. "Are you with me, or against me?"

"Milaya!" The savagery of the old face vanished in a look of contrition and tenderness. "Are you not my eye-apple? My baby? Always I am with you. Always. I'll make her bed. I'll wait on her—to please you . . ."

She turned with animal-like quickness toward a sound Sondra had not heard. Liane and Kemp were at the open door.

Liane looked about her with a propitious air. "Sweet, isn't it, Kemp? Lady Franklin slept in this room years ago when she came to Sitka looking for . . . what was she looking for, Sondra? The Northwest Passage, or something?"

"Looking for her husband who was lost while searching for the Northwest Passage."

"Oh, yes. . . . Nowadays husbands find it simpler to get amnesia. . . . Anyway, it's a ducky suite. Take a peek at the bedroom, Kemp."

"I've already shown Kemp through the house," remarked Sondra, dryly.

"That's more than you've ever done for me, darling." Liane spoke quite without rancor. "And I would really like to see that chest of old costumes your defunct Karmanova kin used to wear."

"I—I'll be glad to show them to you, Liane. I'm going to look them over in the morning, and select a gown to wear to the party. If you like, you may wear one of them also."

"Party?" The girl's somnolent dark eyes lighted. "When?" What kind of party?"

"A surprise—for Dynamite on his seventy-fifth birthday, day after tomorrow. A 'Russian night'. Each guest comes as some character of Sitka's Russian regime. Those who have costumes of their ancestors will wear them. The others are having theirs made."

"Um-m-m. Ancestors. Too bad my family didn't preserve the war bonnet and armor worn by Chief Skayeutleit, on my distaff side. . . . What are you going to wear, Kemp?"

Sondra said, "I suggest that he wear the uniform of the Very Honorable Michael Andreevich Karmanova, captain of the First Rank in the Navy of His Imperial Majesty, Nicholai I."

Kemp answered hastily, "I appreciate the compliment, Sondra, but—" he smiled—"don't you think a navy uniform quite out of character for me? I'd fit better into a —well, a trapper's outfit."

Liane drawled, "Nothing so plebeian ever grew on Sondra's family tree, Kemp. The predatory ancestors are all on my side of the fence."

"Well, leave it to me, girls. I'll wear something appropriate." With that, Kemp made ready to leave. "I go regretfully, ladies, I assure you."

The door had scarcely closed behind Kemp when Liane leaped from her chair. "Is the Starbuck a heart-throb, or is be a heart-throb!" she exclaimed, executing a fancy step.

CHAPTER SEVEN

Sondra returned to the sitting room to find her grandfather studying the Bates dock through his marine glasses.

"Wonder what that crowd's waitin' for," he said. "Can't see a damned thing—except a tug with a tow, roundin' in past Gull Island."

Sondra was placing the captain's memoirs in a cabinet across the room when she was startled by a queer, smothered cry behind her. She turned in quick alarm.

Her grandfather had collapsed. His white head was sunk on his chest. One arm hung limp outside his chair. The binoculars had dropped to the rug.

She stood a moment, transfixed by shock that pierced her like a knife. Then she ran and threw her arms about his huddled figure. "Darling! What's happened? What's wrong?"

His stricken eyes lifted to the little model of his first command, splendid in white paint and gilt and spread of tiny sails. One unsteady hand reached out to caress the snowy hull. "The Glory . . ." he said, brokenly. "That's how she was when I had her, Sondy. . . And now—look at her—down there—on the bay."

Sondra chilled with the fear that he had lost his mind. "No, no, dear. The Glory couldn't be there. You lost her, years ago. Don't you remember?"

He brushed one hand wearily across his eyes. "Lost her, aye. But not at sea. Not the way you think. . . . They took her from me. Seized her. Thanks to Jacqueline Reynall."

"Miss Jacqueline?" Sondra sank to her knees and tried to read from his face whether this were further evidence of a wandering mind. He stared through her, his eyes dull with the ache of an ancient hurt. "Not—Miss Jacqueline?"

He nodded. "I've never talked of it, Sondy. It—it bruises me pride even now. I—I had a great wish for her in those days. Then, the last time I had the Glory here in port, we quarreled. Hot words; and bitter, before we parted. She turned on me and—and betrayed me to her man-huntin' father. 'Twas hard for me to believe it of her; yet, within a month Ramps Reynall had followed me straight into one of me safest hide-outs. On a black night he caught me, with me anchors down and me hold full of fresh-killed seal pelts. He must have had bearin's off me secret charts, to bring his gunbote through those hidden reefs. Bearin's no one had a chance to copy—except meself, and her."

"So that's why you hate her!" Sondra's arms tightened about him. "My poor darling, don't think about it any more. It's all years behind. Finished."

"I thought it was finished fifty years ago, when I stood with empty pockets and watched the Glory auctioned at a government sale. But now—to see her like this, comin' home—she must be passin' below the window, Sondy. Look out. You'll see."

Sondra drew a quivering, despairing breath, but to humor him, went to the window.

There was nothing in sight but a squat tug belching smoke back over a barge it was towing past almost under the window. The barge was long, ugly, scrofulous with peeling black paint, and splotched with rust from neglected stays and chain-plates. Three dingy stumps protruded a few feet above heaps of short-cut lumber that cluttered the maindeck. Was it possible her grandfather had seen this object as his gallant, white-winged bark that had known the winds and seas and rushing clouds of high, wild latitudes?

A lump in her throat made her voice unsteady as she turned to reassure him. "That's not the Glory, dear. It's just a dirty old barge without even a mast."

"Aye. No masts. Her fine, tall spars of Oregon pine, with never a knot or blemish in all their one hundred and sixty feet — they've lopped 'em down and smeared the poor maimed stumps with oil and lampblack. Can't ye see what they've made of her, Sondy? A filthy, foul-smellin' floating cannery."

Sondra caught up the field glasses and brought the barge close.

The name on the bow was too dim for reading; but there was one other detail that would resolve all doubt—the figurehead. On the miniature Glory it was an exquisite little carving—a laughing, golden mermaid with one forward-reaching arm; the very essence of swift grace and guidance. With this in mind she moved the glasses to the blunted bowsprit of the barge.

The figurehead was there—blackened, broken, yet recognizable. But the gaily outflung arm that had once pointed the Glory's way on the sea was gone.

Slowly she turned, and sitting on the arm of her grandfather's chair, drew his white head against her young breast. She felt too deeply to attempt a word of comfort.

"Ye'll be knowin' the black shame that is on me, Sondy. She never failed me once. But I—I failed her. . . . And because of a woman who — pretended to love me — so she could copy me secret charts." His voice was dull. His old fighting spirit had vanished. It seemed more than Sondra could bear.

Hoping to take his thoughts from the past, she said. "They're warping the Glory in to the old Bates dock, darling. I think—"

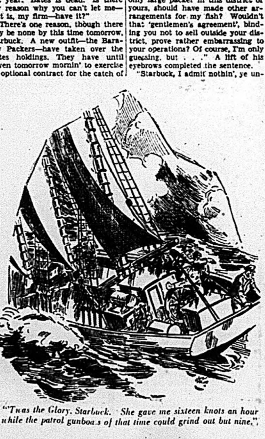
"What's that?" The captain reared up as if galvanized. "The Bates dock? So that's the answer!" His fist crashed to the table. "The Baranov Packers—a floatin' cannery! They've dared to turn the Glory into a floatin' cannery, and bring her to moorin's under me very nose. They've tricked me into supplyin' the very fish that — get me my crutches, Sondy. I'm going down there and . . ."

"No, no. You can't — not with your leg in a cast!" Sondra tried to hold him down. He thrust her roughly aside.

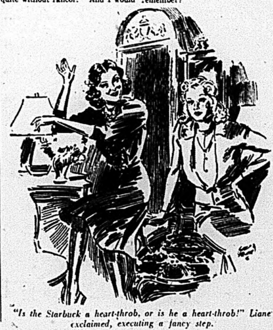
"Let be, gurl!" The blue, fighting light had come back to his eyes. He tried repeatedly to hoist himself upright, but eac htime his stiffened leg threw him back. He surrendered at last. "Sondy. I can't make it. It's yourself that must go. Find the black-hearted whelp in charge down there, and say I want to see him. Not tonight, not tomorrow, but NOW, d'ye understand? Tell him if he's not up here in thirty minutes, I'll make him wish he'd never been born! Tell him I'll have his heart out and feed it to the gulls! Tell him . . ."

But Sondra was already halfway down the stairs.

(To be Continued)



"'Twas the Glory, Starbuck. She gave me sixteen knots an hour while the patrol gunboats of that time could grind out but nine."



"Is the Starbuck a heart-throb, or is he a heart-throb!" Liane exclaimed, executing a fancy step.

Tweed

Tweed — Mrs. Dawson Boyd of Belleville, was winner of the Congoleum Rug in the lucky number contest sponsored by A. C. Blakely's furniture store. Fred Hayes was the fortunate contestant in the contest at J. G. Frost's.

Rev. H. L. Morrison, B.A., pastor of Tweed United Church, and Mr. W. S. Gordon attended the Belleville Presbytery sessions in Bloomfield on Tuesday.

Miss Enid Connor and Mr. Gray Rivers of Toronto, were week-end guests at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Connor.

The funeral of the late Richard Tucker of Detroit, was held on Monday afternoon at Thomasburg, following the arrival of the body at Tweed C.P.R. depot. Interment was in Thomasburg cemetery.

JERSEY GIANTS WELL ON WAY TO ANOTHER FLAG

Jersey City Has Won Eleven of Their First Fourteen Games This Season

DEFEAT LEAFS 4-1

Newark Bears Take Over Third Spot by Beating Royals 5-2

(By The Associated Press)

As far as can be seen from about two weeks of play, the Little Giants of Jersey City are well on their way to another International Baseball League pennant but they're not being especially helpful as a farm for the big Giants of New York.

The Jersey Giants have won 11 of their first 14 games and top the league by two full games over Baltimore Orioles. That's a fair enough start in the pennant race. But as for developing players to patch the weak spots in Bill Terry's New York lineup, there's some doubt as to whether any of the Jerseys are likely to fill the bill.

Harold Feldman, youthful pitcher, may get there eventually. But other moundsmen who have not shown anything so far are veterans and so are the Jersey outfielders. The club has a young infield but first sacker Jimmy Vernon came from Washington under option and Bob Sturgeon, who recently replaced the weak-hitting Lou Roggino at shortstop, was sent down by Chicago Cubs.

Only Three May Go Up

That leaves second-sacker Glenn Stewart, third baseman Sid Gordon and catcher Ray Blaemire. Their chances of winning a New York job depend, of course, on how well Mickey Witek and Burgess Whitehead hold up in the infield and whether anything happens to Harry Danning. And so far the farmhands haven't given much indication that they're likely to oust the Giant regulars.

Gordon and Blaemire figured prominently in yesterday's 4-1 decision over Toronto Maple Leafs. The second sacker cracked out three of the Jerseys' 10 hits, among them a double and triple. The catcher belted a home run with Stewart on base in the seventh. Roy Henshaw, veteran southpaw did the pitching and limited the Leafs to six hits, and six walks, all spaced so as to be practically harmless.

In the day's only other game, Newark Bears took over third place, breaking a tie with Rochester, by trimming Montreal Royals 5-2. Rookie Allan Gettel handcuffed the Royals with seven hits, the Bears started on Bass with three runs in the first inning. Buddy Blair led the attack with a single, double and triple.

Princess Pats Have Winning Cross-Country Team

(By Sam Robertson, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Aldershot, May 7—(CP)—P.P.C.L.I. may come to stand for Princess Patricia's Canadian Light-Foot Infantry. The cross-country running team of the Princess Pats won the championship of the 2nd Canadian Infantry Brigade and now have sights drawn on the 1st Division title.

The men from Lieut. Colonel W. E. Colquhoun's unit took the first six places in a five-mile run against teams drawn from the Seaforth Highlanders and the Edmonton Regiment. Fifteen men ran for each unit over country that would have tested the lung and limbs of a hound. Twelve of the Princess Pats who put aside their army "clod-hoppers" for running shoes were among the first fifteen over the line.

Private W. S. McMahon of Fort William, Ont., led the puffing pack home in 30 minutes, four seconds. Colonel E. W. Sansom and hundreds of men of the brigade he commands cheered the victor home 400 yards in front. Half that distance separated the next two, Private I. W. Elder, Winnipeg and Private T. Holland, Wood Bay, Man.

When the divisional meet is held soon the P.P.'s team will face the best runners that can be mustered by the other brigades and service units in the division.

Hank Leiber of Chicago Cubs Sparkplug That Carries Team Into Third Place in National

Outfielder Has Hit Safely in Twelve Consecutive Games and Leads in Many Departments

DEAN BATTED OUT

Yankees Victims of Another Lefthander and Outburst of Slugging by Tigers

(By Judson Bailey Associated Press Sports Writer).

It takes more than one man to make a baseball team—a timely explanation considering a total of 207 players were used in yesterday's eight Major League games—but Henry E. Leiber of the Chicago Cubs is as near a one-man team the big show has at the moment.

Leiber is leading the National League in batting with a .418 mark; in runs; in runs batted in; in hits; and in doubles.

Hank has hit safely in the last 12 consecutive games and yesterday he collected a double and two singles to bat in three of his team's runs in a 5-4 11-inning victory over the Phillies.

He is the sparkplug that has carried the Cubs into third place. Yet even Leiber isn't a one-man ball club. The winning run yesterday was Billy Herman's homer in the 11th and it offset the efforts of the Phils in batting Dizzy Dean out of the box in the fifth. Larry French made a relief appearance for his fourth victory.

"Brother Paul" Dean was in action yesterday, his 1940 debut coming in a relief job for the New York Giants against the Cincinnati Reds. He worked two innings and didn't show much in giving up two hits and no runs.

The game already had been captured by the National League champions on a seven-run spree in the sixth and the five-hit hurling of Gene Thompson, who chalked up his third victory by a 9-1 count.

Eleven Pitchers Used

The Boston Bees plastered the sixth straight defeat on the Pittsburgh Pirates, 10-7 in 12 innings. Manager Frank Frisch made a desperate shakeup in his lineup, but all the Pirates got out of it was a new record for using the most players in a game. Frisch put 24 of his 29 men into the contest and Boston used 16—the total of 40 beating by one the record number the St. Louis Cardinals and Brooklyn Dodgers had manipulated the previous day. Eleven pitchers saw service.

Brooklyn needed only 11 men yesterday to whip the Cards' 6-2 for their 11th victory in 12 games. Luke Hamlin hurled shutout ball after the first inning while Manager Ray Blades reversed his custom and let Curt Davis stay on the hill until the eighth although he was thumped for 11 blows.

The Boston Red Sox bounced back on top of the American League in their see-saw rivalry with the Cleveland Indians, rallying for six runs in the fourth inning to top the Tribe 8-5. Each team made 11 hits. The Indians made three errors.

Yanks Again Beaten

The Yankees were victims of another lefthander and an outburst of slugging by the Detroit Tigers, 6-4. Riding along on the careful pitching of Red Ruffing, the Yankees were suddenly bombarded for three runs on homers by Hank Greenberg and pinch-hitter Billy Sullivan in the eighth. Then in the ninth Greenberg doubled two other runs across. Southpaw Tom Seats received credit for the victory, pitching three scoreless innings after Tommy Bridges went out for a pinch hitter.

The Chicago White Sox, still floundering in last place, were edged out 3-2 by the Philadelphia Athletics, with Sam Chapman hitting a homer and Nelson Potter doing some good pitching for the A's.

The surprising St. Louis Browns gave the Washington Senators their fifth straight setback, 11-9, with a 16 hit offensive.

Fights Last Night

Salt Lake City—Billy Bengal, 153, Detroit and Jackie Burke, 147, Ogden, Utah, drew (10).

New York — George Zengaras, 135, 1-2, New York, outpointed Primo Flores, 137, Puerto Rico (8).

Albany, N.Y.—Vinnie Vines, 142, Schenectady, N.Y., knocked out Danny Devlin, 148, Allentown, Pa., (7).

MONARCHS WIN TITLE

Detroit, May 7.—(AP)—Chicago's Monarchs won the American Bowling Congress team championship last night when the final 70 teams last of 6,073 entered, failed to threaten their 3,047 total. The Chicago team, which hit 3,042 in 1936 and 3,008 last year at Cleveland, rolled up games of 996, 1,089 and 962 on April 13 to pace the field.

Edmonton Grads Retire Without Blemish on Record

Edmonton, May 7—(CP) — Edmonton Grads will retire from active basketball June 6 without a blemish on their record in Canadian senior women's championship series.

Coach J. Percy Page's famous Grads won the National title for the last time last night when they defeated Vancouver Westerns 59-38 to sweep the two-of-three series in straight games. Grads won the first game Saturday 48-47.

The world-renowned Edmonton girls, who have never been defeated in a Dominion play-off series since the championship was inaugurated in 1922, have announced they will disband June 6 on their 25th anniversary. Before then they will play exhibition series with two United States teams.

Colorful Player Dies in Winnipeg

Winnipeg, May 7—(CP)—Colorful Jimmy Rae, 20, who earned a professional hockey contract with Springfield Indians less than a year after he graduated from Winnipeg Junior ranks, died in hospital here last night.

The 180-pound defenceman lost a two-week fight against complications which followed an attack of pleurisy.

Born in Winnipeg, Jimmy went through midget, juvenile and junior hockey in Winnipeg Monarchs, Canadian Junior Champions in 1935 and '37. He captained the club in 1938-39, his second year in junior company, but failed to win a Manitoba title as Monarchs lost in 1938 to St. Boniface Seals, who went on to win the National crown, and in 1939 to Brandon Elks.

NO INQUEST NECESSARY

Cornwall, Ont., May 7.—(CP)—Body of Hiram Pitt, 49-year-old Cornwall Service Station manager, was found in his office yesterday with a bullet wound in the head. A revolver was on the floor. Coroner C. A. Stewart ruled the death suicide and said there would be no inquest.

Service station employees discovered the body a few seconds after they heard a revolver shot.

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

Did you know that Vern "Lefty" Bishop, who pitched ball for Napanee and Picton, was refused a transfer from Welland to Brantford by the O.B.A. Saturday? . . And that Bishop has received more transfers than any ball player ever to come out of Eastern Ontario. . . That Welland got nine ball transfers by before Doug Wallace, former Sunderland infielder, was held up. . . . All of which reminds us that when Belleville brought in two imports in 1932, Jack Ouelette and Harold Branscombe from Lindsay, the O.B.A. held the latter's transfer up, contending that two imports were too many . . . That next year's Ontario Baseball Association constitution book will contain the playing and scoring rules . . . That the Hershey Bears purchased Vince German, from the New York Rangers system. . . . And that Willie Hoppe's billiard comeback at 52 years young is considered one of the greatest feats in modern sporting circles. . . .Hoppe won his first world's billiard title at the tender age of 18, in 1905.

Willie Hoppe's recent comeback in the world of billiards is without parallel in the realm of sporting activities. He won the world's 18.2 balkline championship in Paris along in 1905, defeating Maurice Vignaux, then called "The Lion of France." Since then Hoppe had held every known billiard honors, but when he dropped his last title in 1936, people said he was through; too old to stand the gaff, they said. But, Willie Hoppe lived to make those skeptics eat their words, when the Old Master recently won the American billiard championship in Chicago. Willie Hoppe is the son of a Cornwall Landing, N.Y. barber and it was his father and older brother who tutored the champion in his early days. At the tender age of ten Willie Hoppe met Frank Ives in Pop Anson's famous Chicago billiard emporium and to this day Hoppe says the colorful Ives taught him more about billiards in a few minutes than he had previously learned in years of practice. Ives, by the way, was considered to be the greatest all-around professional athlete that ever lived, he was a billiard expert, roller skater, champion bicycle rider, a horseman of note and a great baseball catcher.

As for Hoppe he was known in the early days of the present century as "The Boy Wonder." At 16 years of age Hoppe toured the U. S. A. with Jake Schaeffer, the elder. Speaking of Schaeffer, Sr., recently, Hoppe is reported to have remarked—"Jake had the most delicate stroke in the world, and seemed to have a better sense of the feel of ivory than any other billiard player." When but 14 years of age Hoppe won a National U. S. A. billiard tournament and $300. It was from this point that "The Boy Wonder" moved into the national billiard picture. "Winning that tournament in New York gave me confidence," Hoppe revealed the other day, or 34 years after he had became nationally famous. Fading in 1936 Hoppe was counted out by the experts, but he recently proved to the world that "they do come back," and youth isn't always served. Hoppe beat George Slosson for the American National billiard title on March 28, 1906 in New York, before the largest crowd ever to witness a billiard tournament.

Frankie Pytlak, holdout Cleveland Indian catcher, came to the terms originally offered by President C. C. Slapnicka, it was learned yesterday. Pytlak received $11,500 in 1939 and was offered a contract for $8,000 this spring. He held out endeavouring to negotiate a compromise in the matter of salary differences. Pytlak will have to apply to Judge Landis for re-instatement and then prove to Manager Oscar Vitt that he is in shape to play before his salary begins. All of this reminds us that pitchers Joe Kelleher and "Lefty" Weeks are back in town after spending a week in Northern Ontario. The local flingers found out that "far away fields aren't as green as they sometimes seem," as was the case with Pytlak, who found out that the Indians could still win ball games in the American League without his services.

According to a manufacturer of golf balls, the dimples set up speed and length of drive. . . . He tested golf balls in a wind tunnel and revealed that they spun 8,000 times a minute in an air stream of 105 feet a second. . . . Undimpled balls did not get as much lift as the dimpled ones, he revealed.

Sport Spice — 1940 seems to be a bad year for champions—out went the Boston Bruins, the Yankees are getting no place in the American League, while more recently the great Bimelech went down to defeat..As Eddie Brietz says: "they can't win forever.... Boston beat the Indians and regained the top rung of the American League yesterday.... The Brooklyn Dodgers turned back the Cardinals 6-2 yesterday to chalk up their 11th win in 12 games... Home runs by Gehringer and Greenberg gave the Tigers a 6-4 win over the floundering Yanks.. Taking their methods of attack from war, major league managers are employing massed drives on the enemy this year.... Frankie Frisch used 24 Pirates against the Boston Bees yesterday to establish a new National League record of men injected into one game....The injecting of 24 players into the line-up by the Pirates surpassed the old record of 23 used by the Dodgers in 1937 ....The Bay of Quinte League is meeting in Napanee tonight and if there are any local sponsors of baseball they'd better be present and say their piece, or forever after hold their peace.

HOW TO OVERCOME ITCHING PILES

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

THREE INJURED IN CAR CRASH

Two Cars Collide Near Smithfield and Injured Admitted to Belleville Hospital

Three men sustained injuries of a serious nature during a two-car motor accident near Smithfield on Highway No. 2 late yesterday afternoon, while a fourth escaped with minor injuries. The quartette were removed to the Belleville General Hospital where they were attended by Dr. G. S. Cronk.

The injured men are Frank Treverna, Trenton contractor, who is suffering from internal injuries and a possible punctured bladder, James Bentham also of Trenton and who was riding with Treverna, who sustained a fractured pelvis, R. B. Hunter, Toronto, three fractured ribs and H. Burrus, also of Toronto, who is suffering from shock.

Mr. Hunter was proceeding easterly on Highway No. 2 while Treverna was entering the highway from off a side road, when the two vehicles came into collision, Provincial Constable David Adair stated after investigating the crash. The impact of the two vehicles was so great that they were both hurled into the ditch, where considerable damage to the motor cars resulted. Although the investigating police would not make public their final findings today, it was intimated that charges would be preferred as a sequel to the crash. The vehicles rolled down an embankment resulting in additional damage to that resulting from the actual collision.

OFFICIAL CIRCLES

(In Paris, an official communique said that the German story was "a question of purely lying allegations" in respect to both the reported telephone conversation "which never took place" and the intentions attributed to the Allies.)

The account did not suggest how Germany could have obtained a record of any Chamberlain-Reynaud conversation but it claimed the two Allied leaders talked for just 15 minutes April 30.

The Berlin Newspaper Zwolfuhrblatt, for example, played the story under a double page-one streamer, interpreting the textual quotations from the purported telephone conference a meaning that General Maxime Weygand, Commander-in-Chief of Allied forces in the Near East, would be ready for the "ordered action" by May 15.

"Action" Not Indicated

What such "action" might be, however, was not indicated.

It was Reynaud who, according to the German account, assured Chamberlain that the French General, Weygand, would be ready by May 15 but the French Premier was alleged to have cautioned Chamberlain not to take the date literally—that execution of the "ordered action" might be a little later.

"Chamberlain, in an obviously depressed tone, remarked that he was under the impression that they were requiring more time down there than necessary", said Zwolfuhrblatt.

To this Reynaud was said to have replied by pointing to the "many difficulties" which had to be overcome, especially as regards the Turks, who were "making daily increasing demands".

Mr. Chamberlain, according to the Germans, promised "personally to talk to the Turks once more" but said that he could not guarantee anything "if they down there don't at last put an end to eternal eccentricities and autocracy".

Conversation Friendly

Reynaud was said to have responded with a promise to do everything possible to overcome "mental difficulties."

Thereupon, it was said, Mr. Chamberlain requested Reynaud in "rather imperative tones" to inform him not later than May 20 about the conclusion of "operations."

Zwolffuhrblatt said that the conversation finished in a friendly, polite tone after Mr. Chamberlain requested Reynaud to see to it that there were "no indiscretions this time from the French side."

The purpose in publishing the purported conversation appeared to be two-fold—to fix in advance the German people's mind any blame for widening of the European conflict into the Balkan-Near East area and to "smoke out" the Allies regarding their intentions.

The complete text of the purported conversation was not given. Much of it was in indirect quotation.

The item as handed to the press did not go through the usual channel, namely the New Agency, D.N.B.

Later, however, D.N.B. issued the story with the following introduction:-

"The German press today brings in the most prominent form a telephone conversation between Chamberlain and Reynaud which, as the papers indicate in their headlines, reveals plans for aggression by the western powers."

The following are two of the headlines with which the story was displayed:-

Propaganda Stroke

"Attention! Attention! To all whom it concerns—the veil has fallen—England's aggressive intentions revealed".

"Wire reveals secret of aggression— command for zero hour to Reynaud: "At latest by May 20!"—Searchlight upon London".

This propaganda stroke was the climax of four days of German attempts to induce the Allies to reveal their intentions, since Mr. Chamberlain's reference to the Mediterranean in his House of Commons speech last Thursday.

(On that day the British Prime Minister asserted that "injury" to German naval power in the Norwegian campaign had been "so substantial as to alter the entire balance of naval power and to permit an important redistribution of the main Allied fleet. . . .

("A British and French battle fleet with cruisers and auxiliary craft is already in the Eastern basis of the Mediterranean on its way to Alexandria.")

Officially Denied in Paris

Paris, May 7—(CP-Havas)—German newspaper reports giving a detailed account of an alleged telephone conversation between Prime Minister Chamberlain and Premier Reynaud in which Allied plans for action in the Mediterranean were assertedly discussed were officially denied here today as a "perfect sample" of Nazi propaganda.

(Qualified British sources in London termed the Nazi charges "fantastic.")

The German manoeuvre was regarded here as part of an effort being made by Berlin to stampede Italy into the war. The official statement said:

"The German Press this morning published a communique minutely detailing a telephone conversation said to have taken place on April 30 from 10:10 to 10:25 p.m. between the British Prime Minister and the French Premier, and in the course of which plans for action in the Mediterranean were discussed.

"It is a question of purely false allegations, regarding the very fact of the telephone conversation, which never took place, as well as the intentions imputed to the Allied governments. German propaganda has not for a long time furnished as perfect an example of its methods."

HOMER THOMAS NEW PRESIDENT Y'S MEN'S CLUB

New Officers Will be Installed During Last Meeting This Month

TO HOLD DANCE

Homer Thomas was the unanimous choice of the members present to head the Belleville Y's Men's Club as president for the ensuing year at the annual election of officers of the Y's Men's Club held in conjunction with the Y.M.C.A. Monday evening.

The result of the election of officers for the forthcoming semester was—President—H. Thomas; Vice-Pres.—Harold Vaughan; Secretary—George Fisher; Treasurer—James Miller; Executive— Vern Weir, "Doc" Daughtery; Robert Pringle and Don Ridley. The new officers will be installed during the last meeting in May and will resume official capacity at the opening of the next semester in September, following the summer vacation period.

Y'sman Lorne McDougall extended the thanks of the club to retiring president Harold Vaughan for his untiring efforts as the club's head official during his past two-year term of office. "President Vaughan has introduced several splendid features into our organization and it is with regret we see him step out of office, but no doubt he will be available for assistance in the future," stated Past President McDougall in tendering the thanks of the club to retiring president Vaughan. President-elect Homer Thomas called upon the members for support, "as it is only through unity that we grow," he added.

Ed Shortt acted as songleader and Norm Edwards as sergeant-at-arms, while following the election of officers bingo was played by the club members. President Vaughan announced that the annual Y's Men's springtime dance would be held early in June at the Country Club.

Thousands of Fish Die When Frozen to Death In Shallow Water Bogs

Bogs and low water areas are whitened with the bodies of thousands of fish that froze to death in the low water of the Kawartha district, according to the Peterborough Examiner.

One trapper stated that he saw in one bog alone, literally thousands upon thousands of dead fish —so numerous that they changed the bottom of the Otonabee River from brown to white. When the water recedes a little more from its spring rise, the decaying bodies of these fish will probably made the immediate district uninhabitable for a time.

This is not just a bad season, the trapper stated, but a major tragedy that has visited the Kawarthas during the Winter to destroy more fish than the government has added by re-stocking in all its years of activity. The water had been so low during the Winter that fish became trapped in bogs, killing them.

He told of seeing two lunge, one of them weighing about 25 pounds that were swimming about in one bog, apparently unable to escape. He believed they had gone into the bog at high water this Spring in order to spawn and were unable to leave when the water went down. So shallow is the water in this bog that the backs of the two lunge are visible clear out of the water as they clear underbrush that is lying on the bottom.

British Food Ministry Agrees to Purchase Canadian Eggs

Ottawa, May 7 — (CP) — The British Food Ministry has agreed to purchase Canadian fresh and storage eggs the Dominion Agriculture Department announced Monday.

Canadian exporters may make their sales direct to the Food Ministry through their agents in Great Britain at a price to be fixed by the Ministry.

Holders of import licences in Great Britain have been advised by the Food Ministry that it will be permissible to complete contracts entered into prior to April 19 for shipment prior to May 31.

No further private importations into Great Britain will be permitted and it is understood the Food Ministry will recall import licences shortly.

The Agriculture Department recommended Canadian importers claiming to have sold storage eggs for fall delivery should confirm their contracts and prices through their agents with the Food Ministry which will constitute itself as the sole buyer of eggs in Great Britain after import licences are withdrawn.

Just what quantity of eggs will be affected by the announcement could not be determined.

PROPITIOUS conditions in all lines of endeavor—business, financial, social and sentimental — are presaged from the even influences of the lunar transits. All affairs move along in satisfactory grooves, bringing desired material gains as well as psychological gratifications. It is a particularly fortunate time for working in co-operation with groups of societies in which humanitarian, philanthropic or social benefits are issues. All cultural efforts thrive.

Those whose birthday it is are assured of a year of steady, even progress, with much gratification arising from worthy ambitions, whether business, financial, social or professional. The emotional elements are also under pleasant stimulus, but the chief satisfactions may come from working with others for the common good. It is a time for generally happy and lucrative contacts.

A child born on this day may have an even and complacent character, with much versatility and talent heightening its prestige and personality. It may have hospitable, noble and sympathetic impulses.

Here are a few of the exciting new lovelies at the Sherrington, swank metropolitan hotel for women, coming to the Capitol Theatre next in the new 20th Century-Fox film, "Free, Blonde and 21."

GERMANS SPREADING STORIES

London, May 6—(CP)—"During the last 36 hours German wireless and news services have been spreading unscrupulous stories about impending trouble on the Balkan frontier," the Information Ministry said tonight in an official statement.

"Many of the stories conflict," it said. "Others, issued from Berlin, are denied, also from Berlin, an hour or two after issue.

"The purpose is clear. By spreading these stories Germany seeks to create just that atmophere of uncertainty which will favor her own purpose."

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, May 7.—(AP) — The Stock Market maintained its composure today despite a little further bearishness ascribed mainly to the war picture. Dealings were sluggish and near the fourth hour, small gains and losses just about balanced.

Another sharp crack in British Empire dollar bonds was a bit depressing, as was additional weakness of the Pound Sterling and French Franc in terms of American currency.

Stocks receiving support included U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, United Aircraft, Dow Chemical, Westinghouse, U.S. Rubber and Chesapeake and Ohio.

Canadian issues were easier. Dome and Lake Shore Mines Canadian Pacific and McIntyre dipped slightly while Hiram Walker held steady. Canada 4s in the Bond Market, were neglected.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 7 (CP).—Industrial stocks managed to chalk up moderate gains on Toronto Exchange today. Golds showed widest losses, some recording new lows for the year. Trading tempo increased moderately with 192,000 shares changing hands.

Eldorado had another flurry on the publicity given a new discovery utilizing pitchblend, an Eldorado ore and the price firmed to 90 cents before weakening to around 84 under profit-taking, up 4 cents net for the day. Exploration and Radium tightened up on the same stimulant.

Soft spots in the golds included Preston, O'Brien, Sylvanite, Perron and Macassa. Changes were narrow in the base metals.

Senior oils, foods and miscellaneous industrials improved and other groups were unchanged to lower.

Deposed School Teacher Kills Four And Wounds Three

South Pasadena, Calif., May 7—(AP)—Death hovered near today for three critically wounded survivors of a deposed school principal's bullet-spewing target pistol that cost the lives of four other education authorities.

Slain were George C. Bush, 62, for 35 years superintendent of schools here and in nearby San Marino; John E. Alman, 50, principal of the South Pasadena-San Marino High School for 25 years; William Speer, 43, business manager of the combined school district, and Victor V. Vanderlip, 45, manual arts and printing instructor at South Pasadena Junior High School.

Hospital authorities described as critical the condition of high-strung, erratic Verlin Spencer, 38, who suddenly went berserk after being told his junior high school contract would not be renewed, mowed down the six school attaches and then turned his .22 calibre pistol upon himself.

Little hope was held for the other survivors of his mad outburst of gunfire, Miss Ruth B. Sturgeon, 45, art instructor at the Junior High School and Miss Dorothea Talbert, 30, Secretary to Superintendent Bush.

Police Chief Frank Higgins reported Spencer, an expert marksman, had had numerous recent altercations with school authorities following a nervous breakdown a year ago.

PRESBYTERIAN SYNOD MEETS

Peterborough, Ont., May 7 — (CP)—The Synod of Toronto and Kingston of the Presbyterian Church will open in St. Paul's Church here tonight. Rev. William Adams Brown of the Union Theological Seminary, New York, will be the special preacher for the three-day session.

Three nominations for Moderator have been made: Rev. A. T. Barr, Peterborough; Rev. J. A. MacInnis, Orillia, and Rev. J. O. Ralston, Parry Sound.

"CELLULOID KID" SENTENCED.

Montreal, May 7 (CP)—Albert Lalonde, known to police in Eastern United States and Canada as the "Celluloid Kid", was sentenced today to three concurrent penitentiary terms of four years each for burglary.

Lalonde had pleaded guilty to three charges of stealing $2,450 worth of jewelry and merchandise.

Trading Quiet In Produce Lines

Toronto, May 7—Trading was quiet for all lines during yesterday's session of the Toronto open produce market. Butter and eggs showed easier undertones.

The butter market tilted down under light and spotted trading. Selling pressure was not evident, but buyers did not appear interested in available supplies. Early sales of No. 1 grade Ontario creamery solids were reported at 23 1-2 cents, with the price easing later to close at 23 1-4 cents per pound.

Receipts were ample for the quiet demand on the egg market. Prices tapered off on top grades in both sections. Eggs packed in new cases moved at 1-2 cent premium.

Montreal Produce

Montreal, May 7 (CP)—Produce market prices here, as reproted by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Butter: First grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 25c to 25 1-2c; first grade solids, jobbing price, 24 1-2c to [illegible]c.

Eggs: Graded shipments in used free cases, selling price, A-large, 24c; A-medium, 21 1-2c to 22c; A-pullets, 19c to 19 1-2c; B, 21c to 21 1-2c; C, 18c to 18 1-2c; (Government inspected lots, storage packed, 1-2 cent higher.) Receipts: 2,544 cases.

LIVESTOCK

Montreal, May 7.—(CP)— Calf prices strengthened on Montreal Livestock market today in early trading on demand to ship to the United States. Plain cows eased, while hogs held steady, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported.

Receipts—Cattle 133; sheep and lambs 28; hogs 1,029; calves 1,894.

The cattle offered were practically all common to medium cows and common bulls. Canners and cutters made $2.75 to $3.75. Common butcher cows brought $3.75 to $4.25 and medium cows up to $5. Bologna bulls sold at $4.25 to $5.25.

Good veals made $7.50 with medium good kinds at $7. The bulk of calves of common to medium quality, sold in mixed lots at prices ranging from $5.75 to $6.50.

A few spring lambs averaging 50 pounds sold at $8 each. Sheep made $5.50 to $6.

The bulk of hogs were delivered on former contracts. Fresh sales made $8.50 for bacons fed and watered and up to $8.75 off trucks. Selects drew $1 premium with regular cuts on off grades. Sows were slow at $4.50 to $5. Hogs sold on rail grade brought $11.30 hot weight.

Toronto, May 7 (CP). — Cattle trade was slow with prices generally steady up to mid-session on the livestock market today. The veal calf market, western lamb market and sheep market were steady. No price was established for hogs. The holdover was 1,200 head of cattle.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 950, calves 820, hogs 1,370, sheep and lambs 570.

Prices in the cattle section were: Weighty steers $7-$7.50; butcher steers and heifers mostly $6.25-$7 with a few at $7.25; cows weak at $4.25-$5.25; bulls $5-$5.75; fed calves $7.25-$8.25.

Veal calves sold at $10-$10.50 for choice with common selling downward to $5.

Western lambs sold at $11.25.

Sheep sold at $3.50-$7.

Spring lambs sold at $8-$10 each.

Hogs closed previously at $8.25 off-trucks for bacons and $11 dressed-weight.

C.B.C. TO BROADCAST REPORT

Ottawa, May 7 —(CP)— The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation announced today the Royal Commission report on Dominion-Provincial relations would be released for publication May 13 and that the C.B.C. would broadcast "background and significance" of the report from 10:30 p.m. to 11 p.m. EDT next Monday.

No official information on the contents of the report, compiled after a two-year investigation, has yet been made public.

DEFENCE

Countless yards of black curtains and black paper were sold by shops and provided by the government to cover windows and doors in every home and building. Every automobile and railway coach was equipped with small blue lights.

The period of waiting was particularly tense for 70,000 Italian residents of Egypt.

Among them hundreds of anti-Fascists were reported applying to the Ministry of the Interior for Egyptian citizenship.

In the midst of all the bustle, however, the Egyptians staged a general holiday today to celebrate the fourth anniversary of the accession of their young King Farouk I.

Strong Guards Placed

The government placed strong guards of troopers all over telephone, telegraph and radio systems and ordered the offices to operate day and night to keep open all available channels of communication for Egyptian an Allied diplomats, particularly with Rome, London, Paris and Washington. They were required to maintain constant contact with all Allied naval and military forces.

Anti-aircraft guns were manned constantly. In Alexandria harbor rode a strongly reinforced Allied fleet. A squadron of cruisers and auxiliaries arrived yesterday. Other cruisers, battleships, destroyers, submarines and torpedo boats already were massed here.

Large contingents of troops stood ready. British war planes, bomb racks loaded, were set for the take-off. Allied sources said they were prepared for immediate action "in whatever field hostilities might come."

Both Allied and Egyptian sources expressed the hope that appeals by Pope Pius XII or President Roosevelt might stave off war in the Mediterranean, but there was no sign of wavering in the determination to throw all the power of the fleet and the Allied army against the enemy wherever a conflict might develop.

Prepared to defend the vital Suez Canal, British official circles declared, "we are ready to meet Italy on land, sea and in the air should she decide to fight. The test already is started."

They declared the Allied attitude of defiance "tantamount to a reply, not to a diplomatic note, but to a naval demonstration of great significance.

What this "naval demonstration" constituted was not explained but it was recalled the Italians were reported recently to have concentrated naval forces and reinforced land and air contingents in the Dodecanese Islands lying between the Turkish and Greek coasts.

CHAMBERLAIN ANSWERS

The Prime Minister said that Mr. Churchill, while retaining his post as First Lord of the Admiralty, will give "guidance and direction" to the chiefs of staff of the three fighting services.

He said that Britain may soon face attack "in the most violent form."

"In this debate we are giving hostages to fortunes," he said. Military advisers had cautioned him against today's discussion, "but we could not accept this in a Democratic country."

While the opposition shouted "you missed the bus," Mr. Chamberlain declared he tried to steer "a middle course," looking ahead to the possibility of attack by vast and well-equipped German armies "at a number of different points."

He said "we shall give all the help to Norway we can," despite the Allied troop withdrawals from all but the far northern part of the country, but he thought "it was right" to retreat from the Trondheim front when it became apparent that the plan to seize that city "would not succeed."

Thinks People Do Not Fully Realise

Speaking of the whole war picture ahead, Mr. Chamberlain declared:-

"I do not think the people of this country yet realize the extent or imminence of the threat that is impending against us."

Movement of an Allied battle fleet to Alexandria, he said, had "quieted" the situation in the Mediterranean and Near East.

Mr. Chamberlain was cheered when he entered the House for the debate.

The Prime Minister ascribed the failure of the Trondheim offensive in south and central Norway to two things:-

1. "Our inability to secure the airdromes from which we could operate fighters."

2. "The rapid arrival of German reinforcements."

Helpless Because Uninvited

He said "we were helpless to prevent the German stroke" because Norway would not let British troops come in in advance of the German invasion.

He declared the Trondheim offensive was attempted at the desperate urging of the Norwegian government and because it appeared that if it was not tried, although it was "full of risk", that Norwegian resistance would at once collapse."

Mr. Chamberlain was cheered when he entered the House for the debate.

The Prime Minister, at first grave, broke into a smile as he acknowledged the cheers and ignored Opposition shouts of "who missed the bus?" and "resign!"

Norse Minister Present

The diplomatic galleries were crowded. Halvdan Koht, the Norwegian Foreign Minister now visiting London, was present.

(The shouts of "who missed the bus?" referred to the Prime Minister's recent assertion that Adolf Hitler "missed the bus" by failing to loose a blitzkrieg on Britain in the earliest days of the war. Now, he said then, Britain is ready.)

Mr. Chamberlain, answering a question, said he could not say when a secret session would be held regarding charges of "grave deficiencies" in Britain's fighting forces.

The Prime Minister rose amid loud cheers at 3.48 p.m. (10.48 a.m. EDT) to begin the debate.

Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, who will wind up the debate for the Government tomorrow, sat beside the Prime Minister on the Treasury bench.

Pays Tribute to Skill of Forces

Mr. Chamberlain began by paying tribute to the skill of the navy and army who effected the withdrawal of the British forces from Namsos "in a single short night without loss."

Fifty German bombers attacked the troop convoy the next day, Mr. Chamberlain disclosed. He said "we should count ourselves fortunate that we did not lose more than one British and one French destroyer."

"The convoy was out of range of our fighters and we had to depend only on the ships' anti-aircraft fire," he told the House.

Campaign in S. Norway Closed

The Prime Minister declared that the campaign in Southern Norway is at an end.

"Whatever criticisms may be made about anyone else," he added, "I am sure that everybody will agree that the troops engaged in this campaign carried out their task with magnificent gallantry.

"In every respect, of man for man, our forces showed themselves superior to their foe."

Mr. Chamberlain said news of Britain's withdrawal had "created a profound shock."

A shout of "and still is" came from the Opposition benches.

The Prime Minister declared he did not propose to give an account of the military operations but to consider the criticisms of the action of the Government.

"The ministers, of course, must expect to be blamed for everything," he said.

Stockholm Reports

Mr. Chamberlain said reports from Stockholm, "which may have been invented by the enemy," had aroused expectations which were never justified, and "which were certainly never endorsed by any minister."

"I do not wish to extenuate anything," he continued. "At the same time I hope we shall not exaggerate the extent of the check which we have received."

He said the withdrawal was "not comparable with Gallipoli," as not more than a single division was involved, and "our losses were not really great in number, nor was there a considerable or valuable amount of stores left behind."

German Losses Far Heavier

German losses, he said, were far heavier "in warships, planes, transports and men."

"I am quite aware that the result is not to be measured merely in losses on the spot," he continued.

He said the fact must be taken into account that "we have suffered a certain loss of prestige" and that color has been added to "the false legend of German invincibility on land."

"We must accept that position for the moment," he declared, "but we need not help our enemies by making it worse."

Britain had received "most urgent appeals" from the Norwegians for an attack on Trondheim "at all costs," for it was "a place essential for the government and the King."

France Steady, Britain Firm

The Prime Minister lauded France for showing "remarkable steadiness" and said that in Britain the only effect of "the reverse has been to stiffen our determination."

Turkey had remained "imperturbable," Egypt had strengthened her defences, and "the position has been strengthened by the reversion to normal of our fleet distribution in the Mediterranean."

"The reaction has been more serious in Sweden than anywhere else," Mr. Chamberlain declared.

The Prime Minister expressed regret at certain comments "of a polemical character" in the Swedish Press because "although they may express Swedish disappointment, it does not help Sweden or the Allies."

No Criticism Heard Over Narvik

Mr. Chamberlain said he had heard no criticism of the decision to send a force to Narvik, the far northern ore port, and assumed "our decision in that respect, at any rate, was generally approved."

"I am not going to pretend that in those first anxious days we foresaw everything that was going to happen," the Prime Minister said in answer to a question "Why did we attempt an expedition to Trondheim?"

"We did realize that the expedition, if we undertook it, would be full of risks," because the airdrome facilities there were known to be inadequate, Mr. Chamberlain added.

Effect on Norwegian Government

"On the other hand, we had to consider the effect on the Norwegian government, the forces and people if we made no attempt to hold central Norway.

"If we refused to answer the call, we should have justified the reproach that our only object in Scandinavia was the iron ore and that we cared nothing for the freedom of the small nations."

"It had been made clear to us," he continued, "that unless we were ready to assist in the only way the Norwegians themselves felt to be effective—an attack on Trondheim — the Norwegians were not likely to have been able to continue their resistance and the whole country would have fallen at once into German hands."

Attack on Trondheim Considered

He said opinions differed on whether Britain should have made a direct attack on Trondheim and, since the operation was not attempted, "it will never be possible to decide the question."

"I can say now that that idea was constantly before us," Mr. Chamberlain revealed. Plans for a direct attack on Trondheim with the forces at Namsos and Andalsnes, north and south of the port respectively, "were prepared and carefully considered.

Operations of this kind were "necessarily complicated" and needed considerable time for thorough preparation if success was to be assured, he said.

Answering criticism that the force prepared for Finland before the Russo-Finnish peace should have been maintained to forestall a German attack in Scandinavia, the Prime Minister said "This argument is founded on a complete misconception."

Invitation was Necessary

"Whatever forces we had at our disposal, we could not have forestalled the Germans unless the Norwegians had invited or allowed us to come in," he declared.

"Consequently we were helpless to prevent the German stroke," he continued.

The Prime Minister said that when the Finnish campaign was given up, "it was decided that there was no need to keep this large force in this country and, accordingly, it was dispatched to France" whence the troops could be transported to Norway as readily as from Britain.

Rate of Dispatch of Troops

The rate of dispatch of troops to Norway was governed by the speed with which they could be landed "at those very few and inadequate ports" to which the Allied forces had access, Mr. Chamberlain stated.

The ships which had been gathered to transport a Finnish expeditionary force had been dispersed when "it became unjustifiable" to keep them waiting for an expedition "which might never have come off."

The ships, the Prime Minister said, were needed elsewhere.

The Norwegian withdrawal "was due to our inability to secure the airdromes from which we could operate fighters, and, secondly, from the rapid arrival of German reinforcements," Mr. Chamberlain said.

The government had believed "that if our troops could get there, they would not suffer heavy casualties from the air."

"I believe it was right to make the first attempt and equally right to withdraw the troops when it was clear that the plan would not succeed," the Prime Minister declared.

Complete Confidence in Victory

He said he thought the implications of the campaign "have been seriously exaggerated" and that he retained "complete confidence in our ultimate victory."

"I do not think the people of this country yet realize the extent, or the imminence, of the threat which is impending against us."

He asked the House "not to form any hasty opinions" and said it is "obvious" that the Germans have paid a heavy price for their success.

"It is too early to say on which side the balance will finally incline," he continued. "The campaign is not yet finished.

'Other Fronts Which May Blaze'

"Although we shall give all the help to Norway that we can, and as soon as we can, we must not forget that there are other fronts which may at any moment blaze into a conflagration."

The Prime Minister warned that Germany, "with her vast and well equipped armies . . . can at any moment attack" at a number of different points and that "we want to be ready to meet that attack wherever it may come."

"I try to steer a middle course," said Mr. Chamberlain after remarking that "any minister who shows any signs of confidence is always called complacent."

At this point some opposition member again shouted "missed the bus."

The Prime Minister said he did not wish to raise undue expectations or "make the neutrals' flesh creep by painting pictures of unmitigated gloom."

The Prime Minister said that "quite a lot of people" thought that when he said "Hitler missed the bus" that he referred to the invasion of Norway.

No Divisions Among Ministers

Shouts of "of course you were" came from the opposition benches.

Resuming, he declared that suggestions that one minister was more responsible for what happened than his colleagues were as "unworthy as they are untrue." He said there were no divisions among the ministers and that no one had intrigued against any other.

He said his "missed the bus" remark had been made after considering Hitler's preparations and wondering why Germany did not attack the Allies at the beginning of the war.

"It was a commentary on the past, not on the future," he added.

Warns Against Dispersal of Forces

"We have learned many useful lessons" from Norway, the Prime Minister said, and again he warned the House against "being tempted into such a dispersal of our forces as might suit the purpose of the enemy."

He urged the nation to "beware of jitterings and divisions among ourselves" and warned that "presently we may be faced in the most violent form with attacks directed against this country."

Mr. Chamberlain declared that this was not the time "for quarrels among ourselves" but that, although his military advisers had warned of the dangers of such a discussion as the present debate, "we could not accept this view in a democratic country" although it gives "hostages to fortune."

These Criticised Must be Allowed to Defence

"If there is criticism, those who are criticised must be allowed to defend themselves, whatever the dangers may be," he said.

'No Division' in Cabinet.

"There is no division" in the cabinet, the Prime Minister declared.

"None of us has attempted to intrigue against the other. All of us have only one thought—that is how we may each of us make our best contribution to the winning of the war."

The prime minister announced that Mr. Churchill "will have special responsibility" for the supervision of military operations day by day.

Churchill Still In Admiralty.

Answering a question by David Lloyd George, he said Mr. Churchill would retain his post at the Admiralty.

This appointment, Mr. Chamberlain said, ensures "that when policies are decided upon, they will be followed up with promptness and energy."

He added that he was relying on Mr. Churchill to "let me know" if the double burden proves to be too heavy and "in such a case, I would take steps to relieve him."

The prime minister said that Mr. Churchill had suggested that it would help him as head of the Military Coordination Committee of the cabinet if he could have close contact with the chiefs of staff.

Will Have Small Personal Staff.

He then disclosed that the First Lord will have "a small personal staff" under Major-General Hastings Ismay, Secretary of the Imperial Defence Committee.

Mr. Chamberlain said that other "changes in the form of the government, or the functions of individuals, might be necessary."

Answering a question put by Herbert Morrison, Labor, Mr. Chamberlain said this change did not arise out of the Norwegian operations "but would have been made in any case."

"In these strenuous days we should do better to occupy ourselves in increasing our war effort rather than disputing about the forms of government," he admonished the House.

Britain is doing "all we can to overtake the start Germany obtained during her long years of preparations," Mr. Chamberlain declared.

Cooperation Of All Parties.

He added that he wanted the "wholehearted cooperation of members of all parties" as well as the "wholehearted cooperation of employers and workers."

"We do not set ourselves up to be faultless," he said. "We certainly do not set ourselves up as being above receiving help."

Concluding, he appealed to the House to put "all our strength into the work" to increase the nation's strength "until we ourselves are able to deliver our blows where and when we will."

Chamberlain Called Too Optimistic.

Clement Attlee, leader of the opposition, opened the debate for the Labor party. He described Mr. Chamberlain's preliminary statement of last Thursday, when the withdrawal south of Trondheim was announced, as "over-optimistic and over-complacent."

He said Mr. Churchill was "far too optimistic".

The Norwegian campaign, he continued, was considered to be of "major importance" by the nation—not "a mere tip and run exploit."

He complained that the press and radio had led to the belief that "everything was going wonderfully well" and, "because of great expectations, there is great disappointment."

Young Boys Sent, Says Attlee.

Mr. Attlee charged that "young boys without training were sent to Norway" and said that experienced older men should have been sent.

It was "unbelievable", he said, that Germany's elaborate preparations should have gone on "for many months" without the British Intelligence Service knowing it.

Attlee Not Satisfied With Cabinet

"I am not satisfied, despite all the Prime Minister has said, that the present War Cabinet is an efficient instrument for conducting the war," he continued.

"It was vital for us to secure air bases. The Government could not have realized, even after the lesson of Poland and Finland, the importance of defences against attacks from the air."

Mr. Attlee described the evacuation from Norway as "inevitable" and said "this does not alter the fact that the operation in Southern Norway has been a failure."

Opposition to New Appointment

He opposed Mr. Churchill's new appointment as "against all good rules," declaring that no man in charge of major strategy should also be in command of a division.

"I have no doubt whatever of the courage and constancy of the people of this country, provided that they get the right leadership" he said.

The people "were not satisfied that the war was being waged with sufficient energy, industry or results." He claimed that the men "responsible for the conduct of this war showed everywhere that they were too late."

"We Will Win the War"

"The Prime Minister talked about missing buses," the Labor leader said. "The country missed all the peace buses and caught the war bus. We will win the war but we can not afford to leave our destinies in the hands of failures."

Mr. Attlee attacked the government for allowing loyalty to the Chief Government Whip Captain H. D. R. Margesson, to overcome "their loyalty to the needs of this country".

"The House of Commons must take full responsibility", he added. "We will win the war, but to win it we want different people at the helm than those at present leading us".

Reference to 'Career of Failure'

Mr. Attlee claimed that people were saying that those responsible for the conduct of affairs "are men who have had an almost uninterrupted career of failure".

"Norway follows Czecho-Slovakia and Poland", he said. "Everywhere the story is too late".

This statement drew opposition cheers.

Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal Leader, continued the debate. He declared that criticism should be levelled not at the Norwegian withdrawal but at "why we ever got ourselves into a position in which we had to accept defeat in Norway"

Nation's Confidence Not Improved.

There was nothing in the Norwegian campaign to shake the nation's confidence in the courage and efficiency of the fighting forces or of the availability of large resources, Sir Archibald went on. But there was something that suggested "that more foresight and energy, and stronger and more ruthless will to victory is required" of the government.

He stressed the economic importance of losing supplies from "Denmark, Norway, Finland and other Baltic states," and warned the House that when Narvik is taken it will be found that the Germans have destroyed everything there.

Charges Ill-founded Boastings.

The Liberal leader scored the "ill-founded boastings of ministers" and observers that "results count." Official information given to the press and the British Broadcasting Corporation, he said, had misled these agencies. He did not criticise anyone for misleading the enemy during the period of the evacuation. The misleading had come before then.

Iron Ore Weakest Point of Nazis

Reminding the House that "iron ore is the weakest point in the German armies," Sir Archibald said British action should have been taken months ago and not until a winter had nearly passed, when "the ministers screwed themselves up to action."

He suggested that German air power had proved stronger than the government had anticipated.

"Had they learned nothing from Poland?" he asked.

Sir Archibald declared the French had sent Alpine troops, among their best, while Britain had sent territorials who "did not even have snowshoes."

The result, he continued, "makes one wonder whether the Finnish force really did exist on the scale of 100,000 men."

"Time Not on Our Side"—Sinclair

There were some cheers from the government back benches when the Liberal leader said Britain was failing to drive forward with "ruthless and war-minded energy" in all departments.

"Economically, politically and, to a lesser extent, militarily we have suffered a grave reverse."

Sir Archibald remarked that "time is not on our side—Hitler has seized the old gentleman by the beard."

The Liberal leader said he had been informed that at one place in Norway the British forces had landed two anti-aircraft guns with unsuitable mountings, no trained men to handle them, no fuse keys to set fuses, no range tables and no trajectory charts.

"The guns were utterly useless", he remarked.

Says Transport Without Arms

Sir Archibald said he was told of one transport which sailed with "no arms—not even a rifle and no splinter-proof protection—not even a tin helmet and no escort on the way back."

He charged that one ship carried a few wounded soldiers without medical supervision.

"Only three of her lifeboats could be swung outboard," he said.

Sweden, he went on, is now surrounded. He asked whether Britain could help her resist German pressure.

"The Government are giving us a one-shift war while the Germans are giving us a three-shift war," he remarked.

"In every country of the world the prestige of Britain has been affected. Time is not always on our side. Let us insist upon a more vigorous policy in the conduct of the war."

Many Members left the House for tea when Sir Archibald concluded his speech.

Norway is 'Choked With Spies' Troops State on Returning

General Sir Edmund Ironsides Greets Returning Troops and Tells Them "You Were Ordered Out of Norway and Your Discipline Brought You Out"

A LOSING FIGHT

General Paget Says His Troops Fought Five Separate Rear-Guard Actions in the 100-Mile Withdrawal from Lillehammer Section

London, May 7 —(CP)— A tense House of Commons called Prime Minister Chamberlain's Government to account today in an inquest into the Allied failure to halt the march of German troops through Norway.

Mr. Chamberlain, described by his followers as sufficiently sure of his position to invite a vote of confidence, was scheduled to open the two-day debate on Britain's war effort at 3:45 p.m. (9:45 a.m. EST) with a statement defending the "strategic withdrawal" of Allied forces from Southern and central Norway.

It was expected that Labor Leader Major Clement R. Attlee, whose party refused to participate in the Chamberlain cabinet would leave to the Prime Minister's own ranks the initiative in raising any possible cry for his resignation.

Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, considered the most likely candidate for Prime Minister in the event of Mr. Chamberlain's downfall, will round out the case for the government tomorrow night before any vote of confidence is taken.

Mr. Chamberlain was furnished ample ammunition for his explanation of the difficulties encountered on the Norwegian front by the stories of British and French soldiers who landed in a northern English port Sunday and Monday after their withdrawal from Norway.

Told of Losing Fight

They told a tale of a losing fight against German air supremacy established at the start of the campaign, of day-long bombing attacks which paralyzed their operations in a country "choked with spies."

General Sir Edmund Ironside, Chief of the Imperial Defence Staff, who went from London to greet the returning troops, congratulated them for having "come back with their tails up."

"Don't think you were driven out of Norway," he said. "You were ordered out of Norway, and the great thing is that your discipline brought you out.

"You were an advance guard, and we had thought that we would be able to get to you the guns and aviation which make it possible to fight such a machine as you were opposed to. But, as you know, the race went against us."

General B. C. T. Paget who conducted the 100-mile retreat from the Lillehammer sector in southern Norway to the Andalsnes base on the west coast said that his troops had fought five separate rear-guard actions during the withdrawal.

That the withdrawal was carried out successfully, was "mainly due to the splendid endurance and fighting qualities of the units engaged," he said.

Inflicted Casualties

"We were not successful in preventing the Germans from breaking through from the south to Trondheim," he added, "but we may claim to having delayed them considerably and to having inflicted a lot of casualties".

No immediate explanation was given as to why French troops which took part in the Norwegian campaign had been landed in Britain. It was disclosed that the Frenchmen—Chasseurs Alpins —had arrived Sunday at a northern port where they were reviewed by General Millhauser of the French army. They were believed en route home.

A major attached to a French company said his unit had seen no Germans during their 10-day stay in Norway, and remarked that "we were disappointed we had to leave without having a crack at them".

Late yesterday it was disclosed three Allied destroyers had been sunk by Nazi bombers while covering the withdrawal of British and French troops from Norway

These vessels included the 2,436-ton French Bison, the 1,870-ton British Afridi and the 2,144-ton Polish Grom.

British sources said, however, that the Germans had suffered heavy losses in airplanes during the Norwegian campaign.

Nazi Plane Loss Greater

From official bulletins and other sources they estimated that the Nazis had lost 200 planes, largely through the work of the British air force. In comparison, British losses were described as comparatively light, amounting to not more than 37 machines—16 lost in raids on German air bases, five in action against naval vessels and 16 in other operations.

There was little new information concerning the fighting still going on in Norway, where Allied troops, co-operating with the Norwegians, are besieging some 3,000 to 4,000 Germans at Narvik.

Halvdan Koht, Norwegian Foreign Minister who conferred yesterday in London with Mr. Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax, asserted in an interview that the Norwegian forces in the north were well-trained and equipped.

"It is the part of our army which has been best trained," he declared. "The reason for this is easy to understand: For the last three years we have been fearing a Russian attack—that is why we organized our army in northern Norway."

A Norwegian broadcast reported the Norwegian Commander-in-Chief, Otto Ruge, has arrived in northern Norway aboard a British war vessel.

Koht said that a great part of the Norwegian army in the south was lost when the Allies withdrew, but he offered no reproach.

"It is good to feel that my unhappy country is not left alone in the world," he declared. "I know the English people well, and know there is no place where Norway has such good friends as here."

Air Forces Defenceless

The officers and men of the returning British-French expeditionary forces heavily emphasized the part played by the German air force in Norway and said the Allied ground troops were virtually defenseless against aerial attack.

A Scottish private of the Royal Engineers, who fought in the First Great War, said:—

"The shell fire and machine-gunning were not quite so heavy as in the last war, but the bombing was something fearful. As many as 40 planes were over us at one time and they dropped 400 bombs.

"I've never seen such bombing. We had very little defence against it—only machine-guns and Bofors guns (an anti-aircraft gun of Swedish make)."

An infantry captain described how the Germans had bombed his troops incessantly from 10 in the morning until 7 o'clock at night. When the planes had dropped all their bombs they continued to attack with machine-guns.

"My company was machine-gunned many times", he said, "but I had only one casualty from this cause.

"The effect, however, of continued attack was much felt. We were paralyzed and afraid to move. All the boys felt that if we had only had some fighters (pursuit planes) to deal with their bombers we could have smashed the Germans".

The men said they had been handicapped by the work of spies, and one British private said a Norwegian radio operator had guided German planes until he was caught and executed.

Place Full of Spies

"The place was full of spies," another soldier said, "every move we made was known to the Germans almost as soon as we made it."

The Allied retreat to the coast was described by a veteran Sergeant as "a marvelous piece of rearguard fighting."

"I have done a great many manoeuvres in my time," he declared, "and this was just like any other except it was the real thing. We were fighting hard with nothing in our stomachs for 36 hours. I am proud to have fought with these lads."

Another soldier said the Germans had had "everything in their favor."

"They had their tanks, motors, artillery and fliers," he said, "but they never attempted to come to grips with us. If they had, we would have cut them to pieces."

A member of an advance party out from Andalsnes told of being cut off with a few men after several days of fighting.

"I had no orders to retire, so I stayed on," he said.

Eventually he became separated from the rest of his unit and found himself alone in a deserted village. There he found civilian clothing, which he exchanged for his uniform, and set off for the coast.

On the way he fell in with five other stragglers, three of whom were so exhausted they insisted on resting. The remainder finally reached Andalsnes after eight days of travelling over mountainous

ANOTHER UNEASY HEAD IN EUROPE

King George of Greece, a soldier king, is shown chatting with two of his infantrymen during recent defence manoeuvres. Today Greece is on the anxious seat as the war shows signs of shifting to the Mediterranean. Feverish defensive preparations are being made while an Italian fleet is reported concentrating in the Dodecanese Islands and an Allied fleet is said to be ready for action at Alexandria, Egypt.

26 of Britain's Heroes Decorated By King as Relatives Look on

London, May 7 (CP)—Twenty-six heroes of Britain's fighting services were decorated at Buckingham Palace today by the King, who wore Royal Air Force uniform.

For the second time, at the King's command, relatives of the men decorated were permitted to enter the palace to watch the investiture, during which distinguished Service Orders, Medals of the Order of the British Empire, Distinguished Service Crosses and Distinguished Flying Cross were distributed.

Flight Lieut. Edgar Ryder, who was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, told newspapermen, "I was engaged against a Heinkel over the North Sea when my machine, a Spitfire, was shot down. I went into the drink, with my airplane upside down. I thought I would never come up again, but after struggling I managed to get free from the cockpit and came up to the surface."

Lieut. Ryder's mother, regarding him proudly, said, "It is grand to have him now for a short time."

Pilot Officer William Mulloy and Flying Officer Derek French, who were together in a plane which participated in the bombing of a German cruiser at Bergen, were both also awarded the D.F.C. Mulloy, a tall youth of 20, shyly told the press "I just got the decoration for operations over Norway."

Two other R.A.F. officers, Squadran Leader George Peacock and Pilot Officer Michael Homer, received the same decoration for work in the same raid.

The wife and two-year-old daughter of Lieut.-Comander Roy Edwards, of the minesweeper Watchful, saw him receive the Distinguished Service Order.

WAR BRIEFS

Ankara, May 7 (CP-Havas). — A bill authorizing the government to declare a state of war in case of a war crisis or a plot against the state was voted today on first reading by the Turkish parliament.

London, May 7 (CP).—Capt. P. L. Vian, of the destroyer Afridi, sunk off Namsos by German bombers, was definitely listed today among the survivors. It was not known whether he was wounded. A number of the Afridi survivors left a north Scottish port yesterday for England.

Luxembourg, May 7 (CP-Havas).—A young German soldier last night swam across the river at Echternach and surrendered as a deserter to Luxembourg authorities. He was interned.

London, May 7 (CP).—Officers of Britain's merchant fleet yesterday gave concrete evidence of their confidence in an Allied victory by calling a conference of affiliated organizations in Canada and other parts of the Empire to meet "two months after the war ends." The conference will discuss proposals for rehabilitation of British shipping after the war.

Paris, May 7 (CP-Havas).—The newspaper Paris-Soir today reported the arrest at Nantes of Georges Poupon, private secretary of Maurice Thorez, the fugitive Secretary General of the outlawed French Communist party.

Poupon was said to have been disguised as a hotel porter. Thorez was sentenced in absentia last March to five years' imprisonment.

Firecrackers Worry Orillia's Official

Orillia, Ont., May 7 (CP)—Use of firecrackers by Orillia children in advance of the customary Victoria Day celebrations has sub Fire Chief Al Woods worried—such pranks have caused three fires, including one in the firehall.

Firemen had to make two trips to the home of George Mitchell last night and both times firecrackers caused the conflagrations. The first fire was in the chicken coop and the second in the woodshed.

The previous night Woods was startled when he heard an explosion downstairs in the firehall. Investigating, he found the hall enveloped in smoke. Under both fire trucks were burning pieces of giant-sized firecrackers. The young culprit was apprehended.

HARDY MEN WHO CAME BACK

Chief Petty Officer George "Tiny" Cox, who is built more for comfort than speed, is shown mustering the survivors of the British destroyer Hardy outside the admiralty in London for review by First Lord Winston Churchill. The Hardy is the British destroyer that ran ashore at Narvik after she had been badly battered by German warships. These men made their way ashore and later were rescued by another British warship. Many of them wear parts of ski outfits given by Norwegian benefactors.

ARSENIC FOUND ON CELERY, 'ENOUGH TO KILL CANARY'

Calgary, May 7—(CP)—Arsenic in sufficient quantities to kill a canary has been found on green or "Utah" celergy being sold in Calgary stores, Dr. W. H. Hill, City Health Officer, said here yesterday. He warned that all celery and other leafy vegeatbles eaten raw must be carefully and thoroughly washed.

"While the poison was not found in large quantities, anyone eating freely of the celery would be liable to suffer ill-effects," said Dr. Hill. He expressed the opinion that arsenic had been an ingredient in a preparation used as an insecticide.

GIFTED JURIST FOOTBALLER

Nottingham, England — (CP)— Dr. Tinsley Lindley, barrister and deputy county court judge and former international footballer, died here at 74. He played football for England 13 times.

YUGOSLAVIANS GUARD BORDER NORTH OF TRIESTE

Sources Close to Hungarian Government Insist That if Axis Powers Decide to Drive Into Balkans They Would Not Touch Hungar But Sweep Through Yugoslavia

By ROBERT PARKER

Associated Press Staff Writer

Budapest, May 7 (CP)—The controlled Hungarian press gave first-page prominence today to dispatches datelined Berlin declaring that Hungary was "definitely deciding with Germany."

The publication of news concerning Hungary from Berlin and Rome has been a frequent method in the past of informing Hungarians on the stand of their own government.

With southeastern Europe in dread of the possibility that the war might spread at any minute, great headlines quoted the German press as declaring that Hungary "will not intervene" and that Hungary "couples the maintenance of non-intervention with a definite attitude in favor of Germany."

Sources close to the government insisted that Germany and Italy would not touch Hungary but would sweep together into Yugoslavia in case of a decision to drive into the Balkans.

Hungary was calm, but from Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Rumania, Turkey and Greece came reports of intensive military precautions.

Steps Only Counter Measure

Yugoslavia took steps reportedly as a counter-measure against 300,000 Italian troops said to be on her frontier north of Trieste. Yugoslav reservists were taken by gendarmes from their places of work and rushed to concentration points in trucks requisitioned from industrial farms.

Foreign military observers estimated that Yugoslavia already has more than 600,000 men under arms.

Yugoslav mine layers took on cargoes of mines at Adriatic ports and prepared to start blocking harbors at a moment's notice.

Other Balkan countries also called up men by personal summons instead of the old-fashioned system of posting mobilization orders.

Army, navy and air corps specialists were called up in Greece and it was noted that this followed a talk yesterday between Premier John Metaxas and Italian Minister Raffaele Boscarelli, who just returned to his Athens post by airplane from Rome.

Turkey's controlled press reiterated Turkish readiness to enter the war on the side of Great Britain and France if fighting should start in the Mediterranean and Balkans.

Heavy Turkish troop reinforcements were reported to have been sent to the Dardanelles.

Rumania concentrated additional troops in Dobruja, near her frontier with Bulgaria.

Conscription of Men Between Ages of 40 to 50 Thought Undesirable

London, May 7.—(CP)—War Secretary Oliver Stanley told the House of Commons today he considered it undesirable to adopt conscription for men between the ages of 40 and 50 before younger men are called.

Mr. Stanley said the war office got the first news of the German invasion of Denmark between two and three o'clock in the morning of April 9. He said the information was communicated to General Sir Edmund Ironside, chief of the Imperial General Staff at 3.30 a.m.

The War Secretary declared that one anti-aircraft unit in Norway was not in possession of the necessary aircraft recognition signals which, he said, "are of a very secret nature and could not be widely issued days in advance" of the British landing. One casualty resulted because of this, he disclosed.

BRIDGE ST. W.M.S.

The W.M.S. of Bridge St., United Church met on Friday afternoon for the regular meeting with Miss Lazelle Brown, the president, in charge.

A very comprehensive report of the Presbyterial was given by Mrs. Moore. She told of a programme centred around the theme of "Loyalty". There is a great need for us to search ourselves (instead of the other fellow) to find out where we have failed—for without personal loyalty we cannot hope for worldwide loyalty. She also told of the transformed lives of the untouchables in India—and of the transformed conditions in communities influenced by these people—and we wondered what might happen in our community if our lives were transformed.

Mrs. Broad had charge of the study period—which was a survey of "Stewardship"—and its application to ourselves. In this she was assisted by Mrs. Montgomery, Mrs. Mosley, Mrs. May, Mrs. O'Flynn and Mrs. Holmes.

Some of the thoughts from these papers were—"Christianity is a giving religion—and even taxes can be given to the glory of God. The giving of "self" is the first bit of giving to be met and from there we can move on intelligently to any further giving—as God guides. Love, to be real, must go into action.

STEINBECK STORY AWARDED PRIZE

List of Pulitzer Awards Announced by Prize Committee

New York, May 7 (CP)—John Steinbeck's powerful and controversial story of the "Okies" —The Grapes of Wrath—and the public service performed by the Waterbury, Conn., Republican and American in exposing municipal graft have been awarded the highest accolades of the Pulitzer Prize Committee for 1939.

Steinbeck's novel—said by its publisher, The Viking Press, to have been read in twelve months by more than 4,000,000 persons — was found yesterday to have been the most distinguished of the year and won the $1,000 prize.

It deals with the plight of migratory workers particularly in California.

The Republican and American was saluted for the most disinterested and meritorious public service rendered by a United States newspaper, and won the $500 gold medal.

For his dispatches from Berlin Otto D. Tolischus of the New York Times won the $500 award given annually for the most distinguished service as a foreign correspondent.

Reportorial Award

S. Burton Heath of the New York World-Telegram was awarded the $1,000 prize for a distinguished example of a reporter's work domestically—specifically for his exclusive articles which led to the exposure of former United-States Circuit Judge Martin T. Manton, now in prison for accepting bribes.

Other awards:—

For distinguished editorial writing, limited to the editorial page—Bart Howard of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, $500.

For distinguished work as a cartoonist—Edmund Duffy of the Baltimore Sun, $500. Cited was his cartoon of October 7, 1939, which depicted Adolf Hitler with an outstretched right hand dripping blood and labelled "The Peace Offer." The left hand held torn papers symbolizing broken promises and treaties and a declaration that there would be no more territorial demands.

For distinguished playwriting, $1,000—William Saroyan, for "The Time of Your Life," a simple play dealing with a group of characters, all of them representing different types of humanity, in a waterfront saloon.

For distinguished writing on the history of the United States, $1,000 —"Abraham Lincoln: The War Years," by Carl Sandburg.

For distinguished American biography, $1,000 —"Woodrow Wilson, Life and Letters," by Ray Stannard Baker.

For distinguished verse, $1,000 — "Collected Poems," by Mark Van Doren.

In the newspaper field the San Francisco Chronicle received honorable mention for its "part in settling the waterfront and warehouse strike in San Francisco June 22 to December 1, 1939," and Lloyd Lehbras of The Associated Press for his dispatches from Warsaw, Bucharest and Ankara.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

BICYCLE LICENCES NOW BEING ISSUED

Bicycle owners residing within the city flocked in numbers to the City Hall today to purchase licenses for their "wheels" in accordance with the ruling passed some weeks ago by the council that all bicycles must be registered. The licenses were put up on sale for the first time this morning and up to two o'clock this afternoon over eighty bicycle owners had visited the city hall and paid their "two bits" for their bicycle identification tag.

ROBBERS ATTEMPT BREAK-IN AT SERVICE STATION

Fresh paint and the fact they were heard by neighbours and forced to beat a hasty retreat were attributed the main factors that disrupted an attempted robbery at Clarke's service station, East Dundas Street, at an early hour this morning.

A rear window of the premises was broken, but the windowsill and window frame had been freshly painted only a few hours previous and the wet paint impeded the progress of the would-be robbers. Mr. Clarke, who resides nearby, heard the crash of breaking glass and arose to investigate, subsequently frightening away the marauders. Police were later notified, but an extensive search of the district failed to disclose the identity of the robbers.

Mr. Clarke and other residents nearby, who heard the breaking of the window, told police that two soldiers were seen leaving the premises.

EMPTY TIN CONTAINERS NOTICED IN RIVER

A number of empty tin containers were noticed this morning as they slowly floated down the Moira River. Singly, in pairs and sometimes three in a bunch they floated down with several minutes elapsing between each group. The containers were of four to five gallon capacity with open ends and many of them filled and went to the bottom of the river, but some were noticed as they went under the railroad bridge on out to the bay. Undoubtedly they came from some city warehouse as they apparently had contained some kind of a powder before their owner took this cheap method of disposal.

SOUND OF LAWN MOWER SOON HEARD

The number of free evenings which "Junior" may be expected to have will be limited from now until the grass growing season is over as the hum of the lawn mower is once again being heard along city streets. The city boys' "friend" is everywhere brought out from the garage or other place of winter storage to be repaired and oiled in readiness of being put to work on the lawn on which the grass has now attained a good length.

STIRLING FARMER INJURED BY SAW

Ernest Hamilton, forty-three year old farmer residing near Stirling, was admitted to Belleville General Hospital shortly after one o'clock today suffering with severe lacerations of an arm, sustained when he came in contact with the whirling teeth of a buzz-saw.

Twelve stitches were needed to close the wound, while the bones of the arm were also affected. Dr. G. H. Stobie, attending physician, said Hamilton was resting comfortably later this afternoon.

Shannonville

Shannonville — Mrs. Stanley MacDonald was a Thursday dinner hour guest of Mrs. F. Carscallen of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Liddles and Leroy were recent Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Thompson of Foxboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Durward Waddingham and children were Sunday dinner hour guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Robertson.

Mrs. J. McAllister of Kingsford, is spending a few days the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. McAllister and daughter. She also visited with friends in the district.

Mrs. Will Sine is spending a few days the guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Charlie Boultstridge and Mr. Boultstridge, second line.

Mrs. Powell of Toronto, is spending her holidays the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Fuller.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Mowers of Napanee, were recent Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Robertson.

Miss L. Stillson was a recent guest of Mrs. Howard Thompson of Thomasburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Melbourne and Mrs. G. Stickney attended the funeral of their cousin, Mrs. Kenneth Tompkin of Newburgh.

Mrs. Charlie Boultstridge was hostess to the W.M.S. of the United Church for their May meeting on Thursday afternoon. A most interesting program was enjoyed by the ladies. A dainty lunch was served by the hostess, then a social hour was enjoyed.

Mrs. J. C. Spencer, Ruth and C. G. Spencer of the R.C.A.F., spent the week-end the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Spencer at Queensboro.

Rev. C. F. Heaven is confined to his home with a heavy cold. All his friends wish him a speedy recovery.

SKY IS THE LIMIT

London, May 7 (CP)—Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer told the National Savings Association today that the sky is the limit in British war expenditures.

"We must at all costs put forward our maximum possible effort for the purpose of winning the war," Sir John said, and there is "no other limit." He remarked that if Gladstone knew today's budget "he would not merely turn in his grave—he would turn dizzy."

Defences Geared To Meet Situation "Very Uncertain"

Reports That Two German Columns Are Converging on Netherlands Frontier Given Blanket Denial by Berlin — Intense Military Preparations Proceeding Rapidly

PREPARED FOR FIGHT

Civilian Railway Travel Sharply Curtailed to Allow Free Movement of Troops — Ships Barred From Inland Waterways and Guards Placed at Strategic Points

Amsterdam, May 8—(AP)—Intense military preparations, cancellation of all military and naval leaves, accompanied by a partial "blackout" of communications with the outside world during the night, kept the Netherlands in a state of suspense today. The nation geared its defences to meet an international situation officially described as "increasingly uncertain."

(Reports that two German columns are converging on the Netherlands' frontier were said by a highly reliable source in New York last night to be responsible for the unusual precautions, but authorities in Berlin issued a blanket denial of these reports.

(The Associated Press said it has been reliably informed that two German columns were advancing toward the Netherlands from Bremen and Dusseldorf.

(The Associated Press said the movements of the troops were the cause of intense military preparations in Holland and disruption of the Netherlands' international communications.

Why The Weather?

Weather and climate! If one lives in the tropics "weather" and "climate" mean almost the same thing. As one goes from the equator, north or south, the weather becomes more variable and the seasons more distinct. Within the tropics one day is so much like another that a sample day is a sample of the climate. But farther north or south, especially in the region of the westerlies and the tracks of the cyclones and anticyclones, no single day gives an adequate picture of the climate. Averages mean very little. It is necessary to tell not only the average temperature of each month but also the average of the highest and lowest temperatures, together with the extremes. Then the story of rainfall must be told in equal detail.

U. S. Fleet to Remain In Mid-Pacific

Washington, May 8 (AP)— New demands that Congress build up United States defences coincided today with a surprise announcement that the battle fleet would remain in mid-Pacific.

News that the fleet would stay in the Hawaiian area instead of returning on schedule to its west coast bases came at a moment when fears ran high in diplomatic circles that the war might explode anew.

A laconic "further tactical exercises and training" was the explanation given last night for the unexpected change in navy plans. Admiral James O. Robinson, fleet commander, said no significance was attached to the decision. If a coincidence, the change nevertheless meant that the fighting force would continue operating from the nearest major base to The Netherlands' East Indies, where the United States recently called for a "hands off" policy by Japan and other nations.

NOTED JOURNALIST KILLED BY FALL LEAVING TRAIN

Webb Miller, European Manager for United Press, Sustains Fractured Skull in Fall

HAD WIDE EXPERIENCE

London, May 8—(CP) — Webb Miller, noted American journalist, was found dead today on a railway near Clapham Junction Station, southwest London. It was believed he fell from a train shortly after it pulled out of the station.

Miller was European news manager for the United Press Associations.

He attended yesterday's historic debate in the House of Commons on the Norwegian campaign and left last night for his home in the country after filing his cabled report. Acquaintances said he appeared in "excellent health."

Miller's body was found on the railway right-of-way at about 5:15 a.m. (11:15 p.m. EST.) Tuesday, but it was believed the accident which caused his death occurred about nine o'clock last night.

A hard blow on the right side of the head, apparently suffered when he fell from the moving train, was believed the cause of death.

Miller, who was 48, had had wide experience as a war correspondent. He leaves his widow, Marie, and a son, Kenneth, 18, both in the United States.

No Witnesses of Accident

Police were unable to find any witnesses to the accident.

Authorities theorized, however, that Miller had planned to change trains at Clapham Junction and did not realize the train had reached that station until it started up again. Confused by the blackout, and thinking the train was still beside the platform, they said, he probably stepped from his compartment and plunged to the ground.

Miller was well known for his personal reportorial exploits, which began when he was assigned to the Mexican border in 1916. He had covered every major international conflict of the past 25 years.

Cartoonists in Old London Bring Grim Smiles to Britishers

London, May 8 — (CP-Cable)—David Low, Britain's greatest cartoonist, brought a grim smile to the face of the average man today with a picture of Prime Minister Chamberlain and his henchmen digging themselves in for a last stand behind the barricaded doors of the cabinet room at 10 Downing Street.

The determined Chamberlain, armed with an umbrella, Sir John Simon and Sir Samuel Hoare, with inkpots for ammunition, are seen crouching at the end of the cabinet table jammed against the door. Scattered on the floor are papers marked "eight years of dithering." The caption says: "One Position that isn't Going to be Evacuated!"

In the Daily Herald's cartoon, by George Whitelaw, the Prime Minister becomes a sleep-walker about to plunge from the roof of a house. A quaking, "good little M.P." witness says: "It's dangerous to wake him." A "critic" adds "It's dangerous not to."

CHANGES IN GOV'T OF CHAMBERLAIN ARE FORECAST

Cabinet Expected to Weather Storm Over Norwegian Campaign

DEFENCE CRITICIZED

Admiral Keyes Levels Attack at Churchill Over Trondheim Situation

London, May 8.—(CP)—The prediction was made in parliamentary circles today that the Chamberlain government, although in a precarious position over its explanation of the Allied reversal in Norway, would ride out an angry storm buffeting it in the second clamorous days of Commons debate.

Alarming reports revolving about heightened defence precautions in the neutral Netherlands, these sources said, likely would put a new light on Prime Minister Chamberlain's warning that Great Britain must be alert against greater dangers in the war with Germany.

Mr. Chamberlain's defence of his Government's course in the Norwegian campaign evidently failed to satisfy either the public or the press

The Parliamentary Labor Party decided to introduce a motion of no confidence as the debate continued today.

Admiral Keyes' Criticism Explosive

The Government still was shaken over last night's explosive criticism by an admiral of the fleet, Sir Roger John Brownlow Keyes National naval hero, who charged "shocking ineptitude" in the Norwegian campaign. He declared that the admiralty had rejected his appeal to let him storm Trondheim from the sea, a feat which he said might have changed the whole picture of the war.

NORSE PASSENGER SHIP ATTACKED

Swedish Steamer Seized by Germans, Reported by Stockholm Sunk by British Sub

London, May 8 (CP)—Three ships were added today to the list of victims in the sea and air warfare in the North Sea.

The Norwegian high command in a communique relayed here from somewhere in Norway by Reuters News Agency said six persons were killed, including the captain and two women, in the bombing and machine-gunning of the 316-ton Norwegian passenger steamer Polden.

The Swedish steamer Monark, 1,786 tons, in charge of a German prize crew, was reported from Stockholm to have been torpedoed by a British submarine.

Five members of the prize crew were taken aboard the submarine and two others were saved in lifeboats.

The Monark had been at Bergen, Norway, and was seized by the Germans at the start of the invasion.

(Stockholm dispatches did not explain the presence of the German prize crew aboard the Monark.)

A dispatch from Dunquerque, France, said the British collier Brighton, 5,359 tons, was sunk off that port following an explosion. All of the crew of 34 were saved though ten were injured in the blast.

'War is Entering Upon Active Phase,' Says Anthony Eden

'British Peoples Are Now Braced and Prepared for Stress of Harsh Conflict, Which May be Long'

London, May 8—(CP)—Dominions Secretary Anthony Eden told a luncheon gathering today that "the war is entering upon what all can recognize as an active phase and the people of the British Commonwealth are now braced and prepared for the stress of a harsh conflict, which may be long."

If victory is to be assured, he told the National Defence Public Interest Committee, "we must not underrate the enemy's strength." We have to marshal the whole of our resources and employ them, and we have to conduct the war with all the vision, courage and resolution at our command."

70 Air Training Schools

Mr. Eden said that 70 flying training schools are being set up in Canada and when plans are fully developed the annual output of pilots, observers and gun crews will be numbered in the tens of thousands.

Mr. Eden paid tribute to "my friend," Hon. Vincent Massey, who was also a guest of honor, as "the representative of the Great Dominion whose contributions to the Empire effort have moved us all."

The Dominion's Secretary said that "despite the present anxiety, not one of us doubts that final victory can be won, but if victory is to be assured, first we must not underrate the enemy's strength."

He added amid murmurs of assent that "there must be no more fatal mistakes in that respect."

MOST OF WORLD'S URANIUM LOCATED IN THE DOMINION

Experiments Lauded in Discovery of U-235 as Opening New Scientific Field in Canada

KEENLY STUDIED

(By Ross Munro, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 8—(CP)—National research council scientists Tuesday lauded experiments in the new miracle substance, developed from uranium and known as U-235, "as opening up a splendid new scientific trial."

At the same time one well-informed mines and resources department official said that if U-235 was developed sufficiently for commercial and military use it would be of great import to Canada because most of the world's uranium ore is located in the Dominion.

"A market for uranium ore is needed," he said. "If this new chemical proves its worth in future experiments, it will be a boon to Canada."

Dr. R. W. Boyle, director of the division of physics and electrical engineering, said in an interview that results of experiments at Columbia University, New York, disclosed over the week-end, "are very striking and very much worthwhile."

Reports of the successful isolation of the new chemical substance—the latest development in atomic power which might revolutionize power production—also were studied with keen interest by the mines and resources department scientists.

A Cornell University scientist, however, said last night that there is no immediate likelihood of coal, oil or electricity being supplanted by U-235 and this appears to be the general view of Canadian Government and national research council experts. But they look upon the experiments and the results as a major scientific development nevertheless.

Labor Party to Move No-Confidence Motion After House Debate

London, May 8—(CP)—The Parliamentray Labor Party met in the House of Commons today and decided to introduce a motion of no confidence in the House today in the debate on Britain's reverses in Norway.

It was decided the motion would be put at the conclusion tonight of the two-day debate.

It was generally predicted that the cabinet, despite the bitterness of the criticisms voiced in the debate, will ride out the storm and win a vote of confidence.

Clement Attlee, leader of the Opposition, presided at a gathering of the Labor group at which today's tactics for the party were decided.

Some Labor members were said to have been against posing the question of confidence, since, it was argued, it would result in many Conservatives, otherwise critical of the cabinet over the Norwegian affair, rallying to the government's support.

EMPTY TRUCKS MOVING TO FRONT FOOL FOE TROOPS

Correspondent Tells of Success of Ruse Used by French in Namsos Withdrawal

CONVOYS INTACT

By NORMAN LODGE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, May 8 (AP).—The censor has my diary for the time being, but I won't need it to remember the events of the past two weeks.

I landed at a Norwegian port yesterday with an Allied expeditionary force from Namsos, Norway, which reached home intact despite an attack by 39 German planes which sank three Allied destroyers — the British Afridi, the French Bison and the Polish Grom.

A "good deed" got me into my first trouble.

On my way to Namsos from Formofoss, near the Swedish frontier, I stopped an American ambulance hospital unit at Grong to get a story of the day's bombing.

When I was asked to take some letters to Colonel "B", a British medical officer, I agreed readily, thinking they might be an open sesame for sleeping quarters. They were—under British "protective arrest" in Spillum.

I had gone to Namsos on a reliable tip that an Allied offensive was about to begin north of Trondheim. That was just one week ago.

The next day, French troops streamed back from the front and embarked, as I later learned, the same night. I was told to get some sleep. But, before I could close an eye, I was ordered to pack my kit and be ready. We were set to sail May 3.

BELGIAN CABINET HOLDS SESSION

Entire International Picture Reviewed by Foreign Minister Spaak

Brussels, May 8 (CP-Havas).—The Belgian cabinet met in special emergency session today to consider the new situation implied by the Netherlands' emergency defence moves.

The entire international picture was reviewed by Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak. No official information was released as to government action which might result from the cancellation of army leaves ordered by the Netherlands.

German troops are being concentrated near the Dutch frontier from the Rhine to the Ems and warships and transports are massing at Hamburg and Bremen, according to reports here.

On the basis of these reports it was feared the Germans were planning a mass attack on northern Holland in an attempt to establish an unbroken string of air and naval bases facing Great Britain from the mouth of the Rhine to central Norway.

It was believed Belgian authorities would not take any extraordinary military precautions for the present.

By AXEL DE HOLSTEIN

Paris, May 8 (C.P. Havas)—The Netherlands' new war scare held the military spotlight today as Norwegian Foreign Minister Halvdan Koht arrived in Paris coincidental with announcement that veteran Polish mountain troops have been landed near Narvik to bolster the Allied expeditionary force.

No information was ventured by military quarters as to the developments which led The Hague government to cancel all military leaves and institute other emergency defence measures. No change in the "battle order" of the German armies along the western front has been observed, it said.

A communique issued by the general staff of the reconstituted Polish army said:

"Polish Chasseur detachments from the Carpathians, reorganized in France, have landed very recently in Norway, where they will fight at the side of British, French and Norwegian troops against the German invaders.

"The reorganized Polish army is consequently going to fight wherever it is necessary for the cause of independence and an Allied victory."

16th Century Laws Cited at Trial

Montreal, May 8—(CP)—Jurisprudence dating back to the 16th century was cited yesterday at the trial of Mrs. Annie Troyan, her husband and John Rahatin on charges of conspiring to defraud Mrs. D. Dutka of $200.

Mrs. Troyan was acquitted after Joseph Cohen, arguing on her behalf, told Judge J. C. Langlois in police court that English common law holds that man and wife are a legal entity and therefore cannot conspire together to commit a criminal offence.

The judge held that in the case before the court there were three accused and that a man and wife could be accused of conspiring with a third person.

Defence counsel argued, however that according to the evidence there was nothing to show Mrs. Troyan had conspired with Rahatin and that the evidence accused her only of having conspired with her husband. Judge Langlois upheld the argument.

Trial of the men will continue May 29.

Strabolgi Sees 'No Naval Obstacle' Why Navy Did Not Enter Trondheim

London, May 8—(CP) — Lord Strabolgi told the House of Lords today that he had informed Viscount Halifax, Foreign Secretary, that the Labor party did not intend "to wash dirty linen in public unless there were bloodstains on it."

The Labor peer declared that the "mishandling" of the Norwegian campaign indicated there were defects in "both personnel and methods of government" in the conduct of the war.

Opening a debate in the upper chamber on the Norwegian campaign, Lord Strabolgi said the first lesson learned was the need for long distance fighter aircraft.

He declared there was "no naval obstacle whatever" preventing the navy from entering Trondheim Fjord and that "it was two days" before the 1,500 Germans who took Oslo, the capital, were reinforced from the sea.

Lord Strabolgi called for a select committee of inquiry to study the Norwegian campaign.

"If the government is not capable of drawing up plans and reversing this setback," he declared, "it is their duty to make way for others."

"Prime Minister Chamberlain's complacency," he said, is the "besetting sin of our nation."

Lord Strabolgi, who before his succession to the peerage was Lieut.-Commander J. M. Kenworthy, member of the admiralty war staff during the first Great War, declared the British fleet could have gone at once to Oslo Fjord and driven away lighter German craft in the two days between the capture of the capital and the arrival of enemy reinforcements.

Lord Strabolgi said that holding Narvik and abandoning the rest of Norway was like holding John O'Groats (the Northern tip of Scotland) and abandoning the rest of the British Isles "where there are all the wealth, industries and resources".

Lord Hankey, Minister without Portfolio in the War Cabinet, referred to the attack on the government in the House of Commons last night by Admiral of the Fleet Sir Roger Keyes.

"Generally speaking", Lord Hankey said, "governments must depend for advice on military matters upon their responsible naval, military and air advisers and not on irresponsible officers on the retired list, however distinguished their services may be".

Mr. Chamberlain Declares Time is One of National Danger and Britain is Facing Relentless Enemy —Sir Samuel Hoare Tells House Loss of Ship With Anti-Aircraft Guns and Stores and Lack of Air Bases Chief Factors in Norwegian Situation

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 8 —(CP—Cable)—Prime Minister Chamberlain today accepted with alacrity a Labor challenge that the House of Commons be asked to record its opinion of the Norway campaign by a vote, and then heard David Lloyd George, former Prime Minister, demand that he resign.

Pointing his finger across the table directly at the Prime Minister, Mr. Lloyd George said that Mr. Chamberlain had talked about sacrifice and added these words:

"There is nothing that would contribute more to the cause of victory in this war than that he (Mr. Chamberlain) sacrifice his seals of office."

Mr. Lloyd George, Prime Minister during the decisive years of the last war described Britain's strategic position through the loss of Norway as the most critical of her history and asked if there was a man in the House "who will stand up and say he is satisfied with the speed and efficiency of the preparation of the air force army and navy."

Support Necessary, Says Chamberlain

In accepting Labor's demand for a division Mr. Chamberlain said no government "can prosecute a war efficiently unless they have public and Parliamentary support.

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Herbert Morrison, Labor frontbencher, announced his party would force a division tonight on the government's conduct of the Norwegian campaign.

Sorting out Mr. Chamberlain, Air Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare and Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, as his chief targets for criticism, Mr. Morrison swept the whole treasury bench with a disdainful gaze and exclaimed:

"If these men remain in office we run great risk of losing this war, which would be a calamity for this country and the whole world."

Up jumped the prime minister in a dramatic intervention in the debate.

He crumpled some notes he had been scribbling, stuffed it into his pocket and in a few sentences accepted the Labor party's challenge to himself and his government.

"I Accept the Challenge."

"I accept the challenge," he said. "I welcome it, indeed. At least we shall see who is with and who is against us.

"I call on my friends to support us in the lobby tonight"—a reference to the coming division at Labor's request, which amounts to a demand by the opposition for a vote of no confidence.

In the lobbies of the House it was predicted on all sides that the government would muster enough votes to stave off defeat.

The big question, however, was the number of rebel Conservatives who would abstain from voting against the government but would refuse to support Labor's motion of condemnation.

After a clash between Mr. Morrison and Mr. Chamberlain, Sir Samuel Hoare told the House that Germany had lost three times as many planes in Norway as did the Royal Air Force. British losses, he

California Added To Third Term List

Washington, May 8 (AP).—Roosevelt third term supporters added the big California delegation to their growing forces today as a result of a Democratic primary step.

A United States National convention slate pledged to the President defeated a John Garner ticket 6-1, and held nearly a 3-1 majority over the combined vote for Garner and two uninstructed tickets.

While the Roosevelt candidates were carrying virtually every California County, Vice-President Garner won the vast bulk of the delegates chosen for the Texas State Democratic convention and speaker John Bankhead (Dem-Alabama) was given favorite son support by the 22 national delegates elected in Alabama.

These developments highlighted election activity yesterday in six states. Only one senatorial race was involved. Senator Charles Andrews of Florida led for Democratic renomination, but apparently will be forced into a run-off primary against Bernarr McFadden, magazine publisher and New Deal critic.

WOODPILE CATCHES FIRE FROM BONFIRE

Catching ablaze from the sparks of a bonfire, which had been started in order to burn some sawdust in a yard at 209 William St., a woodpile at that address was slightly damaged on Tuesday afternoon. Sparks from the fire caught in the roof of a nearby barn but no damage was done as firemen were on hand to extinguish the flames.

LARGE CONSIGNMENT SOLD IN THE U.S.

American buyers still continue to make inroads on choice herds of Holstein Friesian cattle in this district. The second largest shipment to leave for a United States point was consigned this week from Northumberland Lennox and Addington, Hastings and Prince Edward counties, to R. Austin Backus, of Mexico, N.Y.

Consignors included M. L. Butler, Brighton; Orval Ashley, Napanee; Robert A. Bateson, Campbellford; B. C. Bishop, Wellington; Amos T. Hudgen, Picton; John Burnside, Madoc; E. L. Anderson, Campbellford B. Hoskin, Cobourg; Caskey Brothers, Madoc; Estate T. E. Laycock, Marmora.

NORWOOD HORSEMAN GIVEN JAIL TERM

Harry Ingles, well known Norwood harness horseman, was sentenced to serve two months in the Peterborough County jail after being convicted of selling liquor, contrary to the L.C.A., when he appeared before Magistrate Langley in Peterboro' city police court this week. The case was vigorously contested by the accused.

PETERBORO COUNCIL RATIFIES SALE

The sale of milk in half-pint sealed bottles was ratified in Peterborough recently following a lengthy controversy in the city council of that city. The sale of milk in these small containers will be permitted in restaurants and refreshment booths. There has never been any question as to this method of dispensing milk in Belleville, as long as the produce was sold in sealed half pint bottles, however.

SENTENCED TO SERVE TWO MONTHS' TERM

Albert Brown, Trenton, was sentenced to serve two months in the common jail after being convicted of keeping a common gaming house when he appeared in yesterday's session of Trenton police court held before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C. Brown was charged with the operation of a slot machine.

On a subsequent charge of keeping liquor for sale Brown was convicted and given two months in jail, the sentence to run concurrent with the term imposed in the gambling case.

Robert L. McKay, Colborne, was convicted of drunken driving and sentenced to serve seven days in the Belleville jail, while Henry J. Spurgeon paid $10.00 and costs after being convicted on a charge of reckless driving.

Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C. conducted the prosecution in all cases presented in Trenton, yesterday.

Police Blotter

Residents on Cedar St. today complained to city police regarding the over-turning of garbage pails, which have been left out for collection. "Youthful miscreants returning home after midnight are responsible and this practice causes residents of that area considerable trouble in cleaning up the messes the following morning," complained one Cedar St. householder today. The same persons are said to have been seen actually toppling over garbage cans along the street. Police night patrols will be added to Cedar. St. and guilty parties will be made an example of.

Three teen-aged lads were taken to the police station after school hours yesterday relative to the stealing of cakes from a local confectionery depot. The lads admitted their guilt and were warned not to repeat such practices. "They weren't good cakes anyhow," remarked one little urchin, after he promised to be of good behavior in the future.

No arrests were necessary in the city last night, leaving the cell block at the police station available for the 17 transients who sought shelter there last night.

BELLEVILLE BOYS PLAY SOFTBALL IN OLD COUNTRY

Andy Knott, Former Catcher With Corbys, Shown in Action at Aldershot Camp

FINE PHOTOGRAPHS

..Members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment now in England, may not as yet, be carrying the war to Mr. Hitler, but they are doing a grand job in demonstrating to the boys and gals, "over 'ome" the finer points of softball, as she is, or was played in these parts.

In a double page layout of fine photographs, the current issue of the Montreal Standard, carries some fine action shots of the boys in action on a softball diamond. Prominent among the faces are those of Belleville and Picton players.

Andy Knott, erstwhile catcher for the Corby's nine, is seen in his familiar position behind the bat, taking the delivery of a chucker named Woods, who it is said did his stuff here some time ago. Andy can't argue with his friends now about closing his eyes when catching the shoots, for one of the cuts shows him, eyes tightly shut, and the ball pounding into his mitt.

Another familiar face to fans, especially baseball enthusiasts, is that of Dave Young, Picton umpire, who called 'em as they were and not as he saw 'em, in this district for years. Davy has the same old stance, and demonstrates to the English fans, the more or less ferocious look that usually adorns the arbiter's face when the decision is close.

There are a couple of excellent shots of Wood in the pitcher's box, while a group of enthusiastic Canucks in battle-dress stand around shouting approval.

The familiar crest of the 'Corby's' sweater, worn by Knott, stands out conspicuously in one of the photographs.

290 Day-Old Chicks Stolen From Farm

3rd. Sidney (Special)—The neighborhood was disturbed on Saturday, when it was learned that thieves had entered the brooder house at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Bart Hogle and taken 290 chickens during the night. These chickens had been hatched in incubators by Mrs. Hogle and were only one day old, having been put in the brooder house on Friday. The Provincial Police were called on Saturday to investigate the loss.

Picton Council Refuses Permit To Erect Gasoline Station

By-Law Also Passed Making Certain Areas Prohibited for Erection of Stations

YACHT CLUB HELPED

Picton, May 8—(Special)—Town council discussed many matters at their meeting Monday night. They refused to grant a permit to Jas. Livingstone to erect a gasoline station at the corner of Main and Chapel Streets. Mr. Livingstone offered to give them part of the lot for a park if the permit was granted but council refused to do so. All except two members were against granting the permit. The chief objection was that the town has too many such stations on Main Street and also that the location is near the United Church. A bylaw was passed whereby no more such stations or garages are to be allowed in a defined area on Main Street.

Prince Edward Yacht Club asked council to take a page advertisement at a cost of $100 in a book being published in connection with the regatta on July 1st. This will be used to raise part of the necessary funds. Council agreed to do this, as members pointed out the club brought many boats here and business for the town.

No action was taken after communications from the Ontario Departments of Highways re the Glenora ferry were read. Council had asked that the service be continued from midnight until 6 a.m. Department replied, that they were willing if municipalities concerned would pay the cost of the night shift. This was stated to be $4,650 for the big ferry and $2,790 for the small one. Council felt that since the ferry is part of highway 33 and owned by the province, that the Department should bear this cost.

Mayor McKibbon said that many lots had been offered for use of gardens by the unemployed. A bylaw was passed enforcing the Vacant Land Cultivation Act whereby idle land may be used by the unemployed.

$600 was granted toward the salary of the Deaconess.

P. E. County Chickens Cut Out Middleman

Prince Edward County chickens have gone in for war work in a big way. At least, the following story vouched for by Dr. R. M. Saries, Wellington physician, would give the idea that the biddies of the garden county are dispensing with the middlemen, and have inaugurated a "direct from producer to consumer" policy.

It appears the doctor was returning from a call in the country when he drove past a flock of hens parading along the side of the highway.

The flock scattered with the exception of a little red hen, perhaps the traditional one, who hopped-skipped and jumped ahead of the car. Finally with a frightened squawk, she took off, but lost her sense of direction and made a perfect two point landing on the radiator of the car.

Perched there precariously for a few seconds, the novel experience apparently scared something more than the wits of the hen, for with a slight clattering, an egg rolled down the side of the radiator and nestled between the fender and the side of the hood.

According to the estimable M.O the egg was partially "grilled" by the time he reached home some ten miles away.

Young Nurse Unseated as She Rides Along Bleecker Avenue

It was a warm sunshiny day, and the attractive young nurse, who prefers to remain anonymous, enjoyed to the full the fine weather and the prancing antics of the horse she rode along Bleecker Avenue.

A lover of horse-back riding, the young lady had secured Dobbin on several occasions and indulged in her favorite exercise to her heart's content.

But she had not reckoned with Spring. Even the noble nags, it seems, are allergic, more or less to the urges of the vernal season, and this one was no exception.

Whether it was the lure of the green grass by the roadside, the sudden desire to relive again its colt-hood days, or perhaps just sheer deviltry, will never be known, but suffice it to say, Dobbin suddenly visualized himself as the "Bad Horse", of an imaginary rodeo, and accordingly went in sudden and swift action.

He shot suddenly straight up in the air. His hind legs lashed out viciously. He pancaked down on all fours and his fair rider describing a parabola through the air came to a more or less graceful landing in the road nearby.

Her dignity ruffled, but otherwise unhurt, the fair rider was undaunted by the sudden display of equine acrobatics. A look of determination came over her face, and she dashed for Dobbin before he could recover from his surprise and was in the saddle before he could elicit any protest.

He cavorted again, but this time the young lady was prepared. A few minutes later, Dobbin decided that it was useless to argue with a woman when her dander was up, and he settled down to the old routine. The ride was finished without further mishap.

Residents Thanked For Their Generosity

"The people of Belleville whose generosity in the support of a worthy cause has never been questioned, or known to fail, once again demonstrated their loyalty and bigness of heart on Saturday when a generous and very satisfactory amount was donated through our tag-day", an official of the St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E. said today commenting on the success of the Queen Alexandra Rose Day held here on Saturday.

Not only was appreciation of the fine response expressed, but sincere thanks to a band of loyal workers whose efforts contributed in no small way to the ultimate success of the day. "We wish to thank everyone who so generously contributed through funds or efforts to this, the twenty-fifth anniversary of our birth", the official stated.

The St. Julien Chapter has been an active organization within the realm of the Daughters of the Empire since the days of the last war and is still carrying on its efforts during the present conflict.

Funds derived from the tag-day will be utilized for Chapter and war service work. Mrs. E. J. Neate is the regent.

Parks Board Plants Trees Whenever Requested

Wherever requests have been made, fine large sappling trees have been planted in Belleville, it was announced at last night's fortnightly meeting of the Belleville Parks Board. "The remainder of the trees will be planted at the discretion of the Board," stated Chairman W. A. Woodley after it was revealed that the minimum height of the trees planted by the Board was between eleven and twelve feet.

Regret was expressed by the members of the Board regarding the sudden death of Commissioner Richard Snell, who had been a valued member of the Belleville Parks Board for many years. Yesterday the Commission attended the funeral of the late Commissioner Snell in a body.

At last night's meeting it was voted to paint and decorate the buildings at Victoria Park, while the concession booth rights were awarded to H. R. Dunlop of this city. The Board will advertise for applications for the position of Life Guard at Victoria Park in the near future.

White-painted round stones will be procured and placed along the roadway on Coleman Street on the west side of Riverside Park to keep motor vehicles from destroying the grass. Benches will also be placed on the park along the west side of the river and efforts to generally beautify it will be extended before the opening of the summer season.

Those present last night were — Chairman W. A. Woodley, Mayor Thompson and Commissioners C. B. Colling, M. Callaghan and C. R. Clapp.

NU-BLUE SUNOCO

LAST FALL an independent research organization asked over 1400 motorists from Florida to Canada to test Nu-Blue Sunoco against extra-priced gasolines. These motorists voted 9 to 1 that Nu-Blue Sunoco equalled or excelled the extra-priced gasolines in road performance.

JUST RECENTLY a new survey was made among former premium gasoline users by another independent and unbiased research authority. After noting the performance of NU-BLUE SUNOCO in their cars—these motorists who formerly used extra-priced gasolines voted by a big majority that NU-BLUE SUNOCO gives them what they want most in a gasoline.

For best results use Nu-Blue Sunoco full strength. Don't dilute it with other gasolines.

SCENE IN PARLIAMENT IN A DEMOCRACY

Whatever results from the discussion in the British Parliament on the Norwegian campaign the world has had the opportunity of the revelation of a democratic people in action. The British war cabinet has been criticised and the occasion has been given for the answering of those criticisms, though as Prime Minister Chamberlain said, "in this debate we are giving hostages to fortune," yet while military leaders had cautioned against discussion, "we cannot accept this in a democratic country."

The discussion in the House of Commons brought up a number of points. It provided the setting for the announcement that the First Lord of the Admiralty, Winston Churchill, was also to be Britain's First Lord of Warfare, that is, to supervise day-by-day military operations. He is to give guidance and direction to the chiefs of staff of the three fighting services. This heavy load which Mr. Churchill will carry, falls upon broad, capable, and willing shoulders, those of a man of intense energy and activity.

It also provided the opportunity for Mr. Chamberlain to warn the British people that this is not a time for quarrels but for united action.

He had an opportunity to warn against the danger of dispersal of strength to the advantage of the enemy and of the threat of war on other fronts where he said it might flare into a conflagration. He also warned that in his opinion that the people of his country did not realize the full threat that is "impending against us." He pledges the Government to promote production of planes and war materials so that Britain could deliver blows where and when desired.

The Opposition Leader, Mr. Attlee, was not satisfied that the present cabinet was as effective a war instrument as it might be, and he said "we will win the war but we cannot afford to leave our destinies in the hands of failures."

Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal Opposition Leader, also expressed the view that the campaign was not a major military disaster but claimed that the trouble was this, that Great Britain's war effort was not being sustained and pushed forward with ruthless, war-minded energy in every government department and every field of effort.

Mr. Chamberlain, speaking on the Norwegian campaign, said it was not comparable to the reverse at Gallipoli in 1915 and explained that the cause of the Norwegian development was that Britain could not forestall invasion of Norway as Norway would have had to invite Britain in and that invitation had not been extended. The effort towards Trondheim was undertaken because of Norway's urgent pleas. Lack of air bases and speed of German reinforcements were factors.

Mr. Chamberlain declared that he was as convinced as ever of the victory of the Allies over the enemy. As before he warned the people not to form too hasty opinions as the time was not yet come to strike a balance as the campaign was not concluded. Great Britain will continue to aid Norway, he said.

The leaders all expressed their faith that the confidence of the nation was not shaken.

The British press and public generally were critical and not satisfied with the Prime Minister's defence, according to stories from London.

Such a scene as that in the British House could have been of no comfort to the enemy. They could not understand such freedom as democracy gives and yet it is out of such freedom that the British nation gathers its strength. Under Nazi dictatorship there is nothing like this where a Prime Minister answered criticisms of the conduct of the war. There is no one to criticize the Fuehrer in Germany and influence him. Hereby hangs the strength of democracy that it is the will of the people not of a man who rules with absolute power. In Germany the Nazi policy has gone on and on without opposition and sooner or later it is to head towards disaster for the German people and the government because there is no one to correct or to guide their government or warn it from its wildest excesses.

NAZIS' LOSS OF WARSHIPS

Norwegians with the Allies exacted a toll on Hitler's invading warships, airplanes and army which may leave a permanent wound in the German military body which cannot be healed. Thousands of tons of German warship loss is credited to the fighting put up by the Norwegians.

The total losses on the naval forces which Norway and the Allies inflicted, some think, may possibly go a long way towards crippling the Nazi navy.

The world has the remark of Prime Minister Chamberlain that the German losses at sea have so changed the balance of naval strength that Britain was recently able to readjust her fleets.

It would be a reward for Norway if what the Norwegians have been able to do with the help of the Allies in inflicting heavy losses on the invader would have a vital effect upon the course of the war. So far she would have her revenge on the despoiler of small states.

When Tulips Bloom in Holland

Gorgeous tulips have been bursting into bloom in thousands of Vancouver gardens, the colors ranging all the way from the brilliant red of the enormous Pride of Haarlem to the striking violet blue of the Duchess of Hohenburg.

For years the Park Board imported its tulip bulbs from Holland, but that is no longer necessary. British Columbia can grow enough for its home market, but Holland remains the bulb centre of the world. One fortunate enough to visit this tulip country in the Spring is in for an unforgettable experience.

The stretch of coast line fringing the North Sea from Leyden to Haarlem is the district where the tulip may be seen in its greatest splendor. The fields are drunk with color for mile after mile, and in the case of red varieties, interspersed with yellows and blues, the ground has the appearance of a prairie fire when the soft wind stirs the tall stalks.

Writers have overworked adjectives in a vain attempt to describe the country between Hemsteede and Bennebroek, and the equally bewildering wonderland that runs from Hillegom to Lisse, but not one has yet succeeded in doing it justice. Some of their efforts are worth repeating.

"It was as if a rainbow was trailing its earth-touching ends across a land made heavy and sweet by the perfume of millions of blooms."

"The fields looked as if they were dancing gaily to some gorgeous masquerade."

"The pageantry of checker-boards of pink and purple, lilac and lavender, seemed to be the very ordered poetry of nature."

And yet perhaps there is something a little too formal in these fields of flowers. The beds are exactly parallel; there is no careless mixture of colors.

The Hollander grows tulips as a business. He would never waste time growing flowers for his personal pleasure; it is not the bloom which interests him but the bulb. The flowers he cuts so that the seedling bulb may grow strong and healthy he dumps in a heap in a corner of the field, tons and tons of lovely beauties that shrivel and decay in a compost heap that makes excellent fertilizer for next year's crop.

It takes five years for a bulb to grow to marketable size, but the patient Hollander can well afford to wait. Bulb exports to all parts of the world bring him in around $13,000,000 a year.

Except for the celebrations on the third Sunday in April, which is known as "Tulip Sunday", the cultivation of bulbs is a humdrum business very different from what it was in the seventeenth century, when the whole country plunged into a frenzy of speculation. Bulbs were traded in like oil stocks in the boom days of 1929 and with exactly the same results. The traffic was conducted with great formality, deeds of transfer of individual bulbs—many of which had no actual existence—being signed, sealed, and delivered by notaries public.

The highest price of record for a single bulb was $3,250, paid for a Semper Augustus, of which only two specimens were said to exist, one in Haarlem and the other in Amsterdam. In one town alone over $2,500,000 was invested in hypothetical tulips when the government put a stop to the gambling because of its evil effect on trade.

Within a week the price of Semper Augustus dropped to $25.

Today one can buy better bulbs in Vancouver for from 50 cents to $2.50 a dozen. Neither the Semper Augustus nor its runnerup, the Viceroy, which sold for $700, are listed in modern catalogues.— Vancouver Province.

Canadians Capture English Village Folk'

Canadian troops have English village folk entertaining them and wanting to do more of it, according to a letter in a London, England, newspaper. The clipping was sent to a Windsor member of the War Mothers by Pte. Bill Orr, local soldier with the First Division Supply Column, R. C. A. S. C., C. A. S. F., in a letter written April 13.

Troops Rewarded

Pte. Orr in his letter tells of inspection by Gen. McNaughton who gave "a good name for all-round ability." A half-day off was the reward for the satisfactory inspection. "You would not know the same battalion now," remarks Pte. Orr. "It looks so good."

"I can assure you the boys earn their week-end leave," he goes on to say, "as it is not all fun for them through the week. There is plenty of hard training. But they take it with a smile. Their chief worry is mail from home. The cry is, 'Any mail in yet?' It is quite a sight to see their faces on mail days, the ones that get mail and the ones that don't. The cry for those who don't is always 'better luck next time'."

The clipping from the English newspaper follows:

"The Canadian soldiers have completely conquered my village. They have stormed the shops in search of coke, which is slang, it seems, for a soft drink. They have sought out the elusive hot dog and onion-trimmed hamburger. They call chocolates 'Lauras' and all confectionary candy. And strange Canadians, arriving here can still sometimes be found asking passers-by the way to the beverage room.

Startled At First

"It startled us at first. Since then we have become completely dominated by the Dominions. We soon learned that beverage rooms in Canada are dull pubs suffering from a form of prohibition and purveying nothing but beer—no crisps, no cheese, no darts, no sherry. Our rural inns are already showing the Canadians the delights of the English countryside. And how!

"And we are already trying to make our guests feel at home by talking of victrolas when we mean gramaphones, mailmen when we mean postmen and post-boxes when we mean pillar-boxes.

"All this began when a local woman, on the strength of two days spent in Toronto six years ago, decided that she probably knew some of the boys and invited a sample batch to her home. The cue for hospitality spread like wildfire.

"It might have been awkward when three giants, whom we fondly imagined to be North-West Mounties, turned out to be a clerk, a schoolteacher and a meat packer. But nothing is awkward to a Canadian. Even when two spinster sisters here invited half a dozen Canadians to tea and found themselves welcoming six Quebec stalwarts who spoke incomprehensible French. Mutual embarrassment dissolved into laughter.

New Problems

"Perhaps we little suspected that the war would set the Empire down in our front parlor. Perhaps we did not guess at the new problems that would arise; how to make a Canadian happy while he shivers beside the fire, how to cook a cob of corn.

"A friend of mine, with an interest in an ex-mountie, gets her man by having a hot bath ready for him as soon as he sets foot in her house. And he enjoys it, although he says it's the damp that goes right through him.

"Someone else I knew is having a newspaper 'funnies' sent over from America. We have discovered that Canadians are not Americans. They will hate to be told that their accents are at all trans-Atlantic. But they prefer American cigarets, nine times out of ten.

"And Canadians like plenty of pie!

"Desperately, in my village we have tried to fill the need. But the situation has niceties. A pie is a 'tart.' And it isn't that. It is a confection topped by meringue. And it isn't that. It swims with lemon or butterscotch or cocoanut. And it is staged in layers. Even apple pie is awkward. To please a Canadian, it should be served with Cheddar cheese.

Polite Visitors

"They are polite, these new visitors to our village. They know what they want, but they will never ask for it. They like plenty of pie. Canadian pies, but they will eat an English pie and politely accept a second helping. They like a slab of cake, too, with ice-cream on top of it. We have discovered that ice-cream is popular when it is freezing outside, for a Canadian would order a sundae in the Arctic!

"What do we talk about, we country folk and the Canadian brought together strangely by war, as we sit by the fireside? Bonds of Empire Hands across the sea?

"Nothing of the kind.

"They ask about trains to London and we evacuated Londoners know the answers. We tell them which bus to take from Piccadilly for seeing the sights and how best to combine a visit to St. Paul's with Westminster Abbey and Buckingham Palace. We fall to preparing routes and schedules, become excited about the view from Hungerford Bridge, wax ecstatic about a ride on the Tube. And suddenly tear up the schedules and decide to come to town with the Canadians and act as their guides." —Windsor Star.

Two "Vets" of War Back in Canada

With happy smiles spreading almost from ear to ear, two Canadian poilus in the uniform of France stepped from the New York train in Bonaventure station this morning Demobilized from the French army they are the first to arrive in Canada from the front lines of France, and are bound for their homes in the Canadian West.

Louis Abgrall, 35-year-old farmer, of St. Laurent, Man., spent several months in a French infantry barracks, but was demobilized when the French army authorities discovered he had nine children back home in Canada, one of them born after his departure last November.

The service of Julien Durupt, 36-year-old Vancouver electrician, included eight days in the Maginot Line, and came to an end when a land mine exploded, killing five of his companions and seriously impairing his eyesight.

It is with mixed feelings that they return. Both are happy at being back in Canada, but regret that their term of service was terminated so quickly. Immediately after being demobilized each had tried to reenlist, Durupt as an interpreter, but the French government would not hear of it.

For both, service had given insight into the seriousness with which the Allies are pursuing the war, their confidence and unwavering objective.

"We are not going to have a crippled peace like the last one," Abgrall declared. "It is going to be our peace this time. We are finishing up properly what wasn't finished up in the last war."

Enthusiastically they spoke of the high morale of the French and British armies and of the friendliness between them.

"There is no doubt at all of the morale. Over there they take the war as a matter of fact. There is something to be done and they are doing it. Britain and France are closer now than they ever were before, and the British feel quite at home in France. There seems to be a feeling out here that Germany is doing its utmost to separate England and France. They are, all right, but with no success."

Durupt declined to speak of the epxlosion which had affected his eyesight, or of the Maginot Line beyond saying that it was a "monster" line of defence.

"Why, you don't even know you're on the line."

He would say nothing of the underground works.

Both said that the only Germans they saw were "up above."

Fellow soldiers in the French army had taken a great interest in Canada, and wanted to hear all about it, Abgrall said, many of them expressing the hope that they might come out here to live "when things are settled."

The two poilus first met in St. Nazaire, France, after their demobilization and have been journeying together since. In New York, where they arrived yesterday, a member of the French consulate insisted upon their wearing civilian coats and hats over their uniforms for fear they might be interned.

"But we had no trouble at all. Everyone was swell. We had a great time."

Abgrall had been the first to reach France. Called to the colors on November 16 last, he left his farm and family six days later. He had previously tried to enlist in three different units of the Canadian army, but had been refused because of his age and family.

After having tried time and again to enlist in Vancouver without success on account of his age, Durupt was overjoyed when he was called up by France on January 11, and left the same day. Reaching France he became a member of the 1st Depot of Engineers and by February 5 was up at the front lines.

"It's good to see Canada again," they said, "but it was also good to have seen France. It's a grand country."

Both had gone back to their native villages which they had left as children. Abgrall to Brittany, and Durupt to the Vosges.

They leave tonight for the west.—Montreal Star.

Origin of Things

The foot came from the length of the king's foot; the old cubit was the length of a fore-arm; the grain came from the weight of a single grain of wheat "well dried from the middle of the ear"; and the inch originated as the thickness of a man's thumb. Traditionally the acre was the area of ground that a plowman with one ox could turn over in a day.

Often, neighboring countries assigned slightly different lengths to the same unit, such as the foot—which might equal any length from 11.3 to 14 inches. The Greeks even recognized three different feet, which were used for three different purposes. In pre-Elizabethan England, the gallon depended upon the usage, that for wine being considerably smaller than the standard for ale.

Many of these idiosyncrasies have been retained even to this day. With avoirdupois and troy we have two systems of weight, and we have dry and fluid measures of volume. We have long and short tons and long and short cords, a hundred-weight which weights 100 pounds and a long hundredweight at 112 pounds. The height of horses is measured in hands and their weight in stones; and we measure paper by the ream, which may be 480 or 500 sheets. In this country a billion is a thousand million, whereas to the English it is a million million. Seamen cling to their nautical miles, knots and fathoms. —Technology Review.

Germany's Next Move

With the collapse of the Allied effort in Norway the war has reached another turning-point. But in the long view the combatants are back where they were before German stealth and ruthlessness won the domination of Scandinavia. Again the initiative is in Hitler's hands, again the Allies are without a battlefield. The remaining scene of action around Narvik is too narrow and too far away to have anything except economic importance in the grand strategy of this war. Unless the Allies invade neutral territory, they cannot strike at Germany anywhere at this moment except by assaulting the bristling fortifications along the Western Front.

No such handicaps limit Hitler at this crossroad of his career. He, at least, will not hesitate to invade any neutral territory which suits his purpose. He is back in his position of last Winter, still safe behind the wall of fortified zone and neutral soil which surrounds Germany, still able to strike wherever his instinct takes him. The temptation to crush Holland, for example, may become irresistible in view of what happened in Norway. He may well imagine that a lightning attack, supported by air power and by a Fifth Column within, would meet feeble resistance and would give him valuable air and sea bases at the very doorstep of Southern England.

The Nazi strategists may, on the other hand, decide to secure their southeastern flank, as they have just secured themselves in the north, before attempting anything so ambitious in the west of Europe. Accordingly the Balkans are fearful once more of a German, or a German-Italian, thrust in their direction. No doubt this is one of the many temptations in Nazi minds now. The sudden recall of Herr von Papen from Ankara for "consultations" suggests that the Balkan situation is not being left out of German calculations.

There is, however, still another possibility which might serve Hitler's purposes. This is to return to the waiting strategy which bridged the seven months between the conquest of Poland and the invasion of Scandinavia. In such an intensified war of nerves the help of Mussolini would be invaluable. The Italian dictator has already played the Hitler game admirably by threatening and reassuring, by blowing hot and cold, as it suited him; his threats alone have compelled the British to reroute their shipping around Africa and have diverted British warships from the North Sea to the Mediterranean. Indeed, it is possible that Mussolini's well-timed bluster was intended deliberately to prevent the British from throwing more naval power into the fight for Norway.—New York Times.

Virgin Island, Tourists Paradise

(By Temple Manning)

Fourteen hundred miles southeast of New York and a little more than 40 miles east of Puerto Rico is a perfect paradise for tourists. We are speaking of the Virgin Islands, which are fast becoming a travel mecca for Americans.

Discovered by Columbus in 1493, the mountainous islands have had a romantic existence, during which there have been slave uprisings, pirate raids, million-dollar fires and periodic hurricanes. A pretty checkered history for a paradise!

Beautiful beyond comparison are the beaches and rugged hills of St. Thomas, St. Croix and St. John. Old towers named after Bluebeard and Blackbeard overlook St. Thomas and recall other days when any galleon or brigantine might have borne the black flag. Old Fort Christian built centuries ago by the Danes is now just a police station but its courtyard still has the tombstones of departed governors and commanders of the garrison. In St. Croix there are lovely old mansions and the store where Alexander Hamilton clerked still caters to the townsfolk.

Most Popular

St. Thomas is the most popular of the islands but St. John is the most beautiful. Around it is a string of snow-white, sandy beaches washed by water that seems blue purple green and pink. Beautiful hills form a colorful background with masses of red, blue, yellow and white flowers.

The roads wind their way through beautiful country with here and there a glimpse of islets that seem to rise out of the ocean. Romantic ruins of ancient buildings, once the homes of wealthy owners, surrounded by long-abandoned sugar works, now shrouded in vines, and with trees embedded in their crumbling walls, stand in silent testimony of another and busier day. But along crescent-shaped bays, fringed with palms, are trim and comfortable bungalows.

The bluest of blue skies, the brightest of sunlight, bathing in crystal-clear waters, hiking, fishing, moon-bathed sights beneath velvety skies, peace, soothing quiet—a serene, well-ordered existence—these are some of the delights of a sojourn at St. John in the Virgin Islands. Like the Bermudas, there are no automobiles allowed on the island of St. John. Horse, donkey or just shanks' mare are the approved methods of transportation.

On the Virgin Islands

Other Attractions

Motor yachts run between the island and St. Thomas, 25 minutes easy sailing over the lovely seas. On the site of the old Caneel Bay plantation is a new bungalow settlement, with an open-air restaurant built into the ruins of the old sugar factory. Under the auspices of the U.S. government, every effort is being made to provide up-to-date, comfortable quarters, without disturbing the atmosphere of the island.

St. Thomas is the government seat, and the home of the Marine Flying Squadron, as well as the principal seaport of the island group. There are beautiful views in St. Thomas, such as the panorama from St. Peters and Crown Mountain, back of Charlotte Amalie. There's the drive to Cash Hill, where one gets a view of about a dozen islands. Myhlenfeldt's Point is another swell pot, with the harbor of St. Thomas on one side. At the edge of the steep slopes are the picturesque buildings of Charlotte Amalie, a real bit of the Riviera if ever we saw one. The beach is divine, the swimming ditto.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

The position of Italy in regard to the future course of war remains a mystery but there can be little doubt that the entry of Italy into hostilities against the Western Powers would suit the convenience of Germany.

By conquering Denmark and Norway, except for the Narvik area, Germany has in effect extended the West-wall northward to the Arctic. Except for the Narvik railway line into Sweden, which is useless unless the German forces there can be destroyed, the Allies have no gateway to the heart of Europe in the north. Sweden and Finland are cut off from communication with the west.

Italy with its powerful fleet and air force maintains a watch on the western Mediterranean. .. Probably one of the big advantages the Germans may hope to gain from Italian action is the closing of the southern approach to central and eastern Europe.

Great Britain and France with their fleets and armies are powerful in the eastern part of the middle sea but in the waters west and south of Italy the Germans probably expect Italy to exercise control and prevent any ships which may pass Gibraltar from penetrating past the tip of Italy's "toe."

Strategy of this kind is in accord with German thinking since the end of the last war in connection with the blockade. Germany's activities in the period prior to and since the start of hostilities all have been guided by fear of the blockade.

Now Germany needs the co-operation of Italy to complete a continent-wide barrier between the Allies and all Europe except Holland, Belgium, Switzerland, Spain and Portugal. If that barrier is completed Germany probably hopes to secure whatever supplies and materials may be available behind the barrier without the necessity of further military operations.

Centenary

Centenary — Arbor Day was observed at the school on Friday. The children, under the direction of the teacher, Mr. H. Bates, cleaned up the yard and also planted trees to beautify the grounds surrounding the school. After the work was completed they all adjourned to the woods nearby and enjoyed a feed of wieners, buns and candy. A scramble for caramels caused lots of fun. Altogether the day was one long to be remembered.

Mr. and Mrs. John Orr, Wilkie and Mr. Bowers, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Bert Orr. Trenton.

Mr. S. Kelley, Halloway, had dinner on Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Garrison.

Mr. and Mrs. Judson Kelley returned to their home on Tuesday, after spending the Winter in Belleville, Mrs. Kelley having fully recovered from her serious illness.

Rev. Mr. Mercer preached a very inspiring sermon on Sunday to a large congregation.

Mrs. Kelley received a very warm welcome from the superintendent and scholars of the Sunday School on Sunday, after being absent for several months through illness. She gave a short talk to the school, expressing her pleasure in being able to join with them once more.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair and ma was looking up at the ceeling to help her think, saying, Fluffed Oatsies start the day right. Rise and shine with Fluffed Oatsies. Fluffed Oatsies for health and energy, she said.

What's going on here or is it personal? pop said, and ma said, I've decided to try for Fluffed Oatsies slogan prize. All you have to do is compose a short discriptive saying of less than 10 words, she said.

And she started to look up at the ceeling again, saying, Fluffed Oatsies mean more and better health. Breakfist is not complete without Fluffed Oatsies. Or what would you say to, A dish of Fluffed Oatsies is a dish for a king, Willyum? she said.

I'd say, O yeah? pop said. Or perhaps I'd say, I'll take scramble eggs, he said, and ma said, Now Willyum 5000 dollers is no laughable sum.

I admit men have gon to jail for less, pop said, and ma said, But Willyum, just think of so much money for so little work.

Its thoughts like that that lead to forgery, pop said. Yee gods you know what I think of Fluffed Oatsies, I'd be positively embarrassed if I won 5000 dollers for less than 10 words in their praise, or even in their meer defence, he said, and ma said, Well just give me an idea or 2, I'll cheerfully take the prize money and relieve you of all embarrassment. Change to Fluffed Oatsies, she said.

Keep the change, pop said, and ma said, Yes, Change to Fluffed Oatsies and keep the change. Fluffed Oatsies are a cent or 2 cheaper, so that gives keep the change a double meaning. Willyum I'm going to send that in. I knew you could help me, she said.

Keep the change, pop said.

And he got in back of the sporting page and stayed there.

The Stars Say

ALTHOUGH the general trend of events on this day may be toward the routine and usual, according to lunar operations, there may arise some peculiar or subtle elements to lift affairs from the mediocre or static. There may be vague undercurrents, not sinister but challenging the ability to cope with the intangible. This will not be found wanting, since the energies will be well stimulated and the judgment sound and dependable. Much is to be gained by systematic effort, perseverance and assuming responsibility.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a fairly routine and steady year, in which much depends upon the capacity to estimate the source and importance of rather subtle or intriguing developments in the customary trend of events. These may not be dangerous and the mind and character will be ready to cope with complex situations, being particularly shrewd and trustworthy. Persistence, industry and discrimination may be counted on to bridge perplexities and assure enduring gain.

A child born on this day may have a sound intellect and much sturdiness of character, although having certain complexities or subtleties that may at times make it difficult to understand.

PERSONALS

Miss Gwendolyn Wilkes, Reg.N., Toronto, is visiting her mother, Mrs. L. Wilkes, 21 Catherine Street.

C. H. Whittard, Lingham Street, is progressing favorably after an operation in Belleville General Hospital yesterday.

Mrs. P. Fairman, Cedar Street, is confined to her home through illness.

Mrs. J. W. Kinnear, Mrs. W. H. Finkle, Mrs. C. E. Argue, and Mrs. H. O. Trusdale were in Toronto, yesterday when Mrs. Albert Mathews gave a delightfully arranged reception in the Lieutenant-Governor's Suite, Queen's Park, for the Women's Canadian Clubs executives of the province. Two hundred guests were present and an interesting part of the afternoon's entertainment was the presentation of a film on Canadian handicraft.

One of the most enjoyable parties of the series sponsored by the Hospitality Club for the R.C.A.F. was held last evening in St. Thomas' Parish House. Fifty-seven young men from the Trenton Station including several from the R.A.F., England, and a number from the Midland Regiment detail were guests of the Club. A fine orchestra from the R.C.A.F. provided an enjoyable dance program. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses. Members of the cast of "Stage Door" dropped in for coffee after rehearsal.

Under the auspices of Mrs. O. B. Ragsdale's group of Christ Church Parish Guild, a very successful afternoon tea was held yesterday at the home of Mrs. C. F. Bishop Catharine Street. The guests were received by Mrs. Bishop, Mrs. F. B. Sprung, president of the Guild and Mrs. G. G. Wright and were invited to the tea room by Mrs. E. R. Hinchey. Spring flowers in pastel tones mingled with slim tapers made an unusual floral arrangement for the tea table at which Mrs. J. L. Tickell and Mrs. G. Allen Morton presided. The glow of a cheery grate fire and candlelight from mantel tapers added to the charming effect of the tea room. Mrs. Ragsdale, convener of the tea, was assisted in serving by Mrs. Jack Hinchey, Mrs. Arthur Bishop, Mrs. W. E. Smith, Mrs. Tom Collyer, Mrs. H. M. Bloor and Miss Luella Morton. The home cooking table was in charge of Mrs. Fred Burley's group and the treasurers for the tea were Mrs. Ashley Vandewater and Mrs. E. Fry

Committee Chairmen Present Reports to Women of the Moose

A good attendance of Co-Workers was present at a meeting of the Women of the Moose Belleville Chapter 435 on Tuesday evening in the Moose Auditorium, Senior Regent, Mrs. J. Chapman, presided.

The committee chairmen giving their reports were— Mrs. C. St. Louis, membership; Mrs. E. McGinness, publicity and Mrs. J. Jeffrey, homemaking. Mrs. A. Burk sent the report on Social Service work. An interesting communication was read from Deputy Grand Recorder, Miss Margaret Magee, Toronto.

Two of the members expressed appreciation for plants that were sent to them during their illness. It was announced that at the next meeting chairman, Mrs. B. Mossman of the Child Care and Training Committee will be in charge of the Chapter Night program, a social hour and supper arrangements were completed.

The family of the late Bro. Frank Kelleher of Lodge 1004 acknowledged appreciation for sympathy extended in their recent bereavement. Mrs. Nellie Haslip was the winner of the Sunshine prize.

W.C.A. Notes

The May meeting of the Women's Christian Association was held in the Council Chambers of the City Hall on Tuesday, May 7th., with the President Mrs. V. Blaksiee in the chair. Mrs. Edwards was appointed Lady-on-Duty at the Home for the Aged for the month of May.

Donations for April—Mrs. Merry, magazines; Mrs. Wills, magazines; 167 Dundas, magazines; Father and Son banquet, Tabernacle Church, bread; Mrs. B. Thompson, P.E. Co., 1 quart cream; Mrs. Purdy, fruit and pickles.

V.O.N. CONVENER

Mrs. J. Lynch was named V.O.N. convener at the monthly meeting of the Catholic Women's League on Monday.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

CANNIFTON W.M.S.

The May meeting of the W. M. S. was held in the Sunday School Rooms with the President Mrs. Mills in charge. Mrs. Lockyer assisted with the worship service by reading the Bible passages which referred to "Stewardship."

Two splendid readings "What Christianity means to me" and "Transforming friendship" were sent in by Mrs. J. Brenton and Mrs. J. Pound, two of the oldest members, who have been unable to attend the meetings. The treasurer, Mrs. H. Empson reported $45.00 had been sent to the Presbyterial Treasurer for the first quarter.

The roll call was well answered with a "Patriotic thought." Plans were made for the June meeting when Miss Clazie the missionary from Japan would be present.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Cole and Mrs. W. Brenton. Readings were given by Mrs. W. Brenton and Mrs. R. Pound. "The Old Rugged Cross" was sung by Mrs. H. Twiddy and Mrs. H. Pound. Another chapter of the Study Book was given by Mrs. Loucks. Mrs. H. Empson read a very appropriate reading for Christian Stewardship Mrs. Armstrong closed the meeting with prayer.

Belleville Homemakers Enjoy Cooking School by Miss Small

Held Under Auspices of Woman's Association and Directed by Public Utilities

PRIZES AWARDED

New ways with cakes were presented to Belleville homemakers yesterday afternoon when Miss Leta Small, home economist with Moffats, Limited, opened the Cooking School being held under the auspices of the Woman's Association in Bridge Street Sunday School. The School was brought to the city by the Belleville Public Utilities.

Mr. Everett Smith welcomed the ladies to the opening session, and stressed the informal nature of the school. The ladies were urged to discuss their cookery problems with Miss Small who would welcome the opportunity of assisting them in any way.

Miss Small was introduced to the large audience by Mr. Smith. This being her fourth year of visiting the city as demonstrator she was greeted as an old friend by the ladies, who expressed their delight at seeing her again by prolonged applause. Miss Small was assisted by Miss Wilma Clarke.

Hints on Homemaking

The ladies heard with keen interest Miss Small's many hints on successful homemaking. Many in the audience had brought their knitting and kept up an industrious accompaniment to the lecture.

"I hope all of you are using standard measuring equipment", Miss Small said in beginning her demonstration of a "Soup to Nuts" cake. You can have a beautiful cake with the guess "method but tomorrow that same recipe will be a failure. For consistent good baking you should use exact standard measurements".

Generous sized bowls for mixing batter would save the homemaker's temper by avoiding splashing when combining the dry and wet ingredients. For evenly textured cakes the beating should be done before the dry ingredients are added; the mixing then should be quick and easier. When fruit is used in a cake the cake tin should be especially well greased.

Worthwhile Tips on Cooking

While deftly making delicious looking cakes, Miss Small passed on to her hearers worthwhile tips on cookery given with her delightful touch of humour which kept her audience entertained as well as interested.

Something different in table decoration was created by Miss Small, using a birthday cake. The cake, an ultra-ultra layer cake, was placed on a large round cake plate upon which a border of green crepe paper was visible outside the paper doily. Daffodil blossoms were placed on the green paper encircling the cake in colorful effect. Yellow birthday candles were used on top of the cake and the handsome result made a novel and stunning centrepiece for the birthday party. The cake was then presented to the youngest lady having a birthday in May and was won by Miss Edna Sullivan.

Quiz Program Held

A quiz program proved a fascinating feature of the demonstration. Mrs. Sargent received the gift of a coffee cake by being able to answer correctly the various kinds of flour and the wheat of which they are made. These are pastry flour made of soft wheat; bread flour made of hard wheat and cake flour, of soft wheat, milled many more times than for pastry flour. Mrs. Sargent was the only one in the audience who could answer this question entirely correct.

By giving as the two reasons seven minute icing sometimes goes sugary on the bottom that it is cooked too much or is too close to the hot water in the bottom of the double boiler, Mrs. Vernon McKnight received the bacon—chicken rolls.

Drawing for the prizes arranged by the Woman's Association resulted as follows:

School's Privilege To Promote or Not

By Garry Cleveland Myers Ph.D.

MANY PARENTS feel it their right and duty to tell the teacher and principal whether or not their child should be promoted. But this matter is for the school to decide. The teacher and principal are especially trained for their work and are in position to know the school achievement, abilities and needs of the child. However, the school may wisely counsel with parents regarding the child at school, even in matters of promotion; and it welcomes suggestions from parents. Nevertheless we need to remember that our privilege is only to suggest, not to dictate nor coerce.

If the conditions of the school could be ideal practically every child should move on to the next grade with his class at the beginning of next fall's term.

What would these ideal conditions be? That each child no matter in what grade he might be at any time, would be set to do only what he could do well and with zeal. Accordingly, some children found in the fifth grade, for example, would be doing reading or spelling or arithmetic at second, third, fourth or even sixth grade level. In the office would be a record of what each child had achieved in each subject.

Do Some Work

Rare is the school that represents this ideal adaptation. In most places, alas, all the children of a given grade are set to do the work of that grade. The child passes or fails, or is just pushed on to the next grade regardless.

Following this traditional hard and fast scheme, the principal, taking all matters into account, considers whether it will be best for the child to be promoted or left in the same grade to repeat next fall. Often the decision is a mere toss-up. If the doubtful child is promoted, he may find the work too hard and discouraging for him next year. If he is made to repeat the grade, he may feel out of place, being older than his classmates there.

Hope For Best

In ever so many cases, with the guidance of the principal and supervisor, the teacher will promote a child who has not reached the standard of his grade, with the hope and understanding that the teacher of the grade to which he is promoted will, next fall, adapt this child's work to his ability and preparation, so he can enjoy continual success.

I would caution, however, against promoting the child on probation, which would mean that he would be demoted next fall if, after a few weeks in the new grade, he did not make good. Then he would have the threat of demotion hanging over his neck, like the sword of Damocles, especially by inconsiderate parents, next fall and all the time from now till then. As a rule, the child should be promoted or not, without such strings or threats.

Help Vocabulary Grow With Child

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.Dr

A GOOD vocabulary and success are often twins. A good vocabulary and a likable personality are also. Recent studies have indicated that, all else being equal, a person with a large vocabulary will get along better at school and college and will have better success in life than the person with a small vocabulary. There are plenty of exceptions, of course.

This seems to mean that we parents can contribute to the success of our growing child in his life work, to some degree at least, as we contribute to the growth of his vocabulary. Even the person who labors with his hands may climb with the aid of an enlarged vocabulary. As a rule, the person who can say what he wants to say and make others easily understand what he means, has a better chance to land a job, hold it or win promotion than the one who can't.

Has Advantage

In high school, even the elementary grades, the child who can select the best words to say what he wants to say, has the advantage over his classmate who may be as bright or brighter but more limited in vocabulary. In addition to getting better grades for his efforts, the child with the better vocabulary can think more clearly, can feel more comfortable as he speaks and be more likable.

The growing child gains vocabulary by mingling with others with a good vocabulary. Much of his vocabulary he acquires from his parents. Yet, theirs, though they be well educated, may be rather limited.

The child gains rapidly from reading and being read to. I can imagine no better way to cultivate the growing child's vocabulary than by reading to him from early babyhood to long past his age of entering school.

Read to from early babyhood, the child will be hearing stories and books of fifth or sixth grade level by the time he enters school. After he begins reading he will enjoy hearing from books with a vocabulary far harder than in those he can read alone.

Reading Aloud

Often in this column I have urged the youth to read aloud to improve his speech. Reading aloud to himself or to others will enrich his style and speaking vocabulary more, no doubt, than will silent reading. Yet, silent reading does broaden the vocabulary tremendously. It's the youth or adult who reads much from good books whose vocabulary is wide.

Let no reader suppose he should go around using long words. If he is wise, he will not use a long one where a short one will do as well. He needs a wide range from which to choose, so he may employ the best word to say just what he wishes to say, and make understood just what he wishes to have understood.

Waterway To Beauty

By HELEN FOLLETT

DEANNA DURBIN.. . . .being a "water baby" keeps skin smooth.

If it is your heart's desire to have a complexion of fine texture, and ruby lips that would put the brightest lipstick to shame, be a heavy water drinker. You may never have suspected it, little one, but water is essential to life and three ice cream "sodys' a day won't take its place.

There's many a gone-dry, gone-grey complexion that will be restored to its pristine loveliness if six glasses of aqua pura are poured into the svelt anatomy every day. About two thirds of the body weight consists of water; it is in every tissue and organ of the body. It clears away impurities from 30 feet of digestive canal. It acts as a health-giving tonic to the kidneys. It helps the skin to function normally.

The beauty of the complexion depends upon the blood supply and water acts favorably upon the blood streams. Despairing young ladies who complain of sallow skins enlarged pores, blackheads or eruptions should climb up on the water wagon and stay there the rest of their lives. They won't have to invest so much in cosmetics

"Plenty of water inside and out" is a good beauty slogan.

Use cuticle cream freely to keep the flesh around the nails soft and pliable, but don't put on your rosy veneer directly afterwards. It won't stick. You can place cream atop the polish any time you like.

Hangnails are caused by dried, rough cuticle that clings to the nail base, then breaks into shreds. After removing one with the curved needle point scissors, touch the wound with alcohol or boric acid. There's always a chance of infection where the flesh is broken.

Once a day run the orange wood stick under the cuticle. No hangnails will trouble you then.

Fashion Flashes

Strolling in a meadow is the idea you get when gazing at a hat of grass green straw trimmed with buttercups, primroses and white daisies with bright yellow centres.

The extremes meet in a summer ensemble of hat and shoes both of heavy blue linen flecked with white dots.

The Rembrandt ruff immortalized by the great painter is an important fashion trifle just now. A lovely frock, available in either day or dinner versions is of black silk crepe made with curved set-in waist and front fullness on the skirt which has two slanting hip pockets. The snug, short-sleeved bodice is glorified with an enormous Rembrandt ruff of white musseline de soie.

Just made for gay afternoons and informal evenings is an afternoon dress of stiff silk taffeta, of black or navy. Down the snug bodice and reaching the hips of the flaring, full skirt are rows of eyelet embroidery.

Pretty soon the sun will be doing its stuff and you'll be glad of a big hat. A beauty has a swooping brim with the sides slightly curled. Brim is silver gray felt, and crown is white pique. Swathed in filmy blue or black veiling.

We've noticed that many smart women are wearing a little calot or skull cap of veiling, these spring nights One beauty is silk mesh veiling shaded from dove gray to pink. It is rolled at the edge to form a brim and it is pulled to a point in front and held by a jewelled clip. Veiling comes from the back to tie in a big whooshing bow under the chin.

Indianapolis, May 8 (AP)—Academic precedent was broken when Booth Tarkington received the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters from Purdue University, where he once studied for two years. # Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Never a Chance to Talk

Dear Miss Fairfax:

When I was a high school freshman I fell in love with a boy four years older. When he was graduated he moved away. We corresponded for a long time and then broke up over some little thing of not much importance.

For a year I couldn't get interested in any other boy, and when I finally did, this boy happened to come back to visit at school and I saw him. I was so surprised I couldn't speak, so I wrote him a little note to come over and he said he would. He has only one night off in two weeks, and up to the present he has not called on me.

He lives in the city now and comes over to school at lunch time, but as I'm always with someone, he hasn't a chance to talk to me alone. I'm going with another young man now, but I think more of the first one. Both boys have good steady jobs. I wish I could love the second boy more. Do you think there is such a thing as gradually falling in love?

Puzzled

You're still in high school. Why try to force yourself into falling in love with anyone? If a girl in her teens tries to make something of herself, her life promises to be more happy than if she thinks too much about love. Girls who marry too young lose their playtime, and the obligations which come with marriage make them old before their time.

I think if boy No. 1 were seriously interested in resuming acquaintance with you, he'd manage to join you at lunch.

Persistent Caller Bores Her

Dear Miss Fairfax:

There's a certain young man who keeps on coming to see me though I've repeatedly asked him not to. Our evenings are always unpleasant. I don't know how to entertain him, for he is a few years older than I am, and I feel we have nothing in common.

Why does he persist in coming when I've showed him plainly that he's not welcome? What can I do? I'm so

Bored

Can't you manage to be out when this unwelcome visitor makes his appearance? As you don't enjoy his company, there is no reason in the world why you should put up with it. You might even get some member of your household to say you are not at home when the gentleman calls.

Two Broken Hearts

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm in love with a boy I met last summer. At that time he begged me to go out with him, which I did, and then he said he was engaged to a girl in his home town. However, we kept on going together. Now his girl from back home has married another man and it has broken him up. On top of that, he has broken with me, because he somehow found out I loved him.

He lives in the same block with me, so I see him almost every day. I learned that he has written a letter to a distant state, to see if he can get work there and then he intends leaving. What hurts me is that at first I didn't care for him, and now that I do show a little interest, he turns me down and wants to leave. Is it true that if you keep on wishing for something, it will come to pass?

Dorothy

In the back of his mind the young man evidently holds you responsible for his broken engagement. But why should he, when he begged you to go out with him? When you meet this young man treat him casually. Human nature is so contrary that he's very likely to imagine he's been in love with you all along—after he goes away and gets good and lonesome. Certain schools of thought insist that if you wish hard enough, the thing you wish for is likely to come to pass.

x x x

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been going about with a married man. I am twenty-seven and have been divorced for 5 years. My little son lives with my mother. His father pays a very liberal sum for his board, but pride keeps me from taking any of that. My mother wants me to go back to my husband, but I don't love him. We are all under 30 years of age, and I suppose all of us feel entitled to a little happiness—all of us, that is, except the man's wife, who has no love affairs. She is one of those quiet, mouse-like type of women and is contented to drift along even though she knows her husband doesn't care for her.

The Other Woman

Very likely all of us do feel entitled to happiness, but the question is are we going to take it at someone else's expense? The wife probably gets scant happiness in realizing her husband is untrue to her, but she knows she's doing the right thing by maintaining a home for her children.

You are contented to let your son grow up apart from you, so it would seem you have not the maternal instinct of the "mousey" lady. There is also the big "IF" that the husband because of his children does not wish to break up his home and marry you. It seems to me you'll be wise to find your happiness somewhere outside of this husband and father.

HOW TO FIX UP A STEW THAT TASTES FLAT

WHILE the stew is simmering on the stove, add about a teaspoonful of H. P. Sauce and stir it in thoroughly. By the time the stew is done, the flavouring power of the H. P. Sauce will have enriched everything with a fresh deliciousness. You'll have no trouble in making tasty stews if you use H.P.

And this thick, fruity English sauce will help you with all your cooking and serving of meals. Try it with meat leftovers, meat pie, beef hash, minced steak, baked beans, fish, cheese and macaroni dishes. Many a time a few drops of H. P. Sauce will make all the difference between a commonplace food and one that the family will enjoy with great relish.

How (How Not) to Announce Your Engagement

May days invariably bring the announcements of betrothals that precede June weddings.

Every mail brings more and more letters, each chorusing "I am engaged! How should I announce my engagement?"

Happily, there are very few musts and very few must-nots that concern the propriety of how you announce your engagement. Generally speaking, you announce the happy news just as you wish to announce it, or as your circumstances permit. The comforting fact is that it is just as proper to announce the news in a simple way as it is to announce it with a great deal of fanfare.

Let's say that Sally wishes to announce her engagement in the simplest possible manner. No fanfare. No amusement party. Sally has good taste, and has therefore, consideration of those who love her, those most concerned with this important milestone of her life. So first she tells, perhaps by calling on them, her relatives and her close friends. To those who live too far away to be told by word of mouth, she writes happy little notes. If she and her family have decided on the date when the announcement will be made or when the news will be sent to the newspapers (although the newspaper announcement is, of course, not necessary), she will ask everyone to keep the secret until that date.

On the same days when Sally is telling or writing her relatives and intimate friends, her fiance is telling or writing to his relatives and close friends.

On the day of the announcement Sally wears her engagement ring in public for the first time. The engagement is announced — simply, properly.

Now let's say that Nancy's family wish to make the announcement at a lunch or dinner or tea. The announcement tea is most often chosen since more guests can be invited. At a lunch the announcement is made by the girl's mother, or by place cards (the two visiting-cards enclosed in an envelope at each guest's place, for example). If the party is a dinner the news is told by the father, who rises and proposes a toast to his daughter and her fiance. When the guests arrive at an engagement tea, they are greeted by the engaged girl's mother and father, with the girl standing next to her mother, and the fiance standing next to her. To each arriving guest, her mother may announce the engagement by saying something like this, "Here is Nancy ......and her fiance, Bob Hill."

There may be other parties given in honor of the engaged couple, but the actual announcement should be made by the parents of the bride-elect, or by her nearest relative.

One thing more, in answer to that so-often-asked question: An engraved or printed engagement announcement is not good form or good taste.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Cow's Milk

I have been asked again if cow milk is the best food for babies when the time comes to wean them from the breast. It is suggested that goat milk may be better for the child.

It may be a surprise to many that anything except cow milk or goat milk is ever fed to human babies. But in the Near East camel milk is a staple food for children. Among the Mongols and indeed in some parts of Southern Europe, children are still nursed on mare's milk, as they have been for thousands of years. Mare's milk was a food of the hardy warrior of Genghis Khan, who histories tell us, was perhaps the greatest conqueror the world has ever known.

I'm not an authority on the various other milks, but I don't think there is any doubt that cow milk is first choice for babies—it is more like the milk from a human nursing mother than any other.

There is a great deal known about how the milks of different mammals vary. For example, when a baby whale swims to his mother for his dinner, he gets from her milk that contains a little more than fifty percent butter fat. Yet when a colt in the pasture goes to his mother for milk, what he suckles has only one percent butter fat.

By comparison, cow milk in ordinary commerce has a butter fat content of about 3.95 per cent. Milk from a nursing mother has 3.86 butter fat. The baby's digestive system is attuned to just that much better fat. You see there is less than a tenth of one percent difference between the two. This is one of the reasons why cow's milk is chosen for humans above any other milk.

Besides this there is another factor in the cow's favor. It has been bred for centuries to produce milk. The result is that it yields a tremendous amount in comparison with other species. A goat yields milk much richer in butter fat, but the quantity is smaller. Mare milk is much less rich and there is much less of it, also.

Some may think that quantity of milk doesn't matter, that it's the butter fat content that is most important. This used to be the general theory but in recent years it has been disproven. We know today that a great deal if not the greater part of the value of milk lies below the cream line. That is where we find the minerals, the calciums, the phosphorus, the proteins, all the things that go to build up the body of a growing child and to replace the tissues in the adult.

I'm reminded that when the Dionne Quintuplets were only a few days old, I got a letter from a man in a large American City who identified himself as a veterinary surgeon. He wrote at some length extolling the value of pig's milk for babies. He claimed that in the country where he was born and brought up it was generally conceded that milk from a pig had more nourishment for a baby than any other kind. He assured me that persons who considered the pig a dirty animal by nature had the wrong impression of it. He assured me that pigs are about as clean an animal as a farmer has on his farm if provided with clean surroundings.

This correspondent offered to send me a Yorkshire sow which he said he had tested and which would be very gentle with children. He also offered to send along complete instructions for caring for the sow and as a course of instruction in milking her.

Good Vision First

By HELEN FOLLETT

DON'T abuse or neglect your eyes. They're the only ones you have and you can't buy more. If you feel that vision is not normal, go to a medical man who specializes in this line.

Tired eyes, eyes with red, swollen lids, those that are bloodshot are not in top form—perhaps they are crying out for glasses. At any rate, discomfort should not be tolerated.

Makers of frames and lenses are offering a variety of patterns. They have them for making a short nose look longer and a long nose shorter. They'll tell you all about them. Don't just pick out designs that happen to catch your fancy.

More hair dyeing is going on than the casual observer realizes. Treatments given in beauty shops are so effective and successful that the synthetic color is not suspected. Many operators specialize in this work, do nothing else. They must go through a long term of training, acquire a knowledge of the actions of chemicals and their relationship to each other.

It isn't that women hate the white threads; it is what they suggest—an end to activities, an Alice-sit-by-the-fire existence. Which is pretty silly, if you ask us. The frosted dome won't keep an up-and-doing woman from making good, progressing along her chosen lines. Look at the grandmothers—dancing, golfing, having business careers. White hair isn't holding them back.

The reason that one sees few badly-dyed heads is that women have learned that it is hazardous to attempt the job themselves. Time was when an experimenting lady used one agent then another, got streaks and spots and unnatural shades. Well, even those wrecked halos can be put in form again by an expert.

Mayor McKibbon of Picton President of Quinte Loop

Three Teams, Belleville, 47th Battery of Napanee and Picton, Definitely in

SCHEDULE MAY 15

Mayor M. McKibbon of Picton, was elected president of the Bay of Quinte League at the annual meeting and election of officers of that baseball association held in Napanee last evening.

Three clubs were represented and signified intentions to compete in the league seeking the honours to advance into the O.B.A. playdowns. The clubs represented were Picton, Belleville and the 47th Battery of Napanee.

The officers elected were—

President—Mayor McKibbon, Picton.

1st Vice President—Capt. C. D. Sills, Napanee.

2nd Vice President—J. N. Yanover, Belleville.

Sec.-Treasurer — Harry Doyle, Picton.

Try Interlocking Schedule

At the conclusion of the election of officers the league voted to make application to the Lake Shore League, that includes Cobourg, Port Hope and Bowmanville in hopes of arranging an interlocking schedule between the two leagues in an effort to provide additional baseball for the baseball public of both leagues. The Bay of Quinte League will meet in Belleville on May 15th to draft its league schedule and the Lake Shore League executive will be invited to be present and discuss the possibilities of the proposed interlocking set-up.

Initial Appearance

In making their initial appearance in district circles, Major Armstrong, of the 47th Battery in Napanee, stated that rather than see baseball pass out of existence in Napanee, the Battery would sponsor the game in that town. "With our splendid stadium and the fact that Napanee is a good baseball centre, we would not like to see the good old game of baseball cast into the discard for the lack of sponsorship in Napanee, Major Armstrong stated.

The clubs delegates present were Belleville—H. M. (Dolly) Gray, Picton—L. Yanover and W. Fraser, 47th Battery—Major Armstrong and Lieutenant Mede. Retiring President Lorne McDougall occupied the chair during the election of officers.

MASKED MARVEL, RINGER WRESTLE

Both Contestants in Main Bout Will be Hooded but Loser Will Have to Unmask

Featuring wrestlers who desire to keep their identity a deep dark mystery and who hide their facial features behind masks, the main bout of Friday night's professional wrestling show at the Hume Arena will bring two behooded heavyweight grapplers in common competition when "The Great Ringer" meets the "Masked Marvel" in a fight to the finish with no time limit being added to cramp the contestant's style.

The identity of both grapplers is shrouded in mystery, as a bemasked or hooded sports personality always creates hatred and the demand of the patrons for an unmasking. Seeking to please the masses the promoters of local wrestling engaged these two top-flight grapplers at an additional expense and with the understanding that the loser must unmask and bare his features before the crowd, while the victor and the patrons heap upon the vanquished their disrespect in defeat. The identity and address of both main bout contestants has been held in secret and guarded cautiously by each man for many months and this is the first time in the annals of Canadian wrestling that two bemasked and hooded wrestlers have appeared as opponents in a no-time limit bout.

Two preliminary bouts will precede the main attraction when Eddie Sobul of Hartford Conn., meets Chief Little Bear, the full-blooded Quebec Indian in the semi-final, while Young Griffins, a popular wrestler from Niagara Falls will open the show versus a suitable opponent yet to be named.

VOLLEYBALL

After trailing the Bata team all season and finishing second in the regular schedule, the local Y.M.C.A. volleyballers copped the Belleville and District volleyball title last evening when they defeated the Bata team of Frankford in three straight games in a best three out of five series for the championship.

In the first two games played at the local "Y" last evening the winners proved far superior to the Bata team and scored points almost at will to ring up lop-sided 15-3 and 15-7 victories. In the final game, however, the Bata lads, seeing certain elimination in defeat, battled all the way down to the wire but were forced to accept a 15-12 beating.

The Bata team showed better handling of the ball than did the winners but the fact that they were endeavouring to block their opponents shots at the net led to their downfall as the "Y" players scored many points due to the inability of the Bata rearguards to see the ball when blocked by their own forwards at the net. The style of game played by the losers may have proved successful with a full team, but the fact that Bata were playing five men against six proved too great a disadvantage to overcome and they went down to defeat. During the game one of the Bata players protested strenuously on certain decisions made by the referee but after it was all over the entire team showed their sportmanship by congratulating the winners and giving the traditional Czechoslovakian cheer.

The teams: Bata—L. Myslivec, A. Kotek, J. Valchar, M. Becka, M. Zajicak. Y.M.C.A.—Brown, Cole Wickerman Burley, Clare, McLean and Townsend, sub.

Did you know that Ed Wildey, manager of the Toronto Young Ranger hockey team, contends he was the first coach to substitute a goalkeeper in a hockey game for a forward? . . . "Yes, and Bill Hewitt and Connie Smythe said I couldn't do it. I merely asked why and went right ahead," the deep-thinking Wildey recently told us. . . . And also that the Peterboro sports scribe wants to know what's the matter with Belleville, no baseball, lacrosse or rugby being sponsored here? . . . Yea, pal, that is a problem. . . . And that statistics show that nearly 80 per cent of this continent's mutual handle comes from $2.00 wagers. . . . And that Henry Armstrong wants it known that he is one fighter who will NOT open a restaurant. . . . That when only 12 years of age Bobby Jones made five birdies on six holes to beat his dad in a club championship golf match? . . . Cy Barriage says he hasn't exactly retired from softball, but just hasn't the time to play. . . . And that these softballers are queer people, they kick if there is no mention of them and they squawk when given anything but favourable newspaper comment.

Bimelech's defeat in the 66th running of the Kentucky Derby is being heralded as the greatest stimulant to modern horse racing circles that could have possibly happened. Had "Big Bim" won the Blue Grass classic last week, Saturday's running of the Preakness at Pimlico wouldn't have drawn the proverbial flies., except, perhaps, those who wanted to see Bimelech in action. After the Derby upset, however, additional post entries for the 50th running of the Preakness (Maryland's gift to the racing fraternity), have been pouring in with the cry—"Bimelech can be beaten." However, it will take more than a Gallahadion to beat Bimelech on Saturday at Baltimore, Jockey Smith booted the Kentucky Derby pot away when he veered "Big Bim" slightly as they entered into the stretch, but such mistakes don't happen twice as a racing rule and it is safe betting Bimelech's odds this Saturday at Pimlico will be identical to those placed at the Derby post-time. Judging from last week's results, however, both Dit and Mioland will have to be closely watched, but here we say —It's Bimelech all the way."

When "The Great Ringer" meets the "Masked Marvel" here Friday night it will mark the first time in the annals of Canadian wrestling where two bemasked or hooded grapplers have ever met in a wrestling bout. The loser must unmask and in order to assure no draw fight the promoters have ordered a no time limit bout, thus assuring the unmasking of at least one of the grapplers when they meet at the Hume Arena. Just what the reaction of two hooded men in the same ring will have upon the fans in the matter of choosing sides is hard to tell, but Belleville fans have fared exceptionally well in the matter of bemasked wrestlers appearing here. First there was Al Getzowitch, the blone adonis and then John Marvin who was forced to take off his mask for the first time in a Belleville ring.

Mary Pickford, America's sweetheart of the screen, recently visited the place of her birth with her hand-leading husband, Buddy Rogers. Miss Pickford was so impressed with the war service leagues of Toronto, that she donated a gold mesh bag, emblazoned with a top of sapphires and diamonds and valued at $1,500 to the Toronto Citizens' Committee. The bag will be raffled off and the proceeds to go towards sports equipment for Canadian soldiers. With such a valued prize to offer no doubt the draw will bring many thousands of dollars to the soldiers' benefit.

Thanks to H. M. (Dolly) Gray, baseball still survives in Belleville. "Dolly" journeyed to Napanee last night and assured the Bay of Quinte League of a local entry to round out at least a three-teamed Quinte loop, Picton and the 47th Battery of Napanee being the other clubs present. Kingston failed to send representation, but there are still hopes held towards a Limestone City entry and perhaps if Kingston sponsors found out once and for all, that their baseball operations are not desired in the Ottawa Valley, they'd gladly turn to the Quinte loop and such is definitely the case, according to information received from Perth and Smiths Falls, and that's no hearsay. However, the Bay of Quinte club hope to arrange some manner of interlocking games with the Lake Shore League teams to supplement both league schedules and provide the respective clubs with occasional new faces, which might be better than a good idea at that.

Proving their finishing in first place was no fluke, Joe Legault's Belleville Golf "maple knockers" continued in the Senior Bowling League play-offs at the Recreation Alleys to win the Major League Bowling Championship last night. In the league play-offs, a la Stanley Cup set-up, the Belleville Golf trundlers finished first, Meade-Johnson was second, while the Deacon Sportswear and Corby's A. C. followed. The Belleville Golfers were trailing to open last night's series of games, but came through gallantly in the pinch to prove themselves moneyed players.

SPORT SPICE—The Yankees continue to lose with consistency, Detroit handing the world chumps (sorry we meant champs.) their fourth consecutive loss yesterday. . . . Joe DiMaggio returned to the Yanks' line-up yesterday. . . . When the Cardinals beat the Dodgers 18 to 2 the former team broke an existing baseball record . . . The Red Birds hit for a total of 49 bases, the previous National League record being 47 established by the Giants in 1931. . . . The Cardinals also equalled the major league record for home runs hit in a single game—seven, established by the Yankees in 1939. . . . Only three teams are playing softball in Kingston this year, all being new entries. . . . Dizzy Dean is to be used as a relief pitcher, says Owner Wrigley.

Good Neighbours

"One thing about Essex Centre", said Mr. Picobac, "it's a town of good neighbours. Every man Jack is making some contribution . . . some sacrifice. I'm proud of them."

"And the women are all knitting", added Mrs. Picobac.

"Bless their hearts", exclaimed Mr. Picobac, feeling for a match.

With a sigh of satisfaction he settled back for a mild . . . cool . . . sweet smoke.

"I wish the women had something to give them the comfort and consolation we men get", said he. "A pipe of Picobac is a pipe of peace."

WOULD YOU GET ME THIS C.C.M. NOW, DAD, AND IF I DON'T PASS YOU MAY TAKE IT BACK

BOYS here's a sporting offer to put up to your Dad and ten chances to one he'll accept it and Presto!—you'll have a brand new C.C.M. Bicycle right away.

This is a real good proposition for both you and your Dad because it will be the means for your Dad to encourage you to study hard and to pass and it will make you really want to study.

Get a C.C.M. Catalogue as soon as you can and, after looking it over and deciding which model you want, proposition your Dad like the boy in the picture.

Be sure you go to a C.C.M. dealer as he is authorized to operate this sporting offer. Then, too, a C.C.M. is the make of bicycle every boy and girl wants because they are so smooth riding and easy to pedal. They last much longer, too, because of the great accuracy used in the machining and fitting of the fast-moving parts—the front hub—the main sprocket-hanger, and the C.C.M. Coaster Brake.

In the catalogue you will find illustrated several models from which to choose, from the sturdy C.C.M. delivery to the beautiful lightweight road racer.

All C.C.M. Models have seamless tubular steel frames; rustless steel spokes, bright parts chromium-plated over C.C.M. 20-year nickel and Dunlop Tires.

Boys, try this on your Dad and here's good luck! ISP

C.C.M. STRONG FRONT HUB
Built of hardened steel with stout axle and accurately machined and hardened ball-races to give years of smooth and easy running.

C.C.M. COASTER BRAKE
A new brake by C.C.M., faster in forward clutch-action, more powerful in its smooth, quick stop than any of its predecessors. Built of super-strong, hardened steels to meet the needs of today's cyclists.

C.C.M. TRIPLEX HANGER
The 15 parts of this most important section of a C.C.M. bicycle are machined, hardened and finished with extreme accuracy so that you may get the most out of your pedalling action.

Cardinal Team Ties Record For Homers in 1 Game, Betters Modern Record for Total Bases

Secure 20 Hits and Seven Home Runs in Defeating Brooklyn Dodgers 18-2

DIMAGGIO BACK

Yankee Outfielder No Help as Team Shoved Into Tie for Last Place

By JUDSON BAILEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

One thing you can say about the Brooklyn Dodgers—when they fall, they fall hard.

A club capable of winning 11 out of 13 games ordinarily would be expected to get squeezed out of the other two, but not the always-different Dodgers.

Their first flop, after winning nine consecutive games, was 9-1 at Cincinnati and their second was 18-2 in St. Louis yesterday. At that rate their next will be 36-4.

Hugh Casey, who was the victim in that previous defeat, was on the mound again and the signs were still against him. At least Manager Leo Durocher must have believed so, because he let him pitch batting practice to the Cardinals for seven innings until removed for a pinch-hitter.

The Cardinal powerhouse, short-circuited for weeks, made the right connection and pffht! 20 hits, seven home runs, 49 total bases. The performance tied the National Baseball League record for homers in one game and bettered the modern league mark for total bases.

Two Hit Two Homers

Johnny Mise and Rookie Eddie Lake each hit two homers and Don Padgett, Joe Medwick and Stu Martin added one apiece. Behind this barrage Lonnie Warneke worked as carefully as if his teammates had provided only one run. He held the Dodgers scoreless on five hits during the first seven innings.

It was a rough day for all the New York teams, as a matter of fact. Joe DiMaggio returned to the world champion Yankees line-up and didn't do them a bit of good—getting one single in five times at bat and misfiring every time he would have exploded one of his bombs in the past. Once he fouled out with the bases loaded.

The upshot was that Detroit Tigers topped the champs 4-2 for their fourth straight defeat and dropped the once haughty club into a tie for last place in the American League.

Lefthander Wins Again

It was another case of lefthanded pitching turning the trick, Rookie Harold Newhouser shackling the famous sluggers to eight scattered hits before a sprained thumb forced his withdrawal in the ninth.

Cincinnati Reds took advantage of the Dodgers' defeat to shorten the gap between them with a 7-6 victory over New York Giants. Harry Danning hit two homers, one of them with two on in the eighth to send New York ahead briefly, but then he dropped the ball when the Reds worked a double steal.

Ike Pearson pitched the Phillies to a 1-0 decision over Chicago Cubs in one of the best hurling shows of the season. He dealt out four widely spaced hits, while Claude Passeau and Vern Olsen of the Cubs allowed five.

Pittsburgh Pirates were knocked into the National League cellar on the heels of their seventh straight defeat, 11-9, by Boston Bees. Eddie Miller batted in four runs, including three on a homer, to help lift Boston off the bottom for the first time this year.

Indians Now Third

Boston Red Sox took the deciding game of their series with Cleveland 6-4 to shunt the Indians into third place in the American league, a notch below Detroit. Lou Finney got four hits for the Boston cause and Lefty Grove got credit for the victory, although he was batted out of the box for the third straight time.

Chicago White Sox turned back Philadelphia Athletics 6-3 on the joint five-hit pitching effort of Jack Knott and Pete Appleton and the four errors the A's themselves committed.

A wild pitch by John Whitehead with the bases loaded and the score tied gave Washington Senators their winning run in the tenth inning for a 6-5 verdict over St. Louis Browns.

Walter Johnson, Former Hurler, Wins Nomination

Germantown, Md, May 8.—(AP)—Walter Perry Johnson, one of the greatest pitchers who ever threw a baseball, got the call today to take the mound in a United States congressional pennant race.

On the basis of almost complete returns in the sixth Maryland district, the "Big Train' who did 21 years of hurling for the Washington Senators, held a 1,000-vote lead for the Republican nomination.

Warming up in the Democratic bull pen was representative William D. Byron, the incumbent. The November box score will decide which will represent the district in the House of Representatives.

At his modest farm home here, the habitually modest Johnson was more modest than ever.

"Gee, whiz", he said, "the folks sure have been nice about this whole thing. Even if I lost, Gee whiz!"

Oldtime politicians shook their heads over the way Johnson went about this campaign.

For one thing, Johnson didn't even have a telephone. He didn't kiss a single baby in his electioneering.

"I just tell 'em that I'll try to do my best and hope they'll believe me", he said.

Berger Gains Decision In 8-Round Bout

New York, May 8.—(CP)—Maxie Berger hasn't fought in Montreal for almost five years but now, a hard, successful campaign behind him, he's going back to show his wares to the home folks. His next fight will be in the Forum May 21 against an opponent yet to be selected.

Maxie admits he isn't ready for a title bout with welterweight champion Henry Armstrong but meanwhile he's preparing for what he believes is a certain engagement with the negro titlist by overcoming all opposition in the New York area.

He stretched his string to 17 bouts without defeat last night by gaining a decision against Detroit's Bobby McIntyre in eight gruelling rounds in the main go at the Bronx Coliseum. He also retained his junior welterweight title which, although not recognized in the United States, was advertised as at stake. Berger had 4 1-2 pound pull in the weights at 141 3-4 pounds.

Berger's showing in the late rounds, when he came back to finish strongly after being on the verge of a knockout in the third round, earned him the decision. McIntyre forced the fight in the opening rounds but the Montrealer took the last five with stinging lefts and rights.

TOP BASKETBALL SQUADS TO MEET

Vancouver Leafs Will Have Size and Experience on Montreal Cagers

Montreal, May 8 (CP)—Top basketball squads in the Dominion, Vancouver Maple Leafs and Montreal Y.M.H.A. open a best-of-five series tonight for the Canadian crown and—other things taken as equal—Vancouver has an acknowledged edge both in size and experience.

The Maple Leafs have all the best of it in size in a game where height is at a premium. To a man, the western champions average about 1 1-2 inches taller with a five foot 11 inch standard while they generally outweight the Y.M.H.A. squad by about 15 pounds a man.

Experience also is on the side of the Maple Leafs. Six of their eight players have been on Dominion championship teams before — Joe Ross, acting Manager, Jimmy Bardsley, Art Willoughby, Al Beaton, Ralph Henderson and Rann Matthison. On the other hand, all the Montreal players are making their debuts in a Dominion final.

The eastern champions hope to offset the advantage in experience by outspeeding the Leafs. Y.M.H.A. have a fast precision-balanced squad. Their plays are built on short, speedy passing who attempt to shake one man loose from his check for a clean shot on basket.

N.B.A. TITLE GIVEN TO ANGOTT

Sammy Angott, the little glove-throwing Louisville slugger, is the new lightweight champion in 41 states as ruled by the U.S. National Boxing Association when Angott won a decision over Davey Day. Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight king and referee of the match, is shown here raising Angott's hand after the decision.

SAFE!—Dick Seibert, A's first base man, slides safely back to first in game with Injuns in Philly. Grimes is first sacker.

DIRTY WORK—Dust flies as Charley Keller, Yank outfielder, slides safely into second base during game in Washington.

UNUSUAL?—Yes, the catcher at LEFT is a Yankee and not Bill Dickey. It's Buddy Rosar, subbing for Bill.

DAVIS HITS HOMER WITH BASES FULL FOR FIRST TIME

Rochester First Baseman Celebrating 30th Birthday on Day of Feat

LEAFS DEFEATED

Pinch Single in Ninth Scores Two Runs for Jersey City

(By The Associated Press)

According to popular belief, when a baseball player passes the 30-year mark his best playing days are behind him, but take it from Harry Davis, Rochester's first baseman, there's not a word of truth in it.

Harry celebrated his 30th birthday yesterday and by way of proving there are still plenty of games left in his system, he belted a home run with the bases loaded for the first time in his professional career. It was his fourth four-bagger of the season and his 34th in 432 games.

Davis and Lincoln Blakely each had three hits to pace a 13 hit attack on three Baltimore hurlers for a 10-4 victory. Hank Gornicki started in the box for Rochester in quest of his fourth win but was removed in the fifth, after giving up eight safeties. Bill McLaughlin finished the game and got credit for his first International League triumph.

Kemp Wicker, Montreal hurler, and Rene Monteagudo, Jersey City rookie, shared the spotlight yesterday with Davis.

Wicker Wins Four in Row

Wicker hung up his fourth straight victory pitching the Royals to a 13-0 win over Newark and Monteagudo's pinch hit single in the eighth gave Jersey City a 3-2 margin over Toronto.

The southpaw star of the Royals had his "superduper" working to perfection and let the Bears down with only five hits, running his streak of scoreless innings to 23. In the 35 innings he has worked Wicker has allowed enemy batsmen a total of 13 safeties. The Royals hammered three Newark pitchers for 15 hits, including home runs by Lindsey Deal, Sammy Bell and Tuck Stainback.

Monteaugdo, batting for Sturgeon, rapped a single off John Berly to score Jim Vernon, and Dusty Cooke. Frank Pearce went the distance for Jersey.

Buffalo Bisons defeated Syracuse Chiefs 4-2 behind the four hit twirling of Quinn Lee.

The Bisons bunched all their runs in the second inning off Pep Rambert but were held hitless thereafter by Art Jones who took over with none out in the third.

DIXIE HANDICAP HAS $20,000 PURSE

Race Will Open "Four Golden Days" at Pimlico With Preakness the Climax

Baltimore, May 8 (AP)—The 36th running of the Dixie Handicap today opened Pimlico's "four golden days" of horse racing, with the Preakness pot of gold lying at the end of the rainbow.

One of the oldest and richest fixtures of the spring season, the $20,000—added Dixie is the traditional curtain-raiser for the Preakness and is decided over the same distance, a mile and three-sixteenths.

The "golden days" designation stems from the fact that Saturday's running will mark the Golden Jubilee of the Preakness. And, since the Dixie is the daddy of the Preakness, it takes the first bow.

Named for the Dixie were E. C. Hatch's Filisteo, A. C. Bostwick's Belay, Brandywine Stable's Masked General, Barrington Stable's Olympos, Belair Stud's Isolater, Mrs. A. J. Abel's Honey Cloud and W. L. Brann's Aethelwold.

THEY HELPED BREAK THE DODGERS' WINNING STREAK

Three Cincinnati smiles are pictured here, but there are no smiles in Flatbush where the faithful followers of the Brooklyn Dodgers are bemoaning the 9-2 defeat inflicted upon their idols by the Cincinnati Reds. The defeat snapped the unparalleled season opening winning streak of the Dodgers. The victory streak of nine straight wins tied a modern major league mark set by the New York Giants in 1918, but ended abruptly through the efforts of this trio and their teammates. Billy Werber at LEFT, walloped a homer with one man on in the Red's big fourth inning. Catcher Ernie Lombardie at RIGHT, hit his homer in the same inning with three men on. Bucky Walters, CENTRE, limited the Dodgers to six hits as he pitched his third straight victory.

'Saint in Politics,' N. Y. Times' Tribute To Geo. Lansbury

New York, May 8—(CP)—The New York Times, paying editorial tribute to George Lansbury, Labor parliamentarian who died in London yesterday, said today he was "an authentic saint in politics if there ever was one."

"His goodness was heightened by the evil of the times through which he lived," said the Times. "The mere sight of him in his old age, in the House of Commons or on the public platform, helped to remind the British people of values that they might otherwise have forgotten."

Ottawa, May 8—(CP) — A. R. Mosher, President of the All-Canadian Congress of Labor, paid tribute last night to Rt. Hon. George Lansbury, former leader of the Labor Party in the British House of Commons, who died yesterday.

"Organized workers of every nation will mourn his passing," said Mr. Mosher. "To them he exemplified in high degree the ideals and aspirations of the Labor movement and the universality of its mission.

W. T. Burford, Secretary-Treasurer of the Canadian Federation of Labor said: "George Lansbury's death will be mourned by as great a number of personal friends as it is possible for a man to make in 81 years."

AT THE McCARTHY

"Ma! He's Making Eyes at Me"

Co-starring Constance Moore and Tom Brown and with a host of big-time vaudeville entertainers and a galaxy of beautiful girls the big musical film "Ma! He's Making Eyes at Me" is now to be seen at the McCarthy theatre, if you wish an evening of top-ranking movie entertainment. Important "Fox News" events, showing the train-wreck of the New York-to-Chicago passenger train in which 30 persons were killed and sixty injured, the completing of training by 471 R.C.A.F. aircraftsmen at St. Thomas and news from the war fronts are among the numerous up-to-the-minute flashes, which are shown, described by Lowell Thomas. "Sabotage" a dramatic co-feature presentation with an all-star cast, completes this fine program now on the McCarthy theatre screen.

"Tropic Fury"

"Timber Stampede"

Richard Arlen and Andy Devine in the exciting adventure drama "Tropic Fury" and Gorge O'Brien in the latest of his big outdoor westerns, "Timber Shampede" is to be presented next at the McCarthy theatre, in addition to chapter seven in the sensational serial attraction "The Shadow" which is enjoying a tremendous following of both adult and children patrons weekly at the McCarthy theatre. It is the biggest and finest in every detail of all chapter plays which Columbia studios have produced and which has been presented at the McCarthy theatre.

AT THE BELLE

New "Dr. Kildare" Story

The screen's favorite doctor-hero, Dr. James Kildare, will again hold forth on the screen of the Belle theatre, when M-G-M's latest "Dr. Kildare" film, "Dr. Kildare's Strange Case" starts next at the Belle theatre. With Lew Ayres portraying the title role and Lionel Barrymore as his mentor, Dr. Leonard Gillespie, the fourth in the series of medical-detective stories provides a dramatic glimpse of what goes on when a young intern takes matters into his own hands, acting solely on a hunch. After refusing a well-paying position in a private sanitarium, Ayres returns to his hospital to learn that his friend, Shepperd Strudwick, has performed what appears to have been bungled brain surgery. Putting facts together and acting on the theory that the patient might have been insane before the operation was performed, Ayres, by the use of insulin shock to restore insane people to normalcy, succeeds in vindicating his friend and showing his superiors that his judgment was correct. Based upon an original story by Brand and Willis Goldbeck, the drama introduces the screen's first presentation of the actual treatment of insane people by use of insulin to cause shock. Prominent in the cast of "Dr. Kildare's Strange Case" are Laraine Day, Shepperd Strudwick, Samuel S. Hinds, Emma Dunn, Nat Pendleton, Walter Kingsford and Alma Kruger.

"Curtain Call" Gripping

Hollywood's newest pair of talented young players, Barbara Read and John Archer, are brought together for the first time in RKO Radio's "Curtain Call," romantic drama of the theatre announced as the companion feature attraction.

Both scored notably in their first independent leading roles, Miss Read in the recent "Married and in Love," and Archer in "Career."

In their current offering, Miss Read plays a stage struck small town girl and Archer is seen as her salesman boy friend.

Other top roles are portrayed by Alan Mowbray, Helen Vinson and Donald MacBride.

"Rebecca" Departs

With Laurence Oliver and Joan Fontaine heading a cast of outstanding players and with a story filled with drama, suspense and mystery, David O. Selznick's latest production, "Rebecca" now closes a highly successful four days engagement at the Belle.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Range War"

"Range war," the newest and best of all the popular "Hopalong Cassidy" outdoor films, brimming with action, thrills and romance, will be presented to local audiences next at the Capitol. With William Boyd seen again as the hard-riding, straight-shooting "Hopalong," and Russell Hayden as "Lucky" his saddlemate of many a range adventure, the punch-packed Clarence E. Mulford yarn deals with "Hopalong's" efforts to trap a wily wealthy landowner who is trying to prevent ranchers from building a railroad spur which would make it unnecessary for them to pay tolls for their cattle to cross his property. Woven into the action of the story, is a romance involving Russell Hayden and Betty Moran, cast as the daughter of the rancher who is in charge of the building of the railroad spur, and 'Hopalong" has a new saddlemate in Britt "Speedy" Wood. harmonica-playing favorite. Lesley Selander directed, while Harry (Pop) Sherman produced for Paramount.

Second Feature

"Free, Blonde and 21"—on her own and in a dither about love — and so are all the brunettes and redheads at the swank Sherrington hotel for women in the new 20th Century-Fox picture.

Come and share the dramatic new adventures of all the exciting new lovelies at the Sherrington where the nights of drama are never twice the same.

Lynn Bari, Mary Beth Hughes, Joan Davis, Henry Wilcoxon, Robert Lowery, Alan Baxter, Katharine Aldridge, Helen Ericson and Chick Chandler are featured in "Free, Blonde and 21."

The film was directed by Ricardo Cortez. Sol M. Wurtzel was executive producer.

To complete the bill there is a cartoon, "Andy Panda Over Fishing" and the third chapter "The Phantom Creeps."

R.N.L.I. AWARDS

Wells, England (CP)—The Royal National Lifeboat Institution has awarded 5 pounds 6 shillings ($23.58) to members of its crew in this Norfolk village, who sought a missing tug 22 hours in The Wash, without food.

Joan Fontaine and Laurence Olivier co-starred in the suspenseful romantic melodrama, "Rebecca," at the Belle Theatre.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 8 —(CP)— Prices tightened up to show some gains on Toronto Exchange today. Trading continued on a limited scale, only 144,000 shares changing hands in the first hour.

Distillers-Seagrams advanced to a new high at 27 1-2, up 1-4 and the senior Oils gained fractions. International Pete going to 22 and Imperial to 13 7-8. Power issues continued a bit heavy. Steels were unchanged to slightly lower.

Secondary Golds displayed a strong tone around mid-day.

Little Long Lac, Macassa, Sylvanite, Wright-Hargreaves Teck Hughes and East Malartic added about 5 cents. Sherritt-Gordon advanced to 90 cents. Steep Rock and Hudson Bay were other strong spots in the Base Metal list.

The common shares of $100 par value of Russell Industries Limited were delisted today and the new shares of $10 par value were posted for trading on an if, as and when issued basis.

WALL STREET

New York, May 8—(AP)—Buyers took aboard a fair amount of Steels, aviations and specialties in today's stock market but ignored many leaders. Favorites tacked on gains running to 2 points or so. Dealings, lively for a while, slackened near the fourth hour.

Bethlehem, among steel stocks, went into new high ground for the year. Well in front at one time were U.S. Steel, Boeing, United Aircraft, Eastern Air Lines, American Airlines, Loft, U.S. Rubber, Great Northern, American Car and Foundry and Union Carbide.

Among Canadian issues Dome Mines and Canadian Pacific improved fractions. McIntyre was easy while Distillers rested stationary. Canada 4s, in the bond market, dipped 3-4 point. Motors held a slim trail, as did most utilities, coppers, rails and mail orders.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, May 8 (CP). — Cattle trade was slow up to mid-session on the livestock market today with prices strong to 25 cents higher in spots on steers and heifers. Veal calves, hogs, western and local lambs and sheep were steady. The holdover was 400 head of cattle.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 380, calves 460, hogs 850, sheep and lambs 520.

A few weighty steers sold at $6.50-$7.50. Butcher steers and heifers ranged from $6.50-$7.25. Butcher cows sold at $4.25-$5.25 with a few tops at $5.50. Fed calves brought $7.25-$8.50 and stockers sold at $5.50-$6.75.

Veal calves sold at $10-$10.50 for choice with common selling downward to $5.

Western lambs and a few locals sold at $11.25.

Sheep sold at $3-$7.

Hogs sold at $8.25 off-trucks for bacons and $11 dressedweight.

Montreal, May 8 (CP)—The Dominion Department of Agriculture reported today all classes of livestock remained steady in early trading on Montreal livestock markets. There were not enough cattle to make a market.

Receipts: Cattle 7; sheep and lambs 23; hogs 531; calves 543.

Calves were firm at $5.25 for common light veals and drinkers to $8 for tops. Common to just plain quality calves sold at $3.50-$5.60 with fair kinds at $6-$6.50.

A few spring lambs made $5-$8 each according to weight and quality. Sheep were $3.50-$6.

Hogs were steady at $8.50 for bacons fed and watered. Selects drew $1 per hog premium with the regulation cuts on off grades. Sows were mostly $5. Hogs sold on rail grade brought $11.50 hot weight.

Hog Quotations

Toronto, May 8 (CP)—Prices remained unchanged at bacon-hog markets reporting early today.

Dressedweight: Brantford $10.50, Hull $10.40, London $10.40 plus transportation, Stratford $10.40 plus transportation.

A later report from Chatham showed dressedweights lost 30 cents and liveweights 15 cents there. The quotations were dressedweight $10.30, liveweight $7.60.

RETIRED PUBLISHER DIES

Mamaroneck, N.Y., May 8. —(CP)—Frank Fulford Lovell, 76, retired publisher who was born in Montreal, died here yesterday of a heart attack. He is survived by his widow, three daughters, three sisters and a brother.

WAS INSPIRED CLERGY

London (CP)—The new edition of Crockford's Clerical Directory records that during the last year 590 men were ordained in Britain, the highest total for any year since 1914. Many are serving as army chaplains.

Britain Will Buy Canadian Eggs

Toronto, May 8—The announcement by the Dominion Department of Agriculture that Britain will buy Canadian eggs at a price fixed by the Ministry of Food did not influence the Toronto egg market yesterday as it was already anticipated by the local trade that such would be the case. What the trade is anxious to know is the level at which the price will be fixed.

Prices held previous levels yesterday, although the market showed an easier undertone in afternoon dealings, with supplies ample for current requirements. Egg production is reported to be running higher than last year due to a heavy chick hatch in the spring of 1939 and not due to increased war demand. Any surplus in receipts so far has been absorbed by storing operations and the substantially greater export movement overseas. The Department of Agriculture is not releasing any figures on Canadian egg exports.

Other lines traded quietly on the Toronto open produce market Tuesday.

Sellers could not interest buyers in offerings on the butter market and prices slipped 1-4 cent per pound. No. 1 grade Ontario creamery solids closed at 23c per pound. No sales were reported in the Western make.

Montreal Produce

Montreal, May 8 CP) — Produce market prices here yesterday, as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Butter: First grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 24 1-4c to 25c; first grade solids, jobbing price, 23 3-4c to 24 1-2c; Quebec No. 1 pasteurized, current receipt price, 22 3-4c; Quebec No. 2, 21 3-4c; Quebec No. 1 pasteurized, wholesale jobbing price, 23 1-8c; Quebec No. 2, 22 1-8c. Receipts: 437 boxes.

DEFENCES GEARED

(The Associated Press dispatch, dated New York, continues:

("This source, kept informed from Europe despite rigid restrictions against communications in the area involved, was the same which advised the Associated Press a short time previously that the Netherlands' minister in Washington had been ordered to take control of Holland's interests outside the mother country in event of a clash with Germany.

("This latter report was confirmed in Washington within a few minutes:

("The German troops were reported advancing rapidly, and this source stated flatly that they were heading 'for Leeuwarden and Arnheim.' This would mean that the actual German objective is believed known in Holland, since Leeuwarden is in Friesland province, not far from the northeast coast and the Frisian Islands which would provide jumping off places for planes attacking England.'" ("Arnheim, on the other hand, is inside southern Holland, about 10 miles north of the Belgian border, and is connected with Germany by rail.

("If this advice were correct, Germany would be preparing another 'scissors' movement such as it used so effectively in Poland—sharp, inward thrusts toward strategic points, the invading forces to spread out sidewise to occupy intervening territory after reaching their first objectives.

("Holland was prepared for a last ditch fight, the New York source said, although realizing that the present German movement might not actually touch the Netherlands border."

(In Washington the Netherlands Minister, Dr. A. Loudon, disclosed his government had directed him to act as General Paymaster for all Dutch diplomats and other officials abroad "in case of emergency.")

Outgoing telephone calls from Netherlands to all points abroad were cut off from 10 p.m. last night until 8 a.m. (2.40 a.m. EST) today, and a government announcement said the same restrictions would be in effect again tonight.

Incoming telephone calls from abroad were not affected by the "blackout" order, and telegraph service was only nominally disturbed.

Weather Broadcasts Omitted

An official explanation said that the action had been taken to reserve telephone lines for government use during the House specified.

(Radio announcements, picked up in New York, said that the customary Netherlands weather broadcasts would be omitted for the present "due to conditions which are known to you". The broadcasting of weather reports has been discontinued in belligerent countries since the start of the war.)

Meanwhile civilian railway travel throughout the Netherlands was sharply curtailed to facilitate the movements of thousands of soldiers and sailors called back to the colors by a sweeping order cancelling all leaves.

Orders also were issued barring ships from inland waterways and military guards were placed around all public buildings in Amsterdam and The Hague.

Whole of 1924 Class Called

Affected by the recall were members of the defence forces released on furlough several months ago, including the greater part of the army class of 1924, which is the oldest so far mobilized; the heavy classes of 1927 and 1928, and the cavalry classes of 1924, 1925 and 1926.

Also called back to the colors were reservists on leave to work in the fishing fleets, reservists of the merchant marine not working at present, and coal miners who had been released during the winter to increase fuel production.

Leaves have been cancelled previously on several occasions since the start of the European war, but the present order is more sweeping than any of those which have gone before.

The Netherlands has approximately 400,000 men under arms, although about 40,000 of that number have been absent from their posts since April 27 under a rotating system of leaves.

Information from Belgium, the Netherlands' southern neighbor, indicated that no cancellation of army leaves was contemplated there for the present.

D.N.B. Blames Britain

Berlin May 8.— (AP)—D.N.B., German News Agency, claimed today that the British information service was responsible for circulation of reports that two German armies are marching toward the Netherlands frontier.

"The uncovering of British plans in southeastern Europe" D.N.B. said, "has made such an impression on the affected nations that English war agitators are snatching at a distracting manoeuvre which is as stupid as it is clumsy".

The Agency's words "uncovering of British plans in southeastern Europe" apparently referred to a German declaration yesterday concerning the interception of an alleged telephone conversation between French Premier Paul Reynaud and Prime Minister Chamberlain. The conversation was claimed to have dealt with Allied plans for action in the Mediterranean on or before May 20.

(French authorities denied the two leaders had held a telephone conversation at all and officials in London described the Berlin story as "fantastic".)

CHANGES IN GOV'T OF CHAMBERLAIN

Mr. Churchill indicated he would accept the challenge to tell why British warships made no attempt to capture Trondheim.

Last night he smiled reassuringly when Sir Roger, a long time friend, said he expected a sharp counter-attack.

Attack on Churchill

Sir Roger, a brightly uniformed figure, with rows of ribbons on his chest, directed his scathing attack full at Churchill.

He said the story of the Norwegian campaign might have been different "if only we had used our fleet courageously . . . our general advancing from Steinkjer to Trondheim expected British ships to support him—not two German destroyers who fired on his flank, landed troops behind his advance forces, and captured or destroyed them."

He declared the Trondheim operation he advocated "would have been trifling compared with others I have organized and led."

Sir Roger commanded successful and spectacular operations against the Germans at Zeebrugge and Ostend, Belgium, in the first Great War.

Mr. Churchill, now entrusted personally by Mr. Chamberlain to direct all the strategy of Britain's fighting services, will have the last say for the government tonight.

Informed circles said the Opposition in calling for a vote of censure of the government could count on not more than a score of Conservative members of parliament to join it.

Tory rebels, in a conference last night, were reported to have decided against precipitating a cabinet crisis at this time.

Changes in Government Seen

Political observers agreed, however, that Mr. Chamberlain, while weathering the storm of criticism this time, eventually would be forced to make changes in his government.

Mr. Chamberlain himself indicated this was in his mind when he told Commons, "I want to get the co-operation of all parties in the work which everyone recognizes to be the prime need of the day."

So far the Labor party has refused to participate in any coalition government under Mr. Chamberlain's leadership.

The Daily Herald, chief Labor newspaper, today predicted government changes "involving the possible resignation" of Mr. Chamberlain but said, "events will not take this drastic turn at once."

The Liberal News-Chronicle declared: "The government must go and the sooner it goes the better for the safety of the realm."

Times Strikes Critical Note

Even the Conservative Times struck a critical note. Commenting on Mr. Chamberlain's warning of imminent danger the Times said: "The people are in fact very well aware that they face a threat that has not been paralleled in centuries, not even 25 years ago; they are absolutely resolute to face whatever may befall and their most oppressive doubt is whether their rulers are as conscious of the danger and as energetic to withstanding it as themselves."

The Daily Telegraph, usually pro-government, offered the friendliest comment.

It said: "On many of the main issues Mr. Chamberlain's defence of the government's decisions—for the speech must be called defensive—proved convincing."

POLISH TROOPS LAND NEAR NARVIK

French Fool Germans

Streaming up the road from the Steinkjer front about 50 miles south of Namsos, we entered the port as a terrific bombing was taking place. Incendiary bombs set fire to the whole waterfront, with swift pursuit planes intermittently sweeping down to strafe the roads with machine guns.

To fool the Germans, the French had sent trucks toward the front while their soldiers, on foot, were leaving it. All the trucks were empty and, arriving at secluded spots, they were smashed, their tires slashed and their gas tanks riddled. The drivers walked back.

Immediately after the French had withdrawn the British forces received orders to proceed to the docks. Leaving behind equipment, personal belongings and much material which had arrived only that afternoon, the troops began embarking.

British Board Transports

Various regiments which had abandoned the Steinkjer front under forced march through knee-deep snow covered 52 kilometers (about 32 miles) in less than 14 hours. Dog-tired, they boarded the transports in the eerie light of burning supplies and flopped where they could on every deck.

It still was light when we left. No German planes were in sight. But peace was not for us. Just after a breakfastless early morning departure, the first Heinkels appeared and the cannonading began. Bombs dropped all around the convoy ships, especially ours which was the flagship.

One bomb—apparently a 500-pounder—fell less than 50 yards astern—so close its splash fell on the afterdeck. Not content with that miss, three more Heinkels dropped a series of chaplet bombs—small incendiary missiles— which formed a perfect spray framing the ship.

Norwegian Minister in France

Koht, who came here by plane, went immediately into conference with Premier Reynaud. He subsequently was guest of honor at a luncheon attended by the Premier, Defence Minister Edoaurd Daladier.

Military sources said that a strong Polish force was sent to the Narvik zone, which was described as blanketed by continuing heavy snowstorms.

Norwegian "guerilla" units were credited with new successes in the Roros sector, where they were said to be emulating the harassing tactics used so tellingly against the Red army by Finnish patrols.

While a German advance guard has entered Namsos, there is no basis to reports that Molde and other ports have been taken over by the invaders. It was insisted here.

While no exceptional German military movements were reported here from the Netherlands' border, French army sources emphasized that the possibility of Nazi "Blitzkrieg" against the Dutch was not to be discounted. The threat of German aggression has been constantly hanging over the Netherlands since German troops were first massed along the border in the early days of the war, it was pointed out.

Mine-laying Cruiser Damaged.

The Naval Ministry disclosed last night that the mine-laying cruiser Emile Bertin, 5,886 tons, one of the fastest ships in the French Navy, was struck by a heavy bomb and slightly damaged while convoying troops to Namsos, Norway, late in April. The attack occurred in the Namsos fjord.

The calm prevailing along the western front was broken only by rather intense artillery action in the sectors around the Blies River and to the west of the Vosges foothills. Patrol operations were carried out in the Nied River zone, but no fighting was reported. Despite improving weather conditions, there was little activity in the air.

German fliers went over the lines on reconnaissance flights which took them as far as the Paris area. No air fighting was reported. French planes meanwhile flew deep into Germany and scouted enemy positions along the westwall.

This morning's official communique merely advised that "artillery action by both sides continued during the night along different points of the front."

The French cabinet will meet tomorrow under Premier Reynaud.

NOTED JOURNALIST KILLED BY FALL

His last assignment was in Finland, where he covered the fighting around Lake Ladoga. Before the war broke out in Finland he was with the British Expeditionary Forces in France.

Career Summarized in Book

His career was summarized in his autobiographic book "I Found No Peace," published in 1936. In his own words, he had "a grandstand seat at the most momentous show in history."

He covered the Sinn Fein uprising in Ireland, visited the British front in France and in 1918 served as war correspondent on the American front during heavy fighting.

After the war, Miller covered the Cannes conference, where he met a fellow reporter—Benito Mussolini. Ten years later he interviewed Il Duce in Rome.

He covered the Riff campaign in Morocco in 1925, the civil disobedience campaign fostered by Mohandas Gandhi in India in 1930, the Italian invasion of Ethiopia, the fall of the Alcazar in the Spanish civil war, the Munich conference and the German march in Czecho-Slovakia.

One of his biggest peacetime assignments was the abdication of King Edward VIII, and in the following months he witnessed the coronation of King George VI. and the marriage in France of the Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Warfield.

Last year Miller accompanied King George and Queen Elizabeth on their tour of Canada and the United States, then returned to Europe where again he "found no peace."

'L. G.' SUGGESTS

said, were largely suffered when an airdrome on a frozen lake was bombed.

Prime Minister Speaks.

Mr. Chamberlain said:

"The Right Honorable, Gentleman (Mr. Morrison) began his speech by emphasizing the gravity of the situation.

"What he has said—the challenge that he has thrown out at the government in general and the attack he has made upon them and upon me in particular makes it graver still.

"But it is grave not because of any personal considerations—none of us would for a moment desire to hold on to office for a moment longer than we retain the confidence of this House—but because, as I warned the House yesterday, this is a time of national danger.

"We are facing a relentless enemy who must be fought by the united action of this country.

Public and Parliamentary Support

"It may well be it is a duty to criticize the government. I do not seek to evade criticism, but I say to my friends in the House—and I have friends in the House—no government can prosecute a war efficiently unless they have public and parliamentary support

"I accept the challenge. I welcome it, indeed. At least we shall see who is with us and who is against us.

"I call on my friends to support us in the lobby tonight".

Cheers rang out from government benches as the Prime Minister sat down.

The motion on which the vote is to be taken was not filled in written form in advance.

Mr. Morrison's announcement that he would call for a division means that when the time comes for the House to adjourn Labor will demand a vote.

Decision to force a vote was made at a Labor Party meeting.

Before the vote, Winston Churchill First Lord of the Admiralty, will conclude the debate for the government.

TAKE 3 CHAMBERLAIN .. ....k

Loss of Anti-Aircraft Guns

In the House of Lords, Lord Hankey, a member of the war cabinet without portfolio, disclosed that "one of our greatest losses" in the campaign was April 20 when "a ship in convoy loaded with anti-aircraft guns and other valuable stores was torpedoed and sunk."

Sir Samuel Hoare also announced the loss in the House of Commons and said that this, with the lack of bases for fighter aircraft, gave the Germans mastery in the air.

Late in the afternoon David Lloyd George picked up the attack on the government.

'L. G.' Charges Force 'Half-Baked'

"Our prestige in the world" was made dependent on "this half-prepared, half-baked expeditionary force," he declared, accusing the Allied command of having gambled on the chance of getting an air base and of not sending the best men available to Norway.

"What we want" said the Prime Minister of the last war "is real action—not sham action." He called on the government to tell the Empire the full truth of the reality of the peril and said that Hitler's greatest triumph is that he has put Britain "into greater jeopardy" than she had ever been in.

Narvik Situation.

Replying to a question before the main debate began, Prime Minister Chamberlain said the government is "keeping fully in mind" the consideration that British forces at Narvik, Norway's northern iron ore port, should not be exposed to severe risks until full air support has been established.

The prime minister made no reply when Hugh Dalton asked "Have we also in mind the possibility of Narvik being evacuated in the next week or two?" Cries of "Shame! Shame!" greeted the Labor member's question.

Herbert Morrison, Labor leader in the London County Council, was the first speaker for the opposition in the main debate. He remarked that the prime minister "seems to be conscious of shortcomings on the part of the government."

Nor did the Secretary of War, Oliver Stanley, appear to be "a minister confident about his business and his case," the Labor front-bencher declared. Mr. Stanley wound up the first day of debate for the government last night.

Morrison Makes Charges.

Mr. Morrison charged that Mr. Churchill's speech had been placed last by the government against Labor's wishes.

"There can be no comment on his evidence," he remarked.

The opposition speaker compared Mr. Churchill to a chief witness "who refused to go into the witness box."

Mr. Morrison said the government appeared to be "merely discharging a moral obligation or protecting themselves from criticism on moral grounds," by the Norwegian campaign.

He asked that the House be told of the state of the British Intelligence Service in Norway prior to the invasion and when the government had been informed of the German attack.

He spoke of the "weakness" of British diplomacy before the war and said he could not believe that the Scandinavian attitude toward Britain would have been "as incompletely satisfactory" if the diplomatic job had been well done.

The Labor member said "I would sooner be able to boast about the success of landing operations than of evacuation operations, brilliant though they may be."

Says Proper Preparation Lacking in Norway

He said it appeared that Britain had not surveyed Norway for airdromes, landing grounds, gas dumps or means to check German sea communications. There was no evidence, he charged, of "proper preparation."

If the Germans have an airdrome in the Narvik area which fighter planes can use, "Why do we not capture it and use it?" Mr. Morrison demanded.

"Is the government using the First Lord of the Admiralty as something of a shield?" he asked. "When the government is in trouble and open to criticism they bring the First Lord into the shop window in the belief that that will satisfy public criticism."

He called it "unfair" to give Mr. Churchill responsibility for "policy which he cannot possibly carry."

Ministers Attacked

"The whole spirit, temper and temperament of the ministers is wrong, inadequate and unsuitable," Mr. Morrison charged, saying he referred particularly to Mr. Chamberlain, Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Sir Samuel Hoare, Secretary for air.

These ministers, he said, lack "courage, initiative, imagination, psychological understanding, liveliness and self respect in the conduct of foreign policy."

"I feel with all genuineness that if these men and others remain in office we run a grave risk of losing this war.

"One of the most terrible things is that in the eyes of the neutral world British prestige has been badly let down "

Mr. Morrison referred to an editorial in The Sun of Sydney, Australia, which said there is "grave doubt throughout the Empire as to the Government's capacity to put the necessary drive into war action".

This, the speaker said, is "a reflection of Australian opinion which none of us can afford to ignore".

The Labor speaker concluded by saying the Opposition would call for a vote at the end of the debate.

The Prime Minister took the floor when Mr. Morrison sat down and declared that he and his colleagues "will not be slow to accept their responsibility' for the actions of the government.

'Time of National Danger', Says Premier

"This is a time of National danger," Mr. Chamberlain said. "We are facing a relentless enemy who must be fought by the united action of this country.

"We shall see who is with us and who is against us. No government can prosecute the war efficiently unless they have public and parliamentary support".

He declared the situation "is grave not because of any personal consideration" but because of the looming Nazi menace.

"None of us desire to hold on to office for a moment longer than we retain the confidence of this House", Mr. Chamberlain declared.

The debate was resumed by Sir Samuel Hoare, who declared German air losses have been "three times those of Britain" in the last month of war in Scandinavia.

Success of British Planes in Air

The Air Minister said that in 15 hours 30 German planes had been "put out of action" by a British squadron of 18 machines.

"Not one of the British machines was brought down in the air," he said. "But the greater part were afterwards put out of action on the ground."

Describing the establishment of the first British fighter airdrome on a frozen lake, the Air Minister disclosed that 80 German bombers bombed it for fifteen hours.

"Did we under-rate the power of the enemy?" is the central question arising from the Norwegian operations, Sir Samuel told the House.

The planes were Gloster Gladiators. The base was on a frozen lake a few miles behind Dombas, southeast of Trondheim. The King conferred "a number of decorations on this very gallant squadron," the minister said.

Foe Concentrates on Lake

The planes flew to the base through a severe snowstorm, but the German high command "concontracted on lake." There were no anti-aircraft guns, he disclosed because arrangements for transporting such equipment were "upset" by the sinking of a ship.

"As long as we had no air bases from which our fighters could operate, there was nothing that we could have done that we did not attempt to do during the last four weeks," the Air Minister declared.

"No Unavoidable Delay," Claimed

He said a "meticulous" investigation of the air operations in Norway "would show that in no respect was there any avoidable delay."

Sir Samuel assured the House that where Britain had fighters available "we have shown how well they can cope with the German bombers."

He conceded that the "quantity of British machines" is not nearly big enough but declared their quality is "unsurpassed."

"We have to make every effort to give the air force many more machines than they have at present," Sir Samuel said, adding that production already is considerable and is gathering momentum.

David Lloyd George, Liberal, told the House that "we knew there were no air bases available and that they were in the hands of the enemy."

"Gambled Chance of Air Base."

"We ought to have had combined action between the army and the navy, we ought to have sent the very best men available," the prime minister of the first Great War said.

Mr. Lloyd George said Britain "gambled" on the chance of getting an air base.

"Our prestige in the world" was made dependent on "this half-prepared, half-baked expeditionary force," he declared.

"There is no cause for panic, but a grave cause for pulling ourselves together."

The House cheered.

"Real Action" Demanded.

"What we want is real action—not sham action," he said.

The British Empire, Mr. Lloyd George continued, would not be roused to its full strength "unless you tell the facts of the reality of the peril."

Hitler, he declared, had put Britain "into jeopardy more than his predecessors and Germany into a "better strategical position".

He called this Hitler's "greatest triumph".

Hitler, he added scornfully, "does not answer to the whips of the party."

He told the House that Norway, "one of the great strategic possibilities" of the war, is in German hands because "we were too late, although we had the warning of ships in the Baltic".

Cries of "shame! shame!" echoed through the House when Mr. Lloyd George declared that "British promissory notes are now rubbish in the market."

"We have to restore our prestige in the world if ever we are to win

Take 9 Chamberlain e3o

"We are in the worst strategic position that this country has ever been placed in", he said in demanding whether any man in the House was satisfied with the speed and efficiency of the preparations for the air force, the army, and the navy.

"For three or four years past, everything done has been half-hearted, ineffective, without drive, and unintelligent. The Prime Minister has met this formidable foe (Hitler) in peace and war. He has always been worsted".

"There is nothing that would contribute more to victory in this war", said Mr. Lloyd George, than that the Prime Minister should "sacrifice his seals of office".

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma woke pop up exter early again this morning so he could walk down to the office for his health and figure, and tonight we were eating supper and pop said, I've got an appetite like a horse. Now I know why horses are such harty easters. It's all that walking, he said.

Is it just a passing flash in the pan or are you going to make it a religious practice, that's the main thing, ma said, and pop said, I've done it for 2 days straight now, that's the remarkable thing. Speaking of horses and eating, I could eat a horse. I believe I could even throw one, if it cooperated a little. By gollies it's an amazing thing what a brisk early morning walk can do for a man. I believe it's even improved my waste line a little already, have you noticed it? he said.

Now Willyum, there's no use looking for miracles in an age scientific reality, ma said. Do you know a man named Trumpeter or something? she said, and pop said, I know a man named Hornblower.

That's the name, ma said. He telephoned and he wants you to be sure to call him up on some business matter. It seems he has some additional information on whatever you were discussing coming home on the buss this afternoon, she said, and pop said, Righto,, only it wasn't coming up this afternoon, it was going down this morning.

Why Willyum, how could you be in a bus this morning when you walked? ma said, and pop said, O, that, I see what you mean. I walked half way, and I must of overdone the briskness part of it because I felt exactly as if I had walked the full distance, so I did the logical thing and rode the rest of the way. You must wake me up early again some time soon, he said.

Every morning, you may rest assured, such a man, ma said.

Meaning pop.

ITALY INTENDS TO REMAIN AT PEACE WITH THE BALKANS

Virginio Gayda, Writing in Paper, Makes This Statement in Arguing Any British Blockade Would Fail

NOT ABANDONING CLAIM

"Claim to Freedom" in the Mediterranean Still Uppermost in Minds of Italians, Says Writer

Rome, May 8 (AP). — Virginio Gayda, writing in Il Giornale d'Italia, declared today that Italy "intends to remain in peace and friendly cooperation" with the Balkan countries.

His statement was made in arguing that any British blockade of Italy at Gibraltar would fail because essential supplies could be obtained from the Balkans.

Il Messaggero accused the Allies of spreading false reports and said accounts of strong Italian troop reinforcements on the Yugoslav frontier were false.

Gayda said that Gibraltar could not change Italy's position and decision. But, he added, this did not mean that Italy was abandoning her "claim to freedom" in the Mediterranean.

"Gibraltar and Suez," Gayda said, "like other systems created by two imperial democracies on the Mediterranean shores remain an ever obvious expression of an intolerable hegemony which, although it can be faced vigorously in case of war, means a regime which cannot justify itself in any way with the European order of justice and liberty for all nations."

Fascist newspapers published and thereby gave authority to a Moscow report that Italy would enter the war only if the Allies violated Balkan neutrality. The article was reproduced from the Soviet Trades Union newspaper Trud and coincided with diplomatic opinion in Rome.

"Italy's prudent position of non-belligerency let it be supposed that Mussolini is awaiting the most opportune moment to set in motion his program and become the master of the Mediterranean," Trud said.

This moment, Trud continued, would be "when the belligerents exhausted their forces and the intervention of fresh Italian troops could assure the superiority of one camp over the other. It is difficult for anyone in Italy to suppose such a moment has arrived."

Trud said Italy lacked raw materials for a long war and her intervention now would fail to end the war in a short time. Therefore, it added, talk of Italy entering the war could be considered "only a threat probably intended to prevent Anglo-French violation of Balkan neutrality which would no doubt bring Italy's immediate intervention if it came about."

Fisherman Adrift For Several Hours

South Bay, May 8—On his way home, when the engine of his open boat went out of commission, Kenneth McConnell, Black Creek, False Duck Island lighthouse keeper, was adrift for several hours on South Bay waters, when he was sighted and picked up by Clayton Dulmage, Point Traverse fisherman, with his fishing craft.

In June, 1932, Mr. McConnell lost his fast speed boat and was marooned on uninhabited Timber Island, off Point Traverse, for three days, before being rescued by fishermen from the Point Traverse fishing colony.

Flocks of sheep in the Point Traverse vicinity are being worried by foxes, farmers of that district report.

These crafty animals enter flocks of sheep in broad daylight, and farmers are taking precautions, as it is known that small lambs are easy prey to these stealthy creatures, and that little lambs have been carried off to fox dens, as the remains of young lambs have been found in their lairs.

Farmers' shotguns have failed to rout these bold foxes from the flocks.

Half a million of trout and whitefish fry were released into waters of Point Traverse last week.

MEXICO SETTLES FOR $8,500,000

Mexico City, May 8 (AP).—Mexico announced officially today she had settled for $8,500,000 the expropriation claims of the Consolidated Oil Corporation (Sinclair) and declared that demonstrated her "desire and capacity" to pay for the petroleum properties seized from foreign oil companies more than two years ago.

Secretary of Treasury Eduardo Surarez, in announcing the settlement, said it represented "total payment" to be made for the Sinclair properties in Mexico.

Mexico has reached no settlement with firms hardest hit by the expropriation—the Royal Dutch interests of Great Britain and the Netherlands and Standard Oil of New Jersey. Nor has she settled with any other companies affected by President Lazaro Cardenas' expropriation decree of March 18, 1938, by which the government seized virtually every foreign-owned oil property in the republic. The total value of the properties has been estimated as high as $400,000,000.

ANTI-ESPIONAGE CONTROL TIGHTER IN YUGOSLAVIA

All Railway Stations Placed Under Military Command Following Upon Arrest and Expulsion of 3 Italian Officers Reported

Rakek, Yugoslavia (at the Italian Border), May 8—(AP)—Yugoslavia tightened her anti-espionage control and placed all railway stations under military command today following upon reports of the arrest and expulsion of three Italian army officers.

Government officials denied the report, but informed circles said the authorities at the important Dalmatian railroad centre of Knin had seized three Italian officers in possession of new photographs of Yugoslav fortifications.

Catholics in Crotia and Slovenia anxiously awaited the outcome of talks at the Vatican by Bishop Luigi Stepinac, leading Yugoslav Catholic prelate, who has been called to Vatican City.

Yugoslav quarters generally faced the darkening International outlook with calmness, though many expressed the belief that if war comes their country would be caught in the military pincers of the Rome-Berlin axis.

Many informed Yugoslavs feared that Italy would use her base at Zara on the Dalmatian coast to thrust behind Yugoslavia's strongly fortified frontier with Germany and try to outflank Yugoslav forces east of Maribor, key point in the country's northern defences.

Closes 31 Years With C. P. Railway As Section Foreman

Albert J. McMillan Has Spent Entire Railroad Career at Ivanhoe

Ivanhoe, May 8—Completion of thirty-one years of service with the C.P.R. for Albert J. McMillan was recently marked. Section foreman since 1914, Mr. McMillan spent all his railroading life at Ivanhoe, and the company has lost one of its most faithful employees.

On the eve of his superannuation his fellow employees at Ivanhoe gathered together and presented him with a rocking chair in which to spend many hours of comfort.

With speeches by Mr. H. Tummon, who has been with Mr. McMillan for the past twenty years, and fellow employees, the party broke up with cheers and songs of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," and best wishes for many happy years to enjoy his pension.

Junior Farmers, Sidney Township Now in Contest

So successful was the farm and home improvement contest inaugurated by the Sidney Township Junior Farmers Club, that a similar function has been decided upon for 1940. Last year eighteen entrants participated, but at present twenty-one have signified their intention of participating with many more expected.

According to officials of the club, the Farm and Home Improvement project has been well received in Ontario. Last year there were 48 contests with a total of 1,035 farmers entered.

J. R. Pickering, B.A., B. Paed., Belleville, will head a trio of judges here. Judging will commence early next week and will continue through the summer months. The following farmers have already entered: M. C. Reynolds, Foxboro; B. R. Searles, Stirling; Clarence Holmes, Belleville R. 3; L. J. Ketcheson, Foxboro; Omar Chisholm, Belleville R. 1; Kenneth Faul, Belleville R. 2; Cecil Sine, Foxboro; Lorne Badgeley, Belleville R. 2; Malcolm Sine, Belleville R. 2; G. M. Ketcheson, Foxboro; G. D. McCullough, Foxboro; R. Christie, Foxboro; Harry Lott, Belleville R. 2; Berson Mitts, Holloway; Stanley Sherry, Foxboro; David Hollinger, Stirling; D. Longwell, Foxboro; Benson Bonisteel, Trenton; C. Ketcheson, Trenton; Ray Hall, Trenton R. 5; Frank Moon, Frankford.

It will be the first broadcast by the Earl of Athlone since his recent appointment and is scheduled for five minutes.

MUST IMPROVE WORLD FOR SAKE OF THE CHILDREN

So Says Superintendent T. D. Ruston of Children's Aid Society

FOSTER HOMES

Superintendent Thos. D. Ruston in his report of the Children's Aid Society drew attention to the conditions of today.

"We gather with a war cloud over us and everything is bent to one end, that of winning the fight for righteous principles we hold dear. Many claims have been laid before the public calling for assistance but through it all the society has much to be thankful for, and under its fostering care and restraining influence many a child has been helped and given a better and brighter outlook on life's journey, and we must not relax our efforts. The call is loud and clear, we must endeavor to make this world better for the little ones to live in.

"You will note that we have been able to carry on efficiently without making an appeal to the public for financial aid.

"It is now the established policy of the society, that to take children permanently from their parents must be the last resort.

Only 3 Permanent Wards Made

"Only three children have been made permanent wards this year. Forty-four were made temporary wards and we are hoping and believing that a number of these children will be re-established satisfactorily in their own homes, but before that can take place time and effort will have to be spent on the homes to make them fit places for children to live.

Twenty-two children have been adopted by their foster-parents, nineteen were non-wards and three were wards. We have now nineteen placed upon adoption probation.

Clothing

In the clothing report of the year Mrs. D. Wardle for the committee pointed out:

"We have bought all the goods for the girls' dresses and have had them all made by hand, and we can look with pride upon our wards and they can mix with other children without having any feeling of inferiority complex.

"Clothing and materials amounting to $1940.27 have been purchased. Average cost per child, $16.29 per year.

"We may point out the low cost is greatly due to the careful selection of the foster homes. This is of great importance and aid to the buying committee. Foster mothers who sew, take better care of the clothing and make many things themselves thus saving the Society considerable expense. We extend our most sincere thanks to the foster parents of our wards and to every one who has so cheerfully given us assistance."

Tribute to the high efficiency and co-operation of "such a splendid band of willing workers" was paid to his associates by President H. B. Fetterley in his address. He paid special tribute to Miss Marjorie Robins, assistant superintendent and the fine work done by her as a social worker. Of Mr. Ruston, he said. "I cannot praise him too highly for his efficieny and devotion to duty."

Personal development of foster children, she said furnished problems which the ordinary mother raising her own family would not be called upon to meet. The board's decision to give these children private family care instead of institutional care seems to have amply justified itself, was Miss Robins' opinion. "It is a satisfaction that I wish all could enjoy to see these children growing into independent sturdy youngsters, bright-eyed and curious."

Foster Homes Praised

These homes, besides giving children opportunity for personal affection and for growth in a natural environment often provide roots in a community which give the wards a feeling of belonging. Miss Robins congratulated the Society on the type of foster homes secured for the children. "Much is demanded of these parents and much is given," she said. "I feel we owe an expression of appreciation to these families who are cooperating with us in helping our children to grow up. We could do little without them."

The society is also fortunate in having two fine receiving homes which take the children as they first come to the society, clean them up, and get them started in acceptable habits.

James K. Penfield, of the Far Eastern division of the U.S. state department, who will sail on May 10 aboard the coastguard cutter Comanche to Godthaab, Greenland, where he will establish a U.S. consulate and take the post as consul. Since Greenland belongs to Denmark which, theoretically at least, has been absorbed by Germany, the United States finds it advisable to have direct representation there.

RED COMMANDERS NOW MARSHALS OR MAJ.-GENERALS

War Commissar Voroshiloff Becomes Chairman of Committee of Defence

NEW NAVAL TITLES

Moscow, May 8.—(AP)—Soviet Russia's War Commissar, Klementi Efremovich Voroshiloff, generally credited with a major part in building up the Red Army, has been transferred to the post of assistant chairman of the Council of Commissars and Chairman of a Committee of Defence under the Council.

Marshall Semyon Timoshenko, commander of the Kiev Military district in southwestern Russia was named Commissar of Defence, and Marshal of the Soviet Union.

That military title also was given Commander Boris M. Shaposhnikoff, Army Chief of Staff, and Commander Girgory Kulik.

The government, through the Tass News Agency, announced that Russia's higher army officers, heretofore designated only as commanders, will be given titles ranging from marshal of the Soviet Union to major-general, and naval officers of higher rank will be designated in ranks from fleet admiral to rear admiral.

Voroshiloff convinced that Red Russia could expect at any time a war at the hands of a capitalist power or a group of powers, organized a general staff, mechanized Red Army forces, built up a large air arm and backed such novel military ideas as parachute infantry.

Voroshiloff's tenure as war commissar covered the 105-day war with Finland, concluded March 13.

NORWEGIAN KING QUITE CONFIDENT

King Haakon Proclaims His Country's Determination "to Hold Out Until Norway is Free Again"

Stockholm, May 8 (AP)— King Haakon of Norway, a fugitive from the German invaders of his country, has proclaimed his government's determination "to hold out until our country is free again."

He hinted that important new help is expected.

A statement, dated "somewhere in Norway" and released last night through the Norwegian News Bureau, said in part:

"In northern Norway we still are holding strong positions. With the help now planned, we will succeed in retaining other parts of the country.

"The superiority of the enemy in numbers and technically on land and in the air has forced our retreat.

"We have reason to believe that this soon will be changed. Our morale unbroken, I and my government have decided to hold out until our country is free again."

The Norwegian legation in Stockholm announced that the legation staff in German-occupied Denmark would leave Copenhagen Thursday, presumably returning to Norway.

The Swedish legation in Copenhagen will take over Norwegian interests.

Council Delays Purchase of Trousers For Police Chief

Hastings, Ont., May 8 —(CP)— Town council is holding up Police Chief William Wellman's new official trousers until the Chief promises he won't wear them while fixing automobiles.

He's town constable and a motor mechanic and was recently granted a new pair of blue trousers to match the uniform he now wears. He refused to promise he wouldn't wear them at work, however, and the purchase has been postponed.

THREE ARRESTED AT PETERBOROUGH AFTER WILD CHASE

Arraigned on Two Charges of Breaking and Entering and One of Theft of Car

TRAVEL 95 M.P.H.

Peterborough, Ont., May 8—(CP) —A wild automobile chase in which shots were fired by police today resulted in three Toronto men being arraigned in magistrate's court on two charges of breaking and entering and one of car theft.

The men who gave their names as George Purcell, Morris Henderson and Ernest St. Louis, pleaded not guilty and were remanded for one week. They are charged with entering a garage at nearby Lakefield, stealing gasoline from a garage at Bridgenorth and theft of an automobile in Ottawa.

First word of activities of burglars in the district came to Peterborough police from Clarence Foster, Lakefield garage mechanic, who surprised three men who had entered his garage last night before they had an opportunity to gain any loot. As the men fled in a car, Foster fired at them with a shotgun.

Sergeant W. E. Wigg and Constable W. A. Clarke drove to Bridgenorth with hopes of apprehending the men but only sighted an empty automobile in front of Bell's garage. Patrolling Peterborough streets early today, the officers noted the same machine they had seen in Peterborough.

Officer Empties Revolver

By the time the officers turned their car to take up the chase, the fugitive machine was travelling at top speed. The chase finally ended on Highway 28 after Constable Clarke emptied his revolver firing at the pursued car.

"It was a wild chase," said Sergeant Wigg. "We were travelling at 95 miles an hour at times and the three in the other machine showed no signs of slowing up. When we reached the Kawartha Golf Club we had closed the gap to 50 feet but they held the centre of the road. Then Constable Clarke started firing and they slowed down and allowed us to overhaul them."

As the cars roared along the highway, police said the fugitives threw articles from the windows. In a later search officers picked up a pinch bar and five pairs of rubber gloves. The serial number of the automobile in which the men were riding showed it to be one reported stolen in Ottawa last April 25. The license markers had been changed.

WAR BRIEFS

Helsinki, May 8 (CP-Havas)).—Norwegians were ordered to keep on fighting in a proclamation issued by the Norwegian high command today through the Norsk Telegrambyrå (Norwegian Telegraph Agency).

"We must not abandon the fight," the high command declared. "It goes on, and we shall conquer because right is on our side."

The Hague, May 8 (CP-Havas).—Because of the heavy burden due to the war, the government today decided to split the Ministry of Economic Affairs into two ministries.

One, the Ministry of Commerce, Industry and and Merchant Marine, will be headed by Dr. M. P. L. Steenberghe, the present minister. The second will be the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries, which will be headed by A. A. Van Rhijn, present secretary general of the Department of Economic Affairs.

Calgary, May 8 (CP)—Denmark may be technically a part of the German Reich today, but Calgarians of Danish descent will have no part of Nazism.

Last night 300 of them met to re-affirm their loyalty to Canada, the British Empire and the Allied cause. A unanimous resolution to that effect was sent by telegram to Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

Officer Awarded D.F.C. Once Drove Milk Wagon

Toronto, May 8—(CP)— Pilot Officer David Willis of the Royal Air Force, awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross in London for gallantry and devotion to duty, once drove a milk wagon here and later was employed by the Ontario Department of Labor, it was learned here today.

He was listed as a Winnipeg resident in London dispatches, but friends here said they did not know of his having lived there.

At Queen's Park, Labor Department employees were enthusiastic and cabled congratulations to the husky young flier. They "adopted" him when war began and have kept him supplied with cigarettes and other comforts.

They said shortly after the raid over Berlin, for which Willis was decorated he walked into a moving propeller and was badly hurt.

He had been in hospital in Edinburgh with one arm and leg partly paralyzed, but expressed hope in letters he would be back with his flight squadron by fall.

His parents are dead and he lived here with an aunt, Mrs. W. F. Harvey. He drove the milk wagon while attending high school.

INDOOR SWIMMING SEASON AT "Y" NOW IS CLOSED

Swimming Certificates Presented by Officials of Organization

A GOOD SEASON

The indoor swimming season at the local Y.M.C.A. was officially brought to a close last evening, when the various swimming classes of the "Y" gathered for the Junior Decoration Banquet and for the presentation of certificates and pins. Mr. J. E. Shortt, Secretary of the "Y" acted as master of ceremonies for the evening's entertainment, while Mr. Newton Thompson, President of the Y.M.C.A., Mr. Homer Thomas, President of the Y's Men's Club and Mr. Russell Wotten, Past Pres. of the Y.M.C.A., presented the certificates and pins to the boys. Russell Wotten acted as pianist for the program of community singing enjoyed by the boys and Mr. Philip Flagler gave a number of readings.

The highlight of the evening was the presentation of crests to the victorious junior swimming team, the "Eagles", which had copped the swimming honors of the season.

Beginners Certificates

Following the banquet the Beginners Certificates and pins were presented to the beginners class by Homer Thomas. The boys receiving the certificates and pins were: D. Ashley, Stuart Blake, Donald Boyce, Gerald Cooper, Richard Frost, William Holway, Thomas Hutchinson, James Jackson, George Lancaster, Douglas Legate, Garfield Little, Donald Moore, James Mills, Bruce McRae, Bruce Parsons, William Adams, Jack Hagan, Roy Robinson, Joseph Pritchard, Grant Locke, Harry Derushie, William Stephenson, Harvey Dawkins, Dick Hutchinson, Joseph Burshaw, Robert Haggerty, Lorne Burrows, Robert Arnott, Lyall Cross, Wesley Miflin, Gordon Miflin, Douglas Lovering, George Garrow, Vernon Flindall, Glen Denike. Cameron Snell received his pin only, as the certificate had been presented at a prior date.

Swimmers Certificates

The Swimmer Certificates and pins were presented to the following boys by Russell Wotten: Douglas Ashley, Donald Boyce, Thomas Hutchinson, George Lancaster, Douglas Legate, Donald Moore, James Milles, Bruce Parsons, Cameron Snell, Stanley Wiggins, George Wonnacott, Roy Robinson, Joseph Pritchard, Kenneth Campbell, William Stephenson, Harvey Dawkins, Richard Hutchinson, George Garrow. The last four named boys received only pins and will get their certificates later.

The Advanced Swimmer certificates were presented by Newton Thompson to the following boys: George Lancaster, Donald Moore and Stanley Wiggins.

The Junior Life Saving certificates, crests and pins were presented by Newton Thompson to the following boys: Douglas Ashley, Cameron Snell, George Wonnacott and Thomas Hutchinson.

The crests for the winning junior team were presented by J. E. Shortt. The following boys comprised the "Eagles" team: Bill Holway, Douglas Ashley, Cameron Snell, Douglas Bateman, Ronald Salisbury, Stuart Blake, Dick Frost, Bruce Parsons and Gerald Cooper.

YOUNG LAPOINTE TO MOVE ADDRESS

His Father, Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Will be Present to Right of Premier for Ceremonies

Ottawa, May 8—(CP)—The opening of Canada's 19th Parliament a week from tomorrow will be a proud day for Justice Minister Lapointe, a veteran of 35 years in the House of Commons.

He will sit at his seat in the government front bench to the right of Prime Minister Mackenzie King and listen to his son Hugues Lapointe, 29, newly-elected Liberal member for Lotbiniere, move the address in reply to the speech from the throne and endeavor to carry on the Lapointe tradition of statecraft in one of parliament's rare father-and-son combinations.

It was announced from the Prime Minister's office last night that Hugues Lapointe will move the address and that James Sinclair (Lib. Vancouver North) will second it.

Dr. Arthur Beauchesne, clerk of the Commons since 1925, also will play an important role in the opening ceremony when he presides as Speaker of the Commons for the first hour or more while the Lower House elects its Speaker for the new parliament.

The new House will be without a speaker until Hon. Pierre F. Casgrain, Speaker since 1935, is re-elected or a successor formally chosen. While this is taking place, Dr. Beauchesne acts as Speaker from his clerk's chair at the foot of the Speaker's throne.

Rumors are current Mr. Casgrain will retain his post and that Hon. W. E. Foster will be re-appointed Speaker of the Senate at least for the forthcoming session. Normally Mr. Casgrain would be replaced by an English-speaking member and Senator Foster by a French-speaking Senator.

32 YEARS IN OFFICE OF BIBLE SOCIETY

In the 100th annual report of the Upper Canada Bible Society there is an "Honor Roll" and in that roll there is the name of Rev. Albert L. Geen, Belleville, 32 years in office, sixteen as Secretary and sixteen as President. Mr. Geen was presented with a well-bound Bible, beautifully inscribed.

ONE YEAR AGO MERCURY HIT 80

Exactly one year ago the weather was ideal for outdoor swimming. On the 7th day of May the mercury hit 80 and everyone who wasn't in his shirt-sleeves wished that he was. But yesterday it would have been rather cool in bathing togs and the weatherman promises cooler weather for the next day or so at least. Yesterday's high temperature reading was 61, quite a difference from last year, and the highest temperature ever recorded for May 7th was back in 1930, when it hit 87 degrees. On May 7th, 1874, the mercury dropped to a low of 25 degrees.

COLLEGIATE CADETS NOW IN TRAINING

The local armouries resounded to the sharp commands of cadet officers and the tramp of marching feet yesterday afternoon as the cadets of the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School went through their second drill of the season. Marching from the Collegiate campus to the armouries to the lively music as supplied by the Collegiate Band, the cadets, about four hundred strong, handled their rifles like veterans and obeyed the shouted orders of their officers with alacrity. The cadets are under the direction of Mr. J. L. Shiels of the collegiate staff.

HOUND PICKED UP BY OFFICER THORNE

County Constable Thomas Thorne picked up a black, brown and white hound, which resembles a beagle last night. The dog had a chain and collar attached, but no tag. Mr. Thorne thinks he may have got out of a car as he seems very fond of cars. The dog will be kept at the City Pound the prescribed forty-eight hours.

SERIAL NUMBER OF BIKES REQUIRED

Some difficulty is being experienced in the registration of bicycles in Belleville as the result of licencing 'bikes' in this city, it was learned today. When bicycle owners apply at the City Hall seeking bicycle licence plates, which are being issued for the first time under by-law in this city, the serial number of the bicycle being licenced is necessary. However, in case of 'bikes' of an old vintage there are no serial numbers attached. For instance today when Postman Harry Baker sought to purchase a bicycle licence plate and was requested to supply the city vendor with the serial number of his bicycle, the only identification mark stamped on Mr. Baker's bike was the date of March 1897. "It took me some time to find that marking, as it was stamped on the pedal of the machine", added Mr. Baker. In cases where bicycles were manufactured prior to the stamping of serial numbers upon the frame, merely the make a general description of the 'bike' is necessary.

Gordon Gregory Serves on Warship As Telegraphist

Word has been received by Mr. and Mrs. Gregory, 63 Cemetery Street, city, that their son Gordon Gregory, well known Belleville boy has passed a very successful course at the Royal Naval Signal School, Portsmouth, England, as telegraphist and has been transferred to a British warship.

Crowds Watch Hydro Employees

Hydro employees at the local Utilities office were drawing an interested audience this morning as they worked high above the sidewalk at the corner of Front and Campbell Streets changing the wires and crossarms from an old pole that had become broken off at the base to a new hydro pole which has recently been erected at that corner. The old transformer and fixtures which had graced the old pole were being taken away to be replaced by new fixtures of more modern make.
